Eight file petitions in race for city offices

A flurry of petitions were filed last week as candidates threw their hats in the ring for the upcoming city elections.

So far, there are two contests with candidates opposing each other for the First Ward and Third Ward alderman's seats.

As of press time, all of the other candidates are unopposed. The deadline for submitting petitions to have names placed on the ballot for the upcoming primary election was 4 p.m. Tuesday at the clerk's office, Charlevoix City Hall, State Street.

In the First Ward, Richard M. Hodgson and Jeffrey L. Porter will be opposing each other for the alderman's seat now held by Susan Erber. Mrs. Erber decided not to seek reelection to the common council following the completion of her first term so that she could devote more time to her growing family. She did not rule out running for council again the future, however.

Neither Hodgson or Porter have ever held seats on the common council. Porter has held an elective office in the city, however. He was elected to serve on the Charlevoix Charter Commission three years ago.

In the Third Ward, Shirley Roloff will be opposing Joseph G. Morris, Jr., for the alderman's seat. Morris is the incumbent alderman in that ward and is seeking reelection to his second term on common council.

Mrs. Roloff has never held an elective office in the city before, but has been active with several agencies as a volunteer.

In the Second Ward, Lawrence R. Feindt is the only candidate submitting a nominating petition to the city clerk. Feindt is seeking election to the seat currently held by Jeannine Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace, who is completing her second term as an alderman, said she would not seek reelection to her seat. The alderman said she felt she has become ineffective in her position on council and after talking with Feindt is confident that he will do a good job as alderman.

Mayor Edward P. Hansen is unopposed in his bid for reelection. Hansen is seeking his seventh term as mayor of Charlevoix. He has also served six years as an alderman for the city.

Also running unopposed are Judy Przybylski for the position of city clerk, and Annabelle Cunningham for the position of city treasurer.

The primary election will be held on Feb. 20 with the general election set for April 3. The last date for registering to vote in the primary election is Jan. 23. Voters may register until 8 p.m. in the city clerk's office in city hall.

WINTER WEATHER socked in Charlevoix and the surrounding areas last weekend extending Christmas vacation one more day for school children. But there was plenty to do. After sidewalks were shoveled, kids headed for the Grant Street sliding hill for some good winter fun.

Why People Shop Petoskey

The Charlevoix merchants never seem to know why people go out of town to shop. Here are a few of my reasons: I paid $3 less in Petoskey for a toy for my daughter's birthday than Charlevoix's department store priced it. Another thing, when you call a store to find out if they have an item, they don't check for sure, they just say: "We're sorry, we don't have it". Then, when you go into the store for something, there it is on the shelf. Also, you can never get an assortment or choice of things. I think it is some nerve to expect people to shop in this town, when these things and more go on. I, for one, will be glad when Glen's Market opens. At least, then we'll have someplace to go that won't be all for the summer people and the town people will be able to get more business cooperation. Thank you.

Praises Duke's Letter

It is obvious that much time and effort was required to research and produce Tom Duke's interesting letter. It appears to me that he and the Courier, for printing it, have done the community a great service. I, too, would like to thank them both. In as much as the matter is of such great importance to the community and township, I wonder what Oscar Stroud has to say about all this? Thank you.

Thanks City Road Crews

Our thanks to the City of Charlevoix Street crews who got out and cleared the streets on Christmas Day so that we could get around safely. Our only question is, where was the county road commission?

First baby of new year still not here

As of press time for the Charlevoix Courier this week, there are no entrants in the Courier's annual First Baby of the New Year Contest.

And according to a spokeswoman in the maternity ward at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, no babies have been born at the hospital during the first four days of the new year.

Two babies were born on New Year's Eve, Dec. 31, but so far no babies have been born yet this year, she said. She added that several area women are expecting babies during the first few days of the new year, so the wait for the first baby of the new year shouldn't be too much longer.

The first baby to be born in 1978 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital will receive gifts from 20 area merchants participating in the Courier's first baby contest. In addition, there will be several gifts for the parents.

To be eligible, the parents of the baby must submit a written statement from their attending physician noting the exact time of birth. The statement must be received by the Charlevoix Courier, 301 Michigan Ave., by January 9.

If there have been no births by that time, the contest will be extended until a baby arrives.

Shade tree commission spends $23,600 on project

A total of $23,637 has been spent so far on the controversial shade tree planting program for the City of Charlevoix, according to figures supplied by John Campbell, consultant who has been working with the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission and Judy Przybylski, city clerk.

During the fiscal year 1976, $13,497 was spent for the purchase of 720 trees, which were planted along U.S. 31 north and south and in the city nursery behind the waste water treatment plant, and in Campbell's private nursery, according to Campbell's figures.

Another $2,600 was paid to Davy Tree Company for the planting and pruning of the new trees and $604 was spent on the installation of an irrigation system for the new city nursery.

In fiscal year 1977, another $3,986 was spent to purchase 200 red oak trees and $2,800 was spent on labor for the planting, pruning and care of the trees by Site Planning Development, a company owned and operated by Campbell.

Also, $150 was spent for the purchase of a sidewalk grate for the planting of an experimental tree in a sidewalk in downtown Charlevoix.

In its proposed budget for the 1978 fiscal year, the shade tree has requested a total of $14,000 for services and capital acquisition.

Under services the budget includes $4,300 for work by Site Planning Development with the city crews in planting shade trees and $800 for John Campbell to locate, place and coordinate spring planting of trees.

Under capital acquisition, the budget request includes, $3,900 for the purchase of 200 trees and $5,000 for the purchase of tree grates if the downtown planting program is approved by the mayor and common council.

The shade tree commission has been the subject of a petition campaign in the city for the last two months. Opponents of the current program have been circulating petitions seeking a moratorium on the planting until the cost of the program is completely evaluated along with the areas for the proposed planting of the trees.

The group has submitted petitions containing 102 signatures favoring the moratorium. A group of nine downtown businessmen has also submitted a petition stating they are opposed to the planting of any trees in downtown sidewalks.

Supporters of the shade tree program submitted petitions containing the signatures of more than 200 city residents and taxpayers who supported the current planting program and 40 businesses who supported the planting of trees in the downtown sidewalks.

Mayor Edward Hansen has requested that the shade tree commission supply the common council with a detailed accounting of the expenditures of the commission so that the council and the public will know exactly how much has been spent on the project.

Alderman Jeannine Wallace, a member of the commission, said the figures would be prepared this month.

Adults, children enjoy piano lessons

To tickle those ivories with a boogie-woogie tune, to play church hymns or simply to play a favorite song.

These are all reasons for learning to play the piano and they are reasons that bring adults as well as children to piano teachers' doorsteps.

But even though a national survey shows that more and more adults are beginning to take piano lessons, veteran Charlevoix piano teacher Gwen Wexstaff says adults have always been among the ranks of children taking piano lessons.

"Adults have always been interested in piano lessons," Mrs. Wexstaff, who has taught piano lessons since 1945, said. "It's not something that has just started. I've had quite a lot of adult students down through the years."

Men, women, with a piano background or without one, all of these adults seem to be seeking out piano teachers and taking lessons. Beverly Kaiser and Jeanne Jensen, two other Charlevoix piano teachers, also said they had taught piano lessons to several adults and all of the women are currently teaching adult students as well as children.

Why do adults decide to try their hands at piano lessons when it's usually something reserved for children and young children at that?

There are many reasons according to the three music teachers.

"Most of the adults I have worked with say it's something they've always wanted to do," Mrs. Kaiser explained. "For others it's just something they don't know how to do and they would like to learn more about it."

Mrs. Wexstaff said often parents of children taking piano lessons will decide to take lessons so that they will know what the children are supposed to be doing and so they can help their children.

Mrs. Jensen said the adult interest in piano lessons and music was a part of our culture.

"On the whole we're branching out more in our interests and learning to express ourselves in the type of culture we have," Mrs. Jensen, who has taught piano in Charlevoix for seven years and for 15 years total, explained.

"Adults are branching out into their own interests and for some of them this means learning how to play the piano. "Most want to learn to play for their own enjoyment."

BEVERLY KAISER works with one of her piano students during a lesson. Adults as well as children are among the ranks of music teachers piano students.

Shriners install new slate of officers at meeting

The Northwest Shrine Club recently installed new officers for the coming year

Loyd Aemisegger of Rapid City will succeed James Hiller of Charlevoix as president, with Bill Little of Bellaire taking office as vice president.

Other new officers include William DeWitt of Alden, second vice president, John Gailbraith, of Rapid City, treasurer, and John Borton, of Charlevoix, secretary.

The officers were installed preceeding the club's annual Christmas party hosted by Aemisegger and his wife Martha. More than 162 Shriners and guests converged on the Shanty Creek Lodge for the occasion. Also preceeding the dinner was a punch bowl arranged by outgoing President Hiller.

Also during the celebration, a collection of jams and jellies was taken to be sent to the Chicago Hospital for Crippled Children for distribution to all the children. And a hand quilted bedspread was raffled off with the proceeds going for transportation.

Two Charlevoix realtors elected officers of board

The Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors has elected new officers for 1978.

Robert F. Wacher of Ski & Shore Properties, Inc., of Boyne City, was elected president of the organization for the coming year

Other officers elected were: W. R. (Bill) Carey, Colwell & Co., Realtors, of Charlevoix, vice president; Ethel Wood, William Bradford Scheid Realtors of Charlevoix, secretary; and Hoagy Meeske of Hank Hood Realty Co. of Bellaire, treasurer. Connie Dawson of Eastport serves the board as executive secretary.

The new officers were installed by Paul Scott of Traverse City, vice president of the Michigan Association of Realtors during a special dinner meeting at Shanty Creek Lodge. Scott commended the realtors board on its growth to more than 190 members.

Retiring president Donald MacNaughton, Colwell & Co. of Boyne City was presented with an award for his outstanding leadership.

Historical society searching for 100 year businesses

The Historical Society of Michigan is continuing its search for businesses that have operated in Michigan for more than 100 years.

The search, which started last year, resulted in the location of more than 225 centennial businesses in the state. One of them was the Petoskey News-Review.

According to Frank C. Wilhelme, executive director of the Historical Society, "This most exclusive group of businesses has been honored in community ceremonies sponsored by historical societies and chambers of commerce."

The names of all centennial businesses and their founding dates will be sent to the State Library, the State Archives, and the State Historical Preservation Officer. This information can then be used by researchers studying Michigan's early commercial and industrial history. The names will also become part of a business directory.

Application blanks for centennial business certificates may be obtained from The Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washtenaw Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan, 48104.

City street crews will pick up trees on curbs until Friday

Well, Christmas is over and the new year has begun. It's time to take down the decorations and to throw out the tree.

Once again this year, the Charlevoix City Street Department will assist city residents in disposing of their Christmas trees. All residents have to do is put their tree out by the curb in front of their homes and the street crews will pick them up and haul them away.

Crews are already busy collecting trees and will continue to pick them up until Friday. William Brodine, street superintendent, asked that all city residents who are going to take advantage of the tree collection service have their trees out by the roadside by Jan. 6.

Charlevoix Police Auxiliary looking for a few good men

The Charlevoix Police Department and Police Auxiliary are looking for a few good men.

The auxiliary would like to expand and it is looking for a few men who would be interested in donating some time to the community, Police Chief Jack Mol and auxiliary president Barry Wood explained.

"We have a need for responsible people in the auxiliary," Wood said. "We are just looking for good, responsible citizens

"It isn't a super strenuous job," the auxiliary president continued "Anyone in reasonably good health can do it."

But the key thing the auxiliary and police force are looking for is dedication and a desire to do something for the community.

Wood, who has been a member of the auxiliary since it was founded three years ago, said he would like to see the auxiliary force expand from the current five members to 12 members.

"This way we would be able to provide one man in each of the patrol cars each weekend night," Wood said. "This would really help out the police force in the summer."

Chief Mol said the auxiliary officers assist certified police officers with general street patrol riding at 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. shift. The auxiliary officers also assist the regular police force during special events such as Venetian Festival, Art Fair weekend and other busy summer weekends.

"The auxiliary members function is to assist the certified officer," Chief Mol explained. "The auxiliary members act as extra eyes, ears, hands and feet for the officers."

"The greatest single thing they do for the police force is provide needed assistance during Venetian weekend," Mol said. "But the auxiliary is also a great asset because it provides a link between the community and the police force."

Mol said auxiliary members are citizen cops as opposed to a certified officer, and area residents often approach them with questions.

"The auxiliary members are knowledgeable about police operations and they can explain the reasons for a particular situation to people when they ask," he said.

The police chief said the auxiliary officer's training encompasses everything that a regular officer must know. All of the training is conducted by the Charlevoix Police Department.

"They learn what makes the department tick," Mol said. "They get a background in law, firearms instruction, traffic control and many other things."

Wood said the training hit the high spots of police operation and the supervising officer usually filled the auxiliary officer in on anything else he needs to know

"There are a lot of auxiliaries around the area," Wood said. "But I don't think any of them are trained and equipped the way we are."

Wood said the initial training session lasts about six months and is held every two weeks. Once a man qualifies to become a member of the auxiliary force, then he also attends refresher seminars right along with the certified officers

Having such highly trained auxiliary members has really helped the regular police force.

"They've hired two of our members as full time officers," Wood pointed out.

Auxiliary officers are equipped exactly as certified officers are. Only their badges and shoulder patches are different. Auxiliary officers also carry handguns.

"There was a lot of deliberation about whether we should carry handguns or not," Wood said "But we mutually decided it was the proper way to go."

The city pays for the auxiliary member's uniform and other supplies. Auxiliary members are responsible only for the upkeep of the equipment.

"It's a strictly volunteer thing," Wood said. "There's no cost to the individual and it doesn't interfere with work or family life because we don't allow it to."

The first year in existence, the auxiliary contributed 505 hours of volunteer time to the city, Chief Mol said. Last year the group contributed 912 hours Most of the men didn't work more than two nights a month.

Anyone interested in joining the auxiliary should contact Chief Mol at the police s station in city hall. Applicants will be interviewed by both Mol and the police auxiliary.

New organization designed to help wives of law officers

The life of a law enforcement officer can be a tough one. The hours are long and the gratitude is short.

It can be even tougher to be the spouse of a law enforcement officer. There are special problems that the families of law enforcement officials face just as there are special problems confronting officers.

To help the wives of law enforcement officials deal with these problems and to help them learn more about the law enforcement field, a special group, the Charlevoix County Law Enforcement Wives, is being formed.

"Mainly the group is being organized so that we can find out who each other are and so that we can be educated as to what different things are involved in the law enforcement field," Margaret Lasater, wife of Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and one of the founders of the group, explained.

"It's been nice just to find out who each other are."

Mrs. Lasater said she came up with the idea for the wives' organization shortly after her husband was elected sheriff, but she never took any steps to organize the group.

Then she met the wife of another law enforcement official and mentioned the idea to her. She was interested in forming the group and the two women began to check with other wives until they felt they had enough to get the idea off the ground.

"The response of the women has been good," Mrs. Lasater said. "They all seem very interested and they agreed that something is needed."

For the first few meetings, the women have listened to such guest speakers as: Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Roy Hayes, a radio dispatcher in the Charlevoix Police Department, and a protective services worker from the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, who discussed child abuse.

"I didn't know anything about the law enforcement field, so it has been very interesting to learn about different aspects of it through the guest speakers," Mrs. Lasater explained.

But the group isn't all work and no play. The women are planning some social activities and would eventually like to set up some kind of a service project.

[illegible] meeting there's plenty of time for socializing. It's during the socializing that most of the discussions on the problems of being the wife of a law enforcement official occur, Mrs. Lasater said.

"We've discussed some of the family problems that have occurred such as the children being ostracized in school or the families being ostracized," she said.

The women also discuss how to deal with other people's reactions to them.

"People often wonder if we know anything about a specific case or investigation," Mrs. Lasater explained. "We're the last ones to know anything."

The next meeting of the group will be the second Thursday in January. For more information contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Quit smoking for New Years? Here's some helpful hints

If you've been smoking awhile, you've probably heard most of the arguments for quitting. You know that smokers are more likely to develop serious diseases, like cancer, heart disease, emphysema. But, since you are a smoker, are you aware of the special early warning signs of these illnesses? And are you aware of measures you can take to reduce some of the danger of smoking?

A pamphlet from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare discusses some common sense measures that all smokers should follow. For your copy of Unless You Decide to Quit, Your Problem Isn't Going to Be Smoking; Your Problem's Going to Be Staying Alive, send 35 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 037E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Since it's hard to quit "cold turkey", here are some ideas to help you break the habit gradually:

Choose a cigarette with less tar and nicotine. See how much you can reduce your tar and nicotine intake by switching brands.

Don't smoke your cigarette all the way down. You get the most tar and nicotine from the last few puffs because the tobacco itself acts as a filter. Smoke halfway and you get only about 40 percent of the total tar and nicotine. The last half of the cigarette will give you 60 percent.

Take fewer draws on each cigarette. Just reduce the number of times you puff on each cigarette and you'll cut down on your smoking without really missing it.

Reduce your inhaling. Don't inhale deeply; take short shallow d

Smoke fewer cigarettes each day. For some people this is easy, but for others it may be the most difficult step of all. Don't think of it as cutting down; think of it postponing. It's always easier to postpone a cigarette if you can look forward to having one later.

And it's worth postponing when you consider the alternatives.

The risk of coronary heart disease increases in direct relation to increased smoking. Quitting significantly reduces the risk.

In addition to lung cancer, smokers run a greater risk of developing cancer of the mouth, the larynx, and the esophogus, as well as cancer of the bladder.

As long as you're a smoker, it's even more important to have a regular medical checkup. And between checkups, smokers, because of their greater risk, have to be particularly alert to early symptoms of illness.

Reducing your smoking can lower the danger to your health, and quitting in time can give you almost as good a chance as the person who never smoked.

Unless You Decide to Quit, Your Problem Isn't Going to Be Smoking; Your Problem's Going to Be Staying Alive (35 cents) is one of over 200 selected Federal consumer publications listed in the Fall edition of the Consumer Information Catalog. The Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General services Administration. You can get a free copy by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

City council, mayor need more staff help to assist them with details

"Somehow we're always behind. We're behind on ordering this plow and we're behind on the Mt. McSauba project," Alderman Ray Wood stated. "We should be planning now for spring so that when it comes we will have the things we need ready to go."

Wood made these statements at a recent Charlevoix Common Council meeting following a decision by the council to purchase a new truck and snow plow for the city that won't arrive for six months – well after the snow season is over.

Mayor Edward Hansen and other common council members agreed with Wood that some planning by council members and various city department heads should be taking place. Mayor Hansen suggested that Wood and other aldermen write down ideas pertaining to spring and summer activities and needs in the city when they think of them so that the ideas could be discussed at upcoming council and committee of the whole meetings.

This way action could be taken on the ideas enough in advance to put them in motion before the season arrives. And maybe common council and the city wouldn't be so far behind the eight ball.

Unfortunately, the common council, the mayor and the city will never catch up to where they should be in their planning for city growth or just in planning to meet current needs under this approach. Planning takes a lot of time and hard work and must be done in an organized fashion every day and every week, not just when the thought strikes an alderman or a department head.

And it's not the mayor's or the aldermen's fault that the planning is not being done. These seven elected officials are too bogged down with the day-to-day details of running the city to even begin thinking about planning for the future.

For instance, at the last council meeting, the group spent almost an hour trying to decide if it should buy a gasoline engine or a diesel engine truck. The council shouldn't have to make the decision about what type of a truck to buy, that's a staff problem.

Let the street department and the city administrator or better yet a city manager make the decision about what KIND of a truck to buy. The mayor and the council should be deciding whether or not to BUY the truck based on the budget, city reserves and the plan they have developed for the replacement of city equipment.

Another example of a problem that could have been solved by the staff instead of taking up the council and the mayor's time also occurred at that same meeting.

The council was asked to approve extension of city electric service to some homes in the township on Vernida Street. The city is already serving four other homes in the township on that street, but because of a newly adopted policy which places a moratorium on the extension of any further electrical service to the township the request for the extension was sent to the council for consideration.

What council really needs is an overall plan for the extension of the city electrical service. It doesn't make sense to extend electricity to part of a subdivision and not to the rest of it. Through an overall plan, these decisions can be made for the entire area with some thought and consistency. Then the staff would merely have to carry it out without always coming to the council for an action on a request.

Council and the mayor are handicapped by how much time they can put in on any one project. They need a staff in the form of a competent city administrator or manager and perhaps even a city engineer, to give them advice so that their decisions are based on sound, researched facts from experts.

The council and mayor are only human. They can't possibly know everything about every facet of the city operations. They need to develop a good staff that they can rely on for basic information and decision making so that they will be free to work on things where they do have the knowledge.

And the mayor and the council can do a lot to plan for the future of Charlevoix to insure that it will run smoothly and be a community all will want to live in. But they need time to work on these plans and they need it now.

When it comes to our presidents, I'm a regular Jewish mother. I wish they would stay home, consume lots of chicken soup, dress warmly, avoid drafts and get to bed early.

But just look at Jimmy Carter!

While the rest of us are drowsily recovering from our holiday excesses, Jimmy and Roselynn are off on an extended diplomatic tour that will take them half way around the world and home again in nine days.

Of course, we have a good man standing at the wheel of the ship of state in Vice President Walter Mondale. Barring an atomic war, he should be able to hold us to a steady course until Jimmy returns.

But what if – just what if – Jimmy doesn't make it home again. Remember he is traveling miles high over oceans miles deep in a newfangled invention called the airplane. And despite the expertise of Air Force engineers, Jimmy's silver chariot is still at the mercy of natural phenomena, mechanical failure and human error.

What if someone forgets to fill the tank?

Furthermore, the president – any president – will always be the target of crackpots and political malcontents the world over, regardless of his good works or pleasing disposition. Sabotage aboard Air Force 1 is a perennial threat to the safety of our traveling presidents.

What's more, on his current European-Asian trip, the president must face up to the dangers of overdone brussels sprouts in Belgium, tainted snails in France, indigestible perogi in Poland, over-spiced curries in India, rancid yogurt in Iran and green dates in Saudi Arabia.

Of course, Jimmy Carter has carefully weighed the potential risks connected with overseas travel against the possible benefits resulting from personal contacts with foreign leaders in distant capitals. And the trip must have won, hands down.

Meanwhile, little Amy Carter, who wears glasses and should not be allowed out of doors while the streets are slippery, has been shipped off to Colorado for a skiing vacation with friends of the Carter family. Rosalynn Carter, you will note, is not a Jewish mother.

It is a foregone conclusion that Amy will fall and break her glasses. It is almost as certain that she will require medical treatment for bruised shins and possibly broken bones. As the father of two girls who wear glasses I know these things to be true.

I tell you, these presidential junkets aren't all caviar and champagne, not by a long shot.

I for one won't sleep well until Jimmy and Rosalynn return to American soil and little Amy is back in the bosom of her family.

Pass the chicken soup.

...Speaking Her Mind

There I was, sitting peacefully in the Charlevoix Common Council chambers just before a council meeting with my mind wrapped up in thoughts of all the projects I have sitting at home just waiting to be completed. I was mentally trying to schedule some of those projects into a time slot for completion when all of a sudden, the woman next to me leaned over and said: "You must spend half you time sitting at meetings."

Her words hit me with the force of an 18-wheeler (that's a big truck for those of you who missed "Smokey and the Bandit"). For some reason, my mouth wouldn't move as I tried to smile and mumble something about protecting the people's right to know.

But I was really thinking that sometimes it seems like I spend more than half my time at meetings.

In the last 15 months that I have been working at the Charlevoix Courier, I have attended a lot of meetings. It's a part of my job and believe it or not, I find it very interesting.

Most public officials have a great sense of humor and that makes those late nights a little less dry. Many of them are expert punsters and most have developed a great capacity for one-liners. All of them have learned to laugh at themselves.

One of the best one liners I've heard in recent times was uttered by Ralph Richardson at a Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting.

A fellow commissioner walked into the meeting about 90 minutes late. On his way to his seat, he passed Richardson and asked how the meeting was going.

It had been a long meeting, with every issue being argued over and every vote split. What can you say about a long winded session? Richardson summed it up in one line.

"It's been quite a meeting," he said. "Even the pledge of allegiance was 9-6."

The pledge of allegiance is something the commissioners say at the opening of every meeting without question.

Even though there is much levity at the various meetings within the city, township and county, many serious things happen there, too. Business is conducted that affects the lives of all the residents and often times their pocketbooks, too.

And the sad part is that usually there are no citizens at the public meetings to observe what their elected officials are doing.

I'm sure elected officials act to the best of their abilities to represent the voters, but if the voters aren't around to advise the officials, the officials will never know what the voters would like to see them accomplish.

And I think that attending public meetings would be a good civics lesson for many voters. Attending a session of city council, township board or county commission would certainly open a few eyes. The seriousness of local government and the far reaching effect it can have would be made very clear.

And there might be a few jokes thrown in, too.

Erma Bombeck

I have never known anyone personally who has a clean cookie sheet.

There was one woman in the old neighborhood who was rumored to have one, but she was quite weird and when I saw her coming, I always looked the other way.

Cookie sheets are like underwear, dish towels, and toothbrushes. They're never on display to the public, so who cares what they look like.

Men do not understand cookie sheets. My husband watched me put biscuits on mine the other day and said, "That reminds me, I have to have the oil changed in the car this week."

When I didn't respond, he asked, "Just for curiosity's sake, how much does a new cookie sheet cost?"

"The last time I bought one it was around $2.98."

"The last time you bought one, they were using beads and trinkets for money."

"Why should my cookie sheet bother you?"

"Because it looks like a health hazard. What's that baked on it?"

"Which layer?"

"That's not funny, you know. Look at it! It's even rusting in the corners."

"That's because some idiot put water on it."

"Heaven forbid I'd tell you how to run your kitchen, but why don't you pick up a new one?"

"For the same reason you hold your glasses together with a paper clip and have three knots in your shoestring."

"That's different."

Americans need one last bastion from which to defend their cheapness. Maybe it's a favorite lipstick that you use a bobby pin to dig it out with ... a pin in your shorts ... a cord that's down to two inches on your power mower starter ... a broom handle stuck in the sliding glass doors of your $65,000 house ... a comb with 15 teeth missing ... a $6,000 car with one set of car keys.

All I know is yesterday my husband bought me a new cookie sheet and when I went outside, my neighbor saw me coming and looked the other way.

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

All it takes is a little putty

It could soon become popular for a government official to explain a mistake by saying: "It's under the porch."

Hamilton Jordan, top aide to President Carter, recently explained to a TV reporter how the White House had bungled:

"It fell between the cracks," Jordan said, using the euphemism for "we're dumb" currently most popular in Washington.

From my childhood I remember how exasperating it is to have something fall between the cracks. My father would give me a dime for the movies and I would drop it on the way out the door and I would feel sick as it rolled directly to a crack and disappeared under the porch.

Under the porch was the pits. The area was enclosed and you couldn't get inside without removing enough slats to create a hole to squeeze through. My father didn't want his porch mutilated, and my mother refused to be related to any boy who would ruin his clothes crawling around in that filthy hole.

So my father gave me another dime.

After this happened a couple of times, I realized that a dime under a porch was an act of God, a perfect excuse. It was also an excellent way to get enough money to buy two boxes of Milk Duds to eat during the movie. All I had to do was lie a little.

After a while, my father wised up. He didn't waste any time trying to convince me that crime doesn't pay. He knew that I knew that his best friends were bootleggers. He simply plugged the porch cracks with putty.

Recalling how well my father's remedy worked, I am wondering how many dimes would be saved if someone plugged the cracks in our bureaucracies.

For instance, the Labor Department recently announced that the number of Americans holding jobs rose by the biggest number in 17 years last month. But there was no drop in the number of people unemployed. Most experts admit they can't figure it out.

If there are some people working, why aren't there fewer people not working?

The answer appears obvious. There are fewer people not working but they haven't been counted because they fell through the cracks at the Labor Department.

From this you might infer that thousands of employed people are currently trapped under a huge porch in Washington and are being denied their God-given right to become labor statistics. But that would be a silly inference.

Bureaucratic cracks are not between the boards of a porch floor. They are between departments or sections or bureaus or pools or other units of measurement which contain people. When something falls between the cracks in a bureaucracy, it does not land in some dirty crawl space where no son of my mother would ever be allowed.

The fact is, when something falls into the cracks between bureaucrats, it is caught before it hits the ground. It is caught by sub-bureaucrats who are stationed below cracks for just that purpose.

When a sub-bureaucrat catches something that came through a crack, it is his or her job to cause that thing to disappear as quickly and completely as possible.

In the larger branches of government, sub-bureaucrats are equipped with computers to facilitate the task of zipping things into the nether regions, never to be retrieved. In smaller operations, they make ultimate use of unmarked file folders, inkless inkpads and illegible handwriting.

Like the people above the cracks, sub-bureaucrats are protected by Civil Service and can't be fired. So, the only way to stop the loss of so many things would be to plug the cracks between the bureaucrats. This would also prevent the bureaucrats from lying about dropping things through cracks that are no longer viable.

My father's putty wouldn't work, as bureaucrats are sometimes required to move around slightly. The best answer is overlapping. Fatter bureaucrats should be hired, and present bureaucrats should be ordered to eat more.

Once the bureaucrats are all packed together tightly, there will be no cracks for things to fall through. This theory is based firmly on the fact that history records no instance of a canned sardine ever losing a dime under porch.

Letters to the editor

Medusa responds to Duke letter

To The Editor:

Tom Duke's recent letter to the Courier suggests that further questions need to be asked about Medusa's proposed plant conversion, and the affect of Medusa's request for an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate under Act 198. Mr. Duke's questions, however, were all asked and answered in the meeting with Medusa personnel to which he refers in his letter. Moreover, Mr. Duke's questions are designed to answer themselves; unfortunately, the answers which he gives are based on inaccurate information, erroneous assumptions, and may mislead the community rather than enlighten it.

Mr. Duke's letter concerns itself with three important areas, each of which we have discussed candidly in the past and will attempt to again in this letter. The three areas concern:

1. The tax abatement
2. Pollution control, and
3. Plant site reclamation.

(1) Contrary to Mr. Duke's implications, the tax relief Medusa has applied for does not mean that Medusa will be paying less taxes than we currently do. Nor does it mean that the school system and township will receive less income than they are presently receiving so that the citizens will have to make up the difference.

The facts are that the tax relief would only reduce the amount of additional taxes that Medusa would have to pay on its expanded plant. If the tax abatement is approved and the proposed plant expansion takes place, Medusa would be paying an additional $350,000 to $440,000 in taxes per year compared to its present taxes of approximately $400,000. That means Medusa's taxes would be about two times the present amount or about $800,000 per year.

Consider also that Medusa is not served by municipal water, sewers, or electrical services, and has committed to hire local people as much as possible for the project, thus minimizing any student increase in the schools. When the matter is viewed in this prospective, the granting of the tax relief certainly is not a subsidy as Mr. Duke would have you believe. The additional taxes constitute an economic bonanza to local government and school system. There would be approximately $300,000 more for the Charlevoix school system, $50,000 more for the county and $30,000 more for the township.

The Company is planning to spend $50 million on the plant expansion, a sizable amount of money for Medusa, equal to almost half of the shareholders' equity in the Company. When the Board of Directors of Medusa voted in September to proceed with the conversion of the Charlevoix plant, it did so in the reasonable expectation that it would have the same access to the tax incentives offered by state law as have been made available to other industries in the State and Charlevoix County. The state law is designed to encourage businesses to locate in Michigan, stay in Michigan, and to assist them to remain competitive. This project will require Medusa to borrow a substantial sum of money, thereby increasing its debt and its risks. Medusa was forced to consider the conversion program in order to retain its position as a healthy competitor in the market place and to remain a healthy local business. Right now, our most efficient competition is not in the U.S.A., but is located in Canada. One Canadian company utilizing the new dry process has established a distribution center in Bay City and is shipping into Medusa's Michigan market.

(2) Contrary to what Mr. Duke implies in his letter, the new process Medusa will be using is not unknown and is not a threat to the environment or to the health of the citizens. The process has been tested, proven, and used since the early 1970's in Japan. It is currently in use in Switzerland, Germany, France, and China as well as in one plant in the U.S.A. Four other units are currently on order in the U.S.

It should not surprise anyone that there have been technological advances in air pollution control since the Charlevoix plant was built ten years ago. The advances will obviously be incorporated in the dust collection equipment for the new facility. In addition, the conversion from wet process to dry process substantially reduces the volume of gas to be cleaned. Furthermore, the dust collection capacity will be more than doubled for the new facility as compared to an 80 percent increase in productive capacity. Not only will the actual dust emissions consequently be less from the new facility than from the current one, but they will be less than the allowable amount of emissions under Federal EPA regulations. The plant's emissions will also be less than allowable under Charlevoix Township's code, which happens to be tougher than the State's requirements.

On file in the Charlevoix Public Library for review by the public is a report prepared by Kaiser Engineers of Oakland, California. Kaiser is the largest independent cement consulting firm in North America. The summary of this report states in part:

"First, dust emissions will be reduced by more than 20 percent. Second, musty odors originating from the west process will be eliminated. Third, sulfur oxide emission will be reduced by more than 50 percent. Fourth, under most meterological conditions, there will be no steam plume."

(3) In his letter, Mr. Duke also expresses concern about the appearance of the quarry and the reclamation of the quarry in future years. Medusa is already required to meet very stringent State and Federal reclamation requirements. And even further requirements are under consideration by the Federal government.

Medusa welcomes any questions regarding our proposed plant expansion. We have tried in the past to answer them as fully and factually as we could – and we will continue to do so. We believe, however, that in all fairness to the citizens of Charlevoix, the facts of the matter should be presented. Inaccurate information and erroneous assumptions that are dressed up to look like facts help no one and do a disservice to all.

Changing shopping habits can reduce family budget

If that trip through the checkout lane is making your weekly shopping trips a little less carefree; if the old "that looks good – I'll take it" philosophy is causing more pain in your pocketbook than pleasure at the table, perhaps it's time to take a second look at your food shopping strategies.

Why not add a few resolutions to your list for 1978 and become a better shopper?

Resolve to look, listen and read information on food buying, food marketing and food usage. Check the newspapers, radio, television and magazines for food buying information. In addition to being alerted to foods in best supply, you often get the "reasons why" of particular food situations, such as weather conditions.

Resolve to keep alert to what your market is featuring. Watch for and study food ads, and plan menus to include as many "specials" as possible. Try to remember the "regular" prices so you'll know if the special is really a special. Buy featured foods in quantity if you can use them and if storage space allows. When planning menus for the family, keep their nutritional needs and their likes and dislikes in mind.

Resolve to plan ahead for what you need and want, but keep the menu plan flexible enough to include in-store special items and multipackage (unit) deals on certain foods not mentioned in ads. Always take a shopping list – it helps cut down on impulse buying.

Resolve to shop alone on a full stomach if at all possible. Shopping with spouse, children or a friend can increase the food bill by as much as 10 percent; and shopping when you're hungry also results in higher expenses – too many things look appetizing.

Resolve to figure the "real" cost and not just the price per unit. The cost per pound or unit of an item is often misleading. The cost per serving is the true measure.

Novotny makes comments on Indian fishing rights

To the Editor:

The Indian fishing question has reached a point of false values and racial separation. There are many Indians that claim treaty rights who do no belong or really support a form of tribal life, but rather take advantage of it by using historical fishing rights for personal gains.

There are and have been mistakes, mostly committed by white men for commercial and personal gains, but they are not necessarily all fishermen. The fault is ours, but through civic responsibility and the law we can control the use of a natural resource for the benefit of all.

The preservation of this natural resource requires that rules for this preservation be honored by all people and not just a little bit by some and more by others.

Concerned citizens seek information on candidates

Dear Editor:

Would you please publish this request.

We would like Shirley Roloff who is seeking the office of mayor to state her platform, party and to list her credentials.

We think a picture of both candidates would be proper.

Thank you,
Concerned citizens

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Charlevoix Courier will publish pictures and articles about all of the candidates in the February 8 edition. Also we would like to point out that Shirley Roloff is a candidate for Third Ward alderman not mayor.

Charlevoix Courier wins Blue Ribbon award

The Charlevoix Courier has once again been named a "National Blue Ribbon Newspaper."

The National Newspaper foundation recently announced that the Courier has received the award for 1978-79. This is the fourth time in a row that the Courier has received the designation.

To be considered for the Blue Ribbon title, newspapers were required to submit a self-evaluation and several copies of the paper to a judging committee. The committee evaluated the papers according to 25 criteria measuring the newspaper's service to its community against a fixed national standard. The panel was composed of publishers whose newspapers are recognized for their over-all excellence or who had previously been accorded the Foundation's Blue Ribbon award.

The Courier was one of only 313 newspapers in the country to receive the designation. More than 460 entries were received from papers in 50 states, Canada, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

The National Newspaper Foundation, established in 1957, is dedicated to the improvement of journalism and journalism education.

Meet Charlevoix

...Tom Carey

Tom Carey

Tom Carey is a salesman for a Saginaw petroleum equipment company and president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors. In addition, he is a Charlevoix native and a history buff. This week he shares some of the historical stories he has collected.

COURIER: Why is it that you've collected so much information about the history of Charlevoix?

CAREY: I've always been interested in it. History was one of my fovorite subjects in school and I've just kept up with it. It's a hobby type thing. I'm an authority on nothing.

I goess you could say I'm a Civil War buff. I find that period very interesting and I read everything I can find on it. I take a monthly magazine about the Civil War, too.

COURIER: Where did you get your information about Charlevoix?

CAREY: Mostly from talking with relatives. My dad was a paint contractor here in town and there weren't too many homes that he didn't know the history of.

COURIER: Do you ever collect information from onywhere else?

CAREY: I like to go into old groveyords and look at the stones.

COURIER: Do you hove a favority epituph?

CAREY: I haven't seen this one, but I heard about it and I like it quite a bit. It's supposed to be on a grave stone in Massachusets and it says, 'I told you I was sick!.'"

COURIER: Have you written any of your information down or do you carry it around in your?

CAREY: No, I haven't written any of it down although when I was visiting my son Brad he recorded on tape some information that he wanted. He had some questions that he wanted the answers to.

COURIER: Tell us about the Carey family. You're quite a part of the history of Charlevoix.

CAREY: Both of my parents were born in Charlevoix, but my dad's father was born in London, England. He came to Canada when he was five years old and then the family moved here. There was quite a migration of Canadians to this area when the lumbering started. A number of the old family names in Charlevoix were people who moved here during that migration, too.

COURIER: Who were some of the other families that moved here?

CAREY: The Trumbles, Stewarts and Alcocks.

COURIER: What about your mother's side of the family?

CAREY: My mother was a Carpenter. Her grandfather moved here in the late 1850's just before the Civil War. After he got here he went back to New York and enlisted in the army. He was shot in the second battle of Bull Run. His last name was Emery. I have a cousin, Bob Emery, who was born in Charlevoix, who has traced the Emery back to the Revolutionary War. One Emery was a neighbor of George Washington's and spent six years as a teamster in the Revolutionary War.

COURIER: What about the Carey family in Charlevoix?

CAREY: My father was born in a house at 708 Bridge St. and I was born in a house at 706 Bridge. My family lives around the corner on Upright Street. So in a five house area, 21 Careys were born. That's got to do an awful lot for populating the wnrld.

COURIER: How many brothers and sisters do you have?

CAREY: I have one sister Marge ond five brothers Charles, Keith, Don and the twins Bob and Bill.

COURIER: What aboot yaur wife's family?

CAREY: Esther's father was born in Denmark and came to the United States in 1860 when he was five years old. He was at sea when Lincoln was shot. Her maiden name was Honsen ond she is a sister of Mayor Ed Hansen.

COURIER: What are some of the things you have learned about Charlevoix?

CAREY: When you asked me to come down here ond talk about this I was reminded of a story my dad told me. He knew an old gent who had walked across the Pine River with a team of horses. The Pine River is one thing that has chsnged quite a bit. The river used to dump in Lake Michigan where the pump house is now not where the bath house is. If you follow the contour of the hill along Park Avenue you can see that it makes n natural turn toward the pump house. What we call the Coast Guard station would have been on the north side of town and so would the bath house.

COURIER: Why did they stroighten out the river?

CAREY: Well when they first started the shipping the boats need a straight shot at the channel in order to get in. They all came here under sail and that was all they had.

COURIER: How else has Charlevoix changed?

CAREY: Just in my lifetime the downtown arca has changed. There used to be stores the full length of both sides of the street. All the stores on Round Lake had basements that opened up to the boats for shipping. The boat business used to be real big.

COURIER: When did the hospital get started?

CAREY: The hospital wos started in 1919 through the efforts of local people. Several businessmen in town got together and bought a house on West Hurlbut Street. They opened there and then put an addition on in the 1930s for a total of 23 beds. As time went on and government regulations got tougher they had to move out of that building and into the new one.

COURIER: When did they move?

CAREY: In 1954. And they never lost a day's business.

COURIER: How long have you been active on the hospital board?

CAREY: I've been on the board for five years and I've been president for three years.

COURIER: Tell us some current history about your family.

CAREY: My wife Esther and I have seven children. Andy is the oldest and lives in Charlevoix. He works at Site Planning Development. Denny is a deputy sheriff for Charlevoix County and Brad is a teacher in Canada. My daughter Chris works for the Cincinnatti Reds in public relations. She is involved in ticket sales, entertaining visiting dignitaries and she even attends city council meetings as the Reds representative. Jean is an occupational therapist at Mt. Siani Hospital in Boston and Ellen will graduate from Bronson Hospital this spring with her R.N. Ross is still at home and is in the eighth grade.

Curtis Cummins selected for avionics training

Airman Curtis D. Cummins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Cummins of East Jordan, Mich., has been selected for technical training at Lowry AFB, Colo., in the Air Force avionics systems field.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Cummins is a 1977 graduate of East Jordan High School.

Terence Olson completes training for Coast Guard

Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Terence D. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald O. Olson of Rogers Road, East Jordan, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Coast Guard Training Center, Alameda, Calif.

During the nine-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training leading toward his qualification in one of the Coast Guard's 26 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were first aid, seamanship, Coast Guard history and regulations, close order drill and damage control.

A 1977 graduate of East Jordan High School, he joined the Coast Guard in September 1977.

CITY CREWS were hard at work last week preparing a base for the ice skating rink located on the Charlevoix High School property. The crews are also continuing work on the hockey rink located at Mt. McSauba. Both rinks are expected to be open by this weekend.

Preparations continue on hockey, ice skating rinks

Work is continuing on the new hockey rink at Mt. McSauba. The area has been cleared, stumps removed and the ground leveled in preparation for the flooding of the rink, Dwight Boss, city recreation director, said.

Boss expects the rink to be ready for use by Saturday.

The Charlevoix Common Council approved the extension of the township water line to the rink with the charge for the water being the same as the city's charge to township residents.

In the past, the hockey rink has been located at the Charlevoix Middle School, but with the construction of the new track at the school, the rink can no longer be located there.

Work has also begun on the ice skating rink at the Charlevoix High School, too. City crews have been working up a base for the rink and as soon as it gets cold and clear the crews will ice the rink.

For more information about the hockey or ice skating programs contact Boss at 547-4272.

Five County students named to Dean's List

Five Charlevoix County students achieved placement on the fall quarter Dean's List at Michigan Technological University by earning a 3.5 grade average or higher.

Students on the Dean's List from Charlevoix include: Thomas D. Fowler, a freshman majoring in engineering, son of Mr. and Mrs. David D. Fowler, 409 E. Dixon Ave., and Larry A. Straw, a junior majoring in mining engineering, son of Betty Straw, Rte. 3.

Robert E. Cummins, Jr., had a perfect grade point of 4.0. He is a sophomore majoring in engineering, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummins of East Jordan.

Two Boyne City students were also on the list: Edmund P. Anderson, a junior majoring in metallurgical engineering, had a perfect 4.0, too. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Anderson of Boyne City. And Elwood L. Hardy, Jr., a freshman majoring in forest technology, was on the Dean's List. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood L. Hardy, Sr., of Boyne City.

High school still may get new doors

Charlevoix Public School officials are still planning to install the new doors at Charlevoix High School next month, but things are not looking good.

School business manager Vince Olach said the school was still waiting to get the hardware for the new doors – the open and close mechanism.

Olach said the doors have been manufactures and the frames are completed by the closing mechanism has not.

"It's the best mechanism you can get and everyone is chunging their doors over to it," Olach said. "So there is a back order for it."

The doors at the high school are being replaced because they are worn out.

Feds change rules on food stamp eligibility

The Michigan Department of Social Services announces that some families and senior citizens who applied for food stamps since August 5, 1974 and were not eligible then, may now be entitled to boy food stamps.

Persons who were ineligible since then because they were receiving rent subsidies from the Department of Housing and Urban Development should contact their local food stamp office. These persons may also be entitled to additional food stamps to make up for benefits lost because their application was denied.

Other persons were found eligible but were charged too much for their food stamps because of the HUD rent sobsidy. These persons should also contact their local stamp officers. They may be eligible for a cash refund.

Sandra Hodge on Lake Superior Dean's List

Cost of running Charlevoix Co. less per capita than state average

For Charlevoix County residents who wonder whether the local taxes they are paying are higher or lower than those levied in other communities, recent surveys provide some onswers.

They show that, while the cost of government has been rising rapidly for local taxpayers, the increase has not been as rapid as in some areas.

The facts and figures come from the Department of Commerce, the Commerce Clearing House and others.

Nearly every community has been put in a squeeze, it seems, trying to maintain and, if possible, to expand its services and meet rising payrolls.

The fastest expansion in operating costs has been centered in education, health and hospitals and public welfare. In the past 10 years, states and Conference Board, state and local expenditures have more than tripled, going from $101 billion to $319 billion.

As a result, the tax load for these governmental operations rose throughout the United States to a record high of $731 per capita in the past fiscal year. This was $304 above 1970.

In Charlevoix County, state and local taxes came to an estimated $570 per capita in the year.

This compares with an average of $749 in the rest of the State of Michigan, about $67 more than the year before. The average in the East North Central States was $697.

The tax borden grew heavier in the past year in every section of the country and varied widely from state to state.

Arkansus retuined its position as the state with the lowest per capita rate, $454. Alaska was highest, with $1,896, replacing New York, which had topped the list for 10 straight years.

Nationwide, most of the state-local revenue, 36.3 percent of it, was raised through property taxes. The yield from sales and gross receipts taxes was almost as much, 34.8 percent. Income taxes were next in line, prodocing 15.7 percent.

For residents of Charlevoix County, the tax load for their state and local government aperations came to an estimated $10,481,000.

Plan for Irish dock facility gets approval from council

A proposed new docking facility in Lake Charlevoix wos approved by the Charlevoix Common Council last week.

Dave Irish and Cliff Biddick of Irish Boat Shop on Stover Road presented proposed plans for a floating breakwater and docking facilities to the council during a site plan review.

Irish would like to place the dock on property on Lake Charlevoix that formerly housed the City Service Co. tank farm. He plans to extend a dock 400 feet from the shoreline or 150 feet beyond the current oil dock.

The docking facility will provide slips for aboot 65 large boats, Irish said. A parking lot with 77 spaces will olso be constructed on the site for the cars of the boat owners.

A toilet and bath house for the boaters will also be built in the parking lot area, bot a pump out station will not be constructed at the area.

The parking lot will be fenced and lighted. The docks also will be lighted.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the state Department of Natural Resources are currently studying the proposal and are preparing to hold public hearings on the request for permits to construct the facility.

Irish explained he was seeking common council approval of the plon before receiving the other permits because of a time limitation on an option to purchase the lond.

"We're trying to get as many approvals us we can before Jan. 3," Irish said.

The company has agreed to boy the land for the proposed docking facility providing it can get assurances that it will get all the necessary permits.

In other action, common council approved the appointment of Duane Wilks as assistant city assessor. Wilks, a CETA employee, has been working with Robert Potter, city ossessor, and will now be able to assist him full time. His pay will be $4.09 per hour.

The council also accepted a bid for the purchase of a diesel truck from Erber Auto Co. for $24,262.

Has the holiday season brought the addition of a poinsettia to your decor? With proper care you can keep it to enjoy for a long time.

In the 150 years since it was introdoced from Mexico, the poinsettia (Euphorbia pulcherrima) has become a U.S. Christmas tradition. With the new, hybrid varieties, the red, pink and white flower bracts may last for months.

Choose a poinsettia that has dark green foliage. Fallen or yellow leaves indicate it has been poorly fertilized or it has a root disease. The colorful bracts should be of good size and color. The true flowers, the buttonlike structures at the center of the bracts, should have little or no yellow pollen showing on them.

Tu keep your poinsettia healthy, keep it oot of hot and cold drafts and high temperatures. Temperatures of 60-70 degrees F during the day are best, with 55 degrees at night. Higher temperatures will shorten the blooming period.

Place your poinsettia where it will be exposed to bright, indirect light. If light levels are too low, the lower leaves will yellow and drop off. Dry air will also cause leaf drop.

Water the poinsettia when the soil feels moderately dry. Avoid overwatering, especially if the pot does not have a hole in the bottom to allow excess water ta drain oway. Both overwatering and underwatering will cause leaves to fall off.

Fertilize once a month with houseplant fertilizer.

Propagate by stem tip cuttings.

The poinsettia can be rebloomed, but the process is difficult to carry out in the home. MSU Historicultural specialists recommend keeping the plant until it begins to decline and then discarding it. discarding it.

Rayders back in action on Thursday here

The Charlevoix High School Rayders will move back into action this week as the various teams resume their schedules following Christmas vacation.

Opening up the action will be the freshman basketball team and the wrestling team as they both meet opponents on Thursday.

The freshman hoopmen will meet Petoskey in the Charlevoix High School gym at 7 p.m. while the Rayder grapplers will meet the Northmen in Petoskey beginning at 6:30 p.m. The grapplers will also attend the Alma Invitational on Saturday. That event begins at 10 a.m.

On Friday the Junior Varsity and Varsity basketball squads will travel to Petoskey for a tough match against the Northmen. The junior varsity game will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the varsity squads meeting at 8 p.m.

The Northmen varsity squad is 5-1 in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and 5-2 overall. Charlevoix brings a 3-3 overall record to the game with a 3-2 conference standing.

Also beginning after the holidays is varsity and junior varsity volleyball. The girls will open their season at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 11 in a game against the Cheboygan Chiefs in Cheboygan. The girls first home game will be Jan. 25 against Rogers City.

Recreation teams start league play again this week

The Charlevoix City Recreation Department basketball and volleyball leagues will swing back into action this week following a rest over the holidays.

Competition in the basketball B league will open Wednesday with County State Bank versing Wojan Aluminum, First State Bank opposing Alray Cottages and Tri-City Asphalt opposite Medusa. Tri-City Asphalt is the league leader with six wins and no losses.

Competition in the basketball A League will open Thursday with Bob's Sunoco playing Townhouse, Foam Corps against Kadens and Swansons meeting Site Planning Development. Swansons is the league leader for the A section with a perfect record of six wins and no losses.

In volleyball action, the Men's League will open play Tuesday with the Spikers versing Bartletts, Village Car Care against Odds and Ends and Swansons against Rugby Rogues.

The Mixed League will open Wednesday with the Hut versus Dodgers, Clothing Company versus Lions and Hawleys Raiders versus Freedman Artcraft.

On Thursday, LaBelskis will meet Grin and Bear it, TT Fogal will meet the Misfits and Out of Site will meet Righteous.

Milliken makes bushel bet on Rose Bowl

Governor William Milliken has turned out to be a betting governor.

He has a bushel of Michigan tart cherries riding on the outcome of the Rose Bowl which pits the University of Michigan Wolverines against the Washington Huskies. Milliken made the bet with Washington Gov. Dixie Lee Ray.

If Michigan wins the Rose Bowl, Milliken gets a bushel of Washington apples. If Washington wins, Gov. Ray will get a bushel of Michigan tart cherries.

Three new cross country trails open at Sleeping Bear Dunes

A new system of back country trails for cross country skiers and snowshoers is opening at the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore this winter.

Three new trails will be opening for winter use. The trails are located at Alligator Hill, with parking along Day Forest Road (west side) south of Glen Arbor, Schauger Hill/Windy Moraine, with parking at the Visitor Center on M-109 four miles north of Empire and Platte Plains/Otter Creek, with parking at Platte River Campground or at the end of Esch Road.

The trails will be identified with 4 inch blue triangular markers.

For the first time since D-Day and Platte River campgrounds were turned over to the National Park Service, the area will be open to winter camping. One loop road in each campground will be plowed and the usual "primitive" pit toilet and hand pump facilities will be available.

For the adventuresome skier, a back country campsite has been added in the Platte Plains area. Campers must register for this site at the Platte River Campground.

The Vistior Center will be open on weekends from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visitors are urged to make the Visitor Center their first stop to obtain current weather, trail and camping information.

FAITH INSPIRED FRANKLIN'S ADVICE ON SENSIBLE LIVING

Benjamin Franklin, while officially known as an early American statesman, is more universally remembered as the source of some of the most common sense advice ever offered to mankind, timeless and just as pertinent today as it was when he first uttered it, no matter what part of the world you happen to live in. Let us honor him on the occasion of his birthday, by renewing his prescription for a long, happy and productive life, with the principal ingredients consisting of thrift, diligence, preservation of health and the wise conservation of time. Franklin was a religious man; and your own regular attendance at the Church of your choice will instill in you the same principles for which we remember him today.

> "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."
> --I Corinthians 9:25

> Temperance puts wood on the fire, meal in the barrel, flour in the tub, money in the purse, credit in the country, contentment in the house, clothes on the back, and vigor in the body.
> Benjamin Franklin

Obituary

Kay E. Parker

Funeral services for Kay E. Parker, 63, who died unexpectedly Wednesday at the Charlevoix Hospital a short time after he was admitted by ambulance, were held Saturday at the Bethany Lutheran Church. The Rev. James Plackner officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Mesopotomia, Ohio, May 30, 1914, Mr. Parker was married to the former Marion K. Kleve at Chargrin, Ohio, May 16, 1951. He was a retired salesman and general manager for the Detroit branch of the Johnson Rubber Co. of Ohio. The family had spent several summers here in recent years and had moved here last June from West Bloomfield to make their home at Pine Point. He was a member of the Bethany Lutheran church.

He is survived by his wife; five sons, Scott of Wixom, Lance of Farmington, twins, Brian and Barry, and Dean, at home; one daughter, Suzanne, also at home; a brother, Redmond Parker of Middlefield, Ohio, and one sister, Mrs. Thelma Hill of Austinburg, Ohio.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

By now you have, hopefully, read my articles about 4-H clubs. In this week's article, I'll conclude my question and answer series with answers to questions about 4-H projects, and 4-H meetings.

What does a 4-H project cost?

This varies a great deal. A 4-H member enrolled in foods might use supplies from around the house to practice skills being learned and have no expense. A member who buys and keeps a saddle horse might invest hundreds of dollars. Discuss cost with members as they select projects. Cost should be realistic to the family situation. Sometimes sponsors help.

Are 4-H members expected to do their own project work?

Yes, with help. 4-H is a "learn by doing" program. Leaders, teen leaders, or parents may tell or show a member how, but members are expected to do things themselves.

What is a "self-determined" project?

In this project, a member has special interest and designs a project not defined or provided for in current programs. It may be completely new or an adaptation of a traditional project. Members should discuss such projects with their leaders, and, if possible, with the county extension agent.

What is project evaluation?

Evaluation is a chance for a member to find out how he or she is doing. This is handled in many ways. A member's progress (knowledge and skills) may be evaluated during or at the end of the project experience. This is usually done by the member and a leader because the leader knows where the member started, the product of a project (animals, garments, etc.) may also be judged. If so, they are compared to a standard of quality by the leader or an experienced judge.

What is "completion"?

Competion means that the 4-H member has met the goals set at enrollment. Whether or not a youth has completed is determined by the club 4-H leader. Michigan 4-H provides certificates for members who complete. Most counties provide some other recognition, such as pins or ribbons.

Do 4-H'ers do projects individually or as a group?

Both. Some projects, such as outdoor cooking, are more fun if done as a group. Others, such as making a dress, will be done individually by each member of the group.

4-H meetings - what should happen at 4-H meetings?

4-H clubs usually do four general kinds of things – project work, 4-H business, recreation or social activities, and special-interest programs.

Do they do all of those things at one meeting?

Sometimes, - if they have little business to conduct, they work on their projects for awhile and play a game or two.

Sometimes the whole meeting will be devoted to one area. They might elect officers, plan the club program, have a roller skating party or tour a local bakery.

Who plans the program for the club?

Members of the club. If the club is small this might be done at a meeting of the whole group. If the club is large they get ideas from everbody and let a committee put together a club program from these ideas.

When do clubs meet and how long do meetings last?

This depends on the group. Many clubs meet for an hour or two after school, in the evening, or on Saturday. The most important thing is to have a regular time which members and their families can remember and plan into their schedules.

4-H parents - How do you explain the role of a 4-H leader to parents?

Be sure they realize leaders are volunteers who are not being paid. Invite them to 4-H meetings or have them hold meetings in their homes so they can see how the leader works with the club.

How do get parents to help?

Ask, ask, ask, ask! Ask them! Be specific about jobs with which the club needs help. Think positively. People who expect help will probably get it. Offer a choice of jobs. People have different times and abilities. Have the youths ask their parents, too. Sometimes conducting meetings in each of the homes is a good idea.

Hats can help keep hands, feet warm, too

Baby, it's getting cold outside, and hopes are high among hat salesmen for another brisk winter.

"The colder the weather, the better we like it," remarked the owner of a Washington, D.C., hat shop. Last winter was just about made to order, he said.

After several years of near hibernation, sales of both men's and women's hats have finally perked up. For a while the winds of fashion were blowing in the wrong direction for the hat industry, even in winter, the busiest season.

"People were going around with cold heads, which isn't smart," said Burt Champion of the Millinery Institute of America.

Hat Warms Feet

Most doctors agree, saying that people should wear hats to keep their hands and feet warm. When cold, the body will go to any length to keep vital organs, especially the brain, warm. As the body concentrates on warming an uncovered head, extremities get left out in the cold.

The unprotected ear is also vulnerable. To honor a man who contributed to keeping ears warm, the inventor of earmuffs, Maine recently declared Dec. 21 Chester Greenwood Day.

One hundred years ago this winter, Greenwood patented his "champion ear protectors" and for the next six decades manufactured them in his factory in Farmington, Maine, becoming the first and perhaps only earmuff millionaire.

The original earmuff was fashioned of haywire, beaver fur, and black velvet, much like today's earmuffs – if you can find them.

Pushed aside by ski bands – woolen bands that stretch around the forehead, over the ears, around the back of the head – earmuffs are almost a novelty item these days. Last winter they were nearly as hard to get as natural gas.

Warren Galluway, a Washington, D.C., hat buyer, says Russian-style fur caps with ear flaps also have an edge over earmuffs.

"With these good-looking caps, you keep your ears warm and your head, too" he pointed out.

Headware seasons used to be dictated by strict etiquette. A gala affair in mid-September marked the time when socially correct New Yorkers stored summer straw hats and dusted off their felt fedorns.

Sled dog races open for season at Shanty Creek

A different type of winter sport will begin this season in Northern Michigan this weekend.

The Great Lakes Sled Dog Association will open its sled dog racing season Saturday at Shanty Creek Lodge in Bellaire. The association will feature races for any age person with dog teams of between 3 and 16 dogs.

Races will open at 8 a.m. Saturday with the cross country, 20-mile race. This race may be run with anywhere from three dogs on up.

The public is invited to watch all of the races, but they may be especially interested in children's one-dog race beginning at 1:30 p.m. and the weight pulling which will also begin at 1:30 p.m.

Dog teams will be leaving the starting point continuously between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Medusa tax decision expected by Friday

No decision is expected on a request from the Medusa Cement Company for a property tax break until later this week.

Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said he would not ask the township board to make a decision on the establishment of an industrial development district on one and one-half acres of Medusa property for tax purposes at the special hearing on the subject Tuesday.

However, Stroud said a decision would probably be made later in the week at a special meeting of the board on Friday. Stroud said he felt the board should take time to digest what would be said at the hearing before making a decision unless the board felt the issue was clear cut and that it didn't need more study.

Charlevoix Township residents were expected to gather at a special hearing Tuesday night on the discussion of a property tax break for the Medusa Cement Company.

Medusa was expected to ask the township board to establish an industrial development district for the company which would exempt the cement producers from one-half of the property taxes that would normally be levied on the new addition for 12 years.

The company is planning a $50 million expansion, however, $10 million will be spent on pollution control equipment, which is untaxable.

Under Public Act 198, governmental units are allowed to create an industrial development district which provides property tax exemptions for manufacturers proposing to expand or rehabilitate their plants.

The law was passed by the state Legislature in 1974 to encourage industry in Michigan to expand and to make it lucrative for the company to do so. The law is a means of combating the competitiveness of other states in attracting business away from Michigan.

Representatives of the cement company as well as Tom Duke, one of the leading opponents of the property tax break, and other members of Concerned Citizens for Charlevoix (CCC) which also opposes the tax break, were all expected to be at the meeting.

For further information about the stands taken on both sides of the issue please turn to the letters to the editor on pages 4 and 5 of this issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

While the township board declined to hold any discussion of the property tax break and the establishment of an industrial development district at its meeting Monday night, two township residents did ask to make comments on the issue.

Karl Erber expressed his support for the property tax break. Erber said he was unable to attend the public hearing, but he wanted the board to know where he stood.

"I feel that with the other things that are happening in the state like the loss of employment and other economic factors that the board should approve this request," Erber said. "I think a little bit of help is better than nothing at all and I feel Medusa should be given this consideration.

"Medusa's taxes have done a lot for Charlevoix Township. It's time we quit worrying about somebody else and start thinking about ourselves."

John Haggard, a Charlevoix Township resident and the representative of the township on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, also urged the board to approve Medusa's request for the tax break.

"I feel the legislature passed these laws to benefit employers and I feel that anything that can be done to help the employer create a better and more healthy economic climate should be done," Haggard said.

Stroud indicated in December that while the township board had taken no official vote on the issue, the board had issued a statement last summer saying approval of the property tax exemption looked favorable.

THE MEDUSA CEMENT Company proposed expansion for its plant and its request for a tax break have come under fire by a group of concerned citizens. In todays Charlevoix Courier there are several letters to the Editor on the issue as well as new stories about the stands taken by the Charlevoix Board of Education and the Charlevoix Township Board.

Complains About Street Crews

I am calling to say how terrible it is that the City of Charlevoix pays for a road crew that doesn't even get out and do anything on their roads to clean them up. In all the other towns around here I go to this winter, the roads have been cleared off the day after a storm. Charlevoix has barely had their streets cleaned off in the last 2 years. I think it's about time that they get this crew on the ball or replace them with someone willing to work. Let's get the roads cleaned before we have so many accidents that there won't be anyone left to change these things. I'm getting tired of having to go into town and wonder if I will not only get down Bridge St. hill, but get up it again. Thank you.

Questions About Township Fire Department

I want to tell people that are always on Oscar Stroud's back, that Oscar is probably one of the few honest men left around. He has been more for the Charlevoix Township than any one person has done for any one township around or the City of Charlevoix. I feel that the Charlevoix Township Fire Dept. has proved its worth in tax dollars. Other township leaders should look into this. I would like to see a man on duty at the Charlevoix Township Fire Dept. 24 hours a day. A man that's in bed has to dress and drive to the fire dept. to even get the truck on the road. This could be precious minutes to someone. If Mr. Stroud would answer this question, I would be happy. As for Hansen, well, I never trust a quiet man, you never know what they're thinking. Just sign me a resident of Stroudland and proud of it.

Questions Duke Arguments

Why did Tom Duke mislead us about the Medusa tax break. I wonder what he's going to try to fool us with next.

Compliments Medusa

I would like to compliment the Medusa response to Tom Duke. It was good of Mr. Kaiser to make it short and accurate, rather than long and misleading.

Medusa Deserves Same Treatment

I think Medusa deserves the same treatment that other companies get. If they don't, the Medusa changes their mind about expanding, will Tom Duke hire the people?

Agrees City Needs Planning

This is an opinion. I just read the Charlevoix Courier of Jan. 4, 1978, on planning in the City Council. There is never anything I was more in agreement with. Who else but the department heads and supervisors know what they need. However, there is one item in there that would not have come before the council if they had not adopted a foolish policy...Namely, not furnishing electrical service outside the city. How much is now furnished to Charlevoix and Marion Townships. Is our yea for another utility readily available in the area? Isn't the city a public utility? I understand that they are governed by the Public Utilities Commission. The city electrical and water depts. are not tax supported. They are operated in the black. Any sensible business in this situation would try to expand their sales and service. They will be required to furnish these in the future. Why discuss it and take up the City Council time. Thank you.

What If Medusa Cancels Expansion?

If Medusa doesn't get the same tax break as other industries get and they cancel their expansion program, will Tom Duke make up the $400,000 difference in taxes we won't get?

Why Give Taxbreak?

Why would the Charlevoix Township Board even consider granting Medusa a tax break. Why should we, as taxpayers, be expected to subsidize 5 mills for a company to pollute our otherwise clean air. This is especially unfair to our senior citizens and others on a fixed income. Also, Mrs. Elzinga should not vote on this issue if her husband works for Medusa. Thank you.

School board goes on record against Medusa tax break

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education went on record as opposing the property tax break being requested by the Medusa Company under the Industrial Facilities Exemption Certifiacte.

The board also instructed Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren to convey its decision to the Charlevoix Township Board so that it could be taken into consideration at the public hearing scheduled for Tuesday night. The Charlevoix Township Board will make the final decision in the company's request for the tax break.

The company is requesting the tax relief for its $50 million renovation and expansion program scheduled to begin in the spring.

Medusa has set the cost of the proposed expansion-renovation program at $50 million, $10 million of which is tax exempt because it is earmarked for pollution control.

How would the tax exemption effect the Charlevoix School District? At the present time 25.35 mills levied for general operating would generate $570,375; 2.1 mills for debt retirement, $47,250 and .4 mill for the library, $9,000 or a total of $626,625 in one year or $7,519,500 over the 12 year period.

The tax at the deferred S.E.V. would result in $285,188 for general operating (25.35 mills); $23,625 for debt retirement (2.1 mills) and $4,500 for the library (.4 mill) or a total of $313,313 for one year or $3,759,756 for the 12 years the exemption is allowed.

The tax difference of $313,313 for one year and $3,759,744 is the equivalent of more than 3.0 mills for operating funds alone and a total of 3.75 mills when all other funds, ie, debt retirement and library, are included.

Thomas Duke, George Duke and others opposing the tax relief being requested by Medusa and Thomas Pointner, attorney representing the company's interests, aired their views on the issue.

Among the points brought out by Tom Duke was that there were no figures available regarding the costs on which the company could take an annual depreciation and that portion that would continue to be taxable at a given amount.

During the voting that followed the discussion, Connie Pointner asked to abstain from voting.

Ken Boss, board secreatry, in commenting on the board's stand said that the board realized that tax exemption would mean the substantial loss of revenue to the school district and, that as representatives of the school district, it was the board's responsibility to protect the interests of the residents in the district.

No downtown plantings planned

Shade tree project gets city council approval

By BOB CLOCK

Charlevoix's shade tree program will continue for another year, but the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night ruled out an extension of plantings to the downtown section as proposed by the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission.

After a lengthy discussion of the pro's and con's of the program by members of the commission and the council, the council voted to spend $10,000 during 1978 to purchase 200 little leaf lindens for planting in the city nursery, the transplanting of another 200 trees from the nursery to locations in the city and the pruning of from 175 to 200 mature shade trees.

Although several merchants have indicated by petition that they favor plantings in the downtown area, Alderman Ray Wood said he had received complaints that the trees would interfere with snow removal and would take up too much space on the sidewalks.

The vote to limit plantings to residential and other noncommercial areas received unanimous approval by the council.

Alderman Jeannine Wallace, who is a member of the shade tree commission and has been a strong advocate of the downtown plantings urged the council to reach a decision one way or the other so that trees could be ordered for spring planting.

Another member of the commission, John Campbell, gave the council a brief summary of what the commission has done since its inception in 1972.

Councilman Wood asked what – if anything – can be done about the super-slippery condition of city streets this winter.

Townspeople are getting uptight about these conditions," he said.

Hansen said the city crews elected to leave snow on the streets during Saturday's thaw, because they knew a frigid cold snap was on the way and that snow plow blades would only make the surface slicker than ever. He said when cold weather returned Sunday, crunchy snow helped improve traction in some area.

However, he said that under Monday's high winds and frigid temperatures, sand blows away and salt only adds to the ice problem.

Beaver Islander not planning move to Petoskey for summer season

A paragraph in the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce bulletin has created speculation that the Beaver Island Boat Company may begin operating out of Petoskey.

In the bulletin, Chamber director Merle Lutz wrote that the chamber was looking forward to the spring operation of the ferry boat, currently located in Charlevoix, from Petoskey.

"Over a period of years, the Beaver Island Boat Company has made a number of applications to the Petoskey City Council for a permit to operate out of the Petoskey municipal harbor," Lutz explained.

"The council turned down the application three years ago, but the company submitted a new one this year with plans to begin operations this spring.

"The chamber is very much in favor of this and the chamber will work with the boat company to help it get the approval it needs."

However, Lawrence McDonough of the Beaver Island Boat Company, said the boat company was not planning to start any runs out of Petoskey next spring.

"This is all news to me," McDonough said. "Somebody really got fouled up."

McDonough said the boat company had submitted a new application for a permit to operate out of Petoskey.

"But nothing ever happened to it," he said. "We never heard anything about it. The city never answered it.

"We have our schedules already printed for the next season and all of the runs are from Charlevoix. There's no way they could begin to run out of Petoskey this summer."

Glens Market plans opening day on Jan. 19

Charlevoix area residents will soon be able to enjoy the Glen's Market experience.

The new grocery store, located in the partially completed Captain's Corners shopping center on M-66, will open at 9 a.m. Jan. 19, according to Glen A. Catt, Jr.

Hours for the 10th Glen's Market to be opened in the Northern Michigan area will be from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Catt said things were moving along well at the new store and he expected to meet the opening day date. Construction crews were still at work on last minute electrical and carpentry projects last week, but Glen's Market crews were also hard at work putting up shelves and dispolaying stock.

Catt said crews had been coming to Charlevoix from the Mancelona, Kalkaska, East Jordan, Gaylord and Grayling stores to help transfer the two semitruck loads of goods onto the shelves in the new store.

The flu has hampered some of the activities at the store putting many workers out of commission including new store manager Ray Gilmore. Gilmore is currently the manager of the Mancelona Glen's Market.

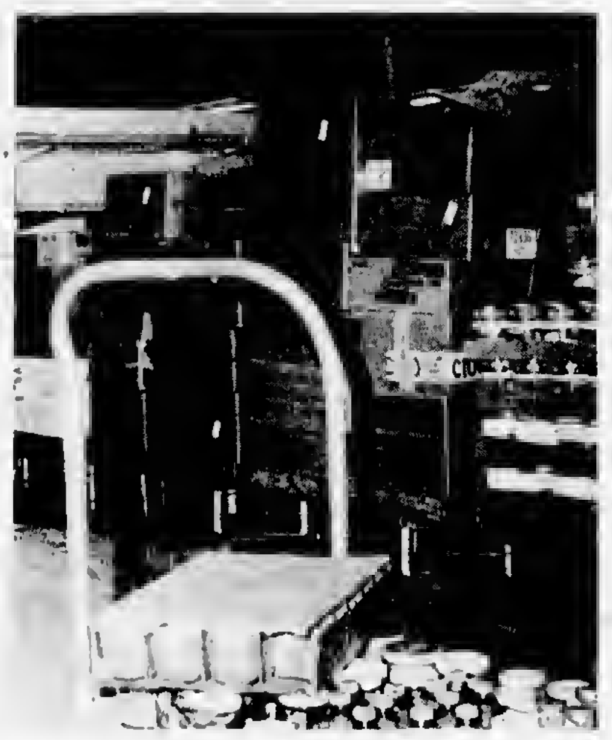
Catt said six people from other stores in the grocery chain had elected to move to Charlevoix and three other people had been hired from out of the area to work at the store in managerial-type positions.

In addition, 11 people from the area have been hired to work at the new grocery store so far. Catt said the market will employ between 30 and 35 people with the bulk of those people coming from this area.

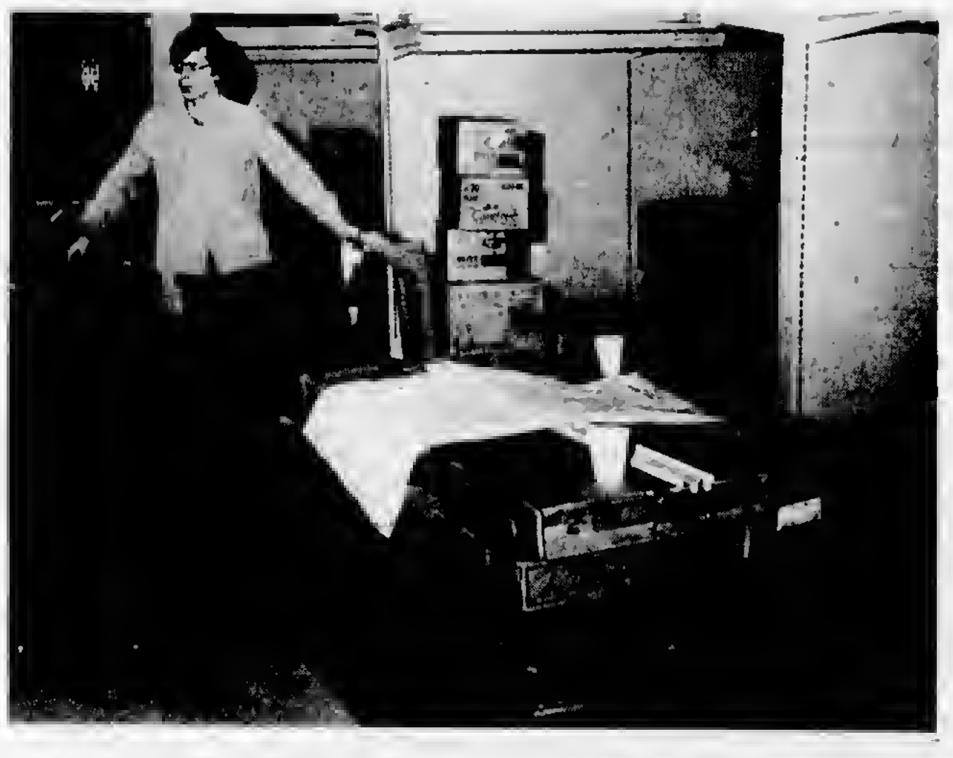
The new grocery store is typical of the other Glen's Markets with the exception of the nautical motif that decorates the inside of the store and mixes in with the atmosphere in Charlevoix, Catt said.

Glen's was the first store to sign a contract with the developers of the new shopping center and is the first store to open its doors for business at the center.

The other Glen's Markets are located in: East Jordan, Gaylord, Grayling, Kalkaska, West Branch, Mio, Mancelona, Roscommon and Rose City.



STACKS OF BOXES of unopened merchandise still line the aisles at the new Glens Market in the Captain Corners Shopping Center on M-66. Glens plans to open at 9 a.m. Jan. 19.



ALL OF THE ITEMS from two semitruck loads of goods will go on the shelves in Glens Market according to the blueprint pictured here. Work crews from several other Glens stores have been in Charlevoix to help get the store ready for its Jan. 19 opening.

Charlevoix Area Hospital center of Mardi Gras benefit movie, dinner

A special benefit for the Charlevoix Area Hospital will mark Mardi Gras weekend this year in Charlevoix.

A showing of "Off the Edge," a 1976 motion picture Academy Award nominee, will be held Friday, Feb. 3, at the Cinema III, followed by a dinner party at the Grey Gables Inn with the proceeds from the film and dinner going to defray the costs of the new $10,000 X-ray film processor at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

One of the stars of the film, about skiing and hang gliding in the mountains of New Zealand, Jeff Campbell, will be on hand to introduce the film with a 10-minute slide show giving an insiders look at how the film was produced. Campbell will also attend the dinner at the Grey Gables to answer questions.

On Saturday, Feb. 4, the star of the film will give a demonstration at Mt. McSauba following the Mardis Gras ski races. At 3 p.m. Saturday performance of the film at the Cinema III will open with Campbell presenting medals to the winning ski racers.

The owners of Cinema III are donating the use of their theater for the benefit.

Campbell, 29, has spent many summers and winters vacationing in Charlevoix with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell of Birmingham. It was Campbell and his parents who originated the idea of a benefit for the Charlevoix Area Hospital X-ray equipment fund with Dave Phillips, owner of the Grey Gables, and entertainer Al Breeze.

Phillips and Breeze explained that Mardi Gras celebrations everywhere, be they in New Orleans, Rio de Janiero or Charlevoix, have a charitable beneficiary and Charlevoix Area Hospital was the choice of the Campbell family.

Young Campbell and three associates spent three winters, which were our summers, in the mountains of southern New Zealand, skiing, hang gliding and filming in areas that no other people are known to have set foot.

The movie was the concept of a New Zealand skiing friend

City races settle down to 11 candidates

Two candidates withdrew their nominating petitions from the Charlevoix City General Election primary race last week after a rush of last minute petitions submitted to the city clerk just before the 4 p.m. deadline last Tuesday found 13 people running for six city offices.

Ralph McRae, who had a last minute petition submitted for him in the race for the mayor's office, telegraphed the clerk's office Friday noon from his Florida vacation home asking that his name be withdrawn from the race.

McRae is a former alderman from the First Ward and also a former mayoral candidate. Two years ago he beat incumbent Mayor Edward P. Hansen in the primary election, but lost a hotly contested general election when Hansen ran as a write-in candidate.

Lawrence R. Feindt also withdrew his nominating petition last Friday. Feindt was seeking election to the Second Ward alderman's seat. He said he withdrew his petition in support of Jeannine Wallace, the incumbent alderman, who decided to seek reelection.

"I will direct the efforts that I would have spent on this campaign toward the charter and work for its approval," Feindt said.

Feindt is a member of the Charlevoix Charter Commission, a post he was elected to three years ago.

Other candidates filing nominating petitions on Tuesday after the Charlevoix Courier publishing deadline were: Sam Supernaw for the office of mayor; Lawrence (Stub) Swanson and Mrs. Wallace for Second Ward alderman; and Earl Muma for Third Ward alderman.

The rest of the candidates filed nominating petitions before Tuesday. The candidates and the offices they filed petitions for are: Edward P. Hansen, office of mayor; Richard M. Hodgson and Jeffrey L. Porter, First Ward alderman; Shirley Roluff and Joseph G. Morris, Jr., Third Ward alderman; Judy Przybylski, city clerk; and Annabelle Cunningham, city treasurer.

The Charlevoix Courier contacted each of the candidates in contested races last week to get a brief statement about why they decided to seek office. A brief summary of those statements follows.

MAYOR

Mayoral challenger Sam Supernaw said he decided to run for office to bring order to city operations.

"Charlevoix seems to be moving from crisis to crisis at city hall," Supernaw said. "My contribution as mayor will be to use my experience as a councilman and businessman to maintain smooth daily operations and at the same time to establish a logical direction for city business before it reaches a crisis.

"My main concern is the future of Charlevoix."

Incumbent Mayor Hansen said he decided to seek his seventh term as mayor because he wants to see programs that have been started in the city completed.

"I contacted several people about running that I thought would carry on what the city needs but they didn't see fit to run and I didn't see anyone else running that I thought could do the job."

FIRST WARD ALDERMAN

Concern about a lack of interest in city government prompted Hodgson to submit his nominating petition for alderman.

"I found the lack of interest that people had in city government a very distressing thing," Hodgson explained. "I feel that when you live in a community you have an obligation to better it.

"Different people do this in different ways. In the past I have worked with the Charlevoix Yacht Club and on the mayor's Waterfront Zoning Committee. Now I feel it is time to serve the community by working through city government."

Porter said he had been thinking about running for common council for several weeks.

"I feel there are a number of issues in the city that attention is being paid to," Porter said. "And I feel people from my ward deserve representation for the way they think."

Porter has no common council experience, but he was elected to serve on the Charlevoix Charter Commission three years ago.

SECOND WARD ALDERMAN

Swanson said he also was concerned that his ward was not being represented on the common council.

"I think that the Second Ward has been neglected where I live (Norwood Road by the airport) and I want to see something done about that," the candidate said.

Swanson also said he would like to see the merger of the township and the city and he would like to know more about what is going on at city hall.

Mrs. Wallace decided to run for reelection to her third term as an alderman after a show of support from Second Ward residents.

"I had been feeling discouraged about the things I had been trying to accomplish for the Second Ward and had decided not to run," Mrs. Wallace explained. "But all of a sudden I got such an outpouring from all people in the ward that I decided to stay in and pitch for the things I had been working on.

"Also my supporters convinced me that my experience was needed on common council since the city doesn't have an administrator right now and that my four years as an alderman would be valuable to the city."

THIRD WARD ALDERMAN

Incumbent Alderman Morris said he is seeking reelection to his second term because he believes he can continue to contribute help to the city in accomplishing the completion of many programs.

"I am dedicated to seeing the completion of the following major programs: senior housing, the establishment of a zoning and planning commission, the establishment of an area sewer system and the establishment of an effective administrator for the planning arm of the city," Morris said.

Muma was brief in explaining his candidacy.

"I decided to run for office because I live in Charlevoix and I want to see the job done right," Muma said.

A concern for senior citizens and youth prompted Mrs. Roloff to run for office.

"My work with senior citizens and senior citizens housing has an awful lot to do with my running for office," Mrs. Roloff explained. "But I would also like to see the city devote some time to young people. We really don't have much to offer our young people, and it's time the city realized their needs

"I've given this a year's thought, it's not an overnight thing. I know I've got an awful lot to learn, but I'm willing to do it and to stick up for what I believe in, too."

City running smoothly without administrator, Mayor Hansen says

It has been almost six weeks since Allen Sandberg left the position of city administrator in Charlevoix.

Mayor Edward Hansen has put out some feelers for a replacement for the administrator, but no formal interviews have been held and no action has been taken on an appointment.

In the meantime, the city continues to operate and is operating pretty smoothly in the mayor's estimation.

"From what people tell me, it's going along fine," Hansen said. "You've always got some operational problems but those are easily taken care of.

"The City of Charlevoix is pretty well developed and the daily operation of the city is pretty much done by the clerk, treasurer and the administrator's office," the mayor said. "It's fairly routine."

Mayor Hansen pointed out that this is not the first time that the city has had to run without an administrator and that the city has always run well in the past when it didn't have an official administrator.

In fact, Hansen feels he has been able to accomplish some things in the past few weeks that have only been in the planning stage during the past few years that the city has had an administrator.

"We will present a plan at council meeting about the water tower," Hansen said. "I've been trying to get something done on this working through the administrator for years and it never got done."

Mayor Hansen pointed out that this is not the first time the city has had to run without an administrator and that the city has always run well in the past when it didn't have an official administrator.

There's no reason why the City of Charlevoix under the mayor and council system needs an administrator," Hansen said. "Believe it or not the city isn't going to crash and fall apart without an administrator.

"We've been through this before. The city didn't legally have an administrator until (Bob) Wexstaff you know.

"I'm not saying we didn't have some problems, but we had the machinery to solve those problems and solve them fast and that was through elections."

Hansen said one way he always measured success or failure is through the amount of money that is being saved.

"Right now we're saving aver $2,000 a month and I think we're running the city very well," he said.

In addition to the extra time Mayor Hansen has been putting in on city business, Alderman Ivan Whitley has also been helping to keep the city going.

"I've been spending a lot of time at city hall trying to help Phyllis," Whitley explained. "I've tried to make myself available in case she had any questions or needed any help.

"I have the time right now to spend down there so I've tried to be there to help her.

"Until we get a city administrator, I feel it is the council's responsibility to make sure that things are running smoothly and to help Phyllis. I would like to see each councilman spend one day a week at city hall helping."

Whitley also said he felt the city was running smoothly and he said Mrs. Loucks was doing a good job managing the administrator's office. But Whitley would like to see the appointment of a new administrator.

"We don't have a committee assigned to pick a new administrator," Whitley explained. "It's still a mayor's appointment and I am hoping that he will take the leadership in picking someone.

"I was sort of disappointed when he didn't suggest someone at the last meeting," Whitley said.

Mayor Hansen said he has approached three people that he felt were qualified for the position but he hasn't heard anything from them.

"I think it's going to be difficult to get anyone to take the job unless we get a local person," Mayor Hansen said. "And the local people are very reluctant to take the job because of the way Bob Wexstaff was treated."

Hansen also said the uncertainty of the proposed new charter had also scared people away from the job.

"We lost our top two candidates from before because of the charter," he said. "They didn't want to come here until the thing was settled."

The mayor said he hoped the council didn't panic and just hire anyone for the position. Hansen felt the council acted hastily in hiring last time.

"The newspaper put a lot of pressure on the council to hire an administrator, so they did," Hansen said. "I hope that they don't panic again."

Whitley said the council had discussed hiring Hansen as the new city administrator and the mayor said he would consider taking the job but not under the present conditions.

"I would be willing to work with the city if the climate was such that they wanted somebody to work," Hansen said. "But I'm smart enough to know that if you get in there now with this whip saw (the charter controversy) that you won't be able to get anything done."

Community Forums to begin January 30

A series of Community Forums will begin January 30 under the auspices of the Community Education department of the East Jordan schools.

Each Monday night, a different topic will be discussed by an expert in his field, followed by a question and answer period for those who attend.

One half of the Forums will be devoted to environmental issues, aimed to help people understand and appreciate the natural surroundings in our area of the state. The remainder of the Forum series will be a potpourri of topics ranging from children's literature to no-till planting. Other topics include land use planning, history of the Mackinac bridge, energy conservation, nature photography, mental health services, off-road vehicles.

Editorials/Opinions

Candidates deserve interest, study from Charlevoix city voters

A feeling of excitement and electricity spread through Charlevoix last week as the deadline for the filing of petitions for the city elections came to a close.

A total of 13 people submitted petitions for the mayor's office, the three alderman's seats and the clerk and treasurer positions. And even though two people ended withdrawing their nominating petitions, the number of people up for election is the largest in many years.

In fact, the number of people withdrawing petitions this year was almost as many as the number submitting petitions to have their names placed on the ballot for the various offices last year.

It is exciting to see the citizens of Charlevoix this concerned about city government. If the controversy over the proposed new charter for the city has done nothing else it has made people more aware of city government and more determined to stand up for what they believe in even if it means sticking their necks out and running for city office.

This interest is exciting and reassuring. It is exciting because only good for the city can come out of intelligent debate over the issues vital to the operation of the city. It is always beneficial to examine opposing opinions. Each side usually contains some merit and some idea that can be put to use for the betterment of the city.

The interest is reassuring because it shows that city residents still care about what happens to the community where they live and they are willing to take steps to do something to prove it.

It takes courage to stand up for what you believe in and to put your beliefs and concerns out in the open for your friends and neighbors to vote on. All of the people who took the time to submit petitions should be congratulated and thanked for caring about the city.

But the submitting of petitions is just the first step. Now comes the most important thing of all, the campaigning and the voting. City residents should take the same time that the candidates have taken to get nominated to study what each candidate has to say.

Just as the candidates are concerned about the operation of the city, so should the voters be concerned.

The voters should at least honor the hard work the candidates have put in by learning about the issues, listening to what the candidates have to say on each side of the issue and then voting.

Charlevoix voters have a very poor record at the polls. Less than half of the registered voters in the city turn out for any election. That doesn't show too much concern or interest in city activities and it certainly doesn't look like a group of people that is concerned about preserving the Democratic way of life that is followed in this country.

Spending a few hours to learn about the issues and the candidates and spending a few minutes in the voting booth is a small price to pay for the freedoms that we have.

It is also a small price to pay for the continued operation of the city in the best way that is possible based on the wishes of the majority of its residents.

Letter to the editor

Ron Pair adds endorsement to Medusa expansion plan

To the Charlevoix Township Board:

In the best interest of the Charlevoix community, the majority of its citizens and the Charlevoix area economy, this letter is intended to be our endorsement of the new plant expansion planned by Medusa Cement Company.

Medusa, in our opinion, has lived up to their obligations to the community from the stand point of contributing to the cultural and economic growth of the area.

Their responsiveness to the environmental needs of the community have not been compromised as with so many large industrial corporations.

If the Charlevoix area is to enjoy a carefully planned period of growth in keeping with its expected image, then it is every citizen's obligation to participate in this endorsement regardless of influence by any special interest groups.

It is hopeful that the Charlevoix Township Board will give every consideration to Medusa's proposed plant expansion.

Sincerely,
Ron Pair,

...Speaking Her Mind

I love the telephone. I think it's the greatest invention since the wheel, even if it does ring while you're in the bathtub, just as you're going out the door, in the middle of dinner and in the wee hours of the morning.

I enjoy getting letters, but a telephone sure makes quick work of things, plus you get the added benefit of hearing the person's voice.

In my mind, the telephone IS the next best thing to being there, no matter if it is just a call across town or if it is a call across the state, the nation or the world (rest assured, I haven't made any calls across the world).

And you can tell how much stock I put in the telephone by my bills, too. Some months it looks like I must be the sole supporter of Ma Bell and her system of interconnecting communications wires. I keep thinking they might award me the "User of the Year Award" or at least give me some stock for my super support of the company, but I haven't heard anything from them yet.

Must be there are a few other people ahead of me on the greatest users list, however hard that is to believe.

But lately I seem to be plagued with calls from magazine subscription salesmen and women and sales people for other various and sundry products who are trying to solicit my business without bothering to see me personally.

But this I feel is a legitimate business use of the telephone. Even the poll taker who calls with 90 million questions each with a choice of five possible answers doesn't bother me. After all, I use the phone in the same way for my business.

However, I am dismayed by the latest call I got. Again it was a poll taker, a very polite poll taker I might add, who wanted to know how I felt about the science of chiropractics. As the poll taker introduced himself, he explained that he was actually a tape recording and that all I had to do was answer the taped questions and my replied would be taped for someone to listen to later at a more convenient time.

I couldn't believe that anyone would take such license as to play a tape recording for someone else to talk to. If that's the next best thing to being there, I'm pulling the plug and going back to letters.

Infuriated, I hung up the phone, but when I picked it up a few seconds later to make a phone call, there was the tape still running merrily along. It took a few more clicks of the receiver but finally the tape disappeared and the line was clear again.

It's one thing to interrupt with a personal phone call, but it's another to interrupt with a tape that keeps going and going and going. Someone might need the phone for an emergency.

There ought to be a law.

DNR discusses permit for Medusa

Petoskey, Michigan 49770
ATTENTION: Mr. Thomas D. Pointner

Gentlemen:

We have completed our preliminary evaluation of the Medusa Cement Corporation's application received on November 8, 1977, for a Permit to Install the equipment necessary to convert the existing cement plant located at Charlevoix, Michigan from the wet to the dry process.

This preliminary evaluation indicates that the particulate, sulfur dioxide, and nitrogen oxide emissions shall be reduced by approximately 50 percent, 75 percent, and 50 percent, respectively. These significant reductions should result in a substantial improvement in the air quality of the Charlevoix area.

We expect to have our final evaluation of this permit application completed by approximately January 25, 1978. At this time we will be announcing a 21 day public comment period as a means of obtaining input from any interested parties.

If you have any questions, please contact me at (517) 373-8630.

Very truly yours,
Gerald L. Avery,
Acting Chief Permit Unit
Air Quality Division

Whenever Danny asks me to tell him a story, he is not really interested in the exploits of Paul Bunyan or a lot of malarky about that little housebreaker, Goldilocks.

His favorite subject – as was mine at his age – is a true-to-life family legend called Robert Bruce, or "Old Bruce" if you prefer the familiar.

During his legend-making years, "Old Bruce" was a resident of Keppel Township in Ontario's Bruce Peninsula. I doubt that there was ever any connection between the peninsula and the man other than that they shared the same name. But when I was young I liked to think that Bruce had loaned his name to my favorite piece of geography.

Bruce's sole claim to fame — and the reason he is remembered so fondly today – is the fact that he owned a cave.

And Bruce's Cave is not just any old cave, with the opening half hidden by low-lying shrubs and undergrowth. Bruce's Cave is a yawning black hole in the chalk-white escarpment which stands high over the blue waters of Colpoy Bay.

The cave actually has two entrances separated by a large pillar shaped like a golf-T which has been chiseled into classic symmetry by time and weather. The floor is strewn with boulders which have fallen from the roof of the cave over the years.

On the west side of the cave there is a "secret passage" which leads to a third opening further down the cliff. The walls of the cave are decorated with the signatures of hundreds of visitors who have fought their way through dense, rocky forest to the cave entrance during the past century.

When I was a kid, I used to think that Old Bruce actually lived in the cave although my kinfolks told me otherwise. They said he lived alone in a log house near the cave and only occasionally ventured forth into the village of Oxenden, about two miles distant.

Old Bruce was, in fact, a hermit of the first water, which is another reason why his name lingers today as one of the most celebrated personalities of Keppel Township.

Bruce's origin, even when he haunted the cedar swamps of the Bruce Peninsula, was cloaked in mystery. The prevailing rumor was that the old Scotchman deserted from the British army and ran away to Canada to hide.

A companion tale, pooh-poohed by my great aunts and uncles, was that he brought great sums of money with him from Britain. However, the kids of my generation all believed that Bruce had buried his money in or close to Bruce's Cave and we spent long summer hours turning over rocks in search of his lost treasure.

During his life time, Bruce was a favorite of all the young people of Oxenden. He used to wear a paper bag for a hat and whenever he wondered into the village he brought a basket of hard-cooked eggs for the children.

One winter, my great-grandfather, David Mallard, took pity on the old fellow and invited him to stay in his house at the saw mill until the weather broke. Surprisingly, Bruce took him up on the offer and moved in, bringing a supply of his home-grown tobacco to tide him over the winter.

After a couple of days, however, the family had enough of Bruce's powerful aromatic burly. They told him he'd have to leave and he did.

All of which is prologue to one of the most ghastly stories about Old Bruce which surfaced recently in the pages of the Owen Sound Sun-Times.

If you'll stay with me, I'll tell you about it in next week's Clockwise Column in the Courier.

Aim for the backboard

There are a couple of things that might interest you, prayerfully...

...A bunch of sincere people wearing sandwich boards frequently gather on the U.S. Capitol steps to pray for the president. They call themselves the National Prayer and Fast Committee, which naturally reminds me of my old basketball team.

I was brought up to believe God answered all prayers. I didn't begin to doubt until I went out for 8th grade basketball. The coach was a priest and the first thing he told us was to make the sign of the cross before shooting each free shot.

What about field goals?

In those days, the only accepted way to make a field goal was with the two-handed set shot. In the action of the game, a player had to keep both hands ready to shoot at all times.

There simply wasn't time to make a decent sign of the cross before shooting field goals. A sign of the cross (for all you heathens) requires that the crosser touch his forehead, chest and both shoulders with a right hand while saying "In the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, Amen."

That was pretty hard to do while dribbling.

However, it was different at the free throw line. A player had plenty of time for prayer before shooting. And the coach would tolerate no sloppiness.

A kid had to pause plainly at all four stops – forehead, chest, left shoulder and right shoulder – and his lips had to be seen moving. If a kid made a careless circle instead of a cross, with no stops, he risked immediate benching.

The awful thing was, I made the most perfect cross on the team, and my words were louder than cheers. But I still missed most of my free shots. God wasn't paying attention. My faith began to leak.

I took my troubles to the coach. He explained God knows best. If my shots weren't going in, it was God's will and I should accept it. And when I prayed for God to put my ball through the hoop, I should always add, just before the Amen, "That is, if it is OK with You, God."

So I used this new prayer, which made my sign of the cross the longest one on the team. The free shots still wouldn't go in. God's will was against me.

I finally asked the coach for permission to kneel before shooting free shots, but he said no. It wouldn't be fair to my teammates for me to hog all of God's attention, he said.

Toward the end of a miserable season, cynicism began to take hold. "Are you sure God really cares whether I make my free shots?" I asked the coach.

He looked both ways before answering.

"Don't tell the bishop, but I'm not even sure God comes to all our games," he admitted. "If I were you, I'd quit asking God to make your free shots. You should ask Him to at least let you hit the backboard."

From that day on, my life with God was easier. I finally realized it was wrong and foolish to ask for too much.

And that is the advice I gave to the National Prayer and Fast Committee during the Nixon administration.

The committee was praying for God to smite the impeachers and to enshrine Richard Nixon as our king forever. That was asking for too much.

I advised the National Prayer and Fast Committee to settle for the backboard. I told them to give up on the president and instead to ask God to at least let Julie Nixon Eisenhower keep her job at the Ladies Home Journal.

If Julie still has that job today, she probably has me to thank for it.

...Speaking of the power of prayer, how about Kirk Anderson, the Mormon missionary who made all the newspapers? He says he is so attractive to women that a beauty queen chained him to a bed and forced him to have sex with her.

In line with my old coach's backboard theory, it would be foolish for an ordinary layman to pray to become that irresistible.

Forget the chain.

Letters to the editor

Duke asks more questions

To the Editor:

Hi there. Thought I would drop you a short note in answer to the letter by El Kaiser that was in last week's Courier.

Mr. Kaiser charged that my letter was "erroneous with inaccurate information and might mislead the community." That seems strange, as my informational sources were: 1) Medusa's own Annual Report, 2) Charlevoix County Equalization Department records, 3) Securities and Exchange Commission Form 10-K, 4) Mssrs. Kaiser, Pointner and Howlett at a meeting where others were present.

Mr. Kaiser states erroneously that my letter "concerns itself with three important areas:

1. Tax obatement
2. Pollution control
3. Plant site reclamation.

We will return to Mr. Kaiser's observations on those three subjects; however, other equally important questions and points that I raised, Mr. Kaiser conveniently ignored and were not answered which "may mislead the community rather than enlighten it," by his failure to answer.

Why no response to the following points raised in my previous letter:

1. Do they qualify for Public Act 198 programs? No answer from Mr. Kaiser. (We all pay taxes to support various programs such as ADC, Welfare, Social Security, Workmens Compensation and Unemployment Compensation, but to receive funds in all cases, qualifications must be met. Programs are not an automatic "windfall."

2. Why have not the proper pollution considerations and controls been given to the Medusa Challenger for the past many years rather than admit and recognize the problem only today. No answer from Mr. Kaiser.

3. What about the fact that the "windfall" of $425,000 exceeds their entire proposed new payroll? Silence from Mr. Kaiser. (Another community just approved and rightly so, Public Act 198 for a new engine plant that provides one thousand new jobs on a building cost of 88 million dollars, and that is for a totally new facility that could have been in another state. Now that's proper use of Public Act 198; they qualify. An 88 million dollar investment producing 1000 jobs certainly makes a 50 million dollar investment for 12-20 jobs with a $425,000 tax windfall look sick. What elected official would spend his own personal monies so unwisely?

4. "Will they have public relations savy, the common good sense and the decency not to ask Charlevoix to subsidize them?" Silence from Mr. Kaiser (but get ready folks, they are coming before the township board.)

5. "Do they need us to pay their taxes?" (Read a copy of their annual report and you will have the answer.)

6. Where is the Federal Environmental Protection Agency? Silence from Mr. Kaiser. (Do they need their approval?)

7. Where are the State agencies? Silence from Mr. Kaiser. (Read on for the DNR.)

8. How about "grey lung?" Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

9. How about an environmental impact statement? Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

10. Why were we told this will be the "first of its kind in the U.S." and that "we have sent Mr. Kaiser to Japan to study it" when there is a plant, we are now told here in the United States. Strange!

11. What about the six sampling sites that "show no pollution?" Silence from Mr. Kaiser. (And yet they talk about further wonderful reductions in pollution–Why talk about great percentages in reduction of something that is supposedly nonexistent?)

12. How about the odor? Mr. Kaiser says "We'll reduce it." (Proof please.)

13. How about blasting? Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

14. Should Medusa operations be covered by ordinance? Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

15. How about fencing the pit to protect our kids? Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

16 Where are the promised trees? Silence from Mr. Kaiser.

While three questions received a partial response, from Mr. Kaiser, these additional questions are all equally important to the community and received no answer.

Now getting back to the responses that Mr. Kaiser did make to the three points that he selected:

1. The Tax Abatement: Mr. Kaiser states, "Contrary to Mr. Duke's implications, the tax relief Medusa has applied for does not mean that Medusa will be paying less taxes than we currently do."

My answer: The dozens of letters and calls received by the Courier and me clearly indicate that the citizens of Charlevoix can read. Even more refreshing, they understood and are upset. They read the letter and based on the many conversations I have had, they fully understood the process of the tax windfall. Medusa's earlier press coverage explained in detail, just like my letter, and referred to the Public Act 198 in reference to the 50 million dollar expansion. I, therefore, did not "make implications" but rather spoke to the Public Act 198 tax break they seek of $425,000. However, Mr. Kaiser's criticisms leave me curious about the "present" tax paid and I will speak to that later in the letter, and when we get to it, hang on to your hats. (He further complained about "no municipal sewer or water." He has many homeowners in the township in similar condition and therefore he is in very good company except that they pay their full 50 percent.)

2. Pollution Control: Mr. Kaiser states "Contrary to what Mr. Duke implies in his letter, the new process Medusa will be using is not unknown and is not a threat to the environment or to the health of the citizens."

My answer: Very reassuring words. Proof requested, however, and paid for by public funds, in writing by disinterested laboratories, for our people to read. Not from the DNR please. After they admitted failure to act and that they allowed water pollution to "get out of hand" and were "reluctant to act" because they were "confused," their opinions no longer interest me. Things like that plus our state elected officials and administrators, unforgiveable mishandling of the PBB disaster for four years while we "ingest" sick and poisoned meat, does tend to make one a bit cynical of "reassuring words." Further as to reassuring words from Medusa about their pollution controls, one should look at the Securities and Exchange Commission Form 10-K for Medusa Corporation, Item 5. It states:

"On July 7, 1976, the Department of Environmental Resources of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (the department) filed a complaint for civil penalties against the registrant with the Pennsylvania Environmental Hearing Board (board) The complaint alleges that emission from the York, Pennsylvania, cement manufacturing facilities of the registrant exceed applicable federal and state air quality standards and alleges that the registrant did not comply with a provision of a variance order previously granted to the

Medusa explains why it should get property tax break

To the Editor:

In this issue of the Courier, questions are raised concerning the qualifications of Medusa for an Act 198 tax certificate.

Public Act 198 passed in 1974. It offers tax abatement to industry in Michigan for the purpose of getting industries to locate here, to remain here and to assist them to remain competitive. It is available to industry if the industry is located in an industrial development district, if granting the tax certificate will not substantially impede operations of the local government, if granting the certificate will not substantially impair the financial soundness of other taxing units levying taxes locally, and if completion of the industrial facility will likely have the effect of creating employment, retaining employment or preventing the loss of employment without simply transferring employment from elsewhere in the State. Medusa believes it qualifies in every respect. While payroll expansion is not a prerequisite for a certificate, Medusa will be adding 20 to 28 new permanent jobs, jobs which where possible will be filed from the existing Charlevoix labor market. The additional payroll costs for these jobs amounts to $9,000,000 more than the tax savings realized by the granting of the tax certificate over the term of the certificate.

Since Act 198 was passed in 1974, approximately 500 industries have had the benefit of the tax incentives provided under the law. Other industries in the County have been granted the tax certificate. Medusa's largest competitor, Huron Cement, located at Alpena, completed a $30 million modernization in 1975. No expansion of production resulted and an actual reduction in jobs occurred. The program was undertaken under an Act 198 certificate.

Medusa is not asking for a subsidy nor is the Act designed to provide one. We are asking only that we pay no more than our share of taxes under the laws, at a time when we are spending millions to remain a competitive, healthy industry and additional millions to improve the quality of the environment.

In 1972 Medusa paid taxes of $347,000. In 1977 Medusa's taxes were $423,000 on a State Equalized Valuation of $10,810,000, NOT on an assessed valuation of $4.5 million. This is a 22 percent increase in taxes over five years. If the tax certificate is granted, and the project goes forward, Medusa's taxes will approximately double. Medusa estimates it will spend $10 million on pollution control equipment. The State Tax Commission will determine how much of this is exempt and the split between real and personal property on the investment.

Medusa exists in Charlevoix today. With or without the modernization it will exist here tomorrow. It pays its share of taxes. It meets Township and State air pollution regulations by a substantial margin. It has planned and designed modernization and expansion which will result in an improved environment and reduce energy consumption.

Charlevoix can only benefit from granting the tax certificate and the completion of the expansion program. It will enjoy an improved environment. There will be 20 to 28 new, permanent jobs. It will obtain approximately $400,000 more in taxes each year. And it will have a healthy, competitive local industry.

Other questions raised in this issue of the Courier address themselves to various points, none of which have anything to do with the granting of a tax certificate, but which are answered herein.

Medusa engaged the services of Kaiser Engineers, the largest, most widely known engineering firm specializing in cement in the western hemisphere to design the proposed Charlevoix expansion. Medusa specified to Kaiser before a design was started that the plant must be equipped to meet, by a considerable margin, the regulations of the Federal Environmental Protection Agency for a new cement plant. These regulations are far more restrictive than the State or Township regulations and will result in total emissions from the new facility being less than from the existing plant. The plant is being designed to meet this objective. Pollution control equipment is specified to meet these requirements. Guarantees are required from the manufacturers of the pollution equipment. Kaiser Engineers evaluation of emissions from the existing as well as the new facility are on file in the Public Library as is a letter from the Permit Section of the Air Quality Division of the Department of Natural Resources.

Kaiser Engineers has also evaluated the effect the new process will have on odor. Their conclusions are that there will be a substantial reduction in sulfur oxides emissions.

Medusa has already made several improvements in the dust collection system for loading the Challenger. Many years ago, in conjunction with Midwest, a loading telescope was developed to reduce dust emissions in loading trucks and railroad cars. Several years ago, larger units were designed by Midwest and installed at Charlevoix to load the Challenger. These were the first of their size ever built. To some degree the development work undertaken by Midwest at Medusa's facilities created a new business that has seen fit to locate in Charlevoix. In addition, Medusa has authorized additional funds to be spent this winter to further improve the dust collection while loading the vessel.

Medusa never blasts at night. Records of all our blasts, their time and quantity of explosives are available at the Plant for inspection.

Reclamation of mined land is required by Act No. 92 of 1970, as amended by Act No. 123 of 1972. Copies of the law are available by writing to: Geological Survey Division, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. 30028, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan 48909. Medusa has graded and planted reclaimed areas, is continuing its reclamation, and will continue to reclaim in the future.

Medusa is and will continue to be an active, concerned and proud citizen of Charlevoix. It seeks to reinvest $50 million in Michigan rather than at some other location. The granting of a tax certificate will assure Charlevoix of additional permanent jobs, additional tax revenues, a better environment and a healthy local industry.

Sincerely,
Elbert W. Kaiser,
Plant Mananger

Teacher Feature

...Nelson Green

Nelson Green

By PEG OHLE

"I think I have a good rapport with almost all students," and, judging from the popularity of his Government classes, Charlevoix High School teacher Nelson Green does have that rapport.

Green has five Government classes, all senior students. The course is required by state law, but, unlike many mandated programs, it is not met with a "ho hum" attitude

Green explains that the first part of the course is devoted to local government. As part of their studies, students attend public meetings such as those of the city council and the board of education.

"The kids seem to enjoy local government because it is closest to them," Green says. "Also, they personally know many people who hold office."

To further study local government, the classes take trips to the sheriff's department, the county building, and city hall. The students are also encouraged to attend District and Circuit court.

During the second and third marking periods, the classes study national government. This includes civil and personal liberties, political parties, interest groups, public opinion, and the three branches of national government – legislative, executive, and judicial.

This year, for the first time, during the last marking period of the course, students will study consumer affairs, consumer economics. The school has bought a new set of books on the subject, covering legal relations, contracts, credit, loans, insurance, advertising and purchasing – problems that students will be faced with as soon as they graduate.

Lowering the age of majority to 18 has stimulated interest in studying government, Green says, and girls have as much interest in the subject as boys.

"Women's lib has promoted more interest in class," he adds, because there are now more and different jobs for women.

Green is also a senior class advisor. In this capacity he chaperones senior dances, advises the class on fund-raising activities, and on year-end activities.

Year-end activities used to include a class trip to such places as Cedar Point, but due to rising costs there has not been a class trip for four years. Last year the class took a canoe trip on the Au Sable River and had a dinner dance at the Chalet Inn in Gaylord.

This is Green's eighth year of teaching in Charlevoix. "I enjoy teaching and being around students," he says, "and I particularly enjoy working with seniors."

Green was born in Boyne City but graduated from high school in Tionesta, Pennsylvania. He attended Genessee Community College for two years and received a bachelor's degree in police administration and public safety from Michigan State University. After working in public safety for a few years he decided he really wanted to teach, so he entered Eastern Michigan University, from which he received a master's degree in secondary education in 1970. He also married a teacher who quit teaching to raise their two boys, Eric, 10, and Keith nine.

Green lists his hobbies as reading (especially novels and biographies), music, and cross-country skiing. However, for the last several months he and his friends have been busy building his new house on the Boyne City Road.

"My wife drew the floor plans," he says, "and a former student, Jodi Alger, drew the blue prints."

Then Green hired men on the high school staff to work with him on construction work.

"Norm Probert and his son Gary put up the cement blocks and chimney and did the brick work in the living room," he says, "Probert is a licensed mason."

"John Mills, the building trades teacher, and his son Paul and aide David Anderson roughed-in the house. Ken Bartley, math teacher, helped with the plumbing. Both Bartley and Mills are licensed builders."

Green's brother-in-law and his sons and father-in-law wired the house, but he hired men to do the dry wall work. Now Green is doing the siding work himself.

"We're through now except for the siding and interior decorating," the teacher-builder concludes with a smile.

Student council helps work out problems

By LAURA GLASS

Student government in high schools goes back a long way as a method of representation and organization for students.

Student government or student council officials work as liaisons between the student and the administration in organizing student activities and preserving students' rights.

The student council at Charlevoix High School includes: senior president and vice president Joe Thomure and Wendy Wieland, sophomore secretary Wendi Wright, senior treasurer Mitch Martin and five student representatives from each class, freshman through senior.

The CHS student council works with the faculty and administration to solve student problems. The council is also a great learning experience for its members. Students learn responsibility, leadership and how to organize and deal with people and school problems.

President Joe Thomure feels that the council receives full support from all school officials.

"I don't t think that the student council could possibly ask for better cooperation and support from Mr. (Vane) Smith or Mr. (Roy) Fortin," Thomure said. "The administration, the faculty and the students all work together.

"Take for example, the 1977 Fall Homecoming. Student opinion was leaning toward a change, so Wendy and I worked out different ideas. We spent many hours working with Mr. Smith, Mr. Fortin and many teachers, and the reaction to the changes made by the council was very favorable."

Communication lines between students, teachers and school officials are kept wide open by the student council. All student council meetings are open to any student who wishes to voice his opinion or express his views. A regular publication of the council minutes in each publication of the school newspaper also helps to keep students informed.

"The council works with the administration through an 'open door, open mind' policy," Thomure said. "I don't believe there has been a problem that couldn't be solved through discussions and I'm confident that this will always be true at CHS."

Roy Fortin is the advisor to the council.

"I work as an ombudsman for the council when they have questions," Fortin explained.

Fortin feels the student council offers the students of CHS an opportunity to determine their own course. Also it affords students the experience of becoming involved in the running of a governmental unit.

The council not only works out students' problems, it initiates projects such as supporting the Blood Mobile, volunteer work for the American Cancer Society fund drive and making school banners for the gymnasium.

The council is currently working on a breakfast program for high school students and faculty.

There are some set goals for the council to complete each year. The council is responsible for organizing both fall and winter homecoming festivities and setting up a school calendar of events and activities.

Council advisor Fortin feels that student council members not only represent the school and the student body in school affairs, but also take an active role in community service.

"I am extremely pleased with our present group of young people," Fortin said. "They are hardworking, responsible citizens and they are very sensitive to others' needs.

"This group wants to contribute to the community rather than just receive from it. I am very proud to be associated with such a fine group of young people."

4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

In a recent series of Detroit Free Press articles several different families were offered $500.00 to go for one month without watching television. In reading about the experience of each family, it became evident that most households had few diversions or hobbies other than sitting in front of the tube. By removing the television, families found that, while they had been together watching TV, they hadn't really been together at all.

It was only after the removal of the television that family members began to talk to one another as they should. The television had forced them from being spectators to being participants. Husband and wife got to know each other again, parents played with the children and the kids developed a more imaginative type of play. In a few unfortunate instances, however, the family was so dependent on TV that they had failed to cultivate alternative forms of entertainment. How I wish they could have been introduced to 4-H during that month.

In 4-H there is no such thing as a spectator. The instructional material provided for most 4-H projects make learning both fun and easy for the member. But even better is that Mom and Dad can also get involved. Yes, families can form their own 4-H clubs if they wish. If Mom or Dad have a particular skill they can share with their children, that's great. But don't be afraid to tackle something new either.

With the help of our excellent leaders project guides, our local and state leader training sessions, and our own resource people, parents can usually learn quite a bit about their chosen project, which then gets passed on to the 4-H club members. As a result, both parent and child learn, and they learn together. After the parent leader gains confidence in his ability to lead a club he may want to include some neighbor children in the club. This is when the fun really starts. Sure, 4-H has camps, fairs, achievement days, and awards, but the happy, active, neighborhood club is still the greatest source of joy to the 4-H member.

First Congregational Church installs new carillons

Charlevoix residents may notice a ringing in their ears as they walk the streets of the downtown area.

The First Congregational Church, at the corner of State Street and Park Avenue, recently installed a set of Memorial Carillons, which can be heard inside and outside the church.

The purchase of the carillons was made possible through the contributions of church members and friends to a special fund, each contribution being given in memory of a family member or friend.

The fund was set up in memory of Carl Browne at the request of his widow, Maxine Browne, who wanted contributions in his memory to be used to purchase something musical for the church. The congregation was able to order the new carillons two months ago when a contribution from an anonymous doner supplied the needed funds.

The church plans to share its new carillons with the residents of Charlevoix through the playing of hymns and classical music at appropriate times during the day, Rev. Raymond Giffin said. The congregation hopes that the carillon music will enhance the beauty of the community.

Appropriate hymns will be played on Sundays and a wide variety of music is scheduled for weekdays and holidays, Rev. Giffin explained. Care will be taken to play the carillons at times that will not disturb residents of the valley area.

The carillon concerts will be played automatically by means of specially recorded tapes or live from a keyboard attached to the organ console.

The new church bell system, which is manufactured by Mass-Rowe Carillons, Inc., of Escondido, Calif., creates the sound of church bells by striking carefully tuned bars of bell metal and amplifying the resulting tone electronically. The carillon can be played outside the church or turned on so that they are heard only inside the building.

Similar carillon systems can be found in the AMVETS Chapel in Grand Rapids, at the Metroplolitan Opera House, New York City, the San Francisco Opera House, the Mormon Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, and the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

FRAN TOLLAS demonstrates the new carillon at the First Congregational Church. The carillon can be played from the organ by a keyboard attached to the console. The bells can be heard inside and outside the church. The church plans to share the carillon music with Charlevoix residents.

Health department plans expectant parent classes

Expectant parents are invited to attend a series of classes in parenthood sponsored by District Health Department No. 3.

The classes will cover a number of topics, from early development of mother and fetus through care of the child during the first year after birth. All class sessions have information for both fathers and mothers.

The seven-part program will be taught by Bonnie Farrugia, a registered nurse who has taught several such classes for the Health Department. Classes will be held at Lockwood-MacDonald Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals, starting on Thursday evening, January 19, at 7:30. A $3 fee per couple will be charged.

More information may be obtained from the Petoskey office of the District Health Department, phone 347-6014.

IRS opens toll free line to field taxpayers questions

Taxpayers may receive help with their federal tax questions through the Internal Revenue Service's toll-free telephone assistance network, the IRS announces.

The toll-free number for service is 800-482-0670. IRS suggests that callers try to avoid the "heavy traffic periods", the midday hours and Monday and Tuesday.

Taxpayers with complicated tax problems will be able to get free help at the Petoskey IRS office in the City-County Building, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday and Friday.

The IRS also reminds taxpayers whose 1977 income was less than $8,000 that they may be entitled to special benefit, in some cases such as $400. It's called the "earned income credit", and is available to certain qualifying persons, even some who may not otherwise be required to file a tax return, or perhaps even had no tax withheld in 1977.

Anyone whose income last year was under $8,000 should inquire about the details of the earned income credit by calling the toll-free number.

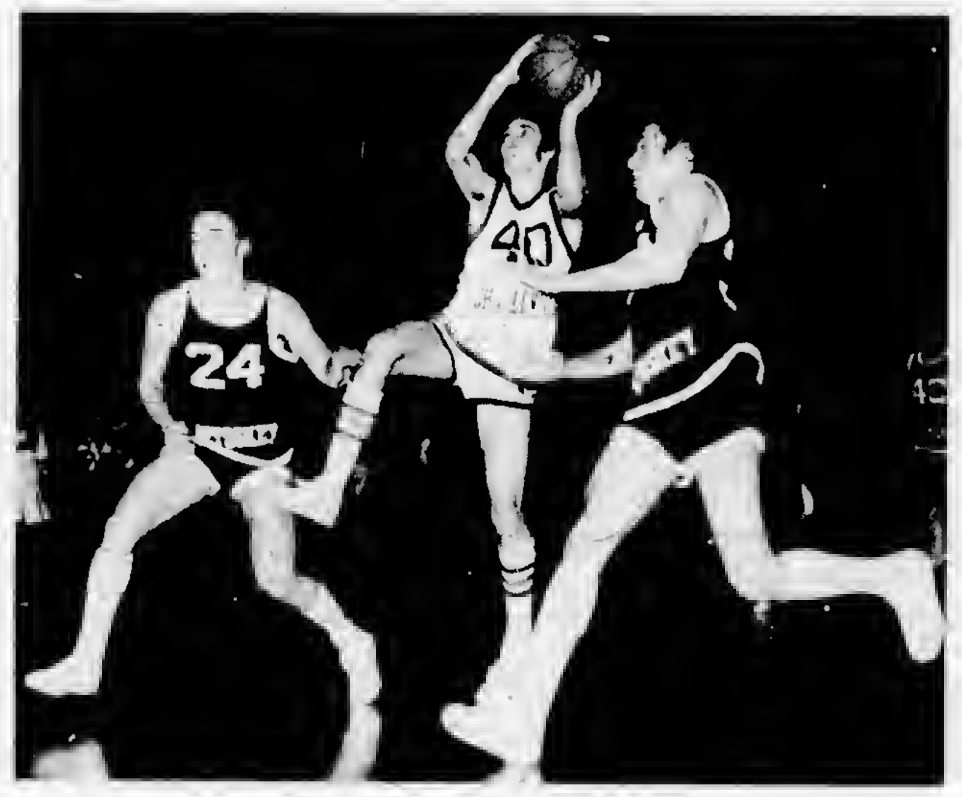
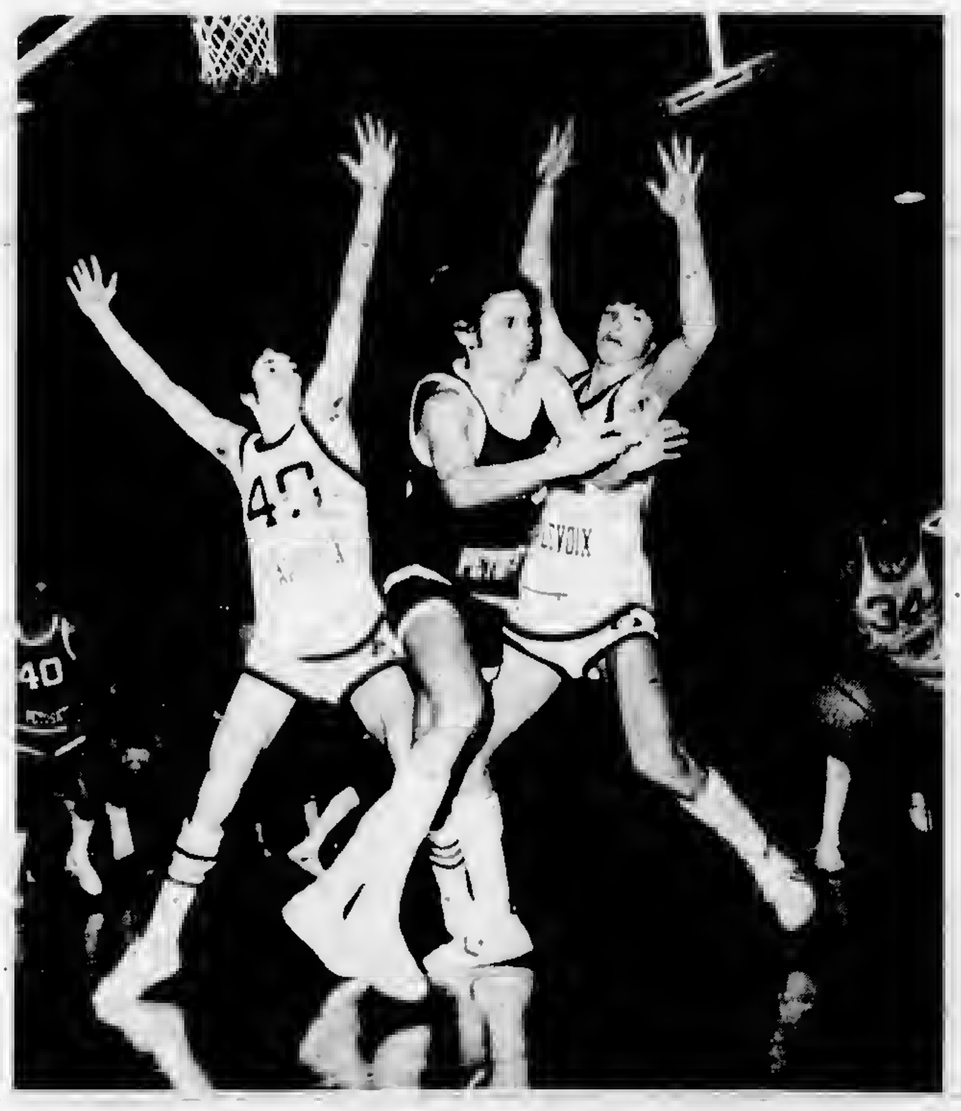
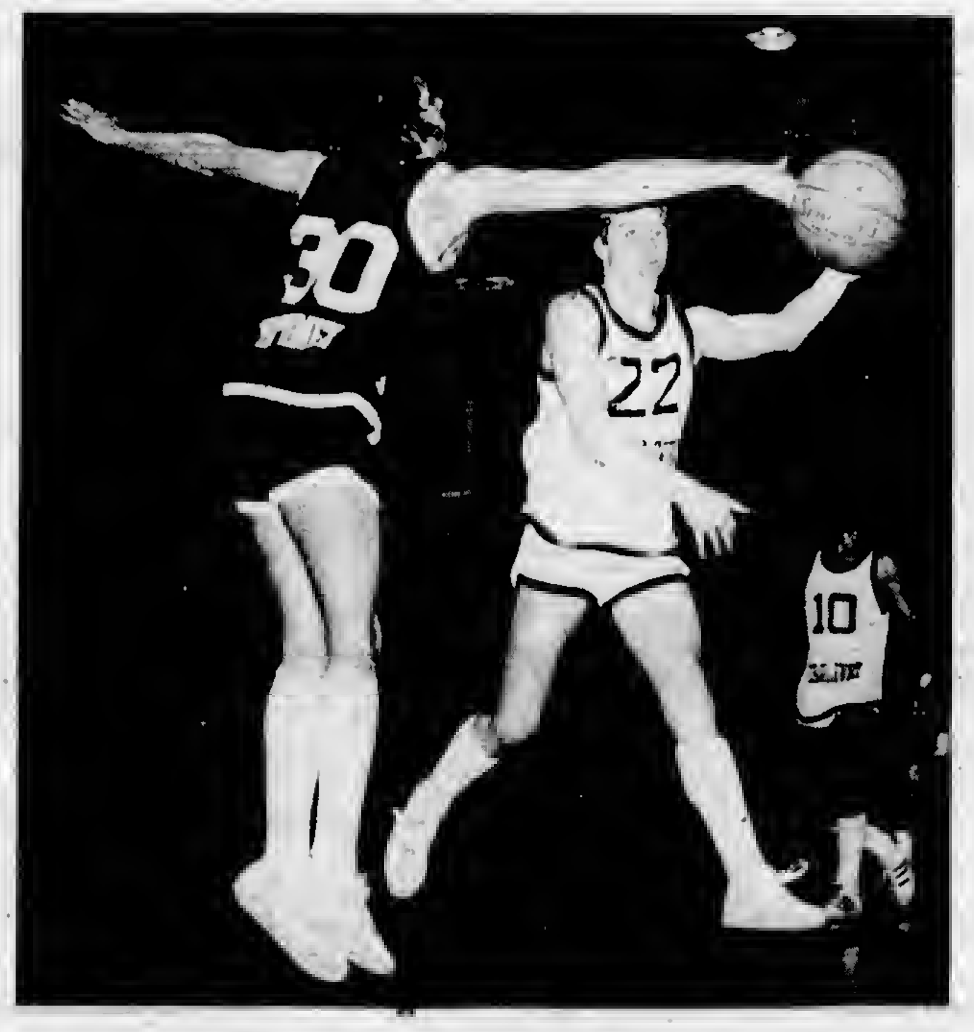
JIM ALGER (far left) grimaces as he attempts to grab a pass in the midst of the Northmen squad composed of Craig Koboski (40), Jeff Vratanina (30) and Spencer Damschroder (54). Alger had 6 points for the night as the Rayders battled hard to maintain their standings in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.



SUPER SUB Bob Plumm was at his best in the Charlevoix game against the Petoskey Northmen Friday night. Plumm pumped in 13 points, his highest this season, in addition to moving the ball across the court and grabbing rebounds for the Rayders. Despite Plumm's efforts as well as those of his teammates the Rayders lost the contest 75-68. Here Plumm is being guarded by Eric Swenor (24) and Jeff Vratanina.



JEFF VRATANINA of Petoskey was everywhere on the court in the game against Charlevoix last Friday. Here Bob Plumm (40) and Jim Elzinga (10) attempt to block a pass by Vratanina. They were successful and teammate Pat Schmidt (34) ran up from down court to grab the ball. Petoskey defeated the Rayders 75-68.



SLIPPING A PASS past Petoskey super star Jeff Vratanina (30) is Charelvoix's Jim Alger (22). Alger used his facial expressions as well as his basketball sense to fool the opponents. Charlvoix lost the contest 75-68.

Low shooting percentage hurts Rayders

By BILL MERCER

The Charlevoix Rayders traveled to Petoskey for their first game of 1978 last week and came away with a 75-68 loss.

The Rayders could not overcome the 25-point performance of the Northmen's 6 foot 4 inch Spencer Damschroder or a 37 percent versus a 52 percent difference in field goal shooting.

From the first tipoff the fans knew they were going to witness a classic high school contest. Petoskey's front line features Damschroder along with 6 foot 3 inch Jeff Vratanina who were matched against Charlevoix's 6 foot 3 inch Joe Left and 6 foot 1 inch jumping jack Neil Dziedzic.

Add to this six more fast moving players and two run-and-gun offenses and the result is an exciting evening of basketball.

Charlevoix's problem in the game seemed to be an inability to keep the scoring machine rolling. Early in the game the Rayders led 8-3, but Petoskey then collected an unanswered eight points to take the lead 11-8.

This event occurred again at the start of the second half as Charlevoix was held scoreless for three minutes. During this time the Northmen raised the point difference from 6 to 15 points. The Rayders were never able to overcome the deficit.

Coach Dave Moyer analyzed the game by noting: "We gave up too many baskets underneath in the second half. Petoskey was able to get the easy buckets and our shooting percentage was low. We also lost control of the boards in the last quarter."

Another key factor in the defeat was Petoskey's ability to cut off one of Charlevoix's major scoring threats. Pat Schmidt hit 19 points in the first half but was held scoreless in the third quarter and eventually only collected four points in the last quarter.

Strong performances were turned in by Jim Elzinga, the Rayder's floor leader and playmaker, Joe Left, Jim Alger and super sub Bob Plumm. Plumm has come off of the bench in the past three games and played excellent defensive and offensive basketball.

Dziedzic also played well and at one point brought the crowd to its feet when he drove the length of the court and stuffed a shot.

This week Charlevoix takes on Kalkaska at home before traveling to Gaylord to try to avenge a defeat earlier in the season. If Charlevoix is to defend their conference championship from last year, they will need to win all of the remaining league games. A defeat at Gaylord will all but wipe out Charlevoix's chances for the title. Petoskey and St Ignace now share the conference lead.

Rayder wrestlers defeat Petoskey for first time since 1973 match

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers stormed into the new year last week to post their first victory over the Petoskey Northmen since 1973.

The Rayders took the meet, which seesawed between the two teams from match to match all night, by a narrow 35-32 margin. Charlevoix and Petoskey now have matching dual records with seven victories and two losses apiece.

The Northmen jumped to an early 12-point lead in the meet when Mike Robbins and Mike Pemberton posted pins in the 98 pound and 105 pound classes over Don Mol and Jeff Drenth.

But then the tide changed as the next five matches went to Charlevoix with Dave Golovich winning a 5-4 decision in the 112 pound class, Ron Hilton taking a 3-1 decision in the 119 pound class, Lee DeMitchell taking a 15-8 decision in the 126 pound class, Mike Kiteley with a 2:57 pin in the 132 pound class and team captain Craig Golovich with a pin in the 138 pound class in 4:17.

Hilton's match against undefeated Northmen John Pemberton was an exciting one. Pemberton had defeated Hilton last year when the two powerhouses wrestled on Pemberton's home turf.

Hilton came through with a hard fought decision victory and moved his record to 80-30-1 for his career. The Rayder wrestler is shooting for 100 career victories this year.

Pins by undefeated grappler Kiteley and Captain Golovich moved the score to Rayders 21, Northmen 12.

The next three matches in the 145, 155 and 165 pound classes went to Petoskey and then junior Rayder Ande Keller gave Petoskey a battle in the 178 pound class. Keller pinned opponent Dennis Hass by a 1:21 pin in the first period.

Dennis Whitley followed with a draw match in a hard fought battle against Mark Hoch. Whitley jumped to a 4-2 lead only to give up an escape in the last period with 30 seconds. He then was penalized with six seconds to go on the clock for Mark Hoch to tie the score 4-4. That left the score at Petoskey 32, Charlevoix, 29

Heavyweight Greg Loper came through with a pin at 1:40 in the first round moved his overall record to 9-1 for the season. His only loss went to state runner-up wrestler Ashby of Marion.

The junior Northmen defeated the Rayder JV 37-10 in an earlier match that evening.

The Rayders will hold their next to the last home meet at the high school gym Thursday. The meet is designed as Senior Night to honor the nine senior members on the team. Dan Bruce, Mark Byard, Craig Golovich, Ron Hilton, Gilbert Johnson, Mike Kiteley, Greg Loper, Mike Marti and Gene Morrison.

Four Charlevoix grapplers capture medals for undefeated titles at Alma

Four Charlevoix Rayder grapplers won individual medals at the Alma Invitational Wrestling Tournament Saturday.

Dave Golovich, 112 pounds, Ron Hilton, 119 pounds, Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds, and Greg Loper, heavyweight, received the medals for going undefeated in the tournament.

Kiteley now has a string of 12 straight pins while Hilton is closing in on the school record for career wins. Hilton has 83 wins only six less than the record of Phil Christ who had 89 wins in his high school wrestling career.

Charlevoix wrestlers lost their first round match in the invitational which included Sparta, Flint Bently, Mason, Alma, Traverse City, Escanaba and Petoskey. The team came back to win its last two matches in the tournament which followed a team dual mat format.

Final scores for Charlevoix were: Charlevoix 33, Traverse City 37, Charlevoix 40, Alma 26, and Charlevoix 46, Sparta, 24.

Those wrestlers posting wins against Traverse City were: Dave Golovich, Mike Kiteley, Craig Golovich and Greg Loper all with pins. Ron Hilton and Dennis Whitley both won matches by decisions.

In the Alma match, Don Mol, D. Golovich, Ande Keller and Loper all had pins while Hilton won be decision and Gene Morrison and Mike Kiteley won by forfeit.

In the battle against Sparta, D. Golovich, Lee DeMitchell, and Kiteley, all had pins, with Hilton, Craig Golovich and Dan Bruce won by decision and Jeff Drenth, Whitley and Loper all won be forfeit.

Swansons K&D continues to lead teams in A League championship race

Swansons K & D continued in its winning ways in the Charlevoix Recreation Department A League basketball play last week.

The team buried Site Planning 81-65 to hold on to the top position in the league.

Swansons took off to an early lead in the first quarter at 14-9. By the second period the score had jumped to 39-25 and it was 55-44 at the end of the third quarter.

Top scorers for Swansons were Mike Ridley at 30 points and Dave Moyer with 22 points.

For Site Planning, Tim Carey and Kragg Lieberman each had 12 points and Paul Osterberg and Dennis Dominic each had 10 points.

Townhouse held onto its second place position by defeating Bobs Sunoco 70-66 last week. Townhouse also started off with an early lead with a first quarter score of 12-6. At the end of the half it was 37-27. Bobs staged a comeback in the third period tightening the score up to 51-50 in favor of the Townhouse. But the team's momentum ran out before it could take the game.

High point men for the Townhouse were: Dan McKenzie with 23 points, Ike Boss, 16 points, and Bernie Ward, 10 points.

For Bobs Sunoco, Jim Danbert had 17 points, Jack Danbert had 12 points and Joel Donaldson had 10 points.

Foam Corps improved its record by turning over a new leaf in 1976 and handing Kadens a 57-56 defeat. Foam Corp started out with the lead and never gave it up. At the end of the first period the score was 19-12 and at the end of the half it was 30-28 in favor of Foam Corps. In the third period the score moved to 47-43 with Foam Corps in the lead.

Top scorer for Roam Corps was Mike Streeter with 18 points while Al Looze was the high point man for Kadens with 23 points and Chuck Stanek had 10 points.

Tri-City, Wojan First State still lead B League teams

Tri-City Asphalt continued to lead the Charlevoix Recreation Department B League by posting a victory over Medusa 66-39 last week.

Wojan Aluminum and First State Bank also held on to second and third places in the six-team league by posting wins.

In the Tri-City Medusa game, Tri-City cemented its opponents 66-39 keeping Medusa in the cellar of the league.

Tri-City took a quick lead in the first quarter 14-4 and then leaped to 26-12 in the second quarter. In the third period the score moved to 48-22 leaving Tri-City well in the lead.

Top scorers for Tri-City were Butch Klooster with 22 points, Dave Norton, 19, and Leroy Buchanan, 12.

For Medusa, Tom Morrison had 12 points.

Wojan Aluminum defeated County State Bank 54-34 in their first game since the holidays. Wojan took an early but small lead in the first quarter 6-2. It jumped to 23-10 in the second period and 38-26 in the third period.

Leading the scoring attack for Wojan and Don Ward with 15 points, Stan Martin, 14, and Clay Jones, 13.

For County State Bank, Steve Martinus had 14 points.

Also last week, First State Bank nailed Alray Cottages 57-46.

Jim Gels was the top scorer for First State Bank with 16 points, Joe Beaudoin had 12 and Jeff Collins had 10.

For Alray, Vince Left had 16 points, Scott Blanchard had 13 and Dave Martinchek had 10.

Older people can avoid being victims of crime

By PEG OHLE

Older persons need not be helpless victims of crime, says Ed Schnell of Harbor Springs, who recently participated in a day long meeting in Lansing on Crimes Against the Elderly.

The session was part of the monthly meeting of the Michigan Senior Advocates Council, of which Schnell is a member, representing the Area Agency on Aging for Northwest Michigan.

"Seniors and others can protect themselves against many kinds of consumer fraud just by saying 'no' – 'no' to the salesman who comes to the door, 'no' to the telephone solicitor, 'no' to schemes and opportunities that come through the mail.

"It's not rude to say 'no', "Schnell adds, pointing out that this was some of the advice given by a panel of experts on "How to Avoid Being a Victim of Crime."

Other pointers shared by the panel and by Senior Advocates Council members who have been involved in crime prevention programs were:

Form neighborhood self-help groups. Neighbors can look out for each other, watching for unfamiliar cars and unusual activity. They can also form neighborhood patrols, conducting security checks for those away from home. Fear of being a "nosey neighbor" helps the criminal.

Don't suffer in silence if you've been "had". Letting others know your bad experience helps alert them to criminal activity and to figure out ways of protecting themselves. Senior groups can be a crime prevention resource if members will share their experiences.

Don't advertise that you're going to be away from home. Don't give schedules to delivery men. Have neighbors take in your papers and other deliveries. Also, where possible, put notices in the paper about family happenings after the event, not before. In cases of weddings, funerals and other events that involve the entire family, ask a friend to "house sit" for you.

Don't travel alone. Seniors can help each other by traveling at least in pairs. Young persons can help the elderly by serving as escorts.

Hesitate before signing agreements for home repairs and other goods and services. Take time to read the contract thoroughly and to find out if the concern is reputable. If someone tries to rush you into signing, let that be a danger sign.

Make your keyring a defense device. Add as much as you can to it – long things and heavy things, including a nail file or small pair of scissors. You can also carry a shrill alarm (a small, hand-held tube that produces a loud shriek when squeezed.)

Form court watches. If lenient sentences or probations seem to be given when older persons have been victimized, a group of older persons sitting in court and watching can be effective.

Work with police and sheriff departments to develop crime prevention programs and awareness. Notify police if you're going to be away. They will check your house.

Work with banks to develop an alert system when large sums of money are withdrawn. This thwarts con men who ask their victims to withdraw money.

Light the night. To save energy, cooperate with neighbors, with a front light on at one house, and a back light at the next.

Oddfellows take early lead in annual cribbage tourney

The defending champions in the annual Oddfellow-Masons cribbage tournament, the Oddfellows, took an early lead after the first night of play Sims Baker, secretary of the group, has announced.

With eight tables in play, the Oddfellows now have a lead of 131 points. Several new players are among the participants Baker said.

Taking top honors for the victors was Allan Bergmann with 956 points. Glenn Pemberton had 930 for the Masons.

On Jan. 12 play will move to the Masonic Temple.

THE "POWERS THAT BE" ARE IN NEED OF YOUR PRAYERS

The governments of free nations are chosen by their citizens not to rule but to serve, to uphold existing laws, and to use their best collective judgement in the passage of good new laws and the prevention of bad ones. Governments periodically change hands; but whether they do or not the process continues, and the men and women responsible for it strive to do the best job of which they are capable, with the help of God and the cooperation of the citizens in making their wishes known. Your government needs your help, and you can best provide it by attending the Church of your choice regularly and praying for God's guidance to insure the wisdom and good judgement of your chosen leaders. Remember that your own success depends largely on theirs.

Charlevoix Church Directory

Governments are a recognized necessity ... and their existence is manifestly in accordance with the divine will.

--James H. Fairchild

"The powers that be are ordained of God, Whosoever therefore resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God: For rulers are not a terror to good workers, but to the evil."

Junior Varsity drops game to Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity basketball team started the new year off on the wrong foot as they bowed to the Petoskey squad 57-41 Friday night.

The Petoskey squad took an early lead with the first quarter score 14-11 in favor of the junior Northmen. By half time the Northmen had added another 21 points to their score while the Rayders could only find the basket for six more points to leave the score at 35-17.

The Rayders were determined to come back, however, and they outscored their opponents 12-10 in the third quarter to bring the score to 45-29. Both teams added another 12 points to their score in the fourth quarter.

High point men for Charlevoix included Jeff Peters and Ken Otmonowski with 12 points each and Jack Cross with 6 points.

For Petoskey, Hewitt scored 30 points.

Not too early to apply for jobs with Forest Service this summer

State Representative Ralph Ostling advises that it's not too early to start thinking about a summer or seasonal job in the national forests in Michigan and other states.

Application forms may be obtained from the Forest Supervisor's Office, Huron-Manistee National Forest, 421 South Mitchell, Cadillac 49601.

registrant. The complainant seeks civil penalties in an amount to be determined by the board; it does not request injuctive relief of any kind. The registrant has denied any violation of law and is vigarously contesting the action. Discovery currently is being pursued actively by the registrant and the department."

Heavens to Betsey, I wonder what answer the folks in York, Pennsylvania would have for Mr. Kaiser.

3. Plant site reclamation: Mr. Kaiser states "In his letter Mr. Duke also expresses concern about the appearance of the quarry and the reclamation of the quarry in future years. Medusa is already required to meet very stringent state and federal reclamation requirements. And even further requirements are under consideration by the federal government."

My answer: We can all see what "the restrictions" have "required" Penn Dixie to do and we can see what "restrictions" are allowing Medusa to do. Our concern continues. I would and I'm sure the Courier would also appreciate Mr. Kaiser's obtaining copies of the various "restrictions" for informational reading.

Now, hang on to your hats: Mr. Kaiser referred to "paying less (taxes) than we currently do." This statement aroused my curiosity about the taxes being paid on the present installation. (All of our previous discussion has been about the tax break they seek on the new additional facilities.)

When the homeowners' taxes go up every year, they can at least find solace in knowing all other tax bills are going up the same percentage. Right? – wrong!

A visit to the County Equalization Office revealed the following information based on comparisons over five years 1972 through 1977, between the Medusa land and building tax base versus the tax base for homes (residences) in the City of Charlevoix. (The township wasn't available. However, the 50 percent of value law would make the township and city similar for comparison purposes.)

Medusa had an assessed valuation on land and buildings of only $4,146,000 in 1972 increased to $4,432,100 in 1977. That means that their base on which their taxes are paid increased one point three percent per year, or only six point eight percent for the '72-'77 period. Less than seven percent in 5 years.

Now while their building and land taxes are creeping at the rate of 0.13 percent per year, the homeowners in the City of Charlevoix saw their taxes go up .074 percent each and every year for a total of over 37 percent during the period. In other words, the homeowners' taxes went up $38 percent more than poor struggling Medusa. An increase each year of more than Medusa's total increase for five years. "How about them apples?" Now for even more news. Those same homeowners who have had their taxes raised five times more than Medusa are in for a heart-stopping new 18 percent additional increase in 1978. This means their average increase for the six years will be slightly over nine percent (55 percent total) versus Medusa's slightly over 1 percent per year. All together now; let's hear it; "Those in favor of relieving Medusa of another $425,000 in taxes on their new addition say yeh."

You ain't heard nathin' yet! How is it that a facility assessed at 4½ million dollars or an alleged cash value of nine million, (and that figure includes all of the land), can produce an amount of end products for which it takes 50 million dollars including no land costs, to increase only 80 percent more of production? On those ratios one might conclude that the present facility could be a tad underassessed. If 50 million dollars produces 80 percent of the original capacity, it seems reasonable the base plant now operating that produces 100 percent, if computed on ratios, should be at a market value of 62 ½ million dollars for an assessed value of 31 million, slightly above the value shown on the books of 4½ million.

In addition, (or I should say subtraction), their personal property taxes, which is what pays a great amount of the current actual dollars to the Charlevoix area, is taxed differently. It "shrinks" over 15 years to only 40 percent of the original amount so while our taxes go up, their personal property taxes go down. Ah! The wonders of taxation.

When we see assessments like that 4.5 million we wonder if the state is even vaguely aware that appraisals are made not only by comparable sales but on a reproduction cost basis. I'll bet your average guy on the street, like Frank Kelly, the Attorney General could make an interesting assessment, considering it's common knowledge that costs have gone up 10 percent per year.

Let's remember, that it is the State Tax Commission that controls these big company assessments. I talked to Oscar Stroud who told of his fight in 1972, the last year he was the assessor, to raise the assessment of Medusa which he stated he felt was low then and still is. He said he felt the plant was worth between 40-45 million dollars, but he was defeated at the State level in efforts to raise it or to have a state appraiser make a physical inspection and appraisal of the property.

We should also be reminded of the tremendous efforts over the years on the part of both Oscar Stroud and Donald Berlage with reference to pollution controls and those efforts should be greatly appreciated.

Mr. Kaiser speaks of a "tax bonanza." We have heard of tax "reform," "restructuring," "tax programs," "tax relief" and now add the new word "bonanza." While you read your tax bill think about those reassuring words.

By the way, whenever I think of this word "bonanza" my mind turns to the old gold mining days "of yesteryear" and a triumphant shout from a minor, underground, in the bowels of the earth, upon striking gold. To get there, of course, it took much digging and the sinking of shaft. Perhaps that's what we have here—when Medusa claims to give "Charlevoix a Bonanza" maybe all we will really get is the Shaft.

Sometimes when looking at something at the face, it isn't obvious as to its inequities. It pays to look on the reverse side. If Medusa qualified for Public Act 198 utilizing land and minerals that it owned for decades, thereby removing the "inducement factor" and adds only a handful of jobs in return for an enormous tax break, then one must ask: If this is the new benchmark for approval under Public Act 198, then what industry would fail to qualify for Public Act 198 tax breaks?

In conclusion and while we are in a guessing mood, it might be interesting for Medusa's directors to try a little good old public relations to take the local folks minds off the tax windfall and Medusas present assessment of 4½ million dollars. How about a contest to rename the Medusa Challenger and offer some really "big buck" prizes like gas masks and feather dusters. Two names for openers might be entered, the "SS Freeloader" or the "Tax Bonanza." Happy New Year, of Campbell's who envisioned a spectacular ski movie set in the wilderness of the mountains where snow reputedly stands 200 feet deep.

Thomas Duke

Mardi Gras

When Campbell arrived in New Zealand in 1973 to begin filming he brought hand gliders as well as his skis. He had added hang gliding to his accomplishments after becoming a recognized skier as a downhill racer, a Colorado ski patrolman and through serving on avalanche duty.

Helicopters and small planes were used by the film crew of two to take the two skiers to mountain sides that reached up 12,349 feet.

The hang gliding skiers soared into valleys and investigated ice caverns beneath the moving glaciers. They glided by cliffs where chunks of ice as big as houses were breaking off to fall thousands of feet.

All of this was recorded by cameras attached to their skis and gliders and by crews in the helicopters and planes. In three seasons of work there were only 45 days of good filming weather, so wild were the meteorlogical conditions.

Campbell, whose boyish enthusiasm still glows over his adventure, says his film is a good family film. The scenery is unparalleled.

But more important to Campbell: "It's the spirit. It's like when you are young. Everything is new in the world. It's the thrill of discovery. Everyone gets that from the film."

Campbell, who is currently touring the country with the film, looks forward to the Mardi Gras benefit,. He admits that he genuinely likes to return to Northern Michigan, especially now that he has become an avid cross country skier.

Also, he says, he experiences a certain nostalgia in Northern Michigan for New Zealand.

"The weather conditions are very similar. All you would have to do is add those mountains," he said.

Tickets for the Feb 3 benefit film and dinner are available at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Williams Dockside Pharmamacy, the Shop of the Gulls and the Grey Gables in Charlevoix, from Bob Mathers Ford in Boyne City, from the Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan and from members of the hospital board of directors.

The price of the tickets, which is tax deductible is $35 a couple and $20 per person. Tickets for the film are only $3.50 and will be available at Cinema III.

The Feb. 4 matinee performance is scheduled for 3 p.m. and the tickets are $1.50 for children, $3.50 for adults.

Obituary

LOUIS E. THIERRY

Louis E. Thierry, 85, retired teacher who had resided at Eastport for the past 20 years, died Thursday at his winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla. The body will be returned for funeral services and burial in the spring.

A native of Detroit where he was born Sept. 29, 1892, Mr. Thierry had taught in the Detroit School System for 40 years prior to his retirement. Since then he had lived in Eastport where he had had a summer home prior to retiring.

Surviving are his wife, the former Christine Wedlishauser; a daughter, Mrs. Loretta E. Hodges of Big Rapids and two grandchildren.

CHARLES F. RANKIN

Charles F. Rankin, 42, of Fenton and a summer resident of Charlevoix, died Jan. 3 at his home in Fenton.

Funeral services were held Jan. 5 at the Allen Funeral Home, Fenton, with Pastor Robert Kelley officiating. Interment was in Oakland Cemetery.

Mr. Rankin was born in Detroit, Oct. 5, 1935. He married Barbara Marshall in Maryland, Aug. 11, 1973.

He was a member of the Flint Executives Club and the Spring Meadows Golf Club in Linden. He was employed as an industrial engineer by Chevrolet Truck assembly in Flint since 1960.

Survivors include: his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Warren (Michele) Allen of Flint and Cynthia Senger at home; two sons, Michael Mouillet of U.S.A.F. Oscoda, and Kent Senger at home; father Roy Rankin of Venice, Fla.; brother Robert Rankin of Fenton, one granddaughter, and three nephews.

ELLIOTT FRANCIS

Funeral services for Elliott Francis, 68, who died Saturday at Little Traverse Hospital less than a day after he was admitted, were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in the Greensky Hill Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix June 1, 1909, Mr. Francis always resided in this area except for the past 14 years when he lived at the Payton Nursing Home in Elmira. He attended the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church.

He is survived by two half-brothers, Leonard and Jay Oliver, both of Charlevoix, and a half-sister, Mrs. Edward (Marion) Olson, Jr., of Sheboygan, Wis.

BERT HOUSTON

News of the death of a former resident, Bert Houston, 76, at Reno, Nev., on Nov. 6 has been received by friends here.

The Houstons came here from Detroit in the later 1940's and operated a summer dining room and rooming house on Michigan Avenue at the site of The Dunes Condominium until the mid-1960's. Since then they had lived in Reno.

He is survived by his wife, Hazel.

Sidewalks Need Attention

I'm calling in regard to the state of the sidewalks on Bridge St., especially the sidewalks in front of the merchants. If the City Council can't do something about it, can't the Chamber of Commerce do something to police the merchants. Do they have to have someone sue the city and sue the merchant when they fall and break a leg to get anything done about it?

Medusa Challenger Officers Pay Taxes, Too

As a wife of an officer on the Medusa Challenger, I resent the suggestion that the name of the Challenger be changed to the SS Freeloader. As a native of Charlevoix, we have paid taxes in Charlevoix for many years. My parents have paid taxes and my husband's parents are still paying taxes, and have long before we heard of Mr. Duke. Several other men on the Challenger are also residents of Charlevoix and are paying taxes. What has Mr. Duke contributed to Charlevoix other than some dubious political advice?

Thinks Sidewalks Are Good

The person who thinks the sidewalks in Charlevoix are bad should go to our neighboring cities. Just try to get from the streets to the curbs there and they'll find that the snow is so deep that they wade through to their waist because the snow is not removed. Also, you can't move from your car because the snow at the curb is so high. Now, the streets in Charlevoix are cleaned so that there isn't a bit of snow and you can get into the stores. Furthermore, I've seen the sanding trucks around town at midnight, trying to keep the streets from being so slippery. I think that the Charlevoix street dept. is doing a good job of keeping the streets clean. Thank you.

Medusa Deserves Break

I think Medusa deserves the tax break. Both the company and its employees are a great asset to Charlevoix. Mrs. Otmanowski

Make Up Tax Loss

All summer long we have read in the Courier how the summer people pay most of the taxes, that Medusa is nickel and dime stuff. Maybe Tom Duke ought to get together with those people and see if they will make up the loss in taxes if Medusa doesn't expand. Thank you.

Will Call Dog Warden

To whom it may concern: From now on, when I see a dog running loose or hear one barking, hour after hour, I will call the dog warden.

Story Hour Good Idea

I think the library hour is a very good idea. Small children can be introduced to stories that they may not ever hear about, and that are good for them. I think they should have it all year long. Editor's Note: The story hour is sponsored by Xi Epsilon Gamma sorority.

Questions Shade Tree Project

Please tell me it's my eyes, $23,600 on shade trees? Where in the world are the people responsible for this project and more important who are they? And where were their brains at the time? Who gave them the authority to spend this kind of money on such a project? I pay my taxes to have a select few throw the money away on shade trees? If they want some ideas on how to spend all the extra money the city has how about these? A senior citizen home instead of sending them over to East Jordan, or a youth center to give our kids a place to go, more street lights all over the city, some better parks like Bells Bay in shape, pave the high school parking lot, some southside tennis courts, better playground equipment for the town beaches, and how about some nice Christmas decorations? Or a big parking lot in town which would improve the parking problem. These ideas would help to improve Charlevoix not only to the eye but they are practical. The list is endless and if these people would do a little thinking they would have to agree, and did they foresee that in years to come they will interfere with power lines?

All the projects listed above sure could have gotten a good start on that money they used for the trees. We need some new people in this city government who know the value of a dollar and put it to good use. In this day of inflation we have to be careful with money, as well as energy and I for one resent having to pay taxes for someone else to spend it so foolishly. I don't spend mine that way. There is an election coming up and I would like to know who started this project and that it will be stopped and that these people be kept out of office. They have no place there when there are so many other good and useful projects this money could have been used for. Much has been spent, let's not throw anymore good money after the bad and make a better future with fewer mistakes like this last one.

"A Taxpayer that would rather spend it himself."

Township board approves tax break for Medusa

By PAULA HOLMES

In an unanimous decision, the Charlevoix Township Board awarded a controversial tax break to the Medusa Cement Company Monday night.

The township board approved two resolutions which set up an industrial facilities exemption district covering one and one-half acres of Medusa property and granted the company a tax certificate which exempts it from paying one-half of the property taxes that would normally be levied on the new addition for the next 12 years.

It is estimated the tax break will save Medusa more than $4 million during the 12-year period while increasing the amount of property tax the company pays by $400,000 a year.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, Treasurer Rose Bergmann and trustees Dale Glass and Don Smith supported the two measures while Clerk Joanne Elzinga abstained from voting because both her husband and daughter are employed by Medusa.

Mrs. Elzinga said she legally could have voted on the issue but she felt a moral obligation not to.

The township board's action granting the tax break to Medusa must now be reviewed by the state Department of Commerce before it is given final approval, but it is anticipated that the state will also approve the measure.

"Boy am I glad that's over," Supervisor Stroud said following the brief meeting on the issue.

The township board has been involved in intensive study of the tax question and the expansion plans for the cement company for the past two months. The board has listened to presentations by local groups supporting and opposing the tax break and the plant expansion also has been in contact with Alabama officials to discuss the operation of a plant similar to the one Medusa plans to expand into.

"It got so you couldn't even go out for a social evening without ending up talking politics and discussing Medusa," Smith said.

The township officials are confident that they acted in the best interest of the community by approving the tax break for Medusa.

"The way I looked at it, we could gamble for the whole $600,000 in taxes like the schools did when they went on record against the tax break, or we could be assured of $300,000 in taxes, $600,000 in wages, fixing up Bells Bay Road and less pollution," Stroud explained. "I'd rather take a sure thing than gamble for the other."

Smith agreed. "I didn't want to take a chance on sacrificing a tax base of $10 million," he said.

Tom Duke, one of the leading opponents of the tax break, said he has no plans to appeal the board's decision.

"The only interest I had in it was that the public be informed of both sides of the issue," Duke said. "And I think they were well informed.

"But the buck stops with the township board and I feel they have made what they feel is a proper decision. It was a tough decision to make and I don't envy them a bit.

"Now, just like with any other debate, the issue is settled and I think we can go on about our business without any hard feelings."

Construction on the $50 million expansion at Medusa is expected to begin in mid-March if all of the permits are approved in the standard amount of time. The company is waiting for permits from the Department of Natural Resources for the pollution control equipment and from the Federal Aviation Administration for the height of the tower it is proposing to build on the property.

Police union, city go into arbitration

Contract negotiations between the City of Charlevoix and the Teamsters Local representing the Charlevoix police and firemen have moved into compulsory arbitration.

A representative of the city, the union and a state arbitrator will soon meet to settle on a contract for the two parties. A date for the meeting has not been set yet, Mayor Edward Hansen said.

Each of the three units will pay an equal amount of the cost of the arbitration.

Hansen said the main issue in the contract dispute, which has been going on for almost a year, was salaries. Hansen said several offers and counteroffers had been made but neither side could reach an agreement.

City Attorney Donald Berlage explained that since the policemen and firemen are forbidden by law to strike, the state Legislature gave them the right to compulsory arbitration to settle a contract dispute. The union had asked that the negotiations go into medication and then following the city's latest offer, asked that the matter go into compulsory arbitration.

The union represents five patrolmen and two firemen.

Davis may seek election to Congressional seat

Sen. Bob Davis, R-Gaylord, may seek the 11th U.S. Congressional District seat, being vacated by Rep. Philip Ruppe, in the upcoming November election.

I'm giving serious consideration to running for Ruppe's seat," Davis said. "I've been assessing the situation, but I haven't made up my mind yet.

Sen. Davis told a gathering of 50 people at a breakfast meeting Monday in Petoskey that he would announce his final decision on the matter within 30 days.

Davis' 37th state senatorial district makes up half of the Congressional district. The other half of the district is the 38th Senatorial district held by Sen. Joe Mack, a Democrat.

"It's been very hard for a Republican to be successful in Sen. Mack's District," Davis pointed out.

Davis, who was born in Marquette and attended Northern Michigan University, was raised in St. Ignace and is formerly a St. Ignace businessman.

He has been involved in state government for 12 years serving the last eight years as a Senator and the four previous years in the House of Representatives.

Davis also outlined his goals for the coming year in the Legislature. He said he would like to see action taken in six areas including the Single Business Tax, unemployment insurance, workmans compensation, welfare reform, Seafarer and nuclear dump sites.

Charlevoix New Year's baby finally arrives

It took until Jan. 9, but Charlevoix did get a first baby of the new year.

The winner in this year's Charlevoix Courier First Baby of the New Year Contest was Garrett Michael Bohne of East Jordan.

Garrett weighed in at 8 pounds ½ ounce on the day of his birth at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and had blue eyes and very light blond hair. He is the sixth child of Jack and Beth Bohne and has three brothers and two sisters ranging in age from 5 to 9 years old.

Just as the Charlevoix Courier had to wait a few days for the New Years baby, Garrett had to wait a while for his name.

"We have so many children that we ran out of names," Mrs. Bohne joked.

Actually the problem was in convincing one of Garrett's sisters that his name was the proper one for the new baby.

"She wanted to call him Godfrey," the new mother explained. "It took a while to convince her that Garrett was just as nice."

For being the new year's baby, Garrett and his parents will receive a total of 20 gifts from Charlevoix area merchants.

For Garrett there will be a silverware gift set from Reusch Jewelry and a food warming dish from Staley Hardware. To go with the dishes is a case of Gerber baby food from Olesons Food Store.

To keep Garrett warm, the Chelsea Clothe Shoppe is offering a handmade quilted baby comforter and Olesons Family Center is supplying $10 worth of Buster Brown Clothing and Russell Shoes is offering Buster Brown shoes.

Two $25 savings bonds are being offered to the new baby by Thomas Real Estate and the Charlevoix Area Hospital and two $10 gift certificates are being offered by Kit Carson Lumber Co. and the Circus Shop of Petoskey.

To help Garrett and his parents when they get home, the Dockside Pharmacy is supplying a Johnson & Johnson baby starter kit and Central Drug Store is offering a Johnson & Johnson baby starter kit. Edwards IGA is sup-plying two boxes of disposable diapers.

For the nursery, Frank's Florist and Greenhouse is offering a decorative planter and the Appletree is supplying a cuddly teddy bear. The Radio Shack of Petoskey is offering an AM poodle radio for the family's listening pleasure.

Aartvark Studio is offering a free 5 by 7 color portrait by Terry Salmonson and the Appletree is offering a picture frame to hold the baby's portrait.

For the parents, Wharfside Market is supplying a bottle of champagne while Helene's Beauty Shoppe is offering a free hair cut, set and wash for the new mother.

Hess Furniture is offering a $25 gift certificate toward the purchase of a rocking chair for baby and mother.

And for the entire family, the Charlevoix Courier is offering a one year's subscription to the paper.

HOLDING THE WINNER of the Charlevoix Courier First Baby of the New Year Contest is mother Beth Bohne of East Jordan. The new arrival is Garrett Michael Bohne. He was born Jan. 9.

March of Dimes mothers drive set for Jan. 23-25

The 1978 Charlevoix County March of Dimes Campaign will begin with the annual Mother's March scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week.

Heading up this years march is Kay Chase of Charlevoix who is the county chairperson for the march. Also assisting Mrs. Chase are Joni Zucchiati of Boyne City, Nancy Ditler of East Jordan and Vera Wojan of Beaver Island.

These women invite interested people to learn more about the March of Dimes or to volunteer their services by calling Mrs. Chase at 547-5147.

In addition, the March of Dimes workers are planning a Coffee Day on Jan. 25. On this day Coffee will be served all day at Juillerets restaurant, Lefts, the Weathervane and Dockside Pharmacy with the price of a cup going to the March of Dimes campaign.

Dave Juilleret of Juillerets Restaurant will also be serving his homemade coffee cake with the price of a piece being contributed to the March of Dimes.

Last year the March of Dimes collected a total of $6,646.39 in Charlevoix. Of that money, 60 percent went to the national program for research purposes. The remaining 40 percent stays within the county to fund such programs as: financial aid to parents with affected children and for genetic counseling.

Also past contributions of the March of Dimes in Charlevoix have included checks for $1,000 and $1,500 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for the purchase of a fetal monitor and radiant heat warmer for use in the obstetrical department.

The March of Dimes has also provided films used in the childbirth programs sponsored by the Hospital Women's guild and in school throughout the county.

Other officers working with the March of Dimes include: Penny Shroeder, Charlevoix County chairperson and casework consultant; Ann Georgi, Charlevoix Coffee Day chairman; Roger Rozema of the Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan, treasurer; and Linda Wojan, publicity director.

Snowplow crews do best they can--Brodin

There are a lot of nice things about winter. The snow and ice make Northern Michigan look beautiful and they also draw winter sports enthusiasts to the area to continue the tourist trade during the winter season.

There are also a lot of bad things about winter – like the snow and ice that cover the roads and make them dangerous for area residents as well as tourists to drive.

The snow and ice make life tough for the members of the Charlevoix Street Department, too, according to Bill Brodin street superintendent. The department is often the brunt of angry words and sarcastic remarks during the long winter months.

"People want to drive in winter like they do in the summer," Brodin said. "And that's just not possible. You can't get the roads clear enough to do it."

But the street department gives the elements a good fight, according to Brodin. The snowplow drivers begin working at midnight, running three plows over city streets.

The plows clear the major streets and the valley area first and then clear one side of the town and then the other after that is finished.

"We rotate which side of town we plow out first so that the same people won't always be plowed out first," Brodin said. "We try to give everyone the same type of service."

After the snow has been cleared from the roads, the crews put sand on them. All of the roads are covered with a mixture of sand and salt with an extra shot of the mixture dropped at each intersection.

This is done so that the cars can move some of the sand around on the streets.

Even so, people still say that the roads aren't taken care of like they were in the "old days."

"When people talk about how the roads were plowed in the 'old days,' they forget that we only plowed the main roads and many of the roads we plow now were closed off or didn't exist," Brodin pointed out.

"You can only do so much in a day and sometimes that means it will take a little longer to get the streets plowed out. We have a lot of new houses where people are living year around, that were built on dead end streets. It wastes a lot of time to go down those streets with the plow."

Brodin said many of the complaints he gets are about the Bridge Street hill.

"People call and say they can't make it up the hill," Brodin said. "But they don't get a running start at it, they just pull out of Oleson's parking lot and expect to get up the hill.

"They burn their tires all the way up the hill and then that makes it harder for the next person trying to get up the hill."

The streets superintendent said many people complain that the city isn't using as much sand and salt as it used to on the streets. But Brodin said this isn't true.

This year the city has used 1,200 yards of sand and two years ago it only ordered 80 yards of sand for the season. The city has already used 104 tons of salt this year and has placed an order for another 52 tons, Brodin said.

Snow removal is an expensive thing for the city, Brodine said.

"It costs a lot of money to move that snow around," he said.

And it costs a lot of money to purchase the sand and salt to place on the streets. According to figures from City Clerk Judy Przybylski, the cost of salt jumped from $15.60 a ton in 1974 to $20.35 a ton this year, while the cost of sand jumped from $1.64 a yard in 1969 to $2.15 a yard this year.

Brodin approaches his job philosophically.

"You can't make everybody happy," he said. "We just do the best we can."

Charlevoix gets 132" snow, plow funds during 1977

Charlevoix County was one of 35 Michigan counties recording more than 80 inches of snow during the winter of 1976, which qualified the county for annual snow removal assistance payments from state gasoline and weight taxes.

According to snowfall statistics provided by the U.S. Weather Bureau and Michigan Weather Service, Charlevoix County had 132.43 inches of snow last winter, which qualified it for $60,678.63 in snow removal funds this year.

The weather observation stations in Charlevoix County are located at Boyne Falls, East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Other Northern Michigan counties which received snow removal funds and the inches of snow they had were: Antrim County, 182.39 inches, $76,852.93; Emmet County, 137.79 inches, $59,336.91; Grand Traverse, 148.99 inches, $69,345.69; Kalkaska, 152.53 inches, $65,329.71; Otsego, 133 inches, $58,141.92 and Cheboygan, 99.26 inches, $34,778.39.

The largest payment of $106,435 went to Chippewa County based on 171.72 inches of snowfall last winter while the smallest payment went to Dickinson County with 84.97 inches for $5,077.

Luce County in the Upper Peninsula recorded the most snowfall with a total of 20.5 feet or 245.91 inches. Luce County had 18.5 more inches last winter than the preceding winter. Other counties in the top five for snowfall were: Keweenaw County, 238.52 inches; Alger, 224.16; Ontonagon, 207.45; and Houghton, 189.03.

The snow money is distributed according to a formula established by the state Legislature based on accumulated depth of snowfall and the number of miles of county roads. A county must record 80 inches of snow to qualify for the funds.

Correction

There was a typographical error in the story entitled, "City races settle down to 11 candidates" in the Jan. 11 issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

Under the heading of First Ward Alderman, the quote from candidate Jeffrey Porter should have read: "I feel there are a number of issues in the city that no attention is being paid to. And I feel people from my ward deserve representation for the way they think."

The Courier regrets the error.

Commissioners put freeze on property valuations

A resolution passed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week would freeze all property valuations at the 1977 level.

Presented by Commissioner John Haggard, the resolution cited poor economic conditions. Copies of the resolution were sent to several state officials. In presenting the resolution, Haggard pointed out that similar resolutions had been passed by several other County Boards of Commissioners in the state.

Joan Blanchard, director of the Charlevoix County Equalization Department, said she wasn't sure what effect the commissioners' resolution would have on the increase of property valuations.

"The state Legislature would have to pass a law to freeze assessments," Mrs. Blanchard explained. "And they probably wouldn't do that unless every county in the state passed this resolution and maybe not even then."

The equalization director pointed out that even if the property valuations were frozen that doesn't mean that taxes will stay the same.

"Any community that needs more tax dollars to operate can vote extra millage," she said. "A freeze on assessments won't necessarily keep taxes down."

Construction totals increase 39 percent in county during 1977

By PEG OHLE

Cost of construction started in Charlevoix County during 1977 was up 39.25 percent over 1976, according to the annual report of Dick Mayhew, Building Code Administrator.

Cost of construction in 1977 was $8,674,050, compared with $6,228,783 in 1976. This includes all areas of the county with the exception of the City of Charlevoix.

In 1977, 677 separate permits were issued, compared with 649 during 1976.

A breakdown of construction costs for 1977 shows that $5,224,379 went for new residences and $1,932,500 for new, commercial buildings.

Other categories were residential additions, $365,233; garages and additions to, $266,539; remodeling, $106,882; decks and porches, $32,091; commercial additions, $465,931; commercial remodeling, $104,461; demolitions, $274; signs, $1,150; relocations, $500; mobile homes and additions, $54,849; residential outbuildings, $92,151; commercial outbuildings, $27,110.

The county collected $29,108 in permit fees, up from $23,577.50 in 1976.

The greatest number of permits (100) was issued for building in Boyne City followed by Hayes Township, 66; East Jordan, 59; Wilson Township, 50; Eveline Township, 47; Marion Township, 46; Melrose Township, 46; South Arm Township, 41; Charlevoix Township, 37; Bay Township, 36; Evangeline Township, 35; Boyne Valley Township, 29; St. James Township, 20; Peaine Township, 18; Norwood Township, 17; Hudson Township, 15; Boyne Falls, 6; and Chandler Township, 6.

Work bee slated at Mt. McSauba

A work bee has been slated for 4 p.m. Sunday at Mt. McSauba.

Mike Bonello, coach of the Charlevoix ski team, is asking any interested person to help get snow on the mountain so that the annual Mardi Gras races can be held Feb. 4 at the mountain.

"We only have a two inch base at the mountain now," Bonello said. "That's just not enough to race on."

Bonello said the Lions Club members and several students would be on hand to help move the snow out of the woods and onto the mountain, but more assistance is needed. He asks that people bring snow shovels, toboggans, snow scoops and anything else that can be used to carry snow out of the woods.

Bonello predicted the project would take no longer than two hours.

Editorials/Opinions

Prompt action needed on proposed lease with B.I. boat company

The suggestion that the Beaver Island Boat Company might move its operation to Petoskey came up again last week in the form of a small paragraph in the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce bulletin.

Merle Lutz, director of the Petoskey chamber, said the boat company had made applicaton to Petoskey for a permit to use the municipal docks again this year. The Petoskey chamber heartily supports such action and is planning to work with the boat company to help it get the permit.

Petoskey City Manager Richard Gorman said the boat company probably would not be granted a permit to use the dock by the city council this year because the dock is in bad repair and the city had not allocated any funds or received any grants for fixing it.

That was the reason the boat company did not get the permit when it applied for one, three years ago, too.

Lawrence McDonough of the Beaver Island Boat Company, has also said that the company will not be moving to Petoskey for the coming season, but he didn't say the company wasn't thinking about it.

In the meantime, Charlevoix Common Council still has not come to an agreement with the boat company over a lease for the use of the city dock, which the company has been using for decades. Many hours of discussion have been devoted to the subject including several hours of a very well attended public hearing.

The most the council has done is agree to agree to negotiate a contractor. Granted the issue is a hotly contested one and common council should proceed cautiously, but progress shouldn't halt altogether.

In the original agreement proposed by the boat company and presented by Mayor Edward Hansen, there was talk of a long term lease of the municipal dock to the boat company in exchange for the company's property on Clinton Street.

Many city residents were opposed to this arrangement because they felt it represented giving away the last pieces of publicly owned property on Round Lake. Several others argued that the Fourth Class Cities Act and the proposed new charter both prohibit leases exceeding a five-year time limit.

It seems that something could be worked out with the boat company in a five-year lease. If the company doesn't want to give the city the land it owns on Clinton Street in exchange for a five-year lease then it can pay cash.

If the city wants to have the land that the boat company owns, then it can also pay cash for it. The solution seems simple.

The boat company is an important part of Charlevoix. The ferry brings untold numbers of visitors to the city and untold numbers of dollars that are spent in downtown businesses. It has a definite place in the Charlevoix economy and it should continue to have a definite place.

It would be a shame if the city were to lose this revenue because it failed to take action on a lease. Surely the boat company has waited long enough for a decision. It is now up to the council and mayor to come up with a lease.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Last week you met Robert Bruce, the grizzled hermit who haunted the dark cedar swamps and majestic rocky headlands of Ontario's Bruce Peninsula a century ago. He is also the fellow who gave his name to that magnificent natural phenomena, Bruce's Cave.

As you might suspect, stories and rumors snapped and snarled at the heels of Old Bruce like a pack of wild dogs. Was he really a deserter from the British Army? Did he bring vast sums of money with him from Great Britain? If so, where did he bury his fortune?

He also told tales of being buried alive in a collapsed mine shaft and is credited with one tale so ghastly that it sends cold chills down the spine, even after a lapse of 86 years.

The story was discovered by Andrew Armitage, a free lance writer from Owen Sound, Ont., who was scanning microfilm from early editions of the Wiarton Echo, a weekly newspaper published three miles from Old Bruce's fabled stamping grounds at Oxenden. It also appeared later in the Owen Sound Advertiser.

The Echo publisher at the time came right out and called the story a fabrication; the Advertiser conceded that the story is stranger than fiction but could well be true. Although I have listened to tales about Old Bruce since I was a boy, I had never heard of the Podrier family until I read about their fate in a recent article by Armitage which appeared in the Owen Sound Sun-Times.

Here it is, as drawn from the files of the Wiarton Echo, May 22, 1891.

It seems that a man named Amand Podrier lived under the high rock somewhere in the vicinity of Bruce's Cave. Podrier, a Frenchman, apparently was a little out of tune with his Anglo-Saxon neighbors, because he kept pretty much to himself, except for occasional contact with his closest neighbor, Old Bruce.

In fact, Old Bruce often ran errands for Podrier in exchange for sharpened saws and butchered hogs. And stories were rampant that "Pod", as Amand was called, lived with ghosts, kept strange hours and was sometimes seen gathering herbs at the edges of farmers' fields.

Although Old Bruce was never invited inside Pod's home, he knew that his strange neighbor was a widower who lived with his cat and a few farm animals.

However, one day Bruce journeyed to Wiarton to inform Sheriff Atkey, Coroner Powers and a news reporter that Pod was missing. They returned with him to that mysterious land under the high rock to see if they could find the old fellow.

It was twilight when they reached Pod's cabin and broke down the plank door with an axe, presumably after knocking. They discovered an "ordinary farm kitchen" with some important exceptions. Pails of milk had soured on the rusted stove and the premises were littered with dead cats.

An inspection of the loft revealed a rickety bed, old clothing and grass scythes.

There was only one room left to investigate – the wood shed – and the trusty axe was again called into use. When the door finally swung open, Old Bruce and his companions stepped inside only to "start back in terror. All around the room (was) a row of coffin-like cases, and from the top of each a grinning face peered out at the intruders."

The sheriff's posse had found the mumified bodies of Amand Podrier and his family.

"There were eight mummies altogether. Six of them were grown people and two children. The adults were evidently very old, the three male mummies having long grey beards."

The caskets were all inscribed with the name of the inhabitant, date of death, place of birth and his relationship to Amand Podrier. Together they made up the entire Podrier family, including Pod who apparently had slipped into his own casket when he realized death was near.

The sheriff's posse disposed of the bodies in a common grave before returning to town.

That's the story and you should take it with a groin of salt. Of all the characters in it, only Old Bruce was real to my knowledge. His headstone still stands in the Oxenden Cemetery.

...Speaking Her Mind

It's weekends like the last two we've had in Charlevoix that really make me love the outdoors.

I've always enjoyed winter sports such as ice skating, tobogganing and downhill skiing, but there's something about participating in them in Northern Michigan that is unlike what I have experienced in any other place in the state.

Needless to say, whenever I get a chance to get outdoors I take it. And a couple of weekends ago that chance came up when a friend asked me to teach her how to cross country ski.

I've been cross country skiing for only a couple of years and I am by no means an expert at the sport, but I enjoy it a lot and I'm glad to share my little knowledge with anyone who will listen.

I'm full of little bits of advice such as: "If you feel out of control, sit down. It's the only way I know of to stop on cross country skis."

Or, "Anyone who can walk can cross country ski," I say as I fall over on my skis while standing still.

This advice sometimes discourages potential cross country skiers, so I've tried to stop giving it out except as a last resort.

So when my friend came over, I kept my mouth shut except to say that we needed a special kind of wax because it was such a warm day for skiing.

"Oh, I know," she replied, "I checked at the sporting goods store and I've already got it on the skis."

I had the wrong wax on my skis but I decided to go with it anyway. I was soon to regret that decision.

We got out to Bells Bay and started off at a pretty fast clip, which we kept up for several miles. While I kept slipping backwards down the hills or sticking to the snow, my friend, the novice skier, just glided along over the snow like she had been born with silver skis on.

As we chatted during our tour, I noticed that she talked merrily on while I began huffing and puffing because of the extra work of pulling on skis along.

Finally the trail came to an end and we were back at the car.

"That was fun," my friend said and I cringed as I waited for her to suggest that we go around again. I didn't know how I was going to get out of it, but I was going to do something.

"Maybe we can do it another weekend," she said brightly.

"Sure," I said breathing heavily, "anytime."

Our son, Bruce, has a friend who shares his birth date.

For the last two years his friend has appeared at the door with a birthday present and Bruce has stood there like a kid with twelve fingers and no pockets.

Yesterday he said, "Lenny is on his way over. Do you think he's got a present again?"

"You mean you don't have one for him?"

"No. I keep thinking he'll give up on me."

"Then we've got to find something around the house. Think!" I yelled at the family.

"No," protested Bruce, "not the garage rejects again. I remember the birthday party I went to last year where I took a package of Ping-Pong balls."

"What's wrong with that? They had never been opened."

"He didn't have a Ping-Pong table. That's what was wrong with it."

"How would Lenny like a hummingbird feeder?" asked his father. "I have one in the garage in the original box."

"I have a record," I said, "with the cellophane still intact."

"Is that the one with Debbie Drake exercising?" he asked.

"Look, you're in no position to be picky..."

"Why don't you give Lenny that appointment book that no one uses."

"Or what about that little whale with the bubble bath in it."

"Mom!" said Bruce miserably.

"There's a key ring in my bureau drawer that hasn't been out of the package with a Pisces horoscope sign."

"Except Lenny isn't a Pisces."

"Why don't we give him that little kit in my sewing basket where you decorate your jeans with silver studs?"

"He gave me that last year," said Bruce.

"I could fill him a little bag of cookies and candy."

"Mom! It's not trick or treat."

"Do we own any books that someone hasn't used a piece of salami for a bookmark? How about a ball-point pen?"

"With 'BEN'S SHOCK ABSORBERS: 24-HOUR SERVICE' printed on it?" he winced.

I had just finished twisting the ends of the tissue around the pen when Lenny knocked on the door.

"Happy birthday, Bruce. I didn't get you a present."

Bruce heaved a sigh. "Boy, are you lucky!"

They star at undressing

Speaking of rip-offs, it used to be true that the greatest basketball team could be beaten by the lousiest team on any given day because all basketball players are human and must put their pants on one leg at a time.

Forget it. They can now put on their pants both legs at a time, without lifting their feet.

"Did you see that?" I asked my wife and son at Cobo Arena. "Their pants just fell off!"

We were watching the Detroit Pistons warm up for their game with the Portland Trail Blazers. When big-time basketball players prance through pregame drills, they always wear long pants over their short pants. Most people think the reason for double pants is to speed the warming up process. Wrong.

The real reason the players begin work wearing 2 pairs of pants is to illustrate that they are all equal – up to a point. That point is reached when the game begins and the 5 starters take off their long pants and stay on the floor while the substitutes must keep their long pants on and slink to the bench.

I always enjoyed watching the starters take off their long pants. It takes a fine athlete to remove his pants gracefully while standing up in front of thousands of spectators. Some of the players I admire most could do it in one fluid motion without hopping once.

I knew a substitute who could have been a starter if he didn't have so much trouble removing his warm-up pants.

"I always catch my d— heel in at least one pant leg and have to hop all over the floor before I shake my shoe loose," he complained bitterly. "The coach said I was embarrassing the whole team and he benched me."

Substitutes subsequently removed their long pants, but they did it in shame, while sitting down, lifting their butts quickly and letting the pants crumple to the floor, bathroom style, before kicking their feet free.

The substitutes got the job done, but they were definitely not crowd pleasers. Basketball players who couldn't remove their pants standing up without hopping didn't put fannies in the $8 seats.

You'll notice I've described this warm-up pants phenomenon in the past tense. The Piston game was my first exposure to big-time basketball in a couple of years. The pants situation has changed dramatically.

When the Pistons finished warming up, 5 starters removed their long pants without lifting one leg. Bob Lanier simply brushed his right hand across his right thigh and his d— pants melted off. It looked like magic.

"They have grippers on their pants," my wife explained patiently. "They are metal snaps that come loose easily when you pull on them. With grippers, the players can remove their pants while standing up without risk of falling down."

Geez. Modern conveniences are taking the excitement out of the game. And how much talent does an athlete need to rip off his own pants?

I was Cobo Arena to see Bill Walton, the superstar who last season led the Trail Blazers to the championship. My son had driven 65 miles for the same reason. Walton is the best and we had never seen him play before. For him I stood in line for 15 minutes to pay $18 for tickets that sat us directly behind a fat man who lit a cigaret every time the public address system announced there was no smoking allowed.

Walton's knees are suspect and I was particularly interested in seeing if he could remove his long pants while standing without hopping. I never found out, but I couldn't blame the grippers.

Walton didn't play that night. Just before the game began, it was announced that he had been hurt in Chicago the night before. Cobo was jammed and most of the people there had paid to see Walton. The news of his injury was conveniently withheld until all tickets were sold.

Moral: The greatest basketball team can be beaten by the louisiest team on any given day because all basketball players are human and sometimes don't put on their pants at all.

Second moral, no extra charge: Grippers are not required for rip-offs.

Tom Duke brings up more on Medusa

To the Editor:

After the Township Board's Public Hearing on Tuesday, reflection of things said brought forth new questions:

It would appear that Medusa may be in line for still another up to $5 million tax break in addition to the one that they seek from the Charlevoix Township Board. The present tax base for Medusa is $4.5 million on land and buildings and a figure larger than that on what they call personal property. A call to Mr. Kaiser the other day, as reported in my last letter, brought forth the answer that they "did not know how much was going to be in personal property". After thinking about that answer further and listening to the discussion at the township board public hearing, it suddenly occurs that the possibility is quite real that if they can push over half of their tax base into the far more favorable personal property tax treatment on the original construction, certainly the new construction, which is a "rehabilitation" of existing "equipment", would appear to be almost all personal property.

Since they already have the buildings they need and all of the land and none of the $50 million appears to be earmarked for those purposes, the placing of a sizeable part of $50 million on personal property would do drastic things to the expected tax base. All of that amount put into personal property would immediately start shrinking by reason of allowed depreciation, 3 percent per year up to 15 years, leaving only 40 percent as taxable at that time. Of course, residential property taxes in the area would not be shrinking, by not being entitled to depreciation, they would be rising, possibly at the same percentage that they will have done over the last six years, over 9 percent annually.

Now, for the second $5 million tax break not previously discussed; any items that are put into personal property and that qualify for investment tax credit, would be allowable for the corporation to take a direct tax credit off of their income tax and, in the event that much of it is able to qualify which it may do, the company would then save up to $5 million on their federal income tax bill, in addition to all other tax breaks that we have discussed, and still be allowed to fully depreciate and write off against future income tax the $50 million. Recognizing that this is a complicated subject, let's try to capsulize it as follows:

1. Their land and buildings are assessed at $4.5 million, with an amount in addition to that on personal property. This amount is enormously below the $40-$45 million that Oscar Stroud feels it should be appraised at. Think what they would be paying at the higher value.

2. The present taxes that they pay on personal property are "pulling the great disappearing act" by shrinking yearly to a residual of 40 percent.

3. The tax on land and buildings for Medusa, is not increasing anywhere near the rate the taxes are being increased on residences.

4. Medusa has not said if the personal amount is small or if the preponderance of the $50 million expansion will be, all personal property, subject to "the great disappearing act" type of taxation.

5. Medusa is asking the Township Board to give them a tax break on the new construction, which would amount to $425,000 a year or over $5 million.

6. Medusa may additionally qualify much of the $50 million as new equipment that qualifies for a 10 percent investment tax credit and if so, will have an immediate windfall of another up to $5 million in direct reduction in their federal tax bill.

7. If a new tax credit, which is being considered in Washington passes, it would also allow the 10 percent investment tax credit on any new buildings which would apparently guarantee the second $5 million, in full.

It would seem that Medusa is aware of the type of equipment that was allowed to be put on personal property on the original construction and would certainly be able to come up with an enlightened estimate of how much they expected that they would similarly be able to put on personal property this time. It seems their full and compelete answer to the above thoughts would be absolutely vital to the township board prior to making any decision on their first $5 million tax break.

Also at the township board public hearing, the point was raised that we were mislead by Mr. Kaiser's figures in his letter that stated, "We will be paying out $9 million in payroll costs more than the amount of the tax break." Since his figure is $9 million and the tax break is $5 million, we have a total of $14 million, divided by twelve to twenty men (their own original estimate of new hiring was twelve to twenty) this would provide annual salaries over the period of $58,000 to $97,000 per man. We were either mislead or they certainly pay well and we can see why they would like some help.

A gentleman was at the public hearing as an employee of the State, indicating that he felt that Medusa qualified for the tax break. This is a classic example of why our federal government and state government is in constant fiscal problems. Every time the legislature passes perfectly good and proper legislation, such as workmen's compensation, unemployment benefits, aid to dependent children or welfare, it is subsequently turned over to state employees to administer. During the administration of these programs, the rules that are created by the administration and the staff so enlarge and expand the benefits and those that "qualify" according to the administrator's interpretation that the original benefits planned by the legislation of the program are overcome by enormous expenditures and "free riders" on the programs. All of these people were "felt to qualify" by some administrator similar to the gentleman that was willing to state that Medusa "qualified" which would help us spend our funds and not his. We have all seen the big give aways in Washington and Lansing. Hopefully, the grass roots local officials will be more circumspect.

Finally, a telegram was received from the president of Medusa which heavy handedly discussed their "concern" about the tax break situation. Perhaps a telegram should be sent from the Township Board to Medusa with a similar message of concern. The Township Board should consider stating in the message that in response to his telegram, it was considering hiring its own outside expert appraiser to have the existing land and buildings, which may be grossly undervalued, reappraised and take to court their findings if higher than those on which Medusa pays current taxes.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Duke

Dr. Drake seeks Schlesinger ouster

Dear President Carter:

Optimism for nuclear power, as a solution to our energy problem, ended in about 1970 according to Hans Alfven, Nobel laureate in physics and a member of the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm. Amory Lovins, Oxford trained energy research physicist, compares nuclear power to a huge reptile with its spinal cord cut: still thrashing around, not yet realizing it is dead.

The economic outlook for significant expansion of nuclear power, both here and abroad, is highly doubtful. Atomic plant sales have dropped precipitously. The recent purchases by the Shah of Iran may indicate that he is but one of the few who can afford them. Any weapons non-proliferation treaty he signs could be meaningless to his successors.

Saunders Miller, Minneapolis investment banker, says "...to rely on nuclear fission as the primary source of our stationary energy supply...may lead to the economic Waterloo of the United States". Investment counselor, C.V. Mayers' November 4th Finance and Energy Report advises the sale of uranium stock and stock in utilities highly dependent on nuclear plants.

Unfortunately, several of our biggest financial houses, electrical equipment manufacturers, contractors and utilities are heavily committed to nuclear power. They are determined to rescue their investments by increasing government subsidies.

The Administration's plan to store spent fuel, for a fee from the utilities, is clearly of no real help in solving the waste problem. It only frees space in reactor cooling ponds so more of this lethal material can be produced.

If any person in Washington symbolizes the pro-nuclear movement, he is ex-Atomic Energy Commission Chairman and now Secretary of the Department of Energy, James Schlesinger. He obviously is building a pro-nuclear staff. This situation presents a sharp contrast to your "last resort" statements on the use of nuclear power. It may well cripple the development of effective energy conservation and alternative resources which could produce more jobs than nuclear energy.

A "dump Schlesinger" movement has started on Capitol Hill. Jack Anderson says that energy czar Schlesinger's policies, "...are alienating many congressmen and hurting the White House on crucial energy votes". Schlesinger has been described as brilliant, aggressive, intellectually arrogant and aloof. These traits may well have played a role in President Ford's decision to fire him as Secretary of Defense. To have such a person in charge of the Department of Energy, especially nuclear power, seems perilous. A super efficient administrator, on a wrong tack, could do irreparable harm.

As you are well aware, the spread of nuclear power with its unavoidable weapon and waste problems, is a very serious, intricate, and expensive matter fraught with life threatening hazards. Our very existence may require that nuclear regulation be in the hands of people with common sense who are not tied to the nuclear establishment and who can resist its tremendous pressures.

Please replace Secretary Schlesinger.

Sincerely yours,
Gerald A. Drake, M.D.

Letters to the editor

Big Brothers, Big Sisters say thanks

Dear Editor:

During the holiday season everyone is so busy. It is easy to "forget or put it off till later" voicing the kindness to us -The Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Charlevoix County Inc. We do wish to thank so many people involved in various ways.

A Christmas Party was given to us by the Mogul Inn in Boyne City. Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis, owners, suppled food, gifts given out by Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, and entertainment by Gary Stuzman's sextet from the Charlevoix High Band. The happiness and excitement of the little children was a great reward and all had a good time.

A Christmas Tree Sale was sponsored by us with donated proceeds to help finance future outings, transportation of children office expenses, etc.

Luke Sanders donated tree space, Freedmans Artcraft provided trucking for trees. Radio and newspaper coverage by area companies, light string by Charlevoix Christ Episcopal Church, wood for burning by John Northrop. Personal help from Mr. and Mrs. Guy Swanson, Allen Sandberg, Jim Withers, Jim McGarry, George Ebenhoeh, Dennis Youngdyke, Jim Withers, Larry Robinson, Bill Miller, little brothers and sisters, and so many, many others, all so willing.

We helped make Christmas just a little bit happier for a few needy "one person" famille thru the generous contributions of an anonymous couple from the Charlevoix County area. They contributed a game, a train and tracks, electric toy organ, and three large turkeys. These were given to families in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan with help from the school nurses.

Another couple donated $15.00 to help defray expenses.

Thanks to Robert Lieberman for donating office space, Mrs. Bob Bergmann for use of a desk and chair, Social Services for a typewriter, Charlevoix County State Bank and Charlevoix Public School system for their help at different times.

Then a great big "Thank You" to the Board of Directors and all the Big Brothers and Big Sisters who donate so generously of their time, efforts, and energy to the organization and children.

If we have failed to mention your name-organization-or services, we want you to know and hope you understand, it's really hard to cover all the generosity of everyone who has helped us thru the year. A great big successful year! We appreciate it all and thank you for helping make life a bit more pleasant and happier for our children of today and our Leaders of Tomorrow!!

Sincerely yours,
Big Brothers-Big Sisters

Tax guide available for farmers

"Farmer's Tax Guide", a free 64-page booklet dealing with the many tax situations faced by farmers, is available from the Internal Revenue Service.

The publication, IRS No. 225, covers numerous tax facets of agriculture, including crop destruction, soil sales, drought sales, poultry purchases, and the Federal Highway Use Tax, according to the IRS.

Also included in the publication are instructions for use by farmers in completing form 1040 and related schedules, a listing of the important tax dates which affect farmers during the year, and several useful tips on how a good record keeping system can help a farmer insure that he or she takes advantage of all legal deductions.

Use surpluses to plow roads

Dear Editor:

For the past few weeks I've seen several articles in your paper telling us that the city has a surplus of funds in excess of $750,000. After spending my Christmas vacation in Charlevoix I can see why there is such a large surplos. The city streets were in a deplorable condition. Is the city saving the money by making what appears to be a halfhearted attempt to remove the snow and ice from the roads and the meager way in which salt and or sand is spread on th slippery hills and intersections? It's a wonder there weren't more accidents than there were.

I can remember while growing up in Charlevoix how proud we were that the city streets were safe to travel on. The street department during that time did an excellent job and appeared to have pride in its work. Perhaps the city council should place a stronger emphasis on street maintenance. There is no reason why the city streets can't be kept in better condition during the winter months for safter travel by both tourists and residents.

Rightfully concerned,
Jerry Fochtman

Allen Sandberg joins Ski & Shore sales staff

Allen Sandberg

A new salesman has joined the staff of Ski & Shore of Charlevoix, Inc.

Allen Sandberg, former Charlevoix city administrator, will be handling both commercial and residential property sales for the real estate company. Sandberg joined the ranks of Ski & Shore Jan. 4.

He said he decided to go into real estate sales because of the opportunites in the area.

"I like the area and since it is a growing area I feel it offers a good future in the real estate profession," Sandberg said.

The new salesman said that his knowledge and understanding of the needs of the city and city zoning would also help him give better service to prospective buyers and sellers.

Irish buys Ferry Ave. land for expansion

The sale of the former City Services property on Ferry Avenue has been completed to the Irish Boat Shop, Irving Manville has announced.

Manville and Irving Drost sold the portion of the property along Lake Charlevoix and the first tier of the property on Ferry Avenue to the boat shop last week. Manville and Drost retained ownership of the second tier of property which abuts Hampton Village.

Irish is planning to expand its docking facilities by constructing a floating breakwater and dock in front of the property. The new dock will extend about 450 feet from the shore or 150 feet past the existing oil dock.

The boat company is also planning to construct parking facilities and a bath house and restrooms on the property for use by the sailors with boats docked in the facility.

The property on the other side of Ferry Avenue will not be developed at this time, according to Dave Irish, owner. However, the site plan showed the property being used for storage.

Irish said he has not heard from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers or the State Department of Natural Resources on the final permits for the company's expansion plan.

Meet Charlevoix

...Walter Thorsen

Walter Thorsen

Walter E. Thorsen of East Jordan recently stepped down as Chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission after serving that body as Chairman for over 14 years. This week the Courier talks with him about the work of the Planning Commission and his many other civic activities.

COURIER: When did you join the County Planning Commission?

THORSEN: I was appointed in 1963 and served as vice-chairman for the first meeting. Then I became chairman.

COURIER: What did the Planning Commission concern itself with when it was first formed?

THORSEN: We started talking about land use. We had no funds and not even complete county maps.

COURIER: What were some of your first projects?

THORSEN: We worked with the Road Commission to get all the roads in the county signed. We started in 1964, and in 1965 the job was completed. Then we took over the job of putting out a county-wide map. At that time, it seems as though everyone had a different county map – the Road Commission, communities, and County Commission. We consolidated all of them. Then we started the townships on zoning, helped to write the South Arm Township zoning ordinance. We studied the entire county and got ready for county-wide zoning, but before that could be accomplished, we had to have an overall comprehensive plan for the county. About 1968, we received a small grant and hired Williams and Works to assist in preparing all the studies. We completed the zoning ordinance in 1972. It was later voted out.

COURIER: Then what?

THORSEN: The proper use of land and zoning to protect property owners has always been our major concern.

COURIER: Do you think we will have a county-wide zoning ordinance again?

THORSEN: I think that is a good possibility. It depends on the activities of the townships and zoning boards and administrators and how well they can cope.

COURIER: What are the advantages of county-wide zoning?

THORSEN: Everything would be uniform throughout the county, zoning administrators probably wouldn't play favorites with their next door neighbors, and enforcement would be easier. We would have the facilities of the prosecutor.

COURIER: What is the Planning Commission working on these days?

THORSEN: Right now, we're working on updating all the studies made to date. There are two big things that should be studied, but we have a funding problem – sewer and water for the entire county, and solid waste problems. Transportation is another big item that has to be faced.

COURIER: What effect would the discontinuance of the C & O through the area have?

THORSEN: It would have a bad impact economically. If it happens, it will put just that much more pressure on the highways. It's a serious problem.

COURIER: Should we have a super highway through the county?

THORSEN: We are going to have to update highways 31, 131, M-66 and M-32. I think the situation will reach the point where it gets so bad that a crash program may be necessary to get things down.

COURIER: What else is the Planning Commission doing?

THORSEN: We are always working with the townships to give all the assistance we can on planning – strictly on an advisory basis. It's quite a long, drawn-out educational process, really. We are also always trying to get grants for county agencies and municipalities, and act as a review board for requests for grants.

COURIER: How many members are there on the Planning Commission?

THORSEN: Nine, and they represent all sections and occupations of the county.

COURIER: When do you meet?

THORSEN: Every first Thursday evening of the month at 8 o'clock. The public is always invited.

COURIER: What are your business interests?

THORSEN: I sold my tool and die plant four years ago and am now connected with Colwell Real Estate in East Jordan. Before I built the plant here I came back to East Jordan in 1957 from the Chicago area, where I was in business as a distributor for the Clark Equipment Company and operated a management consultant firm.

COURIER: What civic activities have you been engaged in?

THORSEN: Since moving back I have been active in many civic affairs – president of the East Jordan Industrial Development Corporation, past member of the zoning board in South Arm Township, formerly very active in vocational education for the entire state, on the advisory board of the East Jordan school system, past president of the Rotary Club, member of the American Legion, Sportsmen's Club, the Presbyterian Church.

COURIER: You're a native of East Jordon, aren't you?

THORSEN: Yes, I was born in East Jordan and graduated from high school there. I left in 1934 and went to New York where I worked for a group of architects. Later I graduated with a degree in mechanical engineering from Illinois Tech and a degree in business administration from Argubright Business College. Then I spent five and a half years in the Army in World War II, went in as a private and came out a captain. The last year and a half of service was spent in charge of submarine mines for the Panama Canal.

COURIER: Should the United States give up the Panama Canal?

THORSEN: I have only a limited knowledge of the treaty and I am sure there are men more up to date than I, but from my experience in the Panama Canal, I don't think so.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

THORSEN: Just my wife Norma.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?

THORSEN: I used to have a lot of hobbies, including golf, but now my arthritis prevents that.

There were some mistakes in the last Meet Charlevoix about Tom Carey. Carey's mother's maiden name was Emery, his grandmother's maiden name was Carpenter. Carey's father was born at 808 Bridge St. His daughter Jean works at Siani Hospital in Baltimore and his son Andy does not work for Site Planning and Development.

Mrs. Carey's grandfather was born in Denmark in 1860 and sailed to America in 1865. While he was aboard ship, President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated.

The Courier regrets the errors.

Guide to EPA gas mileage records available from Consumer Info Center

Been thinking about a new car? Many people are these days, but they have been puzzled by generous mileage ratings which seem impossible to get in actual everyday driving.

Now the new edition of the 1978 Gas Mileage Guide is out, and in addition to giving you mileage ratings to compare the fuel economy of new models, it also tells how and why your actual mileage can vary from the results of the tests conducted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. For your free copy of the 1978 Gas Mileage Guide, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 2-513F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009. For California-certified cars, write Dept. 33-514F at the same address.

According to a government survey, over half of all drivers report achieving gas mileage within two miles per gallon of EPA estimates. However, ten percent report their mileage is five or more miles per gallon less than EPA ratings.

There are many reasons for this. First, no two cars are exactly alike, and otherwise identical production models normally vary by as much as ten percent.

Also, environmental factors outside the test lab cause variations. Compare with test conditions at about 70 degrees farenheit, wintery 20 degree temperatures exact an eight percent penalty in gas mileage. An eighteen mile per hour headwind or a wet road surface costs ten percent, or two miles per gallon in a car rated at 20 MPG. Driving on a rough road or on loose road surfaces like gravel reduces mileage by as much as thirty percent.

Law enforcement officials divided over new alcohol bill

SHERIFF GEORGE LASATER -- "Over 60 percent of our cases involve alcohol."

ROY HAYES -- "People will drink selves to death instead of jail."

CHIEF JACK MOL -- "Creates a new revolving door."

Alcoholism is now being recognized as a disease and not as a crime in the State of Michigan.

As of Sunday, when Public Act 339 took effect, people found drunk on a public street will be taken to the hospital or a detoxification center and not to jail. Michigan is the 23rd state to adopt such a law.

"Law enforcement agencies can no longer arrest someone who is intoxicated in public unless they are incapacitated," Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater explained.

"You can't arrest someone for their own safety anymore."

Lasater said law enforcement officials coming across someone intoxicated on the street can offer them a ride home or can suggest that the person go to a treatment center, but the officials can not force the person to participate in the program.

However, if the person is incapacitated, that is, either unconscious because of the consumption of alcohol or having their mental and physical functioning impaired to the extend they pose an immediate and substantial danger to the health and safety of themselves or the public, then the person can be picked up by a law enforcement official and taken to the nearest treatment center.

In Charlevoix County, the treatment center is the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Once the person is taken to the hospital, a doctor will decide if the person needs medical treatment. But the person can only be kept in the hospital for eight hours or until he or she is under control again.

And they don't have to participate in a treatment program unless they want to, Lasater said.

"I think the new law is as workable as it can be," the sheriff said. "It's a great improvement over the original bill."

Lasater and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department participated in a pilot program under the original bill for six months last year along with many other law enforcement agencies in the state. At the end of the pilot program input was gathered from all of the participants and the current bill was written.

"Initially the bill was written to work in the metropolitan area," Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Roy Hayes explained. "But it would have been a disaster up here."

Hayes said the Prosecuting Attorneys Association, the Sheriff's Association and the Police Chiefs Association all asked that the bill be tested and then rewritten to make it more workable.

"The bill was written to take the public intoxicant out of the criminal justice system and put him or her where he or she could get some help," Hayes explained. "This is especially good for Wayne County which has such an overload in its courts.

"And it is fine if you have the facilities to handle and treat these people. But in this area we just don't have them. From here the people would have had to be taken to Gaylord."

Hayes said he wasn't entirely satisfied with the law as it is currently working.

"Under the new bill treatment for alcoholism is voluntary," Hayes said. "But some people need mandatory incarceration to help them dry out. They won't seek their own treatment unless they are forced to.

"I don't think this bill will have any meaningful impact on solving the alcohol problem of the public intoxicant. I think the chronic alcoholics will now drink themselves into the grave instead of into jail."

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol agreed with Hayes' conclusion.

"It takes a tremendous amount of pressure to get some people to dry out," Chief Mol said. "And sometimes that means court pressure.

"There were plenty of times in the past when a person was thrown in the drunk tank to save him from himself, especially in the small community."

Mol said he also didn't agree with the concept of the bill.

"The idea is to do away with the revolving door of the drunk tank," Mol explained. "But I think they've just created another revolving door.

"And I don't think the public should have to tolerate a drunk on the streets, even if he is an orderly drunk. But with this bill they are going to have to."

Under the new bill, if a person is drunk and disorderly, he or she can still be arrested and put in jail.

Lasater said he could see some benefit to the new bill, even though he didn't think it would affect this area very much.

"About 60 percent of the complaints and court cases we are involved with are alcohol related," Lasater said. "Something needs to be done to help these people.

"This bill has been designed as an attempt to rehabilitate the alcoholics so that they won't be back in the system."

Brenda Boss candidate for sweetheart title

Brenda Boss

Brenda J. Boss, Charlevoix High School Junior, will be the Charlevoix Area candidate in the 10th annual Campus Life Youth for Christ Sweetheart contest scheduled for Feb. 12 at the Petoskey High School Auditorium.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Boss, she is among six candidates seeking the title. She is sponsored by the Charlevoix Campus Life Youth for Christ Club.

Brenda, who attends the Community Church of God, has been a member of the Campus Life Youth for Christ for three years and, during the 1977 summer season, attended a 10-day summer camp sponsored by the organization in Colorado.

She is involved in work in the church as a pianist for the younger children and assistant pianist in the church and as a member of the high school-age Sunday School class.

Her school associated activities are many. She is co-president of the junior class; a member of the 1977 Yearbook staff; a cheerleader for 2½ years; member of the Spanish Club for two years; plays French horn with the Charlevoix High School Symphony band; participated in debate and forensics for one year; a member of the vocal music class at the high school; is a baton twirler and 'golden girl' with the Rayder Marching Band and has attended twirling camps in Indiana and Michigan. She was a member of the tennis team last year and has taken piano lessons.

Her major interests are in music and outdoor sports. Fall is her favorite season of the year.

The sponsoring club conducts a fund-raising project to support its candidate, the only one of the year. The Charlevoix Club has made plans for a salad-casserole luncheon at Fellowship Hall of the Community Church of God on Feb. 2 with the women of the church assisting and a second at the same site sponsored by the club members on Feb. 9. The club will also sponsor pie sales at Oleson's Food store on Feb. 4 and 11.

Two county residents win awards in Kodak contest

Marian Tyler Broussard of Charlevoix and Elnora G. Maule of Boyne City both were winners in the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards contest sponsored by the Petoskey News-Review. Their photos are on display along with those of more than 900 finalists in the 1977 contest. There were more than 350,000 entries in the contest.

Mrs. Broussard, a member of the Charlevoix Camera Club, is represented in the exhibited, by a picture of a farm scene. Mrs. Maule, an assembly worker for Essex International, entered a picture of a fireworks display from the Fourth of July in the contest and was selected for the exhibit.

In addition, Mrs. Maule won a $100 Special Merit Award in the international competition for her picture.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
ANNUAL TAX SALE
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX
ORDER FOR HEARING
NO. 77-2866 #2

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green State Treasurer of the State of Michigan for and in behalf of said State for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan praying for a judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said complaint will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the February term of this Court to be held at Charlevoix in the County of Charlevoix State of Michigan, on the 8th day of February A.D. 1978 at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a judgment will be taken and entered as prayed for in said complaint. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said judgment the lands described in said complaint for which a judgment of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such judgment, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a.m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the county of Charlevoix State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or if no person will pay the taxes the charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. MARTIN B. BREIGHNER Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of CHARLEVOIX County this 16th day of December A.D. '77. Countersigned: Clarence L. Rabach Clerk. Martin B. Breighner Circuit Judge.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
FOR THE

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under the virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended and Act 380 of P.A. 1965 as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes which were assessed for the years mentioned therein have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes were assessed subsequent to the tax for which lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent which shall be a minimum of $1.00 as provided by Section 211.59, C.L. 1970 as amended and (d) $5.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act above mentioned.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize ad require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof; and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays:

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgement in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended said lands in said schedule the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Margaret Mary Walny marries John Ozga

Mr. and Mrs. John Ozga

Margaret Mary Walny became the bride of John Ozga on January 7 at St. David's Catholic Church in Detroit.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Walny of Detroit and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin M. J. Ozga of Charlevoix.

The double-ring evening ceremony was performed before 150 guests by Father John Chateau.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon chiffon with a lace bodice and flowing angel-wing sleeves. A Queen Anne cap with a finger-tip veil decorated with white seed pearls completed her costume. She carried a bouquet of white mums and white daisies trimmed with lace.

Mrs. Cass Klapec of Southfield, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Suson Roelandt and Cathy Klapec were junior bridesmaids. They wore rust-colored gowns with Venetian lace collars, princess-styled. Their bouquets were of yellow daisies, rust-colored mums and rust lace.

Ned Henley of Lowell served the bridegroom as best man and Jim Lounds of Negaunee was groomsman. Don Beem of Traverse City, and Mark Walny of Detroit were ushers.

Traditional and modern wedding music was ployed by organist Mrs. Dennis Suszynski.

The wedding reception was held ot Athena Hall in Roseville, and the rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents in their home.

The newlyweds are now at home in Charlevoix. The bride is a student teocher in the Petoskey school system and her husband operates the sewage treatment plant.

Humane society elects new directors for board

The election of board members for the Charlevoix County Humane Society was held during the annual meeting last week.

Elected to three-year terms were: Donna Wojon of Charlevoix; Linda Snyder, Essie Ross, Toni Jeffery and Martha Annear all of East Jordan. Elected to o two-year term was Diane Haggord of Charlevoix and elected to one-year terms were Carol Leonard of Charlevoix and George Burt of Boyne City.

The humane society members also heard a report from treasurer Linda Snyder stating that the society had operated in the block for the year even though it had expanded hours and services. The society wos focing a large deficit in the fall but through contributions from members and friends it was able to get back into the black.

Sheriff George Lasater also addressed the society ond complimented it on the good work it has been doing in the county.

New officers for the group will be elected at the next meeting 7:30 p.m. Feb. 8 in the Eost Jordan Public Library.

SHERIFF GEORGE LASATER congratulates Undersheriff Byron Stockwell and communications officer Corrine Russell for their service during the past year as John Kujawski, chairman of the county sheriff, special detectives and claims committee, looks on.

Sheriff Lasater honors two officers for service

Two members of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department were awarded the Exceptional Service Award last week.

Corrine Russell, communications officer, and Undersheriff Byron Stockwell were both presented the award by Sheriff George Lasater for their dedication to their profession and for serving the citizens of Charlevoix County with exceptional service.

During the brief presentation ceremony Sheriff Lasater explained why each officer had received the award.

"Mrs. Russell has served this last year with loyalty and dedication to her duty as communications officer," Sheriff Lasater said. "Her interest in professionalizing the sheriff's department and the unselfish desire to improve herself so that she can be a more effective contribution to her profession is commendable and should be an example for all of us.

"In addition, Mrs. Russell conducts herself in an extremely efficient and 'cool headed' manner when handling emergency or stress situations."

Mrs. Russell is beginning her seventh year with the sheriff's department.

Lasater was equally as glowing in his praise of Undersheriff Stockwell.

"Undersheriff Stockwell has served the citizens of Charlevoix County with exceptional service, not only this year as my undersheriff but for many years as a deputy sheriff, previous undersheriff and assistant chief of police for the City of Charlevoix," Lasater said. "His dedication to duty and concern for his profession and the citizens of the county is unsurpassed in the law enforcement community."

Lasater said the award had been set up to honor those members of the department who had worked hard during the year and provided exceptional service to the county. Recipients of the award received a plaque for themselves as well as a plaque that will be hung in the sheriff's offices in Charlevoix, and a special pin to wear on their uniforms.

Both officers were also treated to dinner for two at local restaurants.

The following businesses helped make the award possible: Emmet Construction of Walloon Lake which purchased the awards and the Depot Restaurant in Boyne City and the Weathervane Inn of Charlevoix which contributed the dinners.

199 families receive ADC in Charlevoix County in 1977

By PEG OHLE

There were 199 Charlevoix County families receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments during the month of November, the Michigan Department of Social Services reports.

Average payments were $272.40, for a total of $54,207.38 during the month. This compares with 194 families at an average of $267.63 for the month of October, 1977. In November of 1976, the figures were 233 families at an average of $235.45.

According to Social Services, the November caseload throughout the state was the lowest in more than two years, which has contributed to the current $68.4 million surplus in the state treasury. Statewide, 194,637 families received a total of $58,442,185.10 in ADC payments during November. Average payment was $300.26.

In October of 1977, 195,425 families received payments averaging $307.67. In November of 1976, the figures were 199,849 families at an average of $285.74.

The decrease in caseload is not expected to continue, however. One Social Services analyst predicts that the state's economic recovery may fall off during 1979 and forecasts an increase in the caseload.

"It's probably a short-range trend," says Robert W. Swanson, director of the Income Maintenance Analysis Division of the Department of Social Services Bureau of Finance. "This decline is related to the improved economy in Michigan and a drastic reduction in the unemployment rate."

Swanson noted that the unemployment rate in Michigan dropped from 8.2 percent in October, 1976 to 5.5 percent in October, 1977.

"That's a big drop," Swanson says, "and it's the single most important factor affecting the ADC caseload.

"But the caseload will probably go back up," Swanson says, adding, "these things run in cycles." He based his prediction on a forecast of economic decline offered by most economists nationally.

All of the above caseload figures include the number of "regular" (single parent) ADC families and ADC-U (unemployed parent) recipients. The average ADC ADC-U family in Michigan contains (numerically) about 3.3 persons.

Cunningham, Meggison re-elected to head county commission board

Clyde Cunningham

By PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week re-elected Clyde Cunningham chairman and Donald Meggison vice-chairman. They will serve during the year 1978.

Cunningham represents Marion, Norwood, Peaine, and St. James townships, and Meggison represents the first ward of Charlevoix.

Committee appointments for the year were also made as follows:

WASY AND MEANS: Finance, Appropriations and Unanticipated Revenue, I. Lee Moerland; Salaries, Personnel, Elected Officials and Union Contracts, Oral E. Sutliff; Legal, Judicial, Legislative, Resolution, and Settlement with County Treasurer, Keith R. Annear.

PUBLIC SAFETY AND PROPERTY: Building and Grounds, Donald Meggison; Sheriff, Special Detectives, and Claims, John E. Kujawski; County Roads, Ironton Ferry, and Airports,

More than $600,000 flow into county

CETA programs continue to grow

By PEG OHLE

More than $600,000 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds were received by Charlevoix County during fiscal 1977.

I. Lee Moerland, who represents Charlevoix County on the ten-county consortium managing CETA funds in the area, explained to the County Board of Commissioners last week that $607,956 flowed into the county as a result of residents participating in various programs.

The CETA program is broken down into four different divisions, covering four different types of employment and training. All funds spent represent the return of federal tax money in the form of spendable income and taxes to be re-circulated in the local economy.

The program is divided into titles, with funds under two titles being distributed by the county to various public service agencies within the county, and funds under another two titles distributed by other organizations.

Title I funds, in the amount of $145,682, were handled under contract with the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) and the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District. MESC used $41,471 for classroom training, $30,483 for on the job training, and $20,143 for adult work experience. The School District used $44,744 for youth work experience and $8,841 for on the job training.

Title II funds, in the amount of $158,111, were spent on public service employment — jobs for people working for the county, cities, townships, schools, hospitals, and other public service entitites within the county.

Title III funds, in the amount of $55,878, were spent on the summer youth program which provided jobs for young people in the area last summer.

Title VI funds, in the amount of $248,285, were spent in three ways. Public service employment, as above, accounted for $193,602; projects (employment on special public service projects) accounted for $50,669; and a self placement project accounted for $4,014.

Moerland, in making his report, stated that $6,180,479 in CETA funds were spent in the ten counties of northwest Michigan, and that the amount for 1978 would probably exceed $11 million.

"Whether we like it or not, the CETA type program is going to grow," he said.

County applies for funds for weatherization

Charlevoix County has applied for a grant of $117,930 with which to weatherize the County Building, County Building Annex, and the County Jail.

The application is being made through the Economic Development Administration, which is making some grants available to public bodies for energy-conserving purposes.

The grant request calls for the addition of storm windows to the County Building, and insulating the roof and side walls of that building. It is heated by oil. Total cost for this work is estimated at SENIOR DAN BRUCE celebrates senior night by defeating Jim Corbin of Gaylord in a 9-7 decision. The Rayder wrestlers bedeviled the Gaylord team, defeating them 58-13.

Rayders bedevil Gaylord

DAVE GOLOVICH continued his successful wrestling season by adding another pin to his list of victories last Thursday. Golovich defeated Gaylord's Mike Wood in 2:09. The Rayders downed the Blue Devils 58-13.

CRAIG GOLOVICH, co-captain of the wrestling team, joined his younger brother in adding a pin to his list of victories last week by downing Pat Greene in 2:54. Golovich also had a good day during the Kalkaska Invitational Saturday. Charlevoix won both meets.

RON HILTON continued his drive for 100 career wins by pinning George Sorenson in 3:40 last Thursday as the Rayders downed Gaylord 58-13. Hilton will be seeking to tie the school record of 89 career wins on Wednesday when Charlevoix meets Glen Lake, Elk Rapids and St. Ignace.

IT WAS A LOT of work but Dan Bruce managed to pull off a decision win against Jim Corbin of Gaylord last week during a dual meet of the two schools. Charlevoix won 58-13.

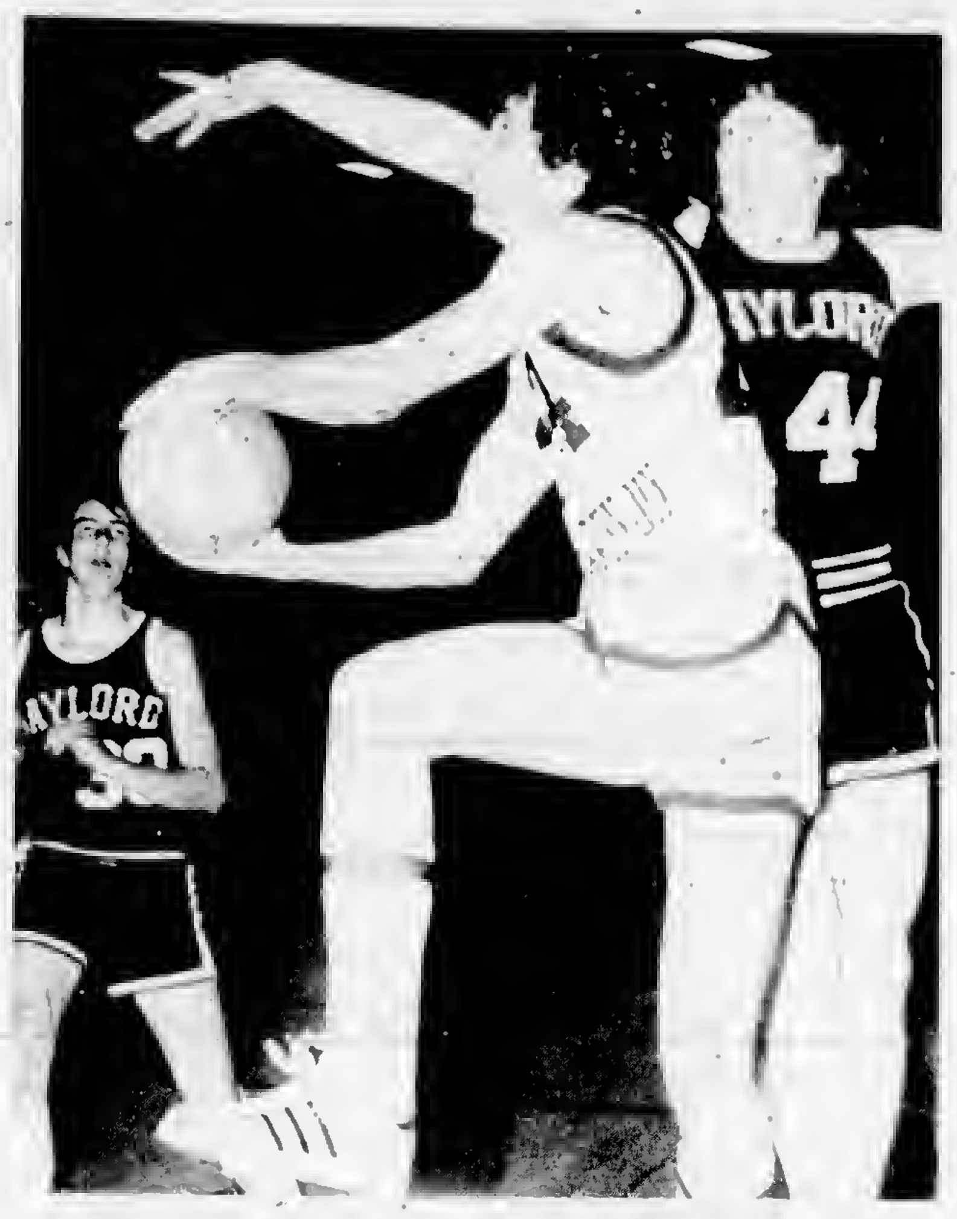
Rayders lose in come-from-behind effort



CHARLEVOIX PLAYERS found it difficult to hit the hoops Friday night as the Blue Devils put on a tough press. Charlevoix lost the game 62-60 after over coming a 12 point deficit.

By BILL MERCER

Hoping to avenge an early season loss, Charlevoix's Rayder basketball team came close to defeating Gaylord in a furious come-from-behind effort this past Friday.

The final score was 62-60 as the Rayder fans cheered for their squad to eliminate a 12-point first half deficit. But the Blue Devils hung on to win in the closing seconds.

Starting the game with a man-to-man defense and a full court press, the Rayders fell early to a season long problem--fouls. Gaylord capitalized on this and was able to go to the free throw line in a bonus situation while still in the first quarter.

The Blue Devils used the bonus to score nine points on 11 opportunities. In turn, they did not give Charlevoix a similar situation until there was 3:30 left to play in the first half.

Along with the fouls, Charlevoix also had to contend with the quickness of Gaylord's Gary Galbraith. He succeeded in holding league-leading scorer Pat Schmidt to 10 points with all of these coming in the first half. He also piloted the Blue Devils in a 13-2 scoring spree to begin the second quarter. His four buckets in this stanza helped Gaylord take a 37-25 lead into halftime.

While Galbraith was shutting down the Schmidt scoring machine, Charlevoix got a big boost from the play for two of their back court men, Bob Plumin and Joe Left. Plumin, elevated to a starting role for this game canned 16 points with Left contributing 15 in a losing cause. Both men played strong defensive and rebounding games.

With the Rayders behind by 12 at the start of the second half, Coach Dave Moyer experimented with his bench. Both Schmidt and Jim Alger were in foul trouble, so Moyer inserted juniors Gil Noirot and Kevin Kratt into the line up for the guard positions.

Both players seized this opportunity and contributed exciting defensive play along with six and eight points respectively, to bring the ball game to within reach.

With 7:06 to play in the game, the Rayders had narrowed the margin to two points. This spread remained throughout most of the fourth quarter, But Gaylord had to struggle to retain the lead and hold on to win.

Once again, the Rayders saw their downfall come as a result of fouls and costly turnovers. Both Alger and Schmidt ultimately fouled out and five more players had three or more fouls whistled against them. As a result, the Charlevoix squad committed 16 more fouls than the Blue Devils.

The situation in both halves allowed Gaylord to pick up a total of 12 important bonus points at the charity stripe. A total of 16 free throws made by the Blue Devils versus 12 by the Rayders provided the winning margin.

With this loss, the Charlevoix squad now stands 3-4 in the Michigan-Huron Shores League competition and 3-5 overall. Unless Charlevoix can put together a string of late season victories, it appears that Coach Moyer may be looking at third or fourth place finish in the conference.

This week, the Rayders face the always tough Harbor Springs Rams at home on Tuesday night and entertain the Chiefs from Cheboygan on Friday night.

COACH DAVE MOYER fires up his team members during the hotly contested Charlevoix-Gaylord game Friday. Charlevoix lost by a slim two points 62-60.

Foam Corps hands defeat to league leaders Swansons

League-leading Swansons K & D suffered its first defeat last week during Charlevoix Recreation Department A League basketball play.

Foam Corps slid by Swansons 57-56 to come out of the cellar of the league for this victory.

Foam Corps took a 17-8 lead in the first quarter which had decreased to 25-24 by the half. In the third quarter, Foam Corps pumped in 17 points while Swansons pumped in 18 to tie the score at 42-42. However, Foam Corps, determined to win added another 15 points in the final period while Swansons could find the basket for only 14 points.

Top scorers for Foam Corps were: Mike Streeter, 15, Steven Michaels, 14, and Randy Holecheck, 14.

For Swansons, Dave Moyer had 18 points, while Bruce Meggison and Randy DeYoung both had 10 points.

In other action, second place Townhouse, which is now tied with Swansons for the first place berth, defeated third place Kadens 63-47.

At the end of the first quarter, Townhouse held a slim 13-12 lead. The team then fell behind 27-23 in the second period. Townhouse came charging back in the third quarter to add 20 points to its score and to take the lead 43-40. Kadens could only hit the basket for seven points in the final period while the hot Townhouse team added another 20 points to its score.

Top scorers for the Townhouse were Spook Coleman, Jerome Harris and Clint Berlage all with 12 points and Dan McKenzie and Ike Boss both with 10 points.

For Kadens, Tom Beyers had 15 points.

Site Planning defeated Bobs Sunoco 75-66 last week, also.

Top point men for Site Planning were: Tim Carey with 27 points, Kraag Lieberman, 14 points, Mike Bade, 13 and Paul Osterberg, 11.

For Bobs, Chuck Pelham had 23 points and Jim Danbert had 18.

Wrestlers take title of 4th Kalkaska tourney

For the fourth straight year, the Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers captured the title in the Kalkaska Invitational wrestling tournament.

A total of 10 Rayders placed in the top four positions at the tournament in Kalkaska Saturday. Coming through for the Rayders with first place victories were: Dave Golovich, 112 pounds; Ron Hilton, 119 pounds; Craig Golovich, 138 pounds; Ande Keller, 178 pounds; Dennis Whitley, 191 pounds; and Greg Loper, heavyweight.

Other players placing in the top four positions were: Mike Kiteley and Norbert Scharenbroch, second place; Lee DeMitchell, third place; and Brian Wimmer, fourth place.

Keller's match was one of the most exciting of the tournament. The 178 pound wrestler was seeded second at the beginning of the tourney, but he captured the championship in a 7-3 decision against Mike Allen in Grayling. Keller had lost to Allen in the annual Charlevoix holiday tournament in December.

Another surprise in the tourney was Scharenbroch's second place win. The 145 pound wrestler had been unseeded before the tournament.

"The championship trophy was a walk-away for the Rayder grapplers," Coach Norm Probert said. "We jumped to a big lead in the first round and we kept adding more points with each round. We had the title assured before the finals.

"It was a day when everything went right, except maybe for Mike Kiteley's match in the finals."

Kiteley was pinned after running up a string of 19 victories in a row. He lost Saturday to Larry Flory of Roscommon in an overtime match. The two students wrestled to an 8-8 decision tie and then Flory took the win 5-3 in overtime.

The Rayders' final home match will be held at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday as the wrestlers meet Elk Rapids, Glen Lake and St. Ignace in a double dual meet.

Parents Night will be celebrated during the meet with Coach Probert honoring the parents of all 30 team members.

Other highlights of the final home wrestling match will include Hilton shooting to tie the school record of Phil Christ for career wins. Christ amassed 89 career wins, Hilton now has 88 wins to his credit.

The entire team will also be looking to break the all-time team dual record of 10-4 for the 1975-76 season. This year, the senior-dominated team has recorded a 10-3 win-loss record.

Oddfellows lead cribbage tourney

The Oddfellows still hold the lead in the annual Oddfellows-Mason Cribbage Tournament now being held in Charlevoix.

The Oddfellows lead by 949 points after two weeks of play, according to Sims Baker.

The high point man for the Oddfellows in Thursday night's play was Vern Barry with 946 points. Toby Chamberlain led the Masons with 927 points.

Nine tables or 36 men were involved in the play last week. Only one Mason posted a winning sccore during the evening, Baker said.

Next week the group will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the American Legion Hall to resume play.

Rayder skiers drop first meet

The Charlevoix High School ski team started its season off with a tough meet last week. The Rayders met the Petoskey Northmen at Nub's Nob and lost both the boys and girls races.

The score for the boys team was Petoskey 30, Charlevoix 44, and for the girls, Petoskey 20, Charlevoix 65. One point is awarded for each place the skier takes and the low score winning.

"It's the start of the season and we have plenty of room for improvement," Coach Mike Bonello said of the Charlevoix team.

"We have a lot of young racers on the team and we have been working harder this week to become competitive."

Bonello predicted that the Petoskey team will be contenders for the state title this year and will be a tough team for all the schools that raca against the Northmen.

Taking first place in both the giant slalom and the slalom race for the girls was Julie Elkins of Petoskey. Terry Barrett of Petoskey took first place in the giant slalom for Petoskey with Erik Lundteigen taking second place for Charlevoix. Brian Shorter of Petoskey took first place in the slalom.

Tri-City still leads B League basketball

Tri-City Asphalt held onto its first place berth in Charlevoix Recreation Department B league action by defeating First State Bank 68-43.

Tri-City started off with an 18-8 lead which expanded to 33-20 at the half. In the third quarter the team added 14 points while its opponents also added 14 points for a 47-34 point spread.

Leading Tri-City in points was Butch Klooster with 22 while mike Crain hit 18, Dave Norton 12 and Leroy Buchanan 10.

For First State Bank, Joe Beaudoin had 17 points.

Second place Wojan Aluminum downed Alray Cottages 76-61. The team trailed 14-13 in the first period but took over by half time with a 31-25 score. The team expanded its lead to 52-37 by the third period.

For Wojan, Don Ward had 19 points, Clay Jones, 18, Stan Martin 15, Tim Elenbaas, 14, and Don Smith 10.

On th Alray side, Vince Left posted 21 points, Scott Blanchard 14 and Jay Masoryak 10.

County State Bank also posted a win when it defeated Medusa 57-51. County State Bank took an early lead with the score at 16-10, after the first period ond 32-22 at the half. County State Bank expanded its lead to 43-34 at the end of the third period and held on to the lead until the end of the game.

Jerry Skippergosh headed the scoring list for County State Bank with 17 points. Mike Skippergosh had 11 points and Larry Skippergosh, 10.

For Medusa, Frank Holcomb hit for 18 points, with Dick Putmann and John Whitley had 10 points apiece.

Luella Kitson promoted in A.F.

The U.S. Air Force has promoted Luella L. Kitson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Kitson of R.R. 2, East Jordan, Mich., to the rank of airman first class.

Airman Kitson is serving at Randolph AFB, Tex., as an airframe reapir specialist.

The airman is a 1974 graduate of East Jordan (Mich.) High School.

Progress on Michigan beach slowly but surely taking place

"Slow but sure" describes the progress on the improvements at Lake Michigan Beach Park.

The approval of a soil erosion program for the beach area by the Charlevoix Common Council last week came after four years of work by volunteers from the Charlevoix Women's Club.

June Cross, women's club member, asked the council to apply for federal funds from the Resource Conservation and Development Project of the Soil Conservation Service which have recently become available. She stressed the need for prompt application for the funds.

The council approved expenditure of up to $30,000, 75 percent of which will come from federal funds for improvements at the park.

Mrs. Cross said boulders would be placed along the tree line of the beach to keep the sand from eroding away as well as the trees and to make the area level. In addition, some trees will probably be planted in the hill areas where the ground has been eroded away by the use of motorcycles in the area.

Hiking paths will also be developed in the area and new steps leading down to the waterfront will also be constructed.

The city has already been awarded a grant from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the Department of Natural Resources for the installation of new drinking fountains in the park and the construction of a handicapped ramp along the beach area.

Things have come a long way since the women's club first decided to make the improvement of the park a Bicentennial project in 1974, Mrs. Cross said.

"I don't know how many plans we had for the park at first, but it's wonderful to see them developed into something for everyone tu enjoy," she said.

VFW auxiliary plans new collection project

The VFW Auxiliary have begun a new project to assist the Vicksburg Veterans hospital.

The group is collecting entire boxes, opened and flattened, packages or wrappers from food items, soaps, toilet tissue, facial tissues, cosmetics, cereals, etc. and also labels from canned foods and soups. These will be redeemed for funds to purchase needed items for the hospital.

Any of these collectible items may be turned into auxiliary members or to a collection box at Staley Grocery.

The group is no longer collecting "cents off" coupons. That project was very successful with auxillary members turning in more than $1,200 in the food coupons. The group is still collecting Betty Crocker coupons and S & H and Top Value stamps.

ARE THEY MAT MAIDS or grappler groupies? They're a little bit of both, according to these five young ladies who put in many hours helping the Charlevoix High School wrestling program operate smoothly. In the front row are: Danya Rothenberger and Barb Lamoreaux. In the second row are: Patty Sneathen, Tami Mann and Irene Cutler.

Are these girls mat maids or grappler groupies?

By LAURA GLASS

The Charlevoix High School wrestling team is having a great season and part of the credit for the team's success must go to the students and community for their strong support.

Perhaps some of the most devoted fans of the Rayder wrestling team are known as "Grappler Groupies." These fans are the 27 high school girls who volunteer to work as statistician, mat maids and student helpers. They serve diligently in their various roles under the direction of Coach Norm Probert.

Coach Probert said he has five key girls in the group of mat maids – junior Danya Rothenberger, head mat maid and statistician; seniors Tami Mann and Barb Lamoreaux and juniors Pam Hilton and Irene Cutler.

Their jobs range from keeping records to working as a welcoming committee for home meets and tournaments.

"The girls are encouraging, they are very dedicated and a great bunch of helpers," Probert said.

Statistician Danya Rothenberger has been with the team since her freshman year and so far has missed only one tournament. She can be found shouting encouragement at every practice – and there are plenty of them.

The team practices after school from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and often comes back at night to work out from 7 to 9 p.m. In addition to their week night meets, the team often has tournaments on Saturdays, too.

"I like to cheer for the buys because when they win it makes you feel like you won, too, you helped them at practices," Danya explained.

For this reason and many others, Danya and the other girls volunteer to help Coach Probert and the wrestling team. They keep score and time at tournaments, work at the gate collecting money, sew wrestling banners for the gym and make signs. They work at the refreshment stand during home tournaments and type pamphlets and programs as well as other paperwork.

"The girls work hard and their moral support really helps out the team," Coach Probert said.

Although they don't often receive recognition for their long hours and help, the girls always know the real thanks comes with every victory of the CHS grapplers.

For college education

It's going to cost how much?

"It's going to cost how much for you to go to college?" is a phrase that is probably being heard in more than one high school senior's home this month.

Now is the time of year that seniors are making plans and applications to go to college. January is also the month that financial aid applications must be filed.

To help students and their parents learn more about financial aid applications and the financial aid system, Charlevoix High School counselors Charles Bentley and JoAnn Kravutske held a special informational meeting on the forms Monday.

People unable to attend the meeting may pick up financial aid applications from Bentley in the counseling office or call him at 547-2811 for additional information.

Bentley encouraged all families to apply for financial assistance.

"In the nine years that I have worked with financial aid forms, there's no where that I've ever seen or heard that if you're making such and such amount of money don't apply for financial aid," Bentley explained.

"There are so many variables entering into it that it's almost impossible to determine who will or won't get financial assistance. I've seen many families who didn't qualify for aid one year get it the next year."

Bentley stressed that it is difficult to qualify for financial aid.

"For the average kid it is tough to get financial aid," the counselor said. "I get ticked off when I see articles about all the money floating around in scholarships and not being used. Usually these scholarships are so specialized that a student can't qualify for them."

Bentley pointed out that scholarships are based on need.

"One thing that most people forget is that financial aid is based on need," he said. "Scholarships as they are thought of – for academic excellence and not based on anything else – are few and far between."

Bentley said applying for financial aid has become more important than ever before because of the skyrocketing cost of attending college. The average cost of attending a public university has increased 41 percent in the last seven years while the cost for attending a private school has increased 63 percent. The cost for a public two-year community college education has jumped 36 percent and the cost for attending a private two-year school has increased 41.5 percent.

But no matter what the costs, a number of families are going to find that they are not poor enough or rich enough to send their children to college, Bentley said.

"A lot of people fall in this category," he said. "But there are several alternatives."

The counselor suggested families look at their budgets and see how much they have spent on their college-bound son or daughter over the course of a year and allocate that toward college expenses.

He also pointed out that the State of Michigan has a program where students can borrow money at a low interest rate called a student guaranteed loan. The loan is made through a local bank by the student.

Other alternatives are for the parents to borrow money or to place a second mortgage on their home.

"There are some families that end up doing this," Bentley said.

The final alternatives is to make the student independent.

"This is hard to do," Bentley said. "You have to show that in the past three years the student has not received more than $600 from his or her parents or been declared on the parent's income tax form for a deduction."

Bentley urged any parents or students with questions about financial aid for college to contact him at the high school.

The County Building Annex would get storm windows and roof insulation at an estimated cost of $5,485. This building is heated by natural gas.

The County Jail would get storm windows, a storm shed around the front door, wall insulation, and insulation in the doors of the heated garage, at an estimated cost of $18,396. It is heated by natural gas.

Application for the grant was prepared by County Planner John Hess, who cites lower heating bills and jobs for local workers during implementation of the project as being especially beneficial to the County.

Obituary

Walter J. Wojan

Funeral services for Walter J. Wojan, 73, president of Wojan Aluminum Products Corp. who died Friday at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey, were held at St. Mary's church Tuesday. The Rev. E. Francis Denay of St. Mary's church, Manistee, former pastor of St. Mary's church here, officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Born at Lark's Lake in Emmet County Sept. 11, 1904, Mr. Wojan went to Cleveland with his parents at the age of 16 years. On Nov. 9, 1940 he was married to the former Rose Kosmac at Cleveland where they made their home until coming to Charlevoix in 1949. In 1952 he organized Wojan Aluminum Products Corp. which he was to head as president until his death. He was a member of St. Mary's church.

Surviving are his wife; three sons, Arthur A., Kenneth R. and Dennis G., all of Charlevoix; six daughters, Mrs. Janet Kariskin of Boyne City, Mrs. Jan (Karen) White of Traverse City, Mrs. Mitchell (Connie) Cunningham, Nancy L., Marla A., and Kimmy M., all of Charlevoix; 23 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two brothers, Anthony and John of Charlevoix and three sisters, Mrs. Anthony Kosewicz of Ironton, Mrs. Irene Krowsowski and Mrs. Joseph Barton of Cleveland.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mr. Wojan's memory contribute in his name to the Leukemia Foundation.

WALLEYE AND SAUGER SIZE LIMIT

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on July 9, 1976, under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, renewed for a period of three years beginning January 1, 1977, their order of August 15, 1975, which increased the walleye and sauger size limit to 15 inches. This regulation applies to all waters, including the Great Lakes and connecting waters, except Lake Gogebic, Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, and the Muskegon River from M-20 in Big Rapids to Croton Dam.

INLAND TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission at its meeting August 10, 1973, under authority of Act 165, P.A. 1929, as amended and Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, hereby orders that for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1974, no person shall take or attempt to take any species of trout or salmon from any of the inland waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed, and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

Statewide open seasons on all streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through the last day in September on all trout and salmon. Statewide open seasons on all other inland lakes shall be any time for all trout and salmon. Size limits for brook trout shall be 7 inches; all other trout and salmon shall be 10 inches. The daily limit for trout and salmon shall be five fish singly or in combination.

The above regulations apply except that five brook trout may be taken from streams in addition to the combination list of five fish.

FAITH LETS YOU DISCOVER A NEW WORLD OF HAPPINESS

Throughout history there have been many instances of both famous and unknown persons who were either bound by a narrow concept of the world they lived in or were aimlessly floundering in the stormy sea of their trouble-ridden lives, completely lacking in direction or headed toward impossible goals. Then faith came along to guide their destinies with a sure hand, leading them safely into port, where they discovered a whole new world of purpose and serenity. That same wonderful world is out there waiting for you to seek and explore. You can embark on this voyage at the nearest Church of your choice and make your own discovery of a happier world from which you will never wish to return, for you will have left nothing behind but your doubts, anxieties and false concepts.

This world is everything to us, if only we choose to make it so, if only we "live in the present" because it is eternity.

Year end report shows increased work by sheriff

A year end report from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department showed increases in services provided to county residents in almost every category recorded by the department.

The number of complaints received by the department jumped 168 percent last year from 965 calls to 2,585 calls. The number of complaints closed also took a jump from 648 to 2,205 cases closed for a 240 percent increase.

The number of general assists provided by the department to the public increased from 139 to 649 for a 367 percent increase and the number of checks for open doors jumped from 18 to 83 for a 361 percent increase.

The number of felony arrests jumped from 19 to 66 for a 247 percent increase last year and the number of misdemeanor arrests increased from 103 to 117 for a 14 percent increase. In connection with the various arrests, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department also recovered property valued at $49,248.

Traffic arrests and warnings also increased last year. Traffic arrests increased from 175 to 504 for a 188 percent increase and traffic warnings increased from 201 to 571 for a 184 percent increase.

Sheriff George Lasater said there were several reasons for the sharp increases in the various areas. Lasater felt the establishment of the new substation in Boyne Falls was directly responsible for the increase in complaints.

"The township residents in that end of the county have been without proper law enforcement for many years," Sheriff Lasater said. "Now with the Sheriff's substation close at hand the citizens are utilizing the services of the department."

Lasater said that CB radio enthusiasts also helped the sheriff's department and added to the number of complaints received by the department.

"Owners of citizen band radios are alert and eager to assist in reportinig complaints that they observe while traveling about the county," Lasater explained.

The sheriff also felt that the fact that the number of complaints closed by the department had also increased encouraged people to muke more complaints.

"Citizens are seeking that the sheriff's department is getting results with their complaints," Lasater said. "Last year the department recovered $49,000 worth of stolen property."

Lasater attributed the increase in felony arrests to three things, additionol training, cooperation between the various law enforcement departments and with the court system.

New Courier Office

THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER will have a new home beginning Monday, Jan. 30. The Courier is moving its offices to the Market Mall on Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix. The newspaper staff will occupy the former quarters of Marty's Tropical World, upstairs in the front of the mall. The move will take place Friday afternoon so our offices will be closed during that time. Come and see us in our new home. We will be looking forward to meeting you.

Sewage rates up 43%

Council raises utility rates

The cost of living took a jump in the City of Charlevoix Monday night.

Charlevoix Common Council approved recommendations from Mayor Edward Hansen for increases in the sewage and electric rates. Both rates had to be raised because current rates are not providing enough money to run the operations in the black, Mayor Hansen said.

The monthly sewage rate was increased from 1.6 times the water rate to 2.3 times the water rate for a 43 percent increase.

"The cost of everything is going up," Mayor Hansen explained. "This increase covers the increased cost of the operation of the sewage treatment plant and the collection system."

Hansen said the city experienced a cost over run of $3,100 last month in the sewage department.

The monthly electric rate was revised from a step rate schedule plus a fuel cost adjustment charge to a set rate of $2 minimum for residential users including the first 50 kilowatts plus a 4 cent per kilowatt charge after that.

The commercial and industrial rate was set at a $4 minimum covering the first 100 kilowatts plus 4 cents per kilowatt after that.

Under the step rate schedule the charge per kilowatt hour ranged from 5 cents to 3.3 cents. The light user was charged a higher price while the heavy user was charged a lower price.

Mayor Hansen explained that the idea of electric use has changed over the years so that the heavy user is being discouraged through higher electric rates. He pointed out that the city's new electric rate reflected this change.

"The new rate will give relief to the light electric consumer and the low income person who doesn't use very much electricity," Hansen said.

The mayor said that in the last nine months the electric department has operated at a loss amounting to $6,160.

"We're not going to make a lot of money on this new rates, but I think they will keep us from losing money," the mayor said.

Hansen said he hoped that both the sewage and electric rates would not have to be increased again for another year. The last time the rates were increased was in 1973. However, a fuel cost adjustment had been added to the electric bill to keep city electric charges in pace with the increases the city was receiving from its supplier.

Mayor Hansen said the new rates would go into effect as soon as they could be put on the billing machine which would probably be in time for the March billing.

In other action Mayor Hansen told the common council that he was having a FBI check run on a prospective candidate for the city administrator's job. The mayor said the candidate may be read for the council to interview within the next week.

Hansen said he had not been contacted by the two other people he had asked to consider taking the job.

Alderman Jeannne Wallace pointed out that it has been two months since the city has had an administrator and that she was glad to hear that progress was being made in finding one.

In other action, the council also appointed Sandy Van Loo as assistant billing clerk and the extension of Taylor Road and Anse Road. No action was taken on the dedication of the proposed roads.

What Happened to Hockey?

The recreation director of Charlevoix is not doing a very good job because there are some kids in town that like to play hockey. He started a hockey rink for us, but he didn't finish it. We're not allowed to play hockey at the skating rink in town. We had one last year, but they put a fence up at middle school and put up a track and that cut us off. I would just like to say that I'd like the recreation director to read this and maybe do something about it. There are a lot of kids in town that like to play hockey and have no place to play. The closest is Petoskey, and that's a long way to go for a little fun.

Also Likes Stroud

I would like to say that the person that stated their opinion on Mr. Stroud was right. He is very much underpaid for the amount of work he has accomplished for the township. And his wife is a very patient lady who, even though she is not obligated to listen to all the people that call and holler and put him down, she also should be commended. People, wake up, the township is very fortunate to have Mr. Stroud as a leoder. And another thing, the township's ahead. Thank you for letting me give my opinion.

Council, mayor to study change in police force

The disbanding or consolidation of the Charlevoix City Police Department was discussed briefly by the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night.

Alderman Geroge Plumm asked the other members of the council to at least consider studying a proposal similar to one made by the City of Grayling recently.

Grayling city officials recently announced that the city was going to disband its police department due to the high cost of operating the department. Grayling police were represented by the Teamsters Local in negotiating a contract six months ago.

City officials say they can't meet the payroll provided in the contract.

"I'm not suggesting that we disband our police department," Plumm said. "But in light of the arbitration costs and other things, I think we should take a look at such a proposal."

Charlevoix city officials and the Teamsters Local representing the patrolmen and firemen have been negotiating a new contract for almost a year. The negotiations recently went into compulsory arbitration.

Alderman Joe Morris agreed with Plumm and suggested the city discuss consolidation of the police force with the county sheriff's department. Morris asked that Police Chief Jack Mol and Sheriff George Lasater be invited to a committee of the whole meeting to discuss the value of such a plan.

Winter Beauty

THERE'S NOTHING more beautiful than a sunshiny winter's day. Charlevoix had plenty of those kinds of days last week and even though the temperature dropped well below zero, the beauty was still there. On this particular day the heat rose off the Pine River Channel and Lake Michigan to coat the trees in icy garb and to create a veil of fog over the landscape.

In automobiles that is

Charlevoix experiences population boom

Charlevoix County has set a new population record – for automobiles that is.

The buying wave of the last two years or so has carried the local auto population to a new record, according to figures from the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association and market reports issued by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

The latest figures show a total of 9,620 passenger cars were registered in the county as of the past year. Five years ago only 7,220 cars were registered in the county.

And that amounts to a 33.2 percent increase in car registration. By way of cumparison, the increase for the state was 10.7 percent over the same period while the increase across the nation was only 10 percent.

The human population in the county during that time only increased 13.6 percent from 17,300 people to a projected 20,200 people in the county in 1978.

While those figures may be surprising, local automobile dealers and salesmen were not surprised. In fact they believed the figures were pretty accurate.

"I wouldn't be surprised if it did increase that much," Lyle Miles of Erber Auto Co., said. "I know our sales are up quite a bit and I assume other dealers are experienceing the same thing."

"I think that probably the reason that sales are up so much is that we are not only getting the normal sales but so many people are moving up here and then buying cars," the salesman said.

Dennis Kusina of Kusina Motors, Inc., agreed with Miles.

"I think the increase is due to the change in population patterns, Kusina said. "Charlevoix County has grown faster than other counties in the state so car sales would be higher, too."

Kusina also pointed out that many of the families moving to the Charlevoix County area, are young and both members of the family are working, which means they probably own two cars.

Chuck Center of Fochtman Chevrolet-Buick, Inc., said his company has been experiencing a surge in automobile buying for the last two and one-half years.

"The bottom fell out of car sales in December, 1973, when we had the oil embargo," Center said. "But people started buying cars again in 1975."

Center said the buying pattern of his customers has changed. But more people aren't buying small cars, instead about half of his new sales are pick-up trucks.

"Instead of getting a second car, more and more people are buying pick-ups. They're more versatile."

The two-year surge in auto sales is also attributed to the improvement in business conditions, to rising incomes and to the fact that many car owners were finally forced to replace their elderly models, which had become uneconomical to repair any more.

Eveline Township youth honored by Charlevoix sheriff for quick action

Instinct guided the latest winner of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Citizens Award as he saved a life last summer.

Dennis William Parsons of Phelps Road in Eveline Township, recently received the Citizens Award for pulling a young girl from the wheel of a boat trailer before she fell under it, saving her from possibly being run over and killed.

"I just reached out and grabbed her when I saw what had happened," Parsons, 16, explained. "I don't know what made me do it."

Parsons, his sister, Pam, and a group of friends were standing around the parking lot of Chester's Boat Livery last summer when a car pulling a boat and trailer came around the corner and headed directly for the group of youth.

The car sped through the group causing everyone to jump or run out of the way. However, one girl was caught on the trailer wheel and pulled along until Parsons reached out and grabbed her pulling her free of the wheel. She was taken to the hospital and treated for cuts and bruises.

Young Parsons said he was quite surprised about the award and he wasn't sure how the sheriff's department found out about the incident.

"It was mentioned in church," his mother, Mrs. Ivan Parsons explained. "One of our neighbors must have told the sheriff's department about it."

The East Jordan High School junior received the award at a meeting of the East Jordan Lions Club where his father, Ivan Parsons, is a first vice president.

DENNIS PARSONS, East Jordan High School junior, (center) shows off his Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Citizens Award to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Parsons.

Author to discuss power fueled by wood in Petoskey

Perhaps some day in the future, municipalities and electric cooperatives in Northern Michigan will generate electricity with wood.

The feasibility of such a possibility is brought forth in a book by Dr. Michel Hiser titled "Wood Fueled Power Generation: a Potential Source of Energy for Northern Michigan."

In his book, Dr. Hiser states that on the basis of electrical demand, wood resource availability, and the suitability for decentralized generating facilities, wood could be the answer to Northern Michigan's electric needs.

The 10 to 50 megawatt electrical generating plants that Dr. Hiser has studied make use of available unused forest residue, and therefore do not compete with the wood and paper products industry. Figures show that in 1966, Michigan's net annual tree growth amounted to 19.65 million tons, and only 28 percent of this growth was used.

Dr. Hiser will speak in Petoskey at the City-County Building Commissioners Room at 1 p.m. Friday.

He likes life of a farmer

His hands are smooth and soft and his voice has a slight tinge of an East Coast accent. His mannerisms speak of sophistication and even his flannel shirt looks somehow more dressy than casual.

Except for a telltale ridge of sunburn cutting across his face and following the contour of the nose, one would hardly suspect that he spent much time outdoors let alone farmed for a living.

Yet, John Frey of Beck Road in Charlevoix, is one of many people each year who turn back to the land and decided to take up the life of a farmer.

For Frey, 38, who was formerly an actor with the Hartford Stage Company in the East, becoming a farmer represented a change of lifestyle he had been seeking.

The Grand Rapids native was familiar with the Charlevoix area from childhood summer vacations and fishing and hunting trips, and decided to buy a farm here.

"I thought it would be wonderful to raise a family in the area," Frey said.

So two years ago he packed up his wife Hilda and her son Will and moved west to take on the life of a farm family.

The Freys are cash crop farmers. On 300 tillable acres they raise corn, navy beans, hay, white beans, oats and barley. They also have a vegetable garden for their own use.

In addition, the new farm family has 10 purebred poled Hereford cattle.

"We had to have something to fill the bottom part of the barn," Frey explained.

And they raise Labrador retrievers.

Although Frey had never tried his hand at farming before, he did a study a little animal husbandry at Michigan State University and then a little economics. He finally ended up getting his bachelors degree in theater from the University of Hartford – a far cry from agriculture.

Frey's only other experience with farm life was the summer he spent working on a commercial cattle ranch.

"I knew something about the work load when I came here, but otherwise you could say I'm on a work-study program here," he quipped.

"I figured I might as well jump in the middle of it and fight my way to the surface," he explained.

And things haven't been easy for the couple and their growing family.

"We've made an inordinate number of mistakes in the last two years," Frey said shaking his head and refusing to elaborate. "Some days I think I'm dumber than the stumps out in the back forty.

"I'm sure the community has gotten a lot of laughs."

But the community has been a lot of help to the Freys, too, offering advice as well as assistance.

The new farmer said things haven't been exactly what he expected when he planned his move back to the country.

"I thought I would be able to spend more time on other interests and that I would have more time for my family," Frey said. "But there's a lot of work to be done."

And farming hasn't been the idyllic thing he imagined.

"Stacking hay all day is dreary," Frey said. "It's really boring. But then it's over and you go on to the next thing.

"I must say from time to time I lost my sense of humor in the last two years."

The Freys did not pick the best time to enter farming. Their first two planting seasons were marked by drought early in the season and then torrential rains which prevented them from getting their crops out of the field.

"I can very easily see why lots of farmers throw up their hands," he said.

Frey said he really had his eyes opened when he became active with the Farm Bureau and attended some meetings in Lansing with other farmers from throughout the state. state.

"There was an incredible amount of talent there," Frey said. "They were very sophisticated businessmen.

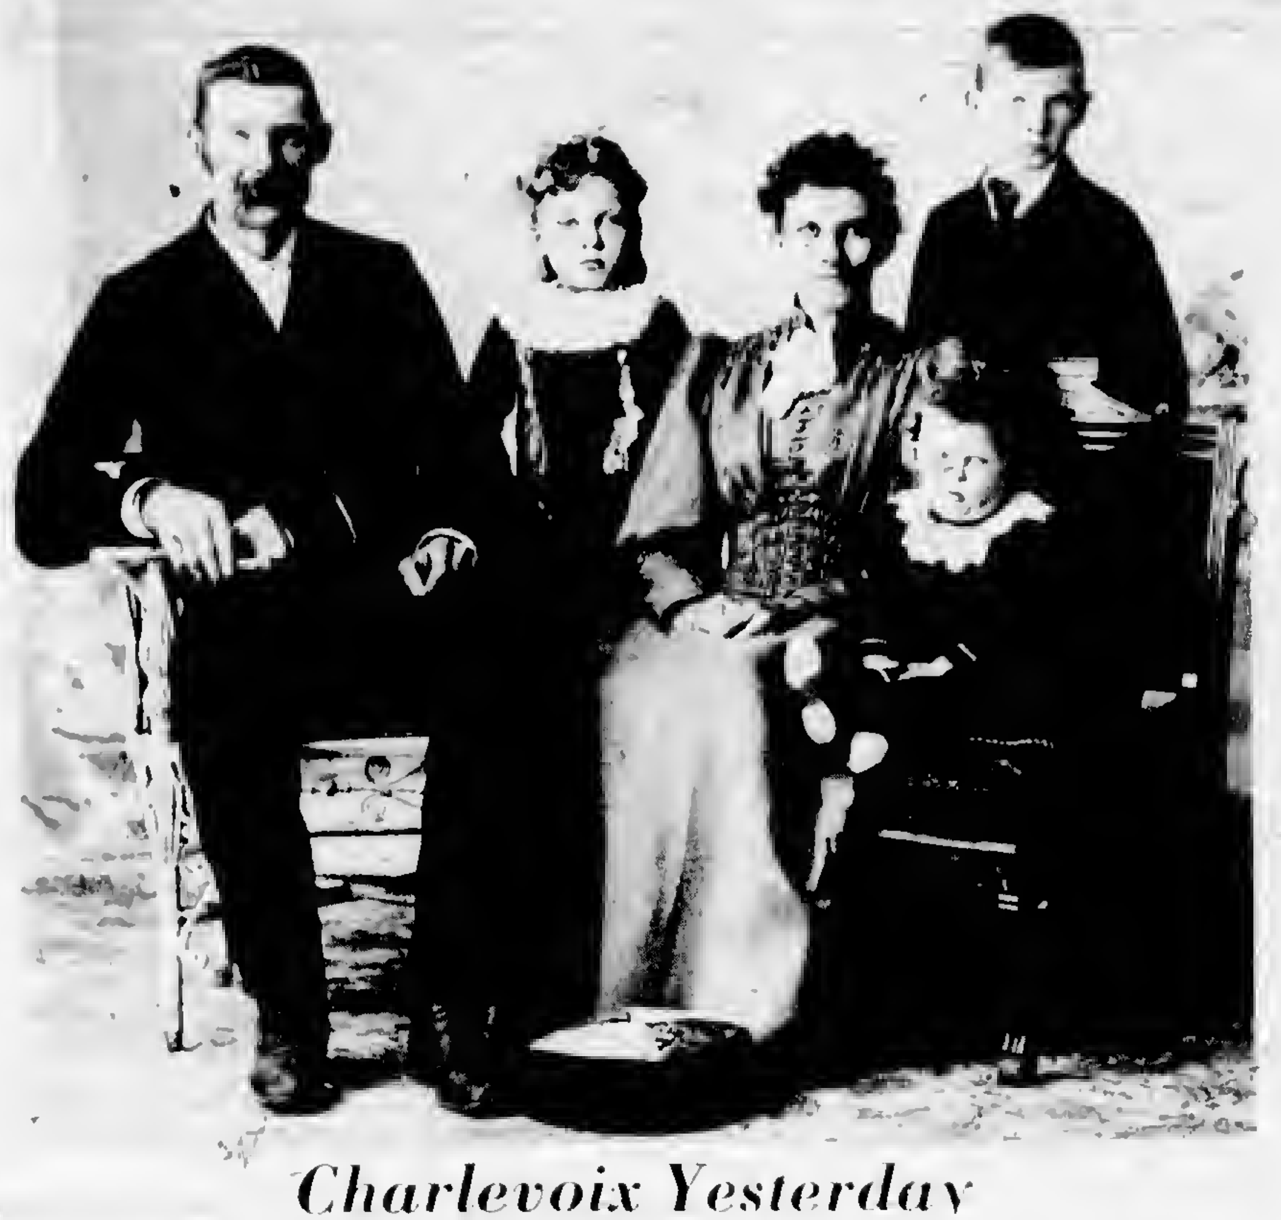
"If you think you are playing with little old country boys, you'd better hold onto the seat of your pants."

The new farmer said he made some enormous tradeoffs when he moved from the streets of Manhattan to Charlevoix, but he is satisfied it was the right choice.

"On the East Coast life is so complex that people don't know how to deal with it. They aren't aware of what they can effect.

"But a farmer knows what he can effect, what will work and what won't and he does that."

JOHN FREY, a new farmer in Charlevoix County, discusses his situation from the side of his four-wheel drive vehicle. Frey and his family moved to Charlevoix from the East Coast.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS IS how the family of John Smith of Charlevoix looked in 1894. The picture, taken by Bowman, a Charlevoix photographer, shows, from left to right, Smith, his daughter, Eva, his wife, Mary, his daughter, Barbara, and his son, Clyde. Clyde was the father of Carlton and Clayton Smith, Mrs. Jasper Warner, Mrs. Harley Warner, and Mrs. Arthur Stoel, all of whom still reside in Charlevoix, as well as Mrs. Chuck Smith of Alden. John Smith had two other children after this picture was taken, Frank, who lives in Charlevoix, and Mrs. Phillip Frankie of Detroit. Anyone who has a picture of Charlevoix as it looked before 1950 who would like to share it with the readers of the Charlevoix Courier is invited to send it or bring it in to the Courier office at 301 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix. Farming ain't what it used to be

The old grey mare ain't what she used to be – and neither is the farm.

Times have changed and the concept of farming has changed right along with them, according to Ed Rebman, county extension agent. Yet, many people who want to try farming for the first time are unaware of the changes.

"You don't just go out and buy some land and start farming any more," Rebman explained. "Things don't work that way any more."

Rebman pointed out that farming is a business – a big business.

"Starting up a farm requires much more capitol now than ever before because of the high cost of equipment," the extension agent said. "I think this is the biggest change we see in farming today."

Today's farmers are also specialists, Rebman said.

"There's no more general farming," he said. "You're into one or at the most two things – either dairy or beef or fruit and vegetables.

"You have to be a specialist in order to survive. There's no more of this having a few chickens that lay a few eggs that you can sell to the local grocery store.

"If you are into poultry, you have a large operation and that's all you do."

And just like any other business, farming is constantly being hit with a growing number of regulations, Rebman said.

"A growing number of regulations face farmers like any other buisinessman," the extension agent said. "For the first time this year, farmers who have a $20,000 cash payroll for 10 workers for 20 weeks will have to pay unemployment compensation.

"In addition, farmers must now be certified before they can use any pesticides and there are many other regulations they must meet."

Rebman said he doesn't get that many people in his office who are interested in starting up a farm."

"Oh, I get one or two dribbling in," he said. "Some of them come up here to get away from the city and want to try farming.

"Others are retired like from the Army and want to settle on a farm. And some are people who have had past farming experience but went to the city and now they want to come back and try their hand at farming again."

The extension agent said he also gets people in his office who want to quit farming.

"Most of them quit because they are up in years," he said. "For some of them, their farm is taken over for development or it is taken over by other farmers who want to enlarge their own farms."

Rebman said some farmers quit because they are forced out of it economically, but most of them quit farming because of their age.

School board sets policies, date for expulsion hearing

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its meeting Monday night, set Monday, Feb. 6, as the date of the hearing at which the expulsion of two students will be considered. The hearing will be held in the study hall at 7:30 p.m. on that date. The parents and the students involved will be advised of the hearing so they may attend if they desire.

At the same time several board policies discussed earlier were approved. Among these was one relating to a child's entrance into kindergarten; namely, that a child must be five years old prior to Oct. 1, 1978, and Sept. 1, 1979, in order to be enrolled in kindergarten. A second related to senior trips will not be recognized or permitted. The thinking behind this is that senior trips no longer serve the purpose for which they were once intended and that students and parents may make any plans they might like after the regular school year. Other policies relate to special use of school buses, overnight trips for students and the duties of the board secretary.

In other action the board approved dual enrollment for Kip Cinnamon, a senior student who asked to attend North Central Michigan College beginning next semester while completing classes at the Charlevoix High School.

Permission was granted the Spanish Club to proceed with plans for a summer trip to Mexico and for the French Club for a spring trip to Quebec City.

Job descriptions for the public librarian, library technical assistant and custodial/maintenance positions were discussed and then tabled for action at a later date.

Monday was scheduled as the date for a meeting of the building committee at which time they will discuss alternatives regarding a proposed building program at the high school. A meeting of the goals committee will follow. The meetings will be held at the high school study hall beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Scouts capture Klondike derby

Two Boy Scout patrols of Troop 11 returned from the recent Northern District Klondike Derby held at Bellaire with first and third place ratings for their respective performances.

The Owl Patrol headed by patrol leader, David Buday, received a first place rating and the Falcon Patrol with Tim May as patrol leader a third place ribbon.

Other members of the Owl patrol are Paul Stangis, Gerald Zeitler, Willie Ranger and Kevin Whitley. Mike Paul and Dan Buday made up the Falcon patrol.

The two patrols were among several hundred Scouts from throughout the Northern District of the Scenic Trails Council who participated in the annual event.

Disbanding police force has many disadvantages for city residents

Charlevoix Common Council and Mayor Edward Hanson should think long and hard before they disband the Charlevoix Police Department.

There is more at stake in such a decision than just the patrolman's salaries that would be saved and the fact that the city no longer have to negotiate with the Teamsters Union over the patrolman's salaries.

Charlevoix is a rapidly growing community just as the county is also rapidly growing. More and more people and more and more businesses are moving to the Northland.

And along with these two positive things, more and more crime is also moving into God's country.

Look, for instance, at the year end report of the Charlevoix City Police Department. While the total number of complaints is down, probably thanks to the 24-hour patrol of city streets by a city police force, the number of misdemeanor and felony arrests has gone up.

Also last year, the city had its first armed robbery in a long time. Although the crime was solved through the combined efforts of the Michigan State Police and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department as well as the Charlevoix City Police, it was still the city police who were able to answer the call for help and to devote the extra men to look into the crime.

A look at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department yearend report, also reveals an increase in crime throughout the county. The department was involved in many misdemeanor and felony cases in the township areas without being saddled with the additional responsibility of patroling the City of Charlevoix, the biggest municipality in the county.

It is true, that the sheriff's department is located right in town and it does seem like a waste of taxpayers money to have two law enforcement agencies patroling the same streets. And the Michigan State Police troopers do drive through town quite often because Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue also happen to be a major state highway – U.S. 31.

But, these agencies don't have the time to patrol the side streets and to check suspicious things that may be happening on those side streets when they are driving through town on their way to the rest of their jurisdiction.

The Sheriff's department would need to considerably beef up its patrol forces in Charlevoix in order to cover it like the city police force currently does. And even then there are going to be some instances when a sheriff's deputy would not be close at hand to answer a call for assistance because he or she is in another part of the county assisting someone there.

And beefing up the sheriff's department or the state police post is going to take money, taxpayers money. Where is that money going to come from? The City of Charlevoix, of course. After all, it is the city that will be needing the additional patrol and help.

The taxpayers will not be able to see their taxes go down as a result of disbanding the city police force, but they will probably see their police protection drop.

"MAYBE WE COULD GET A NEW PRESIDENTIAL POPULARITY POLL ... THAT OUGHT TO CREATE SOME NEWS!"

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

I think Jimmy Carter is getting a bum deal at the polls.

As you know, the president just celebrated his first year in office and pollsters are having a hey-day asking his constituents for their learned opinions on his first year in office.

Invariably, Jimmy comes out on the short end because he hasn't turned the United States into a land of milk and honey in 12 short months.

Holy Moses! One year isn't long enough to find all the johns in the White House let alone check for leaks in the plumbing.

Yet one pollster has even gone so far as to predict that Carter will fail to win approval of his party if he is bold enough to even think about a second term.

In my opinion, the only valid criticism of Carter as of Jan. 20, 1978, is that he has bitten off more than he can chew during the opening months of his administration. But we might have expected a man of Carter's youth, vitality and naivete in federal affiars to do just that.

But he is learning that the government of the United States, like all large bodies, is a ponderous monster that moves only slowly – if at all.

Probably the most significant statement the president made in his State of the Union address last week is that there are many areas in which the federal government is incapable of effective action, without the cooperation of business, industry and the public at large.

If nothing else, the statement was on admission that the president cannot move mountains, unless the mountains want to be moved.

I think Carter has done a fine job in bringing the Panama Canal situation to a head. Barring unforeseen barriers, the Senate should vote shortly to ratify treaties turning the canal over to the Republic of Panama in the year 2000.

There are more people working in the United States today than there were one year ago. Of course, Jimmy Carter is not responsible, but his "hands off" policy relative to business and industry probably played an important role.

Inflation is still a nagging problem and will probably get worse if the farmers of America are to receive a fair return on their labor and investment. Carter has asked all segments of the economy for voluntary restraints on wages and prices, but that is like asking the wolf not to eat the chickens. Regardless of what the president does, inflation rates will remian unacceptable for the foreseeable future.

Although Congress is still dickering over Carter's energy proposal, the president has at least recognized that the nation must come to grips with the problem of the world's rapidly depleting fuel reserves. Which is more than any other president has done.

I think what I like most about Carter is his continuing emphasis on human rights and human dignity which, in the last analysis, is what civilization is all about.

I wondered while watching him deliver his State of the Union message last Thursday how many people the world over would like to claim Jimmy Carter for their president. I suspect their number is legion.

...Speaking Her Mind

I am a child of the Space Age. As I grew up, NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) was growing up, too. And it affected everything I did or learned during my lifetime just as it has affected everyone in this country and even the world.

There have been numerous benefits from the space program. It has brought us such wonderful things as Tang and space food sticks. On a more serious side, miniature transistors, space age plastics and many other technological advances developed in space-connected research and applied to daily life have made things a lot easier.

The space program has even affected the way children have learned to think. I don't know about today, but almost the first thing I learned in school was how to count backwards from 10 to 1 so that I could participate in the launching of every rocket that was broadcast on television.

And there was plenty of launchings broadcast. It seemed like a major event every time a satellite was shot off. And we hardly ever missed one.

We would all crowd around the television set no matter if we were at home or at school and quietly count down with the announcer and then watch as the rocket lifted off in a puff of smoke.

It got to be quite a ritual and it almost seemed that if we didn't sit glued to the television set during a launching that the darn rocket wouldn't get off the ground.

I still remember the day the United States sent the first man into space. I was in the third grade and our teacher had brought her television set to school so that we wouldn't miss one of the most momentous moments in U.S. history.

It was fascinating as we watched the astronaut Alan Shepard walk toward the rocket in his space suit, ride up the elevator and then climb in the capsule.

We all counted down the lift off time and then watched for not more than 10 minutes as the rocket went up just barely out of sight and then the capsule containing the first man in space came back down.

"And someday man will go the moon in a rocket," the teacher had said wisely as we all listened in amazement.

As I grew older and advanced through school, the rockets, satellites and space missions of NASA advanced, too. As I matured the program matured and not too long after that first space flight, the United States became the first country to land a man on the moon. And now it looks like they may be the first country to land a woman on the moon, too.

The announcement last week that six women and several members of minority groups had been selected to participate in the space program was most heartening.

It's heartening because the women and the minority members were chosen based on their abilities. They had to be qualified or they wouldn't have been selected. And that's good news for the United States.

That means that more and more women and minorities are getting a chance at equal education and opportunity and that maybe all the effort that it took to ensure that equality was worth it.

Erma Bombeck

Boy, television commercials are really something.

The other night I watched a car tear across a rock-studded field, forge a river, scale a mountain, speed through a desert, and pass five stranded autos in a snowstorm to prove how put-together it was.

I have the same make and model in my driveway.

That car has a battery in it that, according to television, can light up an entire air strip at 50 degrees below zero.

It has four tires on it that have been tested on four-inch spikes.

It's so airtight you could ride through a war and not hear a sound.

The suspension is so smooth you could cut a diamond in the back seat.

There's enough trunk room to carry a five-tiered wedding cake.

The brake system is so terrific, anyone would be a fool not to stand in front of it.

There's only one problem. The car doesn't start.

A lot of things are like that. I've seen commercials where they glue two pieces of wood together and make a diving board out of them and this guy springs from them into a pool. I've used the same glue and can't get a picture to stick in a photo album.

Bought a sweeper once that when demonstrated sucked up pennies, pins, metal, nails, garbage, and a small dog that wasn't paying attention. It won't pick up dust.

And a watch that I saw rescued from a sandy beach after three years, stopped running for me one night when I spilled a drink on it.

Maybe it's me. I want to believe that a kid can take a hammer to my kitchen floor and the shine won't crack. Or that my perfume will drive men within a radius of three miles right up the wall.

I wanted to believe there was such a thing as a child-proof toy, so when I saw an elephant stand on a truck one day I went right out and bought it. (The truck, not the elephant.)

Two hours later the truck was in a heap on the floor. Two kids were crying and once again my faith had been shattered.

When they show me a truck that can come in contact with a brother's head and still remain intact, I'll go back to bebeving.

A kiss will make it better

I hereby designate my Oldsmobile Delta as the Serendipity Car of the Year for 1977. In return, I expect General Motors to fix the hole between my headlights for free.

That's how those things work. When an automobile is kissed in public, it is expected to kiss back. Otherwise, no romance.

For example, Motor Trend magazine recently selected the Toyota Celica as the "1978 import car of the year." In that issue of Motor Trend there are eight full pages of advertising from Toyota. There is a total of one advertising page from all other imports that were not honored.

Automotive News, the weekly newspaper of the auto industry, made the point clear in a Jan. 9 editorial: "It seems clear that the car of the year is one whose maker can deliver the largest amount of advertising to the publication that selects it."

That same issue of Motor Trend promises readers it will reveal its choice for "the domestic car of the year" next month. Automotive News predicts the winner will be Chrysler's Omni Horizon.

This prediction is based on the three pages of Chrysler domestic advertising in the current issue of Motor Trend. "We predict even more Chrysler advertising when the great announcement is made next month," Automotive News said.

"Taking into account the lengthy lead time required for publication of a monthly magazine, this means the buff book (Motor Trend), in its infinite wisdom, picked the car of the year before a single one had come down the assembly line," Automotive News added.

That's why I waited so long before naming my Olds the Serendipity Car of 1977. I wanted to be sure. I didn't want Automotive News to accuse me of kissing a fender before looking under the hood.

Many different cars of the year are chosen annually in different categories – imports, domestics, sedans, mid-size, mini-size and best car manufactured on either end of three-day weekends.

The criteria varies according to the publication giving the honors. The award may be based on good design, engineering, reliability or whatever. The only constant qualification is that the car manufacturer have a large advertising budget and be romantic enough to return a kiss with real feeling.

The Serendipity Award is something new. Serendipity is an aptitude for making happy discoveries accidentally. Cars competing in this category should hold happy surprises that their owners will discover by chance, perhaps not until they are many pages into the monthly payment book.

I drove my Oldsmobile 3,000 miles before I discovered there was a way to dim the headlights. I had stomped my feet all over the floorboard to no avail, and had finally given up.

I had decided that lights on 1977 Oldsmobiles were supposed to be constantly bright, and I learned to ignore approaching motorists who, s they stupidly strayed into ditches, honked their horns and shook their fists and yelled terrible oaths.

And then one night I accidentally moved by turn-signal switch horizontally instead of vertically. The headlights dimmed. I was happy about that. Serendipity.

There were more than 4,000 miles on my Olds before I discovered its most startling surprise. I read in the newspaper that my new car wasn't running on the Olds Rocket 85 engine I had paid for. Instead, a Chevrolet engine was under my hood.

Admittedly, this was not immediate serendipity. At first, I wasn't happy that the Oldsmobile salesman who hadn't told me where the dimmer was also hadn't told me I was buying a Chevrolet engine.

But later I learned I would be compensated with $200. I was happy with the way the Chevy engine was running, and I could use the $200 bonus, so – serendipity.

The only thing is that the other evening a miserable miscreant ticked a hole in the front of my Olds with the back of his Ford. The damage is estimated at $200.

But I'm sure my dealer won't charge me for the repairs once he learns that I have named the Oldsmobile Delta the Serendipity Car of the Year.

Onward and Upward, and kissy-kissy.

Teacher Feature ...Barbara Cook

By PEG OHLE

"Home economics", as taught in schools today is a far different course from what it used to be. Not only are both girls and boys required to study the subject in seventh grade at Charlevoix's Middle School, but they learn much more than cooking and sewing.

Barbara Cook teaches home economics to both seventh and eighth graders at the Middle School, as well as one class in social science.

The nine weeks of required home economics in seventh grade is an exploratory course and includes units on baby sitting, safety in emergencies, the place of individuals in the family ("Whom am I?"), purchasing practices, and the usual cooking and sewing.

The sewing unit consists of making a back pack, duffle bag, tote bag, or gun case. The students choose their own project, but most of them make a duffle bag, according to Mrs. Cook.

In cooking they learn the proper use of equipment, safety and sanitation, and make such convenience foods as cookies, cinnamon rolls, donuts, and pizza (the "highlight", according to Mrs. Cook). The students are taught how to follow recipes and how to vary them.

The second nine weeks of the semester are spent in shop classes for both boys and girls. "We call it a semester of basic home and shop study," Mrs. Cook explains.

Following the required nine weeks of home economics, seventh grade students may elect to pursue the subject another full semester.

"The boys used to resist the home economics classes, but now they seem to look forward to them. That is important because they are part of home living," the teacher believes.

Eighth graders who elect home economics start with food preservation (canning and freezing), jelly-making, and pies and tarts from the apples they have frozen. Then they study cake-making, comparing cakes made with mixes with those make from scratch. They also make cakes into figures and decorate them with cooked or uncooked icing to learn about sugar cookery. Finally, they go into the comprehensive subjects of nutrition and meal planning, putting complete meals together.

There is a short unit on making T-shirts, learning how to sew a knit material, and another one on improving sewing techniques and using patterns.

Eighth graders also learn something about interior decorating, how to arrange furniture, how to coordinate color schemes, and how to select fabrics for their own rooms. Later they learn how to do laundry, the operation of laundry equipment, why fabrics are laundered and dried at different temperatures, and why different colored materials are laundered separately.

Commenting on the entire home economics program at the Middle School, Mrs. Cook says, "Home economics is basic to living. It is one area of knowledge which the students will always use, man or woman, single or married."

The social sciences course Mrs. Cook teaches is entitled "Inquiry into Technology." She explains it is a course showing how technology has helped nations become modern, comparing modern nations with non modern nations.

"We try to develop some map skills, to show where the different countries are located and how they are related to each other," Mrs. Cook states.

Then, during the second semester, the social sciences course is devoted to Michigan history. "Most kids have no idea where Charlevoix is, the Mackinac bridge, or Lansing. They go to a basketball game in Cheboygan and don't know it's on Lake Huron, not Lake Michigan," the treacher has found.

Borbora Cook

Also, in this course, each student takes an imaginary trip, using a map, to 30 points of interest in the state. They relate where they went, why, the route they took, and the miles between points.

The students also learn about the development of Michigan as a state from the time of explorers and missionaries and Indians to the present.

Mrs. Cook was born in Kalamazoo and received both bachelor's and master's degrees in home economics from Western Michigan University. She has been at the Middle School for eight years and was a substitute teacher earlier while her children were young.

Mrs. Cook's husband, Norman, teaches industrial arts in the East Jordan High School. They live in Charlevoix with their four daughters, Joan, 17, a high school senior; Kothy, 16, a high school junior; Sheri, 15, a high school freshman; and Patti, 13, an eighth grader.

The teacher lists her hobbies as sewing, camping, gardening, and cross country skiing.

What's her philosophy about teaching and learning? "I say, 'Don't say "can't", say "I'll try". Also, "You can't quit in life. Quitters never get anywhere."

Study on diversion of Lake Mich. to begin

By PEG OHLE

A project to study the effect on Lake Michigan shorelines of diverting lake water through the Illinois Waterway will begin some time in 1979.

The two-year study will consist of temporary, incremental increases – from the present annual limit of 3,200 cubic feet per second to as much as 10,000 cubic feet – in the amount of Lake Michigan water diverted at Chicago. It will consider the effects of increased diversion on alleviating Great Lakes shoreline damage, on the water quality of the Illinois Waterway, and on the susceptibility of the Illinois Waterway to additional flooding.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will make the study at the direction of Congress under the Water Resources Development Act of 1976. The study will be made in three phases. In the first phase, prior to any actual diversion increase, the Corps will inventory existing conditions, develop monitoring and operating plans, and perform an environmental assessment of possible impacts of increased diversion. The actual increased diversion demonstration will be conducted during the second phase. The third phase will consist of preparation of a report and recommendations for submission to Congress.

The study and temporary diversion of Lake Michigan water is being made at a time when the lake level will be higher then normal, although it has been on a downward trend for the last two years. During periods of exceedingly high water during the last few years, much damage has been done to shorelines along Lake Michigan.

Legislators gobble up chance to save potlucks

The good old American tradition of potluck suppers and bake sales will not fall under legislative control if Senator Bob Davis has anything to say about it.

Threats to enforce an eight-year old state law prohibiting such activities has drawn Davis' ire. He is now working with House members to come up with a bill to exclude them from health department regulations which require that food be prepared in a licensed kitchen facility. The kitchens must be licensed by local county health departments.

"This only goes to show how utterly ridiculous over-regulation can get," Davis said. "No one is forced to buy food being served at a potluck supper. Those attending know where the food came from. They know it wasn't prepared in a commercial kitchen. The fact that the food is homemade is the main attraction."

Aliens must register home addresses this month

January is the month when aliens must register their current address whether or not they have changed it during the past year.

Aliens can do this by picking up an address card at the Charlevoix Post Office or one of the others in the area.

Joseph Schwartzfisher, postmaster in Charlevoix, said he had no way of knowing how many aliens there were registering in the county, but he said there were some.

"I have no way of knowing how many people come in and pick up the address cards," Schwartzfisher explained. "We just get a bundle of cards that we put out for the people to pick up.

"I do know that some people pick them up, but I don't know if they live in this county or not."

Reporting an address is a simple procedure. Every post office has the address cards and the alien can just pick one up and fill it out.

After signing the cards, aliens place a stamp on the reverse side and mail it.

If the alien has children under 14 years old, cards must be filled out for them, too. If the alien is disabled, friends or relatives can pick up an address card for them. The deadline for filling out the cards is Jan. 31. Failure to comply with the law can result in a fine, imprisonment or deportation.

The only exception to filling out the cards are diplomats and people officially connected with international organizations of which the United States is a member like the United Nations.

City police statistics show drop in complaints

The year end statistical report for the Charlevoix City Police Department showed some interesting increases and decreases in police activity this year.

Overall the number of complaints called into the department decreased from 382 to 300 in 1977. However, the number of misdemeanor arrests increased from 59 to 64 and the number of felony arrests from 21 to 29.

The number of traffic citations increased slightly during 1977 from 298 to 299 while the number of accidents policed dropped from 242 to 222.

Breaking and enterings reported during 1977 increased from 16 to 18 with eight or 44 percent of the cases resolved. The number of attempted breaking and enterings reported was two with one case resolved. There were nine unlawful entries reported with three cases resolved.

The value of stolen property reported in 1977 dropped from $30,199 in 1976 to $26,108. The value of property recovered during 1977 was $8,684.

During 1977, the department's fulltime police officers worked 11,104 hours and 152 overtime hours. The auxiliary officers worked 728 hours and the clerk-dispatcher put in 2,000 hours for a total of 14,284 hours during the year.

During those 14,284 hours, the police department was also involved in several noncrime related activities including speaking engagements to students in the Charlevoix public schools, and civic groups and instructional classes such as hunter safety.

The department also logged 438 general assists during the year which included such services as directions for travelers, assistance to senior citizens, aiding motorists with broken down vehicles and acting as funeral escorts.

History does repeat self old council minutes show!

History repeats itself!

At the end of a story about a City Council meeting which appeared in a 1900 issue of the Charlevoix Courier, the following comment was made:

"A feature of the session which does not appear on the council proceedings, was the address by Mr. B.W. Miller, who appeared with others, to protest against the work being done on the streets and Antrim in particular, where it is claimed by Mr. Miller that what was a fairly good roadway, had been rendered almost impassable. No action was taken in the matter."

Officials unsure of new school finance bill

Charlevoix Public School officials aren't sure how a proposal by Gov. William Milliken changing the structure of financing school districts would affect this area.

GORDON VAN WIEREN --"I think it's a political move."

In his State of the State message last week, Gov. Milliken recommended that the legislature place a constitutional amendment on the November ballot calling for local option elections by school districts on reducing property tax rates by 22 mills in exchange for a 2 percent increase in income taxes.

If the income tax does not generate the same number of tax dollars as the property tax, the state will make up the difference in the amount of money going to the school districts, in Milliken's proposal.

"I'm not sure how this proposal would affect the Charlevoix schools," Gordon Van Wieren, superintendent, said. "I haven't costed it out yet.

"But anytime you start to base a budget on income taxes you get into trouble," Van Wieren said. "Income taxes are a pretty unstable thing in the state of Michigan because of the auto industry.

"I have a lot of respect for Gov. Milliken, but I think this proposal was just a political thing. I don't think we'll see this pass."

Vince Olach, school business manager, said he didn't think the Governor's proposal would affect the Charlevoix school district very much.

"I don't think a 2 percent income tax would generate more than what 22 mills does on property tax, so the state would make up the difference and we would be getting the same amount of money," Olach said.

"But I do think this proposal would help the senior citizens and others who are on fixed incomes. I think they would end up paying less taxes under this system than they do now even though they get a property tax rebate."

Olach said he also didn't want to get involved in a situation where the school district had to depend upon the state to get a specific amount of money to run the school.

"You have to be careful when the state says it is going to give you some money," Olach said. "A couple years ago they said they were going to give us so much in financial aid, too, and they didn't come through with it. I just don't think it's a good idea to get involved with it."

Sen. Bob Davis, R-Gaylord, said last week that he didn't think the issue would even get on the ballot.

"I think it would benefit taxpayers in the school districts in my area, but it won't benefit the cities and the suburbs," Davis said. "And that's where the votes are. I don't think it will get out of the Legislature and on the ballot.

"It takes a two-thirds vote to allow it on the ballot and I don't think we can muster the votes."

VINCE OLACH -- "Senior citizens probably would benefit."

GREAT LAKES SPEARING REGULATIONS

The Natural Resources Commission at its meeting on August 10, 1973, under authority of Act 230, P. A. 1925, as amended, hereby rescinds the order dated August 11, 1973, and effective January 1, 1973, and orders the following order effective for a period of five years beginning January 1, 1974:

On the Great Lakes and connecting waters it is unlawful to take with a spear or bow and arrow (a) walleye, sauger, Atlantic salmon, coho salmon, chinook salmon, pink salmon or splake, (b) perch, except on Lake St. Clair, during January and February; (c) northern pike, except during January and February; (d) muskellunge, except during January and February on lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron and the St. Mary's River; (e) sturgeon, except during February.

Snow days a thing of past?

Well students, you might as well get used to it. It looks like snow days may soon become a thing of the past.

In an effort to cut down on the number of days that school is cancelled due to snow and poor road conditions, Charlevoix Public School officials have been working with representatives of the Charlevoix County Road Commission to work out a solution.

"I think we will be changing our bus routes so that we follow the snow plows," Vince Olach, school business manager, said. "Instead of us pushing through the snow by ourselves, it makes more sense to try and be where the plows are."

Olach said he had provided the road commission with maps of the school bus routes and the road commission has supplied Olach with the routes the plows follow each morning. The business manager is now going to try and change the bus routes to match the snow plow routes.

"This probably won't go into effect this year because we've got the school bus routes established," Olach explained. "But by next year we should have it worked out."

Last year, school in the Charlevoix district was cancelled seven times due to poor road conditions and excess snow which made it hazardous for school buses to be in operation.

Three of those snow days fell on Mondays. School officials felt that school probably could have been held on those Mondays if the road commission crews had plowed the streets on Sunday night or earlier Monday morning. So they went to see the road commission about a change in plowing times.

On most mornings, road commission crews hit the streets at 7 a.m. However, the union contract does allow the county engineer-director Irv Sturm to call the men in as early as 5 a.m.

"I have been instructed by the road commissioners to start the men working at 5 a.m. as much as is possible," Sturm explained. "But we haven't had the weather conditions this year that would allow it."

Sturm pointed out that just as the school officials didn't want bus drivers and buses out on the roads when visibility is poor and weather conditions are bad, neither does the road commission want its men out on the roads at that time.

Road commissioner Donald Graham said it was very difficult for the plow driver to see the roads in the dark and starting to plow at 5 a.m. or at 7 a.m. made quite a difference.

"The difference is plowing the roads with one hour or one and one-half hours of bad conditions or doing it for three or three and one-half hours," he pointed out.

Graham stressed that having the drivers plow in the dark also leads to more chance of the plows getting stuck. This delays the clearing of the roads even more because another truck has to stop what it is doing and go and pull the snow plow out.

Graham added that the snowplow routes have grown considerably over the years and that it just naturally takes longer to get the roads cleared.

"It used to be that a guy could clear the roads, clean the shoulders and shape of the intersections in a reasonable eight-hour day," he said. "Now they have to hustle just to make the roads passable."

Olach said he was in sympathy with the road commission.

"I can see they have a problem," he said. "They don't have enough equipment and you can't just buy a snowplow. You have to buy a truck that can be used year around.

"Also having the plows start earlier in the morning doesn't really solve the problem because they have to go slower because of poor visibility.

"But I'm confident we will be able to work something out that will cut down on the number of snow days."

Enlistment program set up for seniors through Air Force

High School seniors graduating in June can volunteer for guaranteed training in the U.S. Air Force now, and report to regular Air Force active duty in June, July, or August, according to Sergeant Ryan K. Renz, U.S. Air Force recruiter.

"The Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program, which allows a person to be enlisted against an opening up to nine months later, makes it possible for high school seniors to reserve an opening in advance of graduation this June," said Sgt. Renz.

Persons desiring to reserve a position on the aerospace team are urged to call 517-732-2746 collect or visit the recruiting office at 100 N. Otsego Avenue, Gaylord.

Investigate facts on insulation to prevent fraud

People suffered through the cold of last winter with sweaters and took aspirin when the heating bills came in. As a result, a lot of people are adding insulation to their homes in case this winter follows the pattern.

Well, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, there are a few things you need to know before you begin.

Here are some tips reported in Consumer News, the twice-a-month news-letter from the Office of Consumer Affairs:

There are three main types of insulation: mineral wools, foams, and cellulose.

Mineral wools, including rock wool and glass fiber, can be bought in blankets or batts for laying in place, or in bags for pouring or blowing into place.

Plastic or resin foams can be bought in preformed sheets or rolls, and one type can be foamed in place. This type can vary greatly depending on the contractor's skill.

Cellulose insulation is made of finely ground up newspaper of other recycled wood products. It can be poured or blown in place. If cellulose is not properly treated, it can be a fire hazard. And if too much chemical is added, it can corrode pipes and other metal items. Check the bag to be sure cellulose insulation meets Federal Specification HH-I-515 (c).

Foam, too, can be a fire hazard. If it is not treated with a flame retardant, it should be used only where it will be protected by something fireproof such as wall board.

While mineral wools won't burn, the vapor barrier added to batts and blankets may. So keep any insulation at least three inches from light fixtures and other heat sources.

And when you get ready to contract for insulation, check around first. Get recommendations from utility companies. In some areas, utility companies may even install insulation.

Get estimates from at least three contractors. And make sure you describe the job identically to each.

Learn about "R" values, and use them with contractors. "R" values rate the effectiveness of insulation. If the contractor won't talk with you in "R" value language, don't deal with him. You should only pay more for a higher "R" value, not just for additional inches of insulation, so do your comparison shopping by "R" value.

Here are the current generally accepted maximum "R" values for insulating materials:

MAXIMUM "R" VALUE INSULATION PRODUCT	THICKNESS INSULATION
Mineral wool batts and blankets	3.1
Cellulose loose fill	3.1 - 3.7
Urea formaldehyde	4.1
Polystyrene (expanded)	6.25
Polyurethane	6.25
Aluminum foil	2.0

Any claim of an "R" value above the maximum design standard should be highly suspect. Check with your local Better Business Bureau and the state or local consumer protection office to see if they have any complaints about the contractor you plan to use.

When you have selected a contractor, get a written contract. Don't sign it unless it includes everything you want done. And it should include a warranty that runs long enough for you to be sure the job was done properly.

If you have a complaint that you are not able to solve with the contractor, send it in writing to your local consumer protection office. For complaints about warranties, write the Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, DC 20580.

If you want to keep up with the latest in federal consumer proposals, warnings and activities, subscribe to Consumer News. A one year subscription (24 issues), is $6 from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 016F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

And for a listing of a variety of federal consumer publications, send for The Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the Catalog is free by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Charlevoix Chemical starts 10th year

It's funny how life seems to run in cycles, at least that's the way it has been for George and Virginia Nipson, owners of Charlevoix Chemical Company.

Even though the Nipsons are starting their 10th year in business with the chemical distribution operation, in some ways they're right back where they started.

The Nipsons arrived in Charlevoix on a rainy day in October 1968. After making a quick two-month marketing survey of an area within a 100-mile radius of Charlevoix to see if he could drum up any customers, Nipson decided to incorporate the chemical company.

Officially opening on Jan. 1, 1969, the Nipsons set up a warehouse in the basement of the Kentucky Fried Chicken building on Bridge Street and an office in their house — rented quarters in the former Dyksterhouse home on West Dixon Avenue.

They also proceeded to build a new home for themselves.

Now, 10 years later, the chemical company is again surveying the area looking for customers for its expanded line of products.

And once again the Nipsons are living on West Dixon Avenue, only the Dyksterhuyse home has been replaced by LaCroft Condominiums, while they build a new home.

Nipson said his company is planning to begin repackaging some of its industrial chemicals such as paint thinner into smaller quantities and market them under the Charlevoix Chemical Co. label at various stores in Northern Michigan.

"We used to buy everything already packaged," Nipson explained. "But now we repackage most of the products especially the industrial chemicals.

"In the past, the smallest we have repackaged anything was into 55-gallon drums for our bulk users," Nipson explained. "Now we're going to try putting paint thinner into quarts and gallons and selling it that way."

The chemical distributor said his company's goal for its 10th year is to get the filling equipment in operation so that it can begin repackaging into smaller quantities and to acquire an 8,000 gallon tank wagon.

"When you haul your own bulk items this far north you make as much profit on the freight savings as anything else," Nipson said.

The six employees of the chemical company currently serve about 400 customers in a 100-mile radius of Charlevoix with products from eight downstate suppliers. The company does all of its own delivery with the aid of a diesel tractor and 40-foot trailer.

Tom Louiselle, the delivery man, also picks up all of the products that the company distributes.

Among the products the chemical company handles are: industrial chemicals, maintenance supplies for business and industry, some janitor supplies, commercial laundry products and swimming pool chemicals.

The story behind the Nipsons' move to Charlevoix and their establishment of Charlevoix Chemical Company is similar to that of many people in the area.

More than 31 years ago, Nipson got his first glimpse of Charlevoix on his way home from a fishing vacation. Then for several years, Nipson and his wife vacationed in the area.

"Oh, we alternated places every other year," Nipson said. "But we kept coming back to Charlevoix."

CHARLEVOIX

GEORGE AND VIRGINIA NIPSON discuss the progress their company has made over the last decade. The Nipsons are beginning their tenth year with Charlevoix Chemical Co. Their offices are located on Martin Road just west of Will-Flow Corp.

"We always said that we would retire in Charlevoix," Mrs. Nipson added. "But we got here a little bit earlier than that."

During those years, Nipson was district manager of a four-state area for Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. Later he became a regional sales manager for the East Coast after Virginia-Carolina merged with Mobil Oil Co.

"Before the merger, Virginia-Carolina just barely got on the Fortune 500 list," Nipson explained. "After the merger it became one of the top three.

"A lot of changes were made and it just wasn't much fun to work there anymore."

So the Nipsons decided to move to Charlevoix. And they have been doing fairly well ever since. Their first five years of business saw the couple expand their business enough to allow them to construct offices and a warehouse on Martin Road where they are located today.

But the second five years held some disappointments as the recession hit Charlevoix Chemical. But the company has bounced back and Nipson predicts, 1978, the company's 10th year of existence, will be as good as the first five.

Keep warm with fireplace of own

Chestnuts roasting and the crackling sound of a fire in your own fireplace—just a warm thought to get you through the winter? No, building a fireplace can be a reality.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a booklet that explains fireplace and chimney construction from A to Z. To get your copy of Fireplaces and Chimneys, send 40 cents to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 057E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

It may come as a surprise, but fireplaces are not the most economical means of heating. Ordinarily, they are only about one-third as efficient as a good stove. But a well-designed one can give your home additional warmth, and use materials that might otherwise go to waste, like scrap lumber or old newspapers. Besides, they can be a beautiful and romantic addition to your home.

Whether you're building your own fireplace or having it done, there are building codes you must follow. Contact your local building inspector for exact specifications, and follow these guidelines for an efficient and safe fireplace and chimney:

1. Every chimney must produce enough draft to supply fresh air to the fire and to expel smoke and gases produced by the fire. A chimney should extend at least 3 feet above a flat roof and at least 2 feet above a roof ridge or raised part of a roof near the chimney. Flue linings have to be fireproof, and this means able to withstand rapid changes in temperature. The lining of the flue should be made of vitrified fire clay, and it should be at least 5/8" thick.

2. Never connect a range, stove, fireplace or other heating equipment to the flue for the central heating unit. Each piece of heating equipment must have its own flue. This is because two or more connections to the same flue can cause fires from sparks passing through one flue opening and out the other.

3. Wooden beams or joints should be at least 2 inches from a chimney wall. The space between can be filled with porous, non-metallic, noncombustible material. Do not use brick work, mortar, or concrete.

The average home will not require chimney cleaning. But before you even try out your new fireplace, it must pass the "smoke test". Build a paper, straw, wood, or tar-paper fire at the base of the flue. When the smoke rises in a dense column, tightly block the outlet at the top of the chimney with a wet blanket. If any smoke escapes through the masonry chimney it means there are leaks. And leaks can cause fires.

Chimneys should be inspected each fall for defects. Look for loose or fallen bricks, cracked or broken flue linings, and excessive soot accumulation.

Fireplaces and Chimneys (40 cents) is just one of more than 200 publications of consumer interest listed in the Consumer Information Catalog, published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration. For a free copy, send a postcard to Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix District Court during the week ending January 13 by Judge David W. Fershee:

Jack O. Wingo, 18, Boyne City, fleeing and eluding police officer. Plead guilty. Three weekends in county jail, $165 fine and costs, and one year's probation.

Mark Steven Willson, 20, East Jordan, larceny under $100. Plead guilty. Thirty days in county jail, $165 fine and costs, restitution to injured party, and one year's probation.

Jacob Daniel Boyd, 19, Clarion, being drunk on public highway. Plead guilty. Thirty days in county jail.

William H. Nyland, 20, East Jordan, possession of marijuana. Plead guilty. $105 fine and costs.

Lei G. Johnson, Community Relations Manager, Petoskey, offers you this telephone tip:

Teach your children how to use the phone in an emergency!

Anyone can have an emergency at home that calls for fast, intelligent use of the phone — a sudden illness, accident, fire. Hopefully, you already have a list in your phone book or elsewhere near the phone, giving the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and your home address. But, if you have children at home, would they know how to use the phone in an emergency? Make sure they do.

Show them where you keep the emergency numbers and how to call the operator, if necessary. Your babysitter should be told who to call, too. Know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical and police help in your area. Nobody likes to think about emergencies at home. But, it's better to give it a little thought now, than be sorry you didn't later. Why not check out the family on your emergency phone call procedure right now?

Glen's Market Opens

Gas company mailing applications for assistance with bill paying Michigan Consolidated Gas Company is mailing application forms to its 880,000 residential heating customers explaining how qualified customers may receive assistance in paying energy bills.

The Department of Social Services is also mailing out applications, and when they are completed they should be returned to Social Services.

"The majority of our customers will not qualify for state assistance because of their family income," said Charles R. Montgomery, Consolidated president. "However, we do know, for example, that more than 25 percent of our customers in the Detroit District are on fixed and low incomes."

The state funds are available under a $38 million program approved by the Michigan Legislature late last year. Under the new law, a maximum of $200 can be paid to qualified individuals based on family income and consumption. In most cases, the law directs the funds to be sent directly to utility companies in the state for credit to the family account.

In addition to residential heating customers, renters whose heating bills are included in their rents are also eligible for up to $160 in state assistance.

Crooked Tree Council sponsors art classes

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is sponsoring a series of art classes at North Central Michigan College, beginning February 8.

Some of the classes will also be held at other locations in the area, including the Water Color class which will meet at a yet to be announced place in the Central Lake/Ellsworth area.

Classes offered, in addition to Water Color, are Introduction to Art, Basic Drawing and Composition, Painting and Composition, Oil Painting, Arts and Crafts, Printmaking, Stained Glass, and "Art on Sunday" (which will meet on Sunday afternoons.)

There will also be two classes for children: Art for Children ages six through 12, and Woodworking for Children, ages 9 through 15.

Further information about the classes may be obtained by calling the College, 347-3973, extension 371.

Methodist women to hold fundraising spaghetti dinner

The United Methodist Women of the Charlevoix Church will host a Spaghetti Dinner at the church dining room on State Street Thursday, Feb. 2.

Serving will be from 5 until 7 p.m. with donations of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 years.

It will be the group's last public event prior to the Lenten season.

The meal will feature spaghetti, salad, rolls, dessert, and a choice of beverage.

Mrs. Carlton Ikens and Mrs. Harley Warner will be in charge of the kitchen and Mrs. Sanford Washburn and Mrs. Garry Miller the dining room.

Sharrow posts perfect score in cribbage meet

The Odd Fellows have moved into a 1,272 point lead over the Masons in the annual I.O.O.F.-Masons cribbage tournament Sims Baker, tournament secretary, reports.

A perfect 968 score by Albert Sharrow, playing for the Odd Fellows, bolstered leader's advantage. Joe Stutzman and Gene Holm posted like scores of 919 each for the Masons. The Odd Fellows finished evening's play with 323 points to their credit.

Sweetheart contest moved to Petoskey Middle School

A change has been made in the site of the annual Campus Life Sweetheart contest slated for 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 12.

The event will now be held at the Petoskey Middle School auditorium where the Charlevoix area will be represented by Brenda Boss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Boss.

Charlevoix residents are asked to attend and register as being from Charlevoix at the contest because representation by the community accounts for 30 percent of the contestant's total points. Another 30 percent is measured by the amount of funds each contestant's group raises and the remaining 40 percent is based on the contestant's individual speech and talent.

Campus Life or Youth for Christ is a church-oriented organization open to youth of all denominations. Under the guidance of young adults it offers the youth in the area a variety of activities. The Campus Life Sweetheart contest, held near Valentine's Day each year, is its only fund-raising project.

The Charlevoix area members have several fundraising projects planned for the next two weeks. Among them will be two salad casserole luncheons at the Community Church of God Thursday, Feb. 2 and 9. Serving will be from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall.

A second fundraising project will be the sale of homemade pies at the Oleson Food Store beginning at 1 p.m. on Saturday Feb. 4, and again on Feb 11. Homemade pies right out of the oven will go for $2.50 each.

Members of Campus Life will canvass the community in a door-to-door campaign on Jan. 28, Feb. 1, 8 and 11. Residents are asked to make contributions payable to Campus Life in order to prevent solicitations by unauthorized people or to mail the check to Brenda Boss, 203 Alice St., Charlevoix, 49720.

Engaged

Wasoski-Moore

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fears announce the engagement of Mrs. Fears' daughter, Rita Wasoski of Charlevoix, to Tom Moore, also of Charlevoix.

Moore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore.

Miss Wasoski is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She is currently attending Davenport College of Business and working at American Annuity Insurance Co. in Grand Rapids.

Moore is employed by Peter's Packaging Co., in Grand Rapids.

The couple is planning an August wedding.

Sonny and Jeane Williams and family also Mrs. Audrey Russell have returned home after spending the Christmas Holiday with the formers mother Mrs. Ada Williams in Arcadia, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Milan Plsek of Charlotte are the new owners of the local Jiffy Market. They will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. We welcome them to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Woodbury have returned from visiting friends in the Upper Peninsula and spending several days snowmobiling over the New Years weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp enjoyed having their grandchildren of Mt. Pleasant spend the Holiday weekend as their guests.

Our nice balmy weather and all the green grass and with thirty and 40-degree temperature was completely ruined on Christmas weekend as it turned cold with blinding snow and wind and made treacherous driving for holiday travellers. South Arm of our lake is completely frozen and most of Lake Charlevoix but still not safe for fishermen and their shanties but it will not be long if this cold clear weather continues.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stowe and family have moved across the road in their new home which has been completely remodeled and Mr. and Mrs. Milan Plsek the new Jiffy Market owners are now living in their former farm home.

Nancy Podskalncy has returned to Grand Valley College in Allendale after spending the holiday vacation with her mother Mrs. Marian Podskalney and brother Darren.

Charlevoix Development Corporation elects new officers, board members

Officers and directors for the Charlevoix Development Corporation were elected during the annual meeting held last week.

Theodore S. Browe was elected president of the group with Max Novak getting the nod for the vice presidential position. Fred W. Willis was elected secretary and Edward K. Shanahan treasurer.

Several directors were also elected to serve three-year terms including: Robert Wexstaff, Novak and Willis. Clayton Trimble was elected to fill the unexpired term of Kenneth Cellner.

Other directors serving on the board are: Tom Wieland, John Haggard, Louis Hollow, Robert Lieberman, James Novotny, Browe and Shanahan.

The Charlevoix Development Corporation was founded in 1950 to help find year around employment for local residents and for those that might wish to make Charlevoix their home by attracting and assisting people or corporations that were interested in starting a business in Charlevoix or moving an existing business to Charlevoix.

Some of the businesses in the area that came to Charlevoix or were able to expand their operations through the assistance of the development corporation include: American Mold, Lexalite Corporation, Freedman Artcraft Company and Hoskins Manufacturing Company.

According to the treasurer's report, the development corporation is in sound financial condition with the only outstanding loans to Lexalite Corporation in connection with its building and grounds.

Daniel Iannotti joins Ski & Shore of Charlevoix

The commercial investment division of Ski & Shore of Charlevoix has expanded to include a new salesman.

Daniel Iannotti joined the sales staff of the real estate firm last week. Iannotti brings a myriad of experiences in the commercial investment and development field with him to his new position.

As founder, president and general manager of Schuss Mountain, Iannotti has personally experienced many of the things that prospective developers will be facing. In addition, Iannotti spent 11 years as a stockbroker in Chicago and he currently does some consulting in the resort and hospitality fields.

Iannotti believes his multifaceted background fits in well with the commercial investment field and will aid him in assisting sellers and buyers in this area.

Iannotti said he left Schuss Mountain looking for a new challenge and found it in Charlevoix.

"We love Northern Michigan and we wanted to stay in the area," he explained. "We found this opportunity at Hess Furniture and decided to take it."

Iannotti's wife, Dottie Iannotti, operates Hess Furniture.

The couple has two children, Madelyn, a senior at Charlevoix High School, and Daniel, a student at Wayne State University Law School.

Former resident captures national Farm Bureau award

A former Charlevoix resident was a finalist in the 1978 Young Farmers and Ranchers Discussion Meet at the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting in Houston, Tex.

Arthur D. Currey, OVM, son of Betty Currey of Barnard Road, and the late Robert Currey, represented Michigan in the discussion competition on the topic, "The Farm Bureau's Role in Counteracting the Erosion of Local Control in Government."

Currey, a veterinarian in Fowlerville, is also active in the Livingston County Farm Bureau. It was through the encouragement of fellow Farm Bureau community group members that he decided to participate in the discussion meet competition.

After surviving competition at the district level, Currey defeated five other district finalists to win the state competition in November. He became a finalist in the national competition earlier this month.

Currey comes from a varied farm background. As a youth he worked on his family's Lapeer County dairy farm and then a family-owned yew lamb operation and Sugarbush maple syrup operation in Charlevoix. He is still a partner in his family's farm in Charlevoix.

Currey had to research and prepare to discuss five different topics for the competition. In addition to the topic about local control in government, Currey was also prepared to discuss protection of personal property rights, the role of the Farm Bureau in the future, energy and finanical assistance for beginning young farmers.

East Jordan man reappointed to Veterans Trust

Kenneth H. Richards of East Jordan has been reappointed to the Charlevoix County Veterans Trust Fund Committee as the American Legion representative.

The three-year appointment was made by the Board of Trustees of the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund.

Other members of the committee are Edward K. Shanahan of Charlevoix and Arthur Rouse of Boyne City.

Last year, the committee assisted 134 veterans, widows and dependents of veterans for a total of $5,545.45.

Throughout the State, county committees assisted 23,746 veterans, widows, and dependents with a total expenditure of $1,168,446.56.

3rd Armored Division planning July reunion

All men who served with the Third Armored Division, the "Spearhead" Division, during World War II are invited to attend the Division's 31st Annual National Re-union.

The meeting is scheduled for July 26 through 29 at the Regency Hotel in Dearborn.

Full information may be obtained from Neil Scholz, Box 172, Davison, Michigan 48423.

Assistant appointed for Friend of Court

Dan Osmer has taken up his duties as assistant to George Ebenhoe, who is assistant Friend of the Court. He will act as a support investigator for cases involving alimony and child support.

Osmer is part owner of Heartwood Alternative, a local business which is now being operated by his partner. He has done some substitute teaching for the Char-Em School District, but has been self employed during most of his job career.

Osmer is a graduate of Mercy College in Detroit with a degree in elementary education and psychology. He and his wife, Maureen, live in East Jordan and have a son, Jesse, who is three and a half years old.

"I enjoy being in Charlevoix," the new court employee says, "and plan on staying here a while."

FDA issues ban on six colors used in cosmetics

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has terminated the use of six colors used in drugs and cosmetics.

On Dec. 17, 1977 the following colors were terminated: External D&C Yellow No. 1; D&C Blue No. 6 (except for one limited use); D&C Red Nos. 10, 11, 12 and 13. Yellow No. 1 and Blue No. 6 were used in drugs and cosmetics. (Blue No. 6 will continue to be allowed and will be added to the permanent list as a color for surgical sutures.) The red colors have been used in a wide variety of cosmetics, including some that may be subject to ingestion, such as lipstick. They were also used in drugs.

The four red colors and Yellow No. 1 were terminated because they contain or are suspected of containing potentially cancer-causing substances. The amendments require that colors for use in foods, drugs, or cosmetics be shown to be safe for their intended uses.

In a recent article written by Harold Hopkins, editorial director of FDA Consumer, it was stated that the FDA has begun the countdown on a series of actions that will produce a final determination of more than 80 color additives that for some years have had the agency's approval for use in food, drugs, and cosmetics. When the actions are completed all provisionally approved color additives will have received FDA's full blessing or will have been outlawed.

Mardi Gras beneficiary helps smooth hospital patients' way

TERRY BREMMYR, chief X-ray technologist at Charlevoix Area Hospital, and Jenny Bellairs examine some film developed by the new processor at the hospital. The processor is the beneficiary of the Mardi Gras this year.

A cold, metal machine has been selected as the beneficiary of the Charlevoix Mardi Gras festivities this year.

And while a machine may seem like a strange beneficiary, the Mardi Gras organizers are confident they have made the right choice. The machine, you see, is an efficient, automatic X-ray film processor at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Terry Bremmeyr, hospital chief X-ray technologist, explained that the new piece of equipment replaces a machine which after nine years of use was creating "out-of-hand repair bills" and had exceeded its estimated life expectancy.

Bremmeyr pointed out that the new equipment will speed things up for waiting patients because it is highly automated and better designed than the model it replaces.

The smooth functioning of an X-ray film processor is one of those behind-the-scenes activities in a hospital which is taken for granted. When such a device is operating as it should, patients are unaware of its existence. When an old machine jams or parts wear out, patients experience inconveniences.

One of the advantages of the new Kodak RP X-OMAT Processor is that the chemicals for developing the X-ray film are mixed and fed into the machine from storage tanks next to it.

"This means we do not have to stop to mix and pour chemicals as we had to for the old machine, while patients are waiting," Bremmeyr said.

The automation frees Bremmeyr and his colleagues to continue working with patients, saves patients' time and in the long run will help keep a lid on costs.

"There are more parts of this new machine which our personnel can service and perform preventive maintenance on," the chief X-ray technologist added. "This improvement will reduce the expense of maintenance service by the manufacturer which is very expensive."

A film festival and dinner will be held on the first night of Mardi Gras with all of the proceeds going to the hospital for the new film processor. The vital piece of X-ray equipment cost $10,000 and the hospital has already received $3,000 in donations for the machine.

The showing of the Academy Award nominee hang gliding and skiing film, "Off the Edge" and the following benefit dinner at the Grey Gables will be held Friday night. A special Saturday matinee will also be held.

Mardi Gras organizers and Jeff Campbell, star of the film, who often vacations in Charlevoix, developed the concept of a gala premiere and dinner for 200 at the Grey Gables specifically to raise funds for the X-ray equipment.

Tickets for the program cost $35 per couple for the premiere showing and dinner or $3.50 and $1.50 for adult and children's film tickets only. The cost of all tickets is tax deductible. For more ticket information contact Diane Novotny at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

I don't know about you, but for me, winter is hard enough to endure without having constant reminders of spring thrown my way. Now that we have had our T.V. disconnected for sometime, I no longer sit in my snowbound house wistfully watching pro golfers cavort over lush fairways. But there are other harbingers of Spring that keep us from settling too comfortably into winter, with the main culprit being the seed catalogue.

The first seed catalogue addressed to the Bellairs home arrived on December 24, possibly a new world record for early arrival. Noting that seed catalogs are Christmas is a rough equivalent to a Christmas sale on August 1, one would tend to think that our timetables are getting completely out of hand. But, as any veteran green thumb will tell you planning ahead is the name of the game for good gardens.

Now I ask you, who does the gardening at your house? If the whole family takes part, that's great. But if some of you are wondering how to get your kids involved, I believe we have the answer. Grow a 4-H garden. Not only is a garden fun, but it is also educational and rewarding, particularly if done as a 4-H project. Now if you and your family know nothing about gardening, I suggest you pick up our 4-H Bulletin No. 197 – The Home Garden Beginner. 'This booklet should answer all of your gardening questions such as: planning (garden location, what to grow, soil preparation); planting (row direction, where to plant particular vegetables); maintenance (weeding, thinning, transplanting); and harvesting and storage. You will even find a section on how to exhibit your vegetables – particularly valuable when your son or daughter competes for ribbons and money at the 4-H Fall Achievement Day.

A small step further, but quite a bit more fun, would be a neighborhood 4-H garden club. This allows members to save money by jointly ordering seed and sharing tools. It allows clubs to tour each others gardens, and, of course, it provides fun, fellowship, and a little friendly competition. And leading such a club is easier than you would imagine.

For 4-H'ers who really become interested in gardening we also have garden related booklets on plant science and soil science to help young gardeners learn why plants grow as they do. Also available are materials on flower gardening and indoor gardening. These projects, of course, can soothe the winter blahs, and provide a project to complete for our 4-H Spring Achievement Day in April.

We all will agree that youngsters will try harder if given proper incentives. 4-H provides incentives for diligent work. In addition to the ribbons awarded, 4-H'ers, are also eligible for much more. Spring Achievement Day offers the possibility of winning a 4-H Camp Scholarship. At our 4-H Fall Achievement, all 4-H members receive premium money for their projects. Members between the ages of nine and 13 are eligible for 4-H summer camp, while those 14 and older can choose between 4-H Snow Camp Exploration Days at Michigan State University and the Charlevoix County 4-H Service Club. (These events will be detailed in future articles.) And then in November, all 4-H award winners gather for our annual 4-H Awards Banquet.

After that, it's only a short time until those seed catalogues start arriving again.

Sign-up for lessons on figure skating set

Figure skating lessons will be offered again this year under the direction of the Charlevoix Recreation Department Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director, has announced.

Sign-up time for the lessons available to both children and adults will be at the ice rink at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 28. At that time, students may discuss lesson schedules, fees and other pertinent information with their teacher, Gwen Anderson.

Other information may be obtained by calling 547-2226 after 7 p.m.

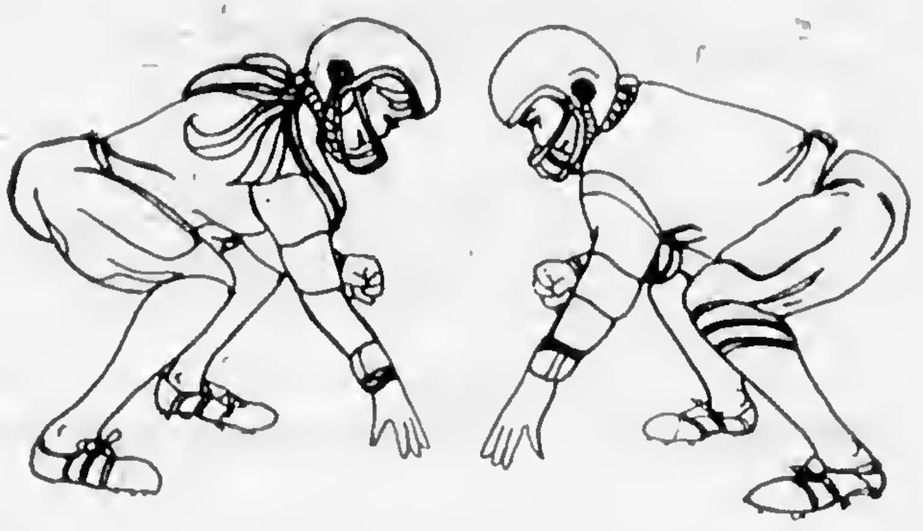
A girl on the football team? Not likely!



"Just the design of the football uniform would be a problem. How do you design shoulder pads to fit girls?" Charlevoix High School Principal Vane Smith asked in response to a question about girls participating in contact sports against boys such as football, wrestling or hockey.

A recent decision by a federal judge in Ohio that girls must be allowed to compete against boys in high school contact sports has created much speculation in surrounding states. The judge's decision is expected to have national impact.

Under current Michigan law, girls must be allowed to compete against boys in noncontact sports, but they are not allowed to compete in contact sports.

"We're goint to have to wait and see what the impact of this decision is," Smith continued. "We're all guessing at the negative. But in the long range, I think this decision will be detrimental to any girls program. I think it could totally ruin any kind of program for girls nationwide."

Smith said he expects to see reverse discrimination suits filed by high school boys wishing to play on girls teams.

"When that happens and you have guys going out for girls teams, it's going to ruin things like the girls volleyball program," the principal said. "You'll have the guys taking over the team and only the very best girls will be able to play and maybe not even then."

The high school girls varsity basketball coach Toni Felter agreed wholeheartedly with Smith.

"I hope the whole thing is ignored," Coach Felter said. "I think it could eliminate girls sports. If everything went co-ed the next thing you know, just a few exceptional girls would be playing."

Mrs. Felter said she would prefer seeing co-ed teams at the middle school level.

"At least at the middle school both boys and girls are still at the learning stage, but even so, the boys are ahead.

"In wrestling for example, the boys are thinking about wrestling already in middle school and they are on the weight machine. The girls aren't even thinking about using the weight machine.

"So what kind of a match would it be if the girls get out there and are pinned in 10 seconds?"

The coach and middle school physical education teacher said she was not opposed to girls playing contact sports if the girls had their own team and competed against girls.

Mrs. Felter didn't expect any girls at the high school to try out for the football or wrestling teams.

"They catch enough flak just about being jocks, let alone being girl jocks trying out for the boys team," she said.

Coach Norm Probert, who heads up the high school wrestling program, said having a co-ed wrestling team would complicate matters.

"How do you handle the weigh-ins?" the coach asked. "You know we have a visual inspection to check for any skin infections or other problems.

"So I get a first suit because I don't have girls on my team, then I get a second suit because of what I have to do at the weigh-ins," Probert quipped.

On the serious side, Probert questioned if high school girls could physically take wrestling against boys.

"It's a grueling sport and it takes a lot of endurance," the coach pointed out. "I'm not sure they could do it.

Personally, I just don't like the idea of girls wrestling," he said. "I wouldn't allow my daughter to wrestle, I just don't think it's a girls sport."

Head football coach Don Carey termed the court decision unrealistic.

"I think it's kind of ridiculous," Carey, who lead his team to a conference title without any female players, said

The coach also said he didn't think girls would be interested in playing football anyway.

"In the class I talked to, the girls said they didn't want to play anyway."

Roger Sharrow earns meritorious service award

Meritorious service at Lackland AFB, Tex., has earned the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal for Staff Sergeant Roger L. Sharrow, whose brother is Albert Sharrow of Rt. 1, Charlevoix, Mich.

Sergeant Sharrow, a telecommunications operations specialist, was presented the medal at Bremerhaven, Germany, where he now serves with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

The Sergeant is a 1968 graduate of Charlevoix Senior High School. His wife, Elisha, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Sartain of 6015 Elm Valley, San Antonio. Rt0.

Gary Charbeneau assigned to base in California

Airman Gary M. Charbeneau, son of Mr. and Mrs. David G. Charbeneau of Rt. 3, Charlevoix, Mich., has graduated at Lowry AFB, Colo., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for weapons mechanics.

Airman Charbeneau, who was trained to load and inspect weapons used in Air Force aircraft, is being assigned to George AFB, Calif., for duty with a unit of the Tactical Air Command. Completion of the course earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Russel Grunch earns degree

Staff Sergeant Russell R. Grunch, son of Mrs. Beatrice Grunch of 547 Petoskey Ave., Charlevoix, Mich., has graduated from Park College, St. Louis, Mo., with a B.A. degree in business administration.

Sergeant Grunch completed college studies through the U.S. Air Force off-duty education program.

The sergeant is assigned at Yokota AB, Japan, as a medical material supervisor with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces.

Sergeant Grunch is a 1970 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Van Loo promoted to senior airman

The U.S. Air Force has promoted Bryan R. VanLoo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roxy A. VanLoo of 501 E. Dixon, Charlevoix, Mont., to the rank of senior airman.

Airman VanLoo is serving at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., as a material storage specialist.

The airman is a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School. His wife, Sheri, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wolgamott of Charlevoix.

Foster homes needed for area boys, girls

There are a number of teenage boys and girls in Charlevoix County who need foster homes.

Some of them are delinquent but others have simply been neglected and need the love and protection of a family.

Bob O'Brien of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services reports that there are now about 30 foster families in the county, most of which care for younger children.

"Our real need is for homes for the older ones," he says.

Foster parents receive a realistic sum each month from the State Department of Social Services, as well as the services of the local Department of Social Services.

O'Brien is interested in hearing from anyone who would like to provide a foster home. His phone number is 547-4471.

Hypothermia can be caused by keeping house too cool

Everybody agreed that to save energy we should all turn back our thermostats to 65 degrees during the day, and even lower at night. But for people over 65 who may be vulnerable to hypothermia, the National Institute on Aging recommends keeping the thermostat above 65 degrees all the time.

What is accidental hypothermia? It's a drop in body temperature, and it can be fatal. Older people are particularly at risk. If a person is 65 years or older and has a disease of the veins or arteries, is taking a certain type of drug, such as phenothiazine (a commonly prescribed drug used to treat anxiety, depression or nausea); or has a body temperature regulating system that is not working properly, he or she may be vulnerable. And, unfortunately the most likely victims of accidental hypothermia are those older people who are unable to afford adequate heating. Inadequate heating, combined with the inability to respond normally to cold, presents the greatest risk. But even at temperatures as high at 60 degrees F, to 65 degrees F accidental hypothermia can happen.

How can the average person tell it's happening? The only sure way to detect hypothermia is with a special low-reading thermometer whose scale goes below the usual point of 94 degrees F (34 degrees C). But if you shake down a regular thermometer as low as 94 degrees, and the suspected victim's body temperature does not rise above 94 degrees, you should call the doctor immediately.

Other ways to tell include the following signs:

Most victims of hypothermia do not shiver (This is the body's way of responding to the cold and generating heat.)

Most victims seem unaware of the cold. (While others shiver and put on sweaters, hypothermia victims insist they are comfortable.)

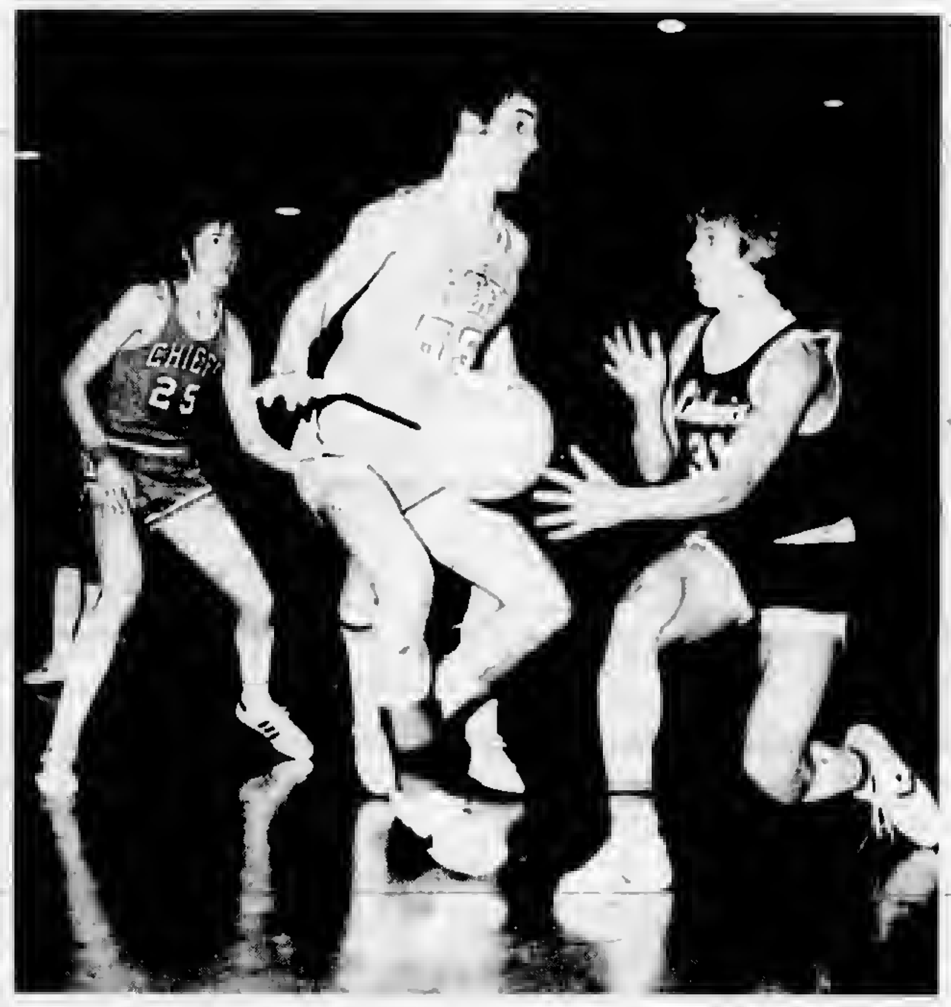
PLAYING A TOUGH defensive game, Neil Dziedzic forces a turn over from a Cheboygan player into the hands of teammate Pat Schmidt (35). Dziedzic had 12 points for the night including one dunk.

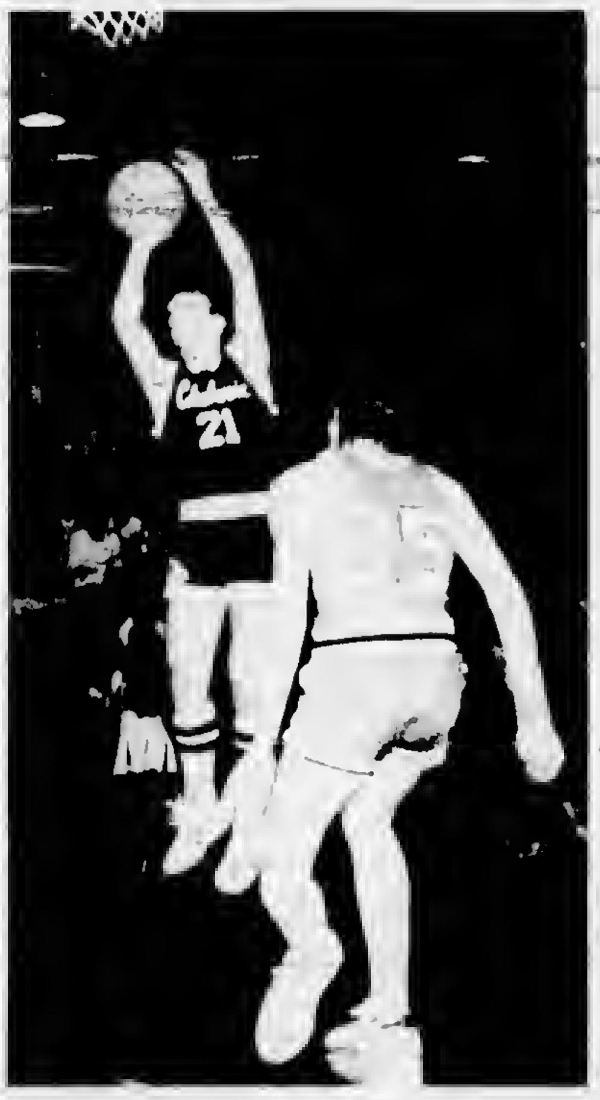
STEVE SCHUCH was up in the air way a head of this Cheboygan player, Den Stacks (11). A balanced attack helped the Rayders defeat the Chiefs 76-57 Friday night.

Rayders Scalp Cheboygan

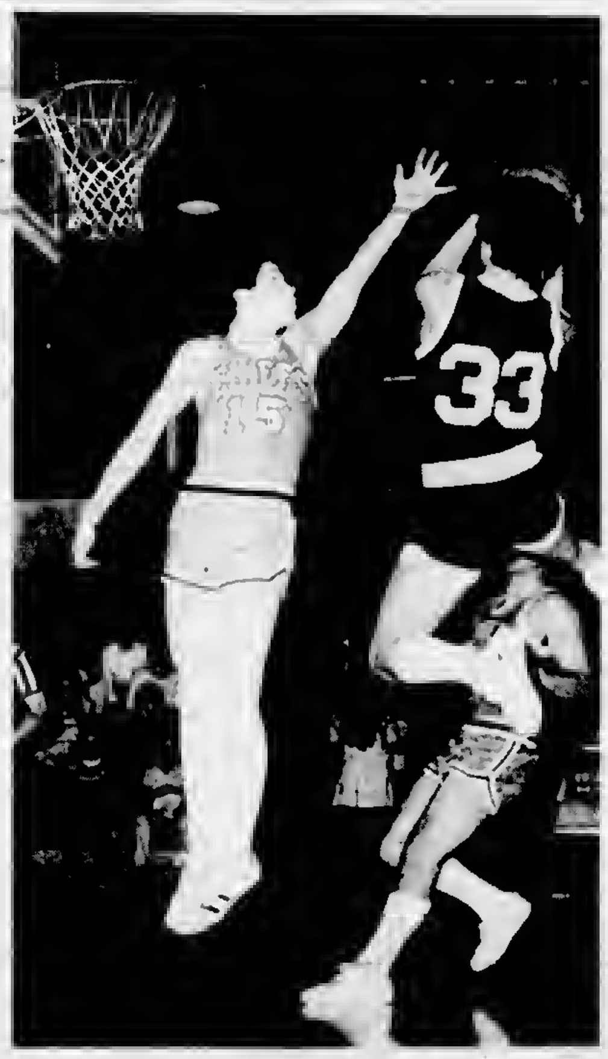
CHEBOYGAN'S Perry LaHaie (25) pulls off a rebound over the heads of several Rayder players. But that didn't stop the Rayders from winning 76-57.



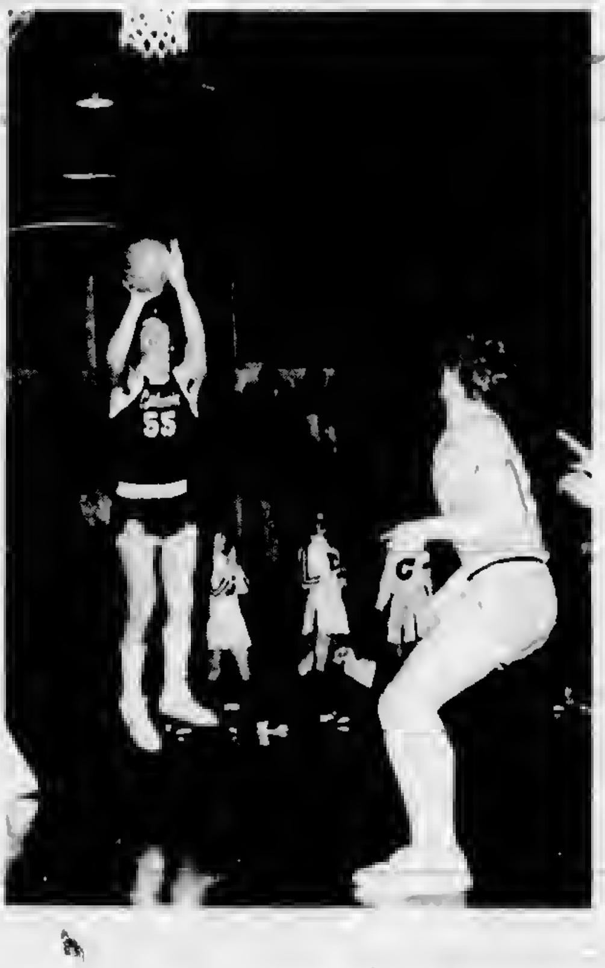
NEIL DZIEDZIC grabs a pass before Cheboygan challenger Donald Lange (55) or Perry LaHaie (25) can get a hand on it. Dziedzic was one of four players in double figures during the Rayders 76-57 defeat of the Cheboygan Chiefs.



KEVIN KRATT came off the bench as sixth man Friday night to help the Rayders to their first victory in four games. The Rayders scalped the Cheboygan Chiefs 76-57.



JOE LEFT (33) was up in the air and flying for Charlevoix in the Rayder-Cheboygan Chiefs game Friday night. Left had 10 points for his team despite attempts by Mike Grisdale (15) to stop the shooting attack.



KIP CINNAMON took the honors of fielding the last basket of the evening during the Charlevoix-Cheboygan game. Cinnamon's basket made the final score 76-57 as the Rayders rebounded from a three-game losing streak.

Balanced attack sparks Rayder victory

By BILL MERCER

Balance was the password in Charlevoix's 76-57 victory over Cheboygan in last week's Michigan-Huron Shores league encounter.

No less than four players scored in double figures as the Red Rayders put together one of their best efforts of the season.

Coach Dave Moyer not only received a balanced scoring attack, but through the full use of his bench, he avoided the foul trouble that has plagued the team all year. Reserve players Jim Elzinga, Kevin Kratt, Steve Schuch and Gil Noirot all helped in the victory.

Mr. Hustle, Bob Plumm, and conference scoring leader, Pat Schmidt, combined for 36 of the Rayder points, but this was definitely a team win as Neil Dziedzic carried 12 points and Joe Left contributed 10.

At the beginning of the contest, the two teams exchanged buckets. The score at the end of the first quarter was deadlocked at 16. Eight points by Schmidt paced Charlevoix's attack.

In the second period, Plumm tallied four buckets for eight points and with excellent defense, the home team held Cheboygan to a meager 12-point production.

Notable here is the fact that Charlevoix yielded the bonus situation to the Chiefs early in the second quarter. Fortunately for the Rayders, the Cheboygan players were unable to capitalize on its potential equalizer and missed four of four attempts. The visitors never allowed the bonus to take effect for Charlevoix during the first two periods of play.

Even though leading by eight points, Coach Moyer found it useful to employ a full quarter press to begin the third quarter. This helped the Rayders increase their lead to 12 points early in that period. One of the buckets which came off the press was an exciting two-handed dunk executed by Dziedzic.

In the end, it was good defense which spelled doom for the Chiefs. The hustling efforts of Schmidt, Kratt, Elzinga, Noirot and Alger along with good back court play by Left, Plumm and Dziedzic held Cheboygan scoreless for over two and one-half minutes in the fourth quarter.

This, along with the fact that the visitors could only tally three field goals in the final period, allowed Charlevoix to run away with the game. Eight Rayders scored in the last quarter with bad-knee Kip Cinnamon putting the last shot through at the buzzer.

Coach Moyer was pleased with the good team performance as the Rayders snapped a three-game losing streak.

"We put together a good team effort tonight," the coach said. "Everyone worked hard on defense and we had a good balanced scoring attack."

This week the Rayders take on non-league Onaway Tuesday night and meet Grayling at home on Friday. A victory over the Vikings would pull the team over the .500 mark in conference action.

Currently the Rayders stand 4-4 in league play and 4-6 on the season.

Charlevoix captures third in Montrose wrestling tourney

It was a third place notch for the Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers last weekend as they traveled to Montrose to compete in one of the tougher Saturday tournaments they will participate in this year.

The Rayders placed nine grapplers in the top four medal places to tally a total of 133.5 points in the tourney right behind first place Montrose with 165.5 points and Millington with 144 points. Montrose has captured the Class C state title three times and looks like a strong contender for a fourth title this year.

Senior Craig Golovich, 138 pounds, won the championship in his weight class to lead the nine medal winners. Jeff Drenth, 105 pounds, Dave Golovich, 112 pounds, Dennis Whitley, 191 pounds, and Greg Loper, heavyweight, all took second place medals.

Taking fourth place in their weight class were: Ron Hilton, 119 pounds, Lee DeMitchell, 126 pounds, Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds and Ande Keller, 178 pounds.

The upset of the tournament came when, Drenth defeated Montrose's Jack Dinnan in a major decision by 10-1. It was Drenth's first medal in wrestling this season.

Coach Norm Probert said he had considering having Drenth forfeit the match because the wrestlers had the chills and wasn't feeling well. However, Drenth drew a bye in the first round and by the second round was feeling better.

"I just told him to go after the Montrose wrestler with everything he had," Probert said. "Jeff just went after him and never stopped letting up."

Craig Golovich's matches were also exciting, as the senior wrestler took a giant step toward his goal of winning the state championship this year. Golovich defeated Class B medal winner Matt Funsch of Clio in the final in a 7-5 decision. He also pinned West Bloomfield's Lane Schmitzer in 3:40 and Montrose's Tom Lovasz in 5:45.

Dennis Whitley and Greg Loper also did exceptional jobs during the meet according to Coach Probert. Both wrestlers reached the finals in the tourney by defeating previously undefeated wrestlers. Whitley pinned Mike Cousineau of Clio in 3:24 and then won a 1-0 decision against Millington's Tim Wittum.

Loper pinned Dave Gilbert of West Bloomfield in 1:45 and Mack Sharkey of Millington in 4:34.

Butch Klooster assisted Probert in driving the team to the meet.

Rayders wrestle records, pin down new ones here

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team had a record breaking night last week at their final home match of the season.

Ron Hilton, 119 pounds, matched the school record for career wins and then broke it all in the same meet. Hilton won by forfeit against Elk Rapids and defeated Glen Lake's Dennis Lavanture in 4:39 to add two more victories to his total.

The senior is trying to reach a goal of 100 career wins.

Heavyweight Greg Loper also set a new record by getting the most consecutive pins of any heavyweight at Charlevoix High School. Loper has recorded nine pins in a row.

Both of the records broken by Hilton and Loper were held by Phil Christ.

The team also set a new team record of the most victories in a season by setting a dual meet record of 12 wins and 3 losses. The team's old record, set in 1974-75 season was 10 wins and 4 losses.

The Goloviches may have also set a record. All three members of the team, Dave, Scott and Craig won two matches apiece making a total of six wins for the team.

The final scores in the double dual meet between Charlevoix, St. Ignace, Glen Lake and Elk Rapids were: Charlevoix 66, Elk Rapids, 12; Charlevoix 58, Glen Lake 9; St. Ignace 60, Elk Rapids 15; and St. Ignace 51, Glen Lake 23.

Winners in the match against Glen Lake were: Don Mol in 5:24, Dave Golovich in 3:43, Ron Hilton in 4:39, Mike Kiteley in 5:40, Craig Golovich in 1:30 and Greg Loper in 2:32.

Winners by decision were Gene Morrison, 9-2; Scott Golovich, 13-11 and Dennis Whitley, 9-1.

Winners by forfeit were Brian Wimmer and Ande Keller.

In the Elk Rapids match winners were: Dave Golovich in 4:14, Craig Golovich in 3:11, Scott Golovich in 3:33, and Ande Keller in 1:58.

Winners by forfeit were: Don Mol, Jeff Drenth, Ron Hilton, Lee DeMitchell, Mike Kiteley, Dennis Whitley and Greg Loper.

Girls split wins with Grayling, Cheboygan Chiefs

The Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team lost to the Grayling Vikings last week in an emotional game.

Grayling took all three games winning the first one 11-15, then 15-17 and 1-15.

The junior varsity volleyball team also lost their meet to Grayling. However, the JVs opened the meet by taking the first game 15-12. Then they dropped the next two games 15-17 and 14-16.

On Monday night the Rayders defeated the Cheboygan Chiefs at Cheboygan. The Rayders were playing a make-up game with the Chiefs.

Charlevoix took the first two games 15-0 and 15-5. The girls dropped the third game 11-15 but came back for a 15-2 win in the finale.

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity won two of three contests, 15-7, 16-14 and 8-15.

The next volleyball game will be at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday against Rogers City in the Charlevoix High School gym.

JVs defeat Chiefs, drop game to Harbor

The Rayder junior varsity basketball team split its games last week defeating Cheboygan 58-51, and dropping a game to ever tough Harbor Springs, 68-45.

In Friday's game, the JVs started out with a slim one-point lead at the end of the first quarter and held on to that lead for the rest of the game.

The first quarter score was 13-12 in favor of the Rayders. That score jumped to 29-24 by halftime and moved to 46-33 in the third period.

Top scorer for the Rayders was Jeff Peters with 18 points. Gerald Doan followed with 12 points and Scott Morgan had Ken Otmanowski, 6, and Jack Cross, 5.

For the Chiefs, Elliot had 17 points.

In the Harbor Springs game last Tuesday, the Rayder JV started out with a two-point lead with a first quarter score of 12-10. But the Rayders couldn't hold the lead as they slipped to 34-22 at halftime and 50-31 by the end of the third quarter.

Otmanowski was the top scorer in this game with 19 points. Peters followed with 10 points and Cross had 6.

For Harbor Springs, Leik had 22 points and Saddeson had 17.

Thompson does well at speedskating meet

A Charlevoix student took third place in the Michigan State Outdoor Speedskating Championships held in Alpena Saturday and Sunday.

Brian Thompson, son of Curtis and Louise Thompson, 204 Park Row, took four third places and a fourth place. Thompson took third place medals in the 440 yard dash, 880 yard dash, the three-quarter mile and one-mile races. He received a fourth place in the 220-yard dash.

Thompson was also given an award for fourth place in the state in the 1976-77 season at the High Point Banquet held Saturday night.

Freshmen lose to Cheboygan

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball squad gave up a tough game to the Cheboygan freshmen last week. The Chiefs downed the Rayders 61-44.

Cheboygan started out with a slim two-point lead in the first quarter with a score of 4-2. By halftime the Chiefs had widened their lead to ten points for a score of 25-15.

In the third period the Chiefs dumped in 19 more points to the Rayders 15 to make that period's score 44-30.

For the Rayders, the high point men were Jeff Drury with 17 points and Ben Shores with 12. On the Cheboygan side, Merritt had 17 points.

YOU'RE AN IMPORTANT PERSON IN THE EYES OF GOD.

In this age of computers, in every regard, we have all been reduced to a hole in a card. Oh, how simple it was in our house by the road, Till they added the Zip and the Area Code! In your place of employment, or out in your car, You're a serial number wherever you are; And you find your identity harder to claim when you're known by a number instead of a name. So, there's one thing to do: let your faith lead the way to the place where you still can be Someone today. If you go to your Church, you'll be happy to find in the eyes of the Lord you are one of a kind!

Gloria Nowak

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.
--Romans 8:14

It is the common wonder of all men, how among so many millions of faces there should be none alike.

Obituary

Mary Frankini

Funeral services for Mrs. Arthur (Mary) Frankini, 81, of Iron Mountain, mother of Mrs. Paul Osterberg, were held earlier this month at Immaculate Conception Church in Iron Mountain. The Rev. Bernard Rooney officiated. Interment was in Cemetery Park.

Mrs. Frankini died Dec. 29 at Dickinson county Memorial Hospital following a brief illness. Services were held Jan. 2.

A native of Iron Mountain, the former Mary Catherine Perina was married to Mr. Frankini in 1918. Prior to his death in 1971 he had operated Frankini & Sons Jewelry for more than 50 years.

She was active in church, fraternal and civic circles.

Besides Mrs. Osterberg, Mrs. Frankini is survived by two other daughters; two sons; 19 grandchildren; six great grandchildren; a brother and one sister.

CLEMENTINE McCAULEY

Funeral services and burial were held for Clementine McCauley, 77, Jan. 17 in St. Joe, Mich.

Miss McCauley died suddenly in St. Joe on Jan. 14.

She was born on Beaver Island in 1901 and graduated from high school there. She later became a teacher and taught in the Detroit school system for many years.

At the time of her retirement she was principal of an elementary school in Ecorse. During her lifetime, she received many honors related to the teaching profession.

Miss McCauley was the daughter of the late Mary and Owen McCauley of Beaver Island and the sister of the late Alexander McCauley of Chicago and the late Justine McCauley of St. Joe.

She is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Armor making a comeback

Some men are willing to pay $4,000 for a custom-tailored English suit. Then they seldom wear it.

For that price, however, they don't get an ordinary three-piece garment. These suits come in seven sections, weigh 75 pounds, and are made by one of the world's few remaining armorers.

There has been little call for clothes that clank since Hollywood stopped filming medieval epics. But a craftsman in Oxfordshire keeps busy hammering metal suits for mail-order customers in the United States.

Weapons Supplied

The steel clothing is decorated with brass applique and lined with heavy cloth. Each suit has its own wooden valet stand and plaque inscribed with its owner's name. Included in the price tag is a standard-issue broadsword, spiked mace, and seven-foot halberd.

The 16th-century-period armor contains more than 100 well-oiled moving parts and takes about four months to complete. Though the suits are wearable, if slightly unwieldy, they generally end up decorating rooms in their buyers' homes.

Even before the era of mounted knights faded, suits of armor had become more decorative than practical. Musket balls rendered steel armor useless on the battlefield.

From the earliest shields of leather or wood, armor developed through the years into the metal shields, helmets, breastplates, and leg guards of Greco-Roman armies.

Decorations, first painted on shields, progressed to include plumbed headgear, with shields and breastplates engraved, embossed, and inlaid according to the wearer's wealth and status.

The armorer's art reached its pinnacle in the Middle Ages, when a fighting man's lobster-like metal shell covered him almost completely. A full suit of armor might have 200 articulate parts, riveted and strapped together.

Styles Changed

By the 18th century, musketry and cannon fire transformed this intricate hardware into scrap steel – or museum displays.

Armor has made a comeback today, but not in the ornate, individually-fitted fashion of former times. Lighter, more mobile, and considerably more effective, the flak suits worn in Vietnam battles ran to drab khaki or camouflage patterns.

Body armor now donned by police SWAT teams resembles the equipment used by baseball catchers. And the visored helmets worn by riot squads provide more visibility, but less ornamentation, than the crested helms of knights at arms.

For the man whose taste runs to fancier armor some of the miracles of the modern armorer's skill are available in decorative styling, if he works for a law enforcement agency.

Plainclothes officers favor bullet-stopping clothing lined with layers of a man-made fabric five times stronger than steel. Designed into sportscoats, vests and slacks in plaids, checks, pinstripes, tweeds, or solid shades, the material offers a coordinated wardrobe for far less than $4,000.

Foggy Splendor

AS THE TEMPERATURES DOVE well below zero last week the heat pour the water in Lake Michigan creating a foggy splendor just off shore. This was taken from the Charlevoix Courier office on the Lake Michigan shore

Ski team slides into first victory

The Charlevoix Rayder ski team bounced back from its first loss of the season to soundly defeat the Boyne City Ramblers last week.

The Rayder boys defeated the Rambler boys 25-53 and the Charlevoix girls defeated the Boyne City girls 27-53 in a meet at Boyne Mountain.

Erik Lundteigen of Charlevoix captured first place in both the slalom and giant slalom races while Greg Krueger of Charlevoix took second place in the slalom and Mark Lignell of Charlevoix took third place in the slalom and the giant slalom.

Kim Amesbury of Boyne City took second place in the giant slalom in the boys competition.

In the girls competition, Madelyn Iannotti took first place in the slalom with Julie Dunlop of Boyne City taking second and Kristen Lignell of Charlevoix placing third.

In giant slalom, Michelle Coombes of Boyne City won first place, Miss Iannotti took second place and Debbie Fochtmon of Charlevoix took third place.

Charlevoix's next meet will be against Grayling at 1 p.m. Wednesday. If the snow conditions are good, the teams will compete at Mt. McSauba.

The Leaning Tree

Running a home is becoming a very complex business. In fact it has become just that – a business. The same principles for running an efficient business apply to managing a home. Few businesses could operate if the bills were in one place, the checkbook in another, and no records of income and expenditures were kept.

It is a good idea for families to treat their finances as a business operation. If you do not have a definite plan 1978 may be a good year to begin one.

It really doesn't matter what your yearly income is. A budget can help anyone meet their needs and goals. The purpose of a budget is not to impose restrictions on yourself. It is a method of helping you meet your financial goals.

If you are attempting a first budget, or strengthening an old one, here are a few recommendations:

1. First determine fixed costs — including monthly rent, utilities, installment payments, insurance payments, etc.

2. Next determine your spending habits, write them down and know – what, where, when and how your money is spent to keep track of the more flexible expenses.

3. Set up a plan for food expenditures – items you will purchase, meals eaten out, etc.

4. Learn how to supplement your budget by taking advantage of sales.

5. Plan for other economies. Look at your costs around the home and ways you can economize – transportation, fuel, clothing, etc.

This system should involve the entire family. It helps show income coming in and expenditures going out, and helps establish a guideline for the future.

Remember once you have set up your budget to give it a fair chance. If you are not used to budgeting you may fall back into previous spending habits – but don't give up – keep trying. You can gain additional help and information on budgeting by contacting your County Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service office.

Gail Powell elected to student council

A former Charlevoix High School student has been elected to the student council of the Grand Rapids Baptist College and Seminary.

Gail Powell, a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, was elected the freshman class representative to the student council. Miss Powell was active in student government on the student council and at the class level when she attended Charlevoix High School.

Five area students on Ferris honor roll

Five Charlevoix County students have been named to the Ferris College honor roll for fall term.

From Charlevoix Candace P. Olson was named to the list along with Diane E. Blackman and Eileen K. Mosher of East Jordan, Joseph A. Sarason of Boyne City and Alfred J. Hass of Walloon Lake.

To be named to the Academic Honors List, a student must earn at least a 3.25 average on a 4. basis and carry a full academic load of 14 credit hours.

SNOW HAMPERED the delivery of mail and all other types of deliveries in Charlevoix last week. Here Erin Arvilla poses next to the drift that engulfed the post office. Mail workers said they couldn't remember when the snow had drifted so high in front of the building.

Charlevoix weathers storm in good shape

By PEG OHLE

Years from now it will be referred to as the "Three-day Blow of 1978."

People who are mere children now will recount tales of what happened as they were stranded here and there in Charlevoix County to their children and grandchildren.

As the years pass and even as the days pass the storm will grow bigger and more intense as stories are told and retold. For the record, this is what really happened during those three days last week.

The Lodge motel served as a haven for many local businessmen and others who could not make it home Thursday evening.

"We had people from Lexalite, Michigan Bell, the postal service, some people from Norwood, and others who stayed all night," said Jack Uhrick. "We had a ball in the lobby."

Bill Lenardson of the Weathervane Terrace motel reported that guests who had planned to leave Thursday stayed over night.

"Traveling businessmen, skiers, and other guests just couldn't get out," he said.

The Archway Motel on the south side of town housed guests who couldn't get home from the Impact Tool Company and some truck drivers who just gave up on their runs, according to Jean Stebe.

Three nurses on their way home from the Charlevoix Area Hospital checked into the Capri Motel after getting stuck in the snow, as did some employees from the Boyne Auto Company, some who walked to the motel from the store, Betty Hamilton reports.

The North Star Motel furnished food to five guests because none of the nearby restaurants were open. "I'm making a big pot of soup for tonight (Friday)," Clara Parsell said.

Those stranded downtown Charlevoix Thursday noon could find lunch at the Weathervane Inn, although only two waitresses could make it to work. The Inn was closed for dinner Thursday evening, but the bar remained open through the evening.

A large number of local people looking for something to do crowded the Weathervane at noon on Friday and for dinner Friday evening. A number of cross country skis at the door of the Weathervane attested to the type of transportation used by some.

Law enforcement officials had their hands full as they attempted to aid county residents and to dig themselves out, too.

Sheriff George Lasater spent three hours getting from his home in Boyne City to his Charlevoix headquarters. "One of our crews was on duty 24 hours because the other one couldn't get in," he said.

Power Outage

There were few accidents reported during the height of the storm because people did not venture out, Lasater said. His main concern during the period was with an 80-year-old couple in Eveline Township who were without heat or light for 14 hours because of power-line failure. The sheriff's department was finally able to pick up a Top o' Michigan maintenance crew so the outage was remedied.

Top O' Michigan reported only three outages, all of them involving only a few customers. Complete service was restored by noon Friday.

The Charlevoix County Building closed down Thursday afternoon and did not open for business on Friday. County Clerk Clarence Rabach said he couldn't remember when the county offices had not opened for business. One county employee did go to work Friday, however. County Planner John Hess, a transplant from the Upper Peninsula, put on his snowshoes and mushed to work from his home just outside the city limits.

The Charlevoix City Hall also closed down at noon Thursday, but on Friday Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham answered the telephone and said there were "a few of us" here. "We even had a few customers," she added.

Mayor Edward Hansen said he could recall only one other time in the last six years that he has been mayor that the city had to shut its offices due to the weather.

No Mail Delivery

The mailman's motto of neither rain, nor hail nor heat of day shall stop delivery was altered to allow stoppage for severe winter storms last week.

There was little business at the Charlevoix Post Office during the storm. A small amount of mail came into town Thursday, but the truck's didn't make it on Friday.

Lack of being able to get from place to place resulted in a different problem for area dairy farmers. Tank trucks were not able to come up from Traverse City, and the farmers' milk tranks were full. "We'll probably have to dump some of the milk after our milking today (Friday)", Tom Wieland told the Courier. "Then, too, there is the problem of getting to the barns. I have a snow drift about eight feet high that's going to take three or four hours to shovel."

Comments on Beaver Island Boat Co.

I came up with something good. Let the Beaver Islander move to Petoskey. That will solve our parking and clean our dock – it's full of junk. We can use the building for the harbor master. The harbor dock is full of cargo at all times. It's a sight for sore eyes. Only a few people benefit by the boat company and I mean just a few.

Thank you – A taxpayer

Pet Peeves

I've got two pet peeves. First, the local car wash never works right or is shut down. Second, is the price of prescriptions in Charlevoix, compared to Boyne City or Petoskey. Thank you, signed "lifetime resident."

Wants More Information

This is in reference to a story in this week's Courier entitled "School Board Sets Policies". Concerning the fact that the kindergarten and nursery teachers have worked hard on changing the date for kindergarten entrance, I have really been fallowing the paper, along with others, waiting to find the results of the School Board's opinion on this, and I feel that any parents who do not have children in high school, probably looked at the title and said, that doesn't concern me and read on. I, for one, and several others, totally missed it. I suggest a follow-up story, perhaps interviewing the two kindergarten teachers and the nursery or something on this so that parents will be aware at this point.

Courier switches move to today

Surprise! Due to inclement weather, the Charlevoix Courier did not move its offices last Friday as was announced.

We are going to try our hand at moving again today (Wednesday), however. From now on you will find the Courier offices in the Market Mall on Bridge Street.

The newspaper staff will occupy the former quarters of Marty's Tropical World, upstairs in the front of the mall. Our offices will be closed for the afternoon, but we will be back in full operation Thursday morning.

Our telephone number will remain the same, 547-6558 for the office and 547-6559 for Hotline.

As it operated at capacity level

It was double duty for hospital

"Good morning, Charlevoix Area Hospi–hotel–hospital," the receptionist blurted out over the telephone.

"We've been so worried about people getting home you know and we've had so many who have had to stay here that I can't remember if it's a hospital or a hotel," she explained quickly.

And that in a nutshell sums up the effect of the "Great Blizzard of '78" in hospital operations last week.

The dedication of the employees was evident as they willingly switched from their normal eight-hour shifts to 12-hour shifts without a hitch. And many of the employees stayed in the hospital 24 hours prepared to offer their services when they were needed.

"We converted the solarium into a dormitory and most of the employees spent Thursday night there," Diane Novotny explained.

"We have a lot of employees who live in the country or near Ellsworth, Central Lake and Elk Rapids," Mrs. Novotny explained. "They could get into work Thursday morning but there was no way they could go home. We even had one doctor who had to stay overnight."

Mrs. Novotny said many employees who lived in town phoned in to offer to work extra hours during the storm. One dedicated nurse, Luanne Henry, drove 12 miles on snowmobile to make it in for her shift.

A shuttle service of four-wheel drive vehicles owned by several hospital employees was set up to bring the local employees in to work and to take them home during the storm.

"Everyone was just great and they really pitched in and helped," Kathy Boss, director of nursing, said. "The storm couldn't have happened at a worse time. We were completely full with patients in every department."

In addition to the storm, the birth of a baby to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark and two other emergencies provided a little excitement for hospital employees.

And there was time for humor, too, Mrs. Novotny said.

One nurse anesthetist, Joan Strawbridge, lives in Boyne City. She decided to venture home Friday and many of the employees were quite concerned about her.

"She called when she got home and it was announced over the PA system that the Ether Bunny had made it home to her hutch," Mrs. Novotny said.

Only the Ground Hog knows for sure

Is the worst of winter over for Charlevoix?

So you think the worst of winter is over.

Don't hold your breath. According to old timers, Northern Michigan has been known to have two or three blizzards during a winter.

And on this, Ground Hog's Day Eve, there is much speculation as to what the rest of the winter will be like.

The 1978 Old Farmer's Almanac predicted an abundance of snow for December and January with extreme cold in January, February and March are supposed to be much warmer but then April through June cooler than the average.

For the month of February, the Almanac predicted temperatures around 25 degrees with a few snow flurries and actual snowfall about an inch below average for the month.

But if you really want to know what the rest of winter will be like, you should look up your friendly, neighborhood ground hog on Thursday.

According to superstition, the ground hog comes out of his or her burrow on the second day of February, looks around and if he or she sees a shadow decides that spring is still six weeks off.

The ground hog will then crawl back into bed to finish his or her winter's nap.

If, however, the day is grey and the ground hog can't see a shadow then spring is just around the corner.

Although the tradition has no basis in fact, according to the World Book Encyclopedia, it seems to be almost as accurate as the weather bureau predictions, the aches and pains of toes and fingers and other instruments of the weather.

"HEY, THAT'S MY DODGE."

'78 DODGE ASPEN COUPE.

That's what folks are saying these days. Because more and more people are discovering what Dodge has to offer. Like Aspen, the biggest sales success story in Dodge's history. And no wonder! Aspen has been styled, sized, and priced right.

Aspen gets the right kind of mileage too. EPA mileage estimates for Aspen coupe with six cylinder engine and manual transmission are 28 mpg highway and 20 mpg city. Your actual mileage may vary according to your car's condition, its equipment, and your driving habits.

One more thing. 1976 Aspen coupe offers greater resale value than Chevy Nova, Buick Skylark, or Olds Omega. This comparison is based on average resale values of comparably equipped one-year-old vehicles as listed in the AMR Guide Book dated October 5, 1977.

So if you're looking for a comfortable, roomy, good-looking, smooth-riding car, look into a new Aspen coupe, sedan, or wagon today.

In no time at all, you'll be saying That's my Dodge!

Careys to reign over Mardi Gras

Two devoted supporters of the Charlevoix Area Hospital have been selected as the 1978 Mardi Gras King and Queen.

Tom and Esther Carey will preside as King and Queen Rex over the Mardi Gras festivities benefitting the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The festivities will open with the 7 p.m. Friday showing of the Academy Award nominee documentary "Off the Edge" at the Cinema III followed by a benefit dinner at the Grey Gables Inn.

Funds from Mardi Gras activities will be used to help defray the costs of the new X-ray film processor at the hospital. More than $3,000 has already been donated to help pay for the $10,000 piece of equipment.

The Careys were chosen to reign as the monarchs of Mardi Gras by a committee of Charlevoix area businessmen who felt the couple's special involvement with Charlevoix Area Hospital as well as community affairs made them outstanding candidates for the royal posts.

"They were chosen primarily because of their out-of-the-ordinary involvement in the community and especially with the hospital," Dave Phillips, Mardi Gras organizer, explained.

Tom Carey has served as president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors for three years and has been a member of the board for five years.

"We wanted to recognize Tom's hard work and effort to keep an accredited hospital accredited and at the same time deal with the rising costs of medicine today," Phillips said.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger also had praise for the Careys.

"Tom and Esther are people who always seem to be more concerned about other people than they are about themselves," Krueger said. "They are always willing to give a great deal of themselves."

The Careys will be officially crowned at the benefit dinner Friday night. Jeff Campbell, skier and hang glider star of the film "Off the Edge," will help crown the Careys.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey are both native Charlevoixans, graduating together from Charlevoix High School in 1940. They were married in 1945 in San Francisco, between Carey's World War II tours of duty with the construction battalion Seabees in the South Pacific.

After the war, they returned to Charlevoix and Mrs. Carey, a graduate R.N., began her work in the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a nurse for 34 years with some time off to raise the couple's seven children.

For the past 10 years, Mrs. Carey has worked steadily at the Charlevoix Area Hospital without missing a single day.

"I always manage to be sick on my days off," she quipped.

Carey began his business career in Charlevoix in Carey and Sons, his father's painting and decorating business. He later entered the oil business founding the Carey Oil Company. Presently he is a field representative for Horner Equipment Corporation, which distributes petroleum equipment.

In keeping with the tradition set by his father and grandfather, Carey served two terms as Third Ward alderman in the mid 1950s. He has also been active in the Episcopal Church serving as warden, vestryman and occasionally as volunteer janitor, plumber and carpenter.

He is a past master of the Charlevoix Masonic Lodge and a member of the DeWitt Clinton Consistory and the Shriners.

But the hospital has long been a special interest to Carey.

"Tom said for years that the hospital board was something on which he would like to serve," Mrs. Carey reported.

Carey continued: "So many people worked and sacrificed so long for this hospital, it's an honor to try to carry on."

The hospital and church have been special projects of both Careys. Mrs. Carey is a past president of the Women's Guild of the Episcopal Church and is now secretary-treasurer. She has been a Sunday School teacher as well.

"Esther serves quietly behind the scenes. If you ever have trouble, she's there," one friend of the family observed.

Few tickets remaining for hospital benefit

Only a few tickets are left for the benefit Mardi Gras dinner slated at the Grey Gables Inn Friday night.

The combination tickets for the dinner and the premier showing of Academy Award nominee documentary, "Off the Edge," have sold like hot cakes, according to Mardi Gras organizer Dave Phillips.

A few remaining dinner tickets may be purchased at the Grey Gables or from Tom Carey, president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board.

Tickets are still available for the movie however. People may attend either the 7 p.m. Friday showing or the 3 p.m. Saturday matinee following the downhill ski races.

Tickets may be picked up at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Williams Dockside Pharmacy, the Shop of the Gulls and the Grey Gables in Charlevoix, Bob Mathers Ford in Boyne City, and from Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan.

Tickets for-the-film-only may also be purchased at Cinema III.

The price of the tickets, which is tax deductible is $35 a couple and $20 a person for the film and dinner.

Tickets for the film only are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Snow storm scares business away

While snow may have paralyzed motorists and trapped both city and country residents in their homes last week, a few businessmen managed to make their way downtown to open their doors Thursday and Friday.

A survey of a few stores Thursday revealed that many businessmen intended to stay open all day. However, by noon most places were shut tight against the storm and customers.

Thursday morning found Jim Miller, owner of Staley's Hardware, hard at work.

"Why sure we're going to be open all day. Is there something wrong with the weather?" Miller joked.

The hardware man said he had three employees at the store taking care of a stock order that had come in the day before.

"There's always things to do, customers or not," Miller said. "But we've had a few customers today, too."

A representative of Kaden's said the store would stay open Thursday because poor weather conditions often brought more customers into the store.

"It's really funny," the clerk said "We've found that the wilder it is outside, the more people come in.

"The last really wild, wintery day we had was one of the best days saleswise that we have had lately. It didn't really start until 12:30 p.m. but then it lasted until 5:30 p.m."

But Kadens wasn't open after noon Thursday, the weather was just too wild for shoppers and store employees alike.

Bonnie Hand, who with her husband, Dave, owns Bridge Street Hardware, agreed that bad weather often helped business. When contacted Friday, Mrs. Hand said that she had been really busy.

"Thursday and Friday have both been better than the same days last week," she said.

"People were in buying nuts and bolts for snow plows and snow blowers. And they were buying backpacks, snowshoes and toboggans."

Lou Hollow, president of the First State Bank of Charlevoix explained that bankers feel obligated to remain open even on the stormiest of days

"I've always been taught that banks have a more than serious obligation to stay open," Hollow explained. "If someone came to the bank on a day it was supposed to be open and it was closed, it could conjour up all kinds of thoughts of the 1930s."

Showing his dedication to keeping the bank open, Hollow trudged into Charlevoix from his home on Pa-Bo-Shan Lane Friday. He was picked up at Phillips Standard Station and given a ride the rest of the way in.

Hollow said the banks in Detroit closed at noon Thursday and the banks in Grand Rapids never even opened. In Charlevoix the banks also closed at noon Thursday while Charlevoix Federal Credit Union and Family Federal Savings were unable to open at all.

All of the grocery stores in town remained open most of Thursday and Friday and they even had customers.

Leroy Buchanan, manager of Olesons Food Stores, said his biggest problem was keeping the parking lot clear.

"The lot is jammed up with snow," Buchanan said Thursday. "We've plowed a couple of times, but it keeps filling back up."

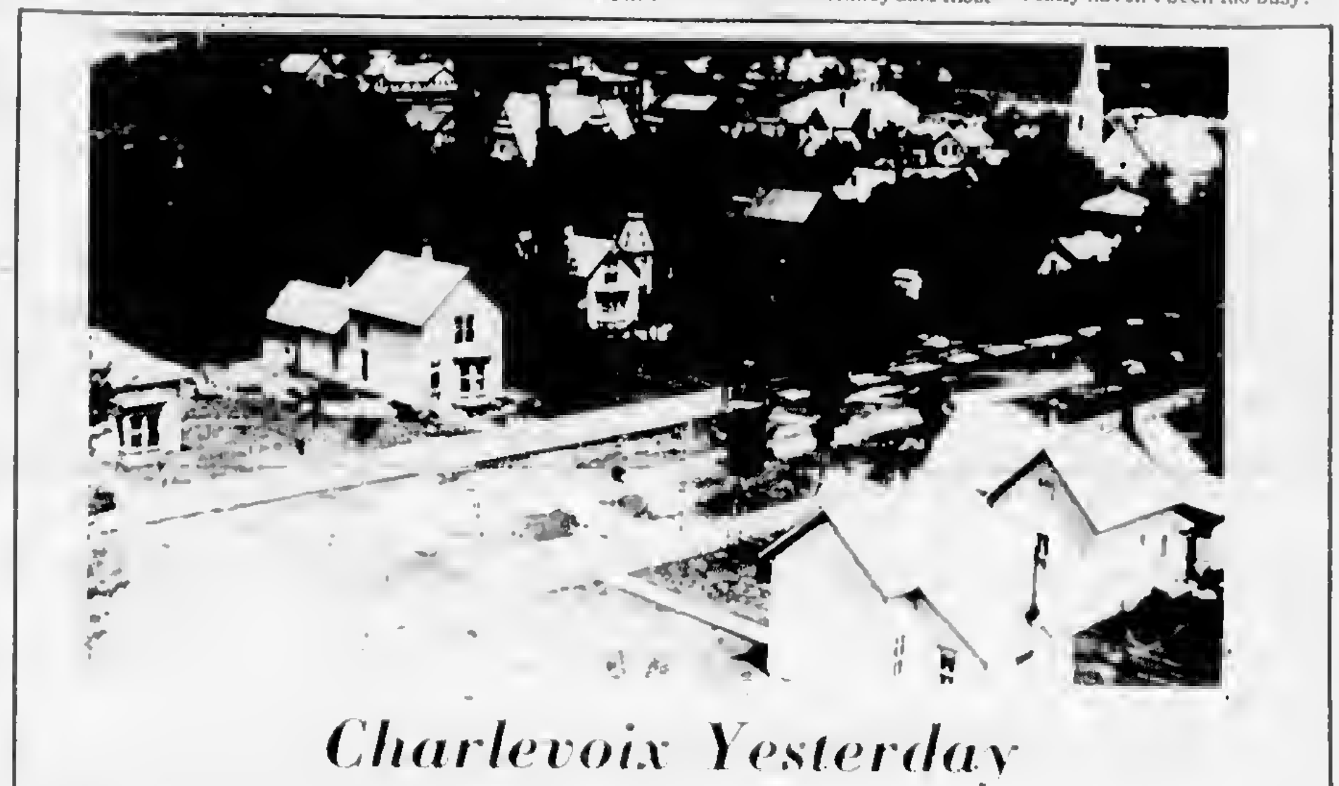
Buchanan said he couldn't remember a day when the store had been closed because of the weather

The drug stores also managed to be open at least part of the day on Thursday and Friday.

A spokesman at the Dockside Pharmacy said most of the customers Friday were kids after cokes and people with emergency prescription requests.

"Many of the people have been here for heart medicine and things like that," the spokesman said. "But we really haven't been too busy."

SIDEWALK PLOWS as well as street plows were hard at work Thursday and Friday. Snow drifted as high as four feet along Bridge Street sidewalks.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS PICTURE OF CHARLEVOIX taken in 1889 from the belfry of the newly constructed brick school building now the Charlevoix Middle School, shows a portion of Clinton Street. From the middle 1870s until the turn of the century, Clinton Street was commonly referred to as Hoop Skirt Alley. In the upper right corner can be seen the Methodist Church with the Congregational Church in the upper center. Just to the left in the distance is the Fountain City House, a former resort hotel. It is interesting to note the board sidewalks with picket and rail fences everywhere along Clinton Street. In the middle of the road area is a one lane dirt road with grass on the shoulders. As homes were built farther west along the street, plantings of maple trees followed. A new planting can be seen in the left foreground. Anyone who has a picture of Charlevoix before the 1950s that they would like to share with Charlevoix Courier readers should contact the Courier at 547-6558.

Charlevoix House has come a long way in last 2 years

You've come a long way baby, the old saying goes.

And while that saying is usually employed to describe the progress of the women's movement, it could also be used to describe the growth of Charlevoix House.

Charlevoix House is a licensed group home which provides individualized living with the support of adult foster care for six mentally impaired adults.

The home, operated by Kathy and Pat Hynes with the help of CETA aide Randy Cain, looks like any other house in its Belvedere Avenue neighborhood. But behind its doors a lot of learning and living takes place.

Since the Charlevoix House opened its doors two years ago to mentally impaired adults, a lot of changes have taken place. But they aren't changes that can be readily seen or measured.

"The biggest changes that have taken place here are individual ones," Kathy Hynes, a director of the house, explained. "The changes occurred within the individual and not with the group."

The goal of the Charlevoix House is to train the residents so that they will be able to move out on their own. The Hynes spend a lot of time with the residents teaching them domestic skills such as cleaning, cooking, menu planning and small home repairs.

The young couple also works with the residents of Charlevoix House on relating socially with each other and with the community and other handicapped people.

Learn to Make Decisions

"We generally supervise the gradual making of the residents' own decisions," Mrs. Hynes explained. "We're there to let them do things on their own, but also to be there when they need help.

"The general philosophy of the house is to teach the residents to deal with the natural conflicts of day-to-day living. We feel if they can work out those conflicts in an open atmosphere they will be miles ahead."

Mrs. Hynes said many lessons had been learned as the residents begin to deal with their own handicaps and with those of others.

"It's really been a learning experience for us, too," Mrs. Hynes said speaking for her husband and two children, Rachel and Gabriel. "I'm sure we've learned as much as anyone here."

Mrs. Hynes said the most rewarding thing that has happened during the last two years was the marriage of two residents of the house.

"We had two residents, Sharon and Harold, who met here, fell in love, got married and moved out on their own." she said. "It makes everything worthwhile to see them and to see how they are after a year of marriage.

"They are very happy and devoted to each other and they have really developed in their male-female relationship.

"And they're really on their own. We're just friends with them now."

Two More Planning Move

Mrs. Hynes said two other residents are also planning to move out of Charlevoix House into their own apartment within the next few months. This move is especially exciting to Mrs. Hynes because she never expected the one resident to be able to be independent. She thought he would always have to be supervised.

"But he's done a lot of maturing and growing and now he will be able to take care of himself," she said glowing with excitement.

"The two that are moving out will make quite an odd couple," she said. "One is sort of an intellectual and the other is just so full of energy and enthusiasm. But they're a good match too, because what one can't do the other can."

In preparation for the move, the two men have been collecting furniture and saving their money. They have also been submitting weekly menus to Mrs. Hynes and doing all their own cooking looking forward to the day when they have to do everything on their own.

Mrs. Hynes said the residents of Charlevoix House had also made great strides toward becoming a part of the community in the last two years.

"They're very interested in local government and politics," she explained. "They can explain to me everything that is going on. For instance, they knew all about the Medusa controversy."

Made Close Friends

Mrs. Hynes said the residents have also made some close friends through athletics. The residents can be seen cheering the Charlevoix Rayders at almost every athletic function and they also root for certain teams in the city recreation leagues.

"They developed a real relationship with the Kit Carson softball team this summer," the director said. "They started out being fans and soon became coaches and bat boys. And the team got so they looked forward to seeing them.

"One night they couldn't go to a game and team members called up to make sure they were going to be at the next game."

Mrs. Hynes said the community has been very supportive of the Charlevoix House and that has been gratifying.

"Charlevoix is a proud community so it's not surprising that they want to be proud of their residential home, too."

Breakdowns hamper county plow crews over weekend

Breakdowns hampered the snow removal efforts of the Charlevoix County Road Commission over the weekend.

Bill West, road commission supervisor, reported that one snowplow caught on fire Sunday morning. West said the plow driver, Ben Evans was preparing to back the truck up when he saw a puff of smoke come out of the engine.

Evans jumped out and attempted to put out the fire with an extinguisher. The Charlevoix City Fire Department was also called to the scene at the corner of Townline and Pincherry roads. The plow was a total loss. West didn't estimate the cost of damage. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The road commission also lost another plow when the rear end gears went out putting the plow out of commission for the rest of the weekend. West said the strain and stress of constant operation was probably the cause of the failure.

West said two other trucks were also out of commission for a short period of time over the weekend, but road commission crews were able to make repairs on the trucks without losing too much plowing time.

Many unsung heros help Charlevoix get through blizzard of '78

Charlevoix residents, along with residents of most of the Midwest have just experienced one of the worst storms in several years.

The three days of howling winds, falling snow and blizzard conditions have subsided and now that the snow has settled, the community is all the better for it.

There were some unsung heroes during the last storm who deserve many thanks for their dedication. These people include the snowplow crews in the City of Charlevoix and in the county, the Charlevoix City Police, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the employees of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Snowplow crews worked around the clock for three days straight digging out Charlevoix and the surrounding area. Much criticism has been thrown in the direction of the street department during the last few months, but no one in their right minds could criticize the efforts of the department during the last five days.

After the winds subsided and even a little before, the plows were on the roads trying to clear a path. And that task was made even more difficult than usual due to the number of automobiles and four wheel drive vehicles stranded in the deep drifts. Even a few plows were stuck.

Yet by late Saturday most of the city and the county had been dug out.

Many of the city police and sheriff's deputies also worked long hours substituting for fellow department members who couldn't make it in to work. Both groups were on hand to help with emergencies and to aid stranded motorists.

Hospital employees also put in long hours making substitutions for those who couldn't make it in. Others housed fellow employees who couldn't make it home and still others volunteered to run a four-wheel drive shuttle service to aid their fellow employees.

In addition, untold members of neighbors helped neighbors throughout the city either with shoveling, food or just a good sense of humor. Although the snow was deep, and the temperatures and barometric pressure low, spirits remained high.

"How can you complain when everyone's in the same boat?" one person asked.

How indeed?

Celebrate Mardi Gras and help the hospital

This weekend a special event will be taking place in Charlevoix. Mardi Gras.

And Mardi Gras will be celebrated with a special purpose this year. The funds raised during Mardi Gras festivities will go toward paying for a new X-ray film processor for the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Organizers of Mardi Gras explain that the festival has a history of being a charitable as well as a social event occurring in the last few days before Lent. The organizers are seeking the help of all Charlevoix County residents in making the event a successful one.

Beginning at 7 p.m. Friday night with a benefit showing of the film, "Off the Edge," and followed by a benefit dinner at the Grey Gables Inn and ending with a matinee showing of the film at 3 p.m. Saturday, area residents will have a chance to contribute funds toward defraying the cost of the new $10,000 piece of equipment at the hospital as well as to enjoy themselves.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital is an organization that benefits everyone in the county. In order to improve its services, the hospital needs county residents support.

Join the Mardi Gras celebration this weekend and help the hospital, too.

You know what this country needs? Something that doesn't last forever.

I never saw the advantages of buying a carpet that would last a lifetime .. or a winter coat that never went out of style ...or lawn furniture that you never had to replace.

When one has a low threshhold of boredom, a lifetime guarantee can be depressing – especially when it applies to things you hate.

In 1953, I bought a set of plastic dishes. They came two shocking pink and two dramatic black plates to a set. The first year we had them I thought they were chic beyond description.

By the fifth year, they began to grate on my nerves and I begged the kids to take them to the sandbox or lose them on a picnic.

After seven years of those crummy dishes (do you know how disgusting liver looks on a black plastic plate?) I resorted to sneaking out at night and putting them under the rear wheels of the car and allowing the kids to sit in them and sled down the hill in back of the house.

There isn't anything biodegradable anymore, with the exception of marriage which seems to decompose before the honeymoon.

The shine on my car is built to outlast the motor. The fillings in my teeth are good for 50 more years after I'm gone and my deodorant is so dependable, I've given up showers.

If American ingenuity keeps pace, I predict all the excitement will go out of our lives. Light bulbs will burn forever, tennis shoes will have to be put to sleep to get rid of them, and we'll never know the exhilaration of tossing away a wafer-thin piece of soap and saying, "I though you'd never leave."

Maybe it doesn't bother anyone else, but this morning I did a gutsy thing. I took a paper clip which I've been using and reusing for ten years and threw it away. That's right – just dropped it off in a waste can and said, "Bunkie, you're finished!"

Someday, I know as sure as I'm sitting here, strangers from another planet will poke through the rubble of our civilization and try to figure out what we were all about. There's no doubt in my mind a woman will unearth a set of dishes, two shocking pink and two dramatic black plates to the set, and exclaim, "Hey, these look like they'll last forever."

That will be her first mistake.

Letter to the editor

Charlevoix needs police

Jan. 26, 1978

An open letter to the Citizens of Charlevoix:

Do you want Charlevoix to remain the peaceful, quiet town it is now? The City Officials are presently considering either disbanding our Police Department, or consolidating it with the Sheriffs Department, and that Department can hardly handle its own affairs as it is. Ask anyone who owns a scanner how long it takes the Sheriffs Dept. to answer a call. When you need help, you want it immediately, not a half hour or more later.

The element for crime exists here in Charlevoix, as it does in any city, large or small. Under the faithful guardianship of our Police Department, our city stays relatively free of crime and trouble, but it would not remain so for very long if we were to lose our protection.

Charlevoix's Police Department is one of the lowest paid in the area, and these men are not asking for outlandish salaries as the City Council could have you believe, they just want a reasonable wage they can live on. Some of the employees in City Hall draw a larger salary than your local Policement, and unlike Grayling, the City of Charlevoix can well afford to pay its Firemen and Policemen a decent wage.

Though it is a situation of a different nature, we all know what the people of Petoskey are going through with the merger of their hospitals and the havoc it has created. Let this be a lesson to the people of Charlevoix, call your Councilman and tell him you want to keep your own Police Department, if you want Charlevoix to remain the peaceful town it has always been. After all, your Councilman was elected to be your voice in the affairs of your city, and if he won't listen to you, he can be replaced by someone who will in the upcoming general election in April.

Thoughts on the Blizzard of '78:

High banks and drifts pose special problems to little folks and animals, so please be extra cautious when driving. Since our sidewalks will probably be out of commission for several weeks, pedestrians will be sharing roadways with heavy traffic – meaning everyone must be on his best behavior.

Driveways are particularly worrisome, since kids can't see what's coming until they reach the street. Drivers, too, are blinded by tall banks.

Small animals, too, are at the mercy of last week's fantastic accumulations of snow. Only they are in double jeopardy because they absolutely cannot see or be seen as they make their rounds through the neighborhoods.

A beautiful bird dog was killed Sunday morning on E. Dixon Avenue when he leaped in front of a car he didn't see. The accident was unavoidable, but it wouldn't have happened if the driver could have seen the dog bounding down a driveway toward the street.

Speaking of snowbanks, remember the winter of 1958-'59 when all the cars wore little red flags on the tips of their antennas to warn of their location to other drivers? Whenever you saw a red flag bobbing over a snowbank, you knew there was a car on the other side.

However the flags sometimes gave you a false sense of security, because not all cars had them. If you saw a flag coming, you'd wait until the car passed before pulling out onto the highway. But if you didn't see a flag you could still get clobbered by an unmarked car.

Such flags probably wouldn't work today because so many cars have antennas buried in the windshield.

TOWERING snowbanks make attractive slides for kids. But too many of them end up on the street. Tell your kids that every snowbank has its backside and they can get just as long a ride by building their slide in a safe direction.

THERE'S something about a blizzard that brings out the best in everyone. Stranded travelers find food, warmth and fellowship waiting at the next farmhouse up the road. And the camaraderie among blizzard victims is something akin to the strong bond that exists between troops under enemy fire.

Curmudgeons who ordinarily wouldn't give you the time of day suddenly appear with snow shovels to help you with the front walk or offer transportation to and from the grocery store. How very nice of them.

ONE OF THE biggest problems posed by a blizzard to the traveling public is when to stop and when not to stop to assist stranded motorists along the highway, because the fellow who stops sometimes risks the possibility that he won't be able to get started again.

Furthermore, the fellow who stops probably will not pull over onto a snowy shoulder, but will stop in his lane – meaning just one more bottleneck for other motorists.

Yet your heart has to be made of stone to drive past cars that have skidded off into fields, even though you know there is nothing you can do. I don't like to see people sitting inside stranded cars, peering from little window slits underneath snowbanks. You wonder how long they've been there and if someone has called the police or a wrecker.

Someone usually has, but how can you know for sure?

BLIZZARDS may be magnificent in their power and fury. But they're also downright mean.

Paula Holmes... ...Speaking Her Mind

I have heard tales of Northern Michigan winter storms, but I don't think I've ever really been through one.

We had joked at the Courier office Wednesday afternoon about the television weather map from the night before.

"There are two winter storms coming this way and it looks like they are going to converge on Charlevoix at exactly the same time, at a spot just above our office," one person joked. "We should be buried just in time to move."

We all laughed at the time, but when Thursday morning rolled around, the storm was no longer a laughing matter.

I got my first glimpse of the thing at 6:30 a.m. when I woke from a deep sleep to the clamoring of the alarm clock. After observing what several hours of snow and blowing winds had done to the 30 foot space between the house and the garage and the even greater space between the garage down the alley to State Street, I elected to crawl back in bed.

I guess that's the best part about a Northern Michigan storm. When everyone's in the same boat the only thing to do is have a good time.

The laughter has probably never been so loud in Charlevoix.

At 8 a.m., when I finally got the courage to open my eyes again and peek out, things were not much better, but I decided I better make an effort to do something, so I rolled out of bed and prepared for the worst weather I could imagine.

I got out all my downhill ski clothes and put them on layer after layer until I resembled a blue abominable snowwoman. Then I took a deep breath and emerged from the back door.

Slowly I waddled my way through the streets of Charlevoix completing the various errands. I had to attend to. Then I began battling the wind to get up the hill to the Courier office.

Now I know that I have lost some weight over the last few months, but I didn't realize that I would need weighted shoes to keep from blowing away with the wind. I couldn't believe how strong the wind was.

I battled my way into the Courier office and we spent most of the day holed up in there. It was obvious by mid-afternoon that nobody was going to be going anywhere. My home was turned into a hotel of sorts to house Peg Ohle, Courier reporter, and her husband, Bill.

A word is a word is a word

Always I am fascinated by words, the means of my livelihood, without which I couldn't support my hse. So it was fun to puzzle over the words mailed my way by some character named Bob Austin who lives in Royal Oak.

Austin was responding to a recent column in which I told about returning to my hometown "to hear the church bell of my childhood peal ..."

Austin wrote:

"Your childhood peal put me into a bit of quandary as the (skin?) ailment was new to me. I consulted a fellow-worker, Mick the Byrne by name, a well-read son of Galloway. He knew the dermatology of this insidious complaint. Mick claims that Epidermal Childhood Peal is peculiar to the Port Huron area.

"He, himself, bravely battled this baneful pox and claimed that interminable nights of playing peapool at Peloso's Poolroom subjected his tender skin to the glare emanating from the green fuzz. Mick proffered many a lesson in the art of ball and cue, more than somewhat to the unwary. These instructions were not gratis and it's said he lived high on the hog from his tawdry teaching.

"Mick was impavid with cue in hand, and only the gary wayfarer, unlettered, would unsheathe a cue at Mick's table.

"Anyhow, this is the explanation of the childhood peal, as offered by Mick the Byrne."

I gained considerable boyhood education in Peloso's Poolroom where, because I wasn't impavid with cue, I was often a gary victim of such sharks as Mick the Byren. I am awed to learn, 35 years later, that my time spent bending into the smoky light reflected from a snooker table may have caused my skin to peal. Obviously this is some rare form of ringworm.

ACCORDING TO my dictionary, to be impaved is to be "fearless, undaunted." And to be gary is to be "of the kind or style prevalent in Gary, Indiana."

Bob Austin is saying that natives of Gary are rubes with steel filings behind their ears, easy prey for impavid hustlers who hang around poolrooms, risking pealing. Remember, you read it here first.

It was enlightening to hear from Austin, and to be reminded of Mick the Byren. I always knew I lost money at Peloso's because I was more gary than impavid. I just never knew the correct words to describe my plight. However, until now I had no idea why, every time I shake my head, my nose peals, and people look around for a belfry.

THE WEATHER is much in our conversation these days, wherever people gather and are able to open their mouths without eating snow. For this reason, I recently attended the plush party which the Detroit Tigers give annually for members of the media. I wanted to check out my newly formed theory concerning two TV weathermen.

This theory evolved while I was switching TV channels during the 6 o'clock news programs. No matter how rapidly I switched, I was never able to catch Sonny Eliot on Channel 4 at the same time Barry ZeVan was on Channel 2.

I guess everyone knows that Eliot is the longtime funny weatherman for Channel 4. Not as many people are yet aware the ZeVan, a shining baldy, is the new weatherman on Channel 2. He is also funny.

Anyway, once my suspicions were aroused by their TV images, I decided to test my Eliot-ZeVan theory against their flesh. I knew all the Detroit TV stars would be at the Tiger party, and this would be the best passible chance to see Eliot and ZeVan at the ame time.

Eliot was there, but ZeVan wasn't. That was the solid confirmation I was looking for.

My theory is that Eliot is dobly responsible for all this lousy weather. There is no Barry ZeVan. That crafty Eliot now has two jobs. Barry ZeVan is really Sonny Eliot without his toupee.

Meet Charlevoix Jerry Chase

Jerry Chase is Administrator - Acting Health Officer of Health Department District No. 3 with headquarters in Charlevoix. This week the Courier talks with him about the services the Department offers and how it operates.

COURIER: What is District Health Department No. 3?

CHASE: It is a local government authority. The Board of Health consists of representatives from the county commissions of four counties – Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego.

COURIER: But why is it called No. 3?

CHASE: It's a long story. I wrote a history of the District while studying for my master's degree in public health at the University of Michigan, so I have the answer. In 1904, James Cousens of Detroit invested $2,500 in the Ford Motor Company and in 1916 sold it to Henry Ford for $16 million. With some of this money he set up the Michigan Children's Fund for 25 years, at the end of which all the money had to be spent. The fund established local health departments around the state to improve the health of mothers and children and thus insure the better health of future children. Ours was the third health department established, thus No. 3.

COURIER: How is the Health Department funded now?

CHASE: By state and local (county) funds and fees for services rendered, such as environmental health permits and licenses, and home health care.

COURIER: How is the Health Department organized?

CHASE: Into four divisions: (1) Personal health services, including the nursing program and maternal and child health. (2) Environmental health services, including land use (septic tank sand water wells) and direct health services (inspection and licensing. (3) Substance abuse services, including prevention and control activities on alcohol and drug use, and general counseling. (4) Administration support, including business activities and health education.

prevention and control activities on alcohol and drug use, and general counseling. (4) Administration suppart, including business activities and health education.

COURIER: What are some of your newer and growing programs?

CHASE: We've had home health care for a number of years but have expanded it recently. Besides nursing, we have home health aids – speech therapy, physical therapy, occupational therapy. The focus of the program is to enable people to leave acute care institutions earlier, thus speeding recovery and lowering health care costs. We try to provide an alternative to nursing homes. Another new program, started in 1976, is the substance abuse program, a direct services division which includes six workers with full professional qualifications. Our health education department is the only one in Northern Michigan with a full-time health educator. Our job here is to develop health education resources in the community and to provide direct services and conduct classes through community centers and schools. Last year we provided venereal disease education to 1,000 school children. We now also have a physician who is conducting a health education curriculum assessment and developing programs with school districts in the area. Our family planning program is on-going. We are now conducting a clinic in conjunction with Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood. In the field of environmental health, we are putting greater emphasis on counseling and education, rather than just licensing.

Jerry Chase

COURIER: What do you see in the future?

CHASE: We are looking forward to passage of the new State Health Code. It will make services uniform throughout the state (they are now on a first-come, first-served basis), and change the financing of local health programs. At present, our financing is about 30 percent local and 70 percent state. The new code will also add greater security to some of the programs we now have.

COURIER: How many employees does District Health Department No. 3 have?

CHASE: Forty-six full time – six in Antrim County, 14 in Emmet County, nine in Otsego County, and 11 in Charlevoix County, plus the administrative staff. We also have 20 contractual employees, such as nurses, therapists, and home health aides.

COURIER: What is your main job?

CHASE: Directing and coordinating the overall activities of the department.

COURIER: How long have you been here?

CHASE: Since 1974.

COURIER: Where were you born and schooled?

CHASE: I was born in Pontiac and graduated from high school there. I received a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Michigan and a master's degree in public health planning and administration from there in 1977.

COURIER: Tell us about your family.

CHASE: My wife, Kay, and I have two boys. Jerry is 11 and attends the Middle School. Harold is eight and attends St. Mary's. Incidentally, Kay is co-chairman of the Charlevoix County March of Dimes this year.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

CHASE: Photography and cross country skiing.

Winter Cup Festival aimed at easing winter doldrums

Don't let the mid-winter doldrums get you down. Get out and enjoy the ice and snow during the second annual Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival, Feb. 17-19.

The festival, sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Lions Club, will open Friday, Feb. 17, with an Ice Sculpture Contest. Middle school and high school students, families and businesses are invited to try their hands at making an ice sculpture in East Park. Judging for the event will be from 4 to 5 p.m.

Also on Friday, Charlevoix High School students will hold their annual Winter Homecoming festivities during half time of the Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game. The homecoming dance will follow the game at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The second day of the Winter Cup Festival will be filled with outdoor activities. Cross country ski races will be held at Mt. McSauba beginning at 9:30 a.m. with a competitors meeting and the races following at 10 a.m.

A 1 kilometer, 10 kilometer and 25 kilometer race course will be marked for the contestants competing in the two junior boy, two junior girl, two senior women and four senior men classes.

Preregistration for the races will be taken at the chamber of commerce office. Out-of-town contestants may register at 9 a.m. Saturday at Mt. McSauba.

Following the cross country ski races will be the Dual Slalom Ski Cup Races for downhill skiing enthusiasts. Registration for the downhill races will begin at noon at Mt. McSauba with the races commencing at 1 p.m.

Racers will be able to compete in three junior boy classes, three junior girl classes, one mens class and one womens class.

At 3 p.m. a Bump Jumper Contest will begin with girls and boys between the ages of 6 and 17 years trying their skill at riding the bumps down the Pale Face Slope at Mt. McSauba.

Also at 3 p.m., Jim Welch of Summit Sports in Gaylord, will conduct a free cross country ski clinic for all interested winter sports enthusiasts at Mt. McSauba.

A snowmobile safari will open up the celebration on Sunday, Feb. 18. The Charlevoix Snowmobile Club will host the safari beginning at 10 a.m. at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The snowmobilers will travel to Norwood where they will feast on chili and hot dogs around 1 p.m. before returning to the airport by 3 p.m.

Preregistration for the safari will be held at the chamber office and must be made by Saturday.

Free downhill ski lessons will also be given at 1 p.m. Sunday at Mt. McSauba for all interested people.

For further information about the Winter Cup Festival, call the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

IRA office moves to new headquarters

The Internal Revenue Service office in Petoskey will open this Friday, at 212 East Mitchell Street, in the Woodland Mall complex.

The office will be open for taxpayer assistance from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays and Fridays until April 17.

After the filing period, the office will revert to the "off-season" schedule of being open on the last Monday of the month for in-person taxpayer assistance.

On days when the new office is not open, taxpayers may get answers to their questions through the IRS toll-free telephone system. The number for this area is 800-482-0670. Telephone assistance is available 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Martin Paul named health board head

Martin Paul, representing Charlevoix County, was elected president of the District No. 3 Board of Health at its recent organizational meeting.

Other officers elected were Jack Zaremski of Emmet County, vice chairman, and Joe Ricciordi of Antrim County, secretary-treasurer.

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

Letters to the editor

Ostling discusses school finance

To the Editor:

Because of the rapid escalation of property taxes throughout the state, especially in our northern area, there has been much discussion regarding changes in financing our schools which consumes 70 or 80 percent of our property tax assessment.

Several proposals have been introduced in the legislature. Last week Governor Milliken unveiled another one. I have received many inquiries as to its contents. I would like to take this opportunity to outline for your readers some of the things this proposal would do if enacted into law.

The proposal does not affect the distribution of money to schools. It is designed to be a property tax relief plan for outstate school districts.

The plan is a combination of two concepts. One is the idea of dividing residential and agricultural property from business property classificiations. The second would allow voters of local districts to choose an option of a local income tax or the property tax as the base of financing schools. Following are the major conditions of the proposal:

1. A constitutional amendment is proposed that will allow taxation of different classes of property. This is required to allow individuals to trade an income tax increase for a property tax decrease, without affecting commercial, industrial, timber cutover and utility property.

2. Local school voters will be given the opportunity to vote on adopting a 2 percent increase in the state income tax in trade for a 22 mill reduction in their property tax bill.

3. The school district voters can place this plan on the ballot by petition of 5 percent of the electors, or by resolution of the school board.

4. If voters approve the trade, the state would add 2 percent onto the tax liability of income tax payers within the district. The individual's property tax bill would be reduced by 22 mills.

5. The local school district is guaranteed the same yield that they would have if the 22 mills were not levied. In this way, the school aid formula is not affected.

6. Local voters could increase local tax levies for school operating and debt purposes as they have done in the past.

7. Rental property with four or more rental units are considered business property. Renters are guaranteed a total tax rebate on the 2 percent tax increase.

8. Business taxes are not affected. They are excluded from the 2 percent income tax, and would continue to be taxed on property at the 22 mill level.

It should be noted that this plan is totally at the option of the voters of the local districts. In this way, it will allow voters to assess their own circumstances as to whether or not the trade of 2 percent on the personal income tax for 22 mills reduction would benefit their situation.

It is clear that low income high assessed valuation homeowners stand to benefit from the proposal. This is particularly true for rural, northern school districts. Residents with high income but relatively low assessed valuation homes would pay more if the plan were adopted by the local voters.

Two issues need to be resolved with this proposal. One is the method by which agricultural property is defined. It is unclear as to whether all agricultural property is eligible for the tax relief, or only the actual homestead and five acres. The second issue is the timing of the election when the voters could adopt this system. It is hoped both issues will be resolved shortly.

Sincerely,

RALPH OSTLING
State Representative

IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME since it was warm enough to enjoy going down the slide at the beach like this young Charlevoix resident is doing. But don't worry, summer will come again. In fact, it's only 142 days away!

AH, REMEMBER those lazy days on the beach? Who would have thought those dry summer days would melt into a rainy fall and a winter that produces storms like the one that engulfed Charlevoix last week?

Summer Resort

Remember those beautiful, sunny days of summer?

Remember the beauty of the green grass and the flower and vegetable gardens and those weekends at the beach?

Remember the warmth of the sun seeping through your skin to the bones?

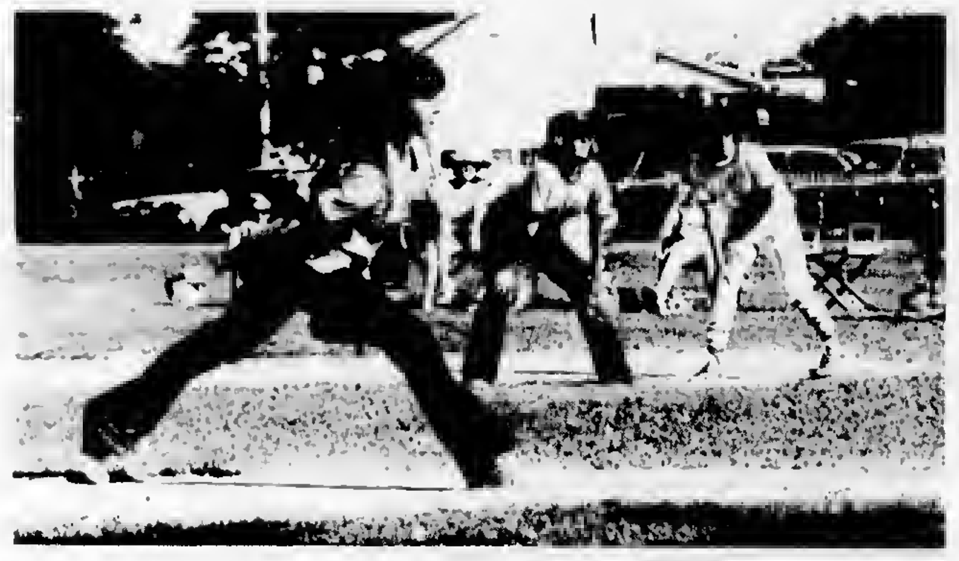
The Charlevoix Courier hopes to bring a little sunshine into your life this week with a reprinting of some of the best of our summer pictures. We hope it warms your soul, and we regret that we can't do much about the temperature outside.

So get out your long johns along with those brochures about trips to Florida or the Southwest and cuddle by the fireplace or wood stove.

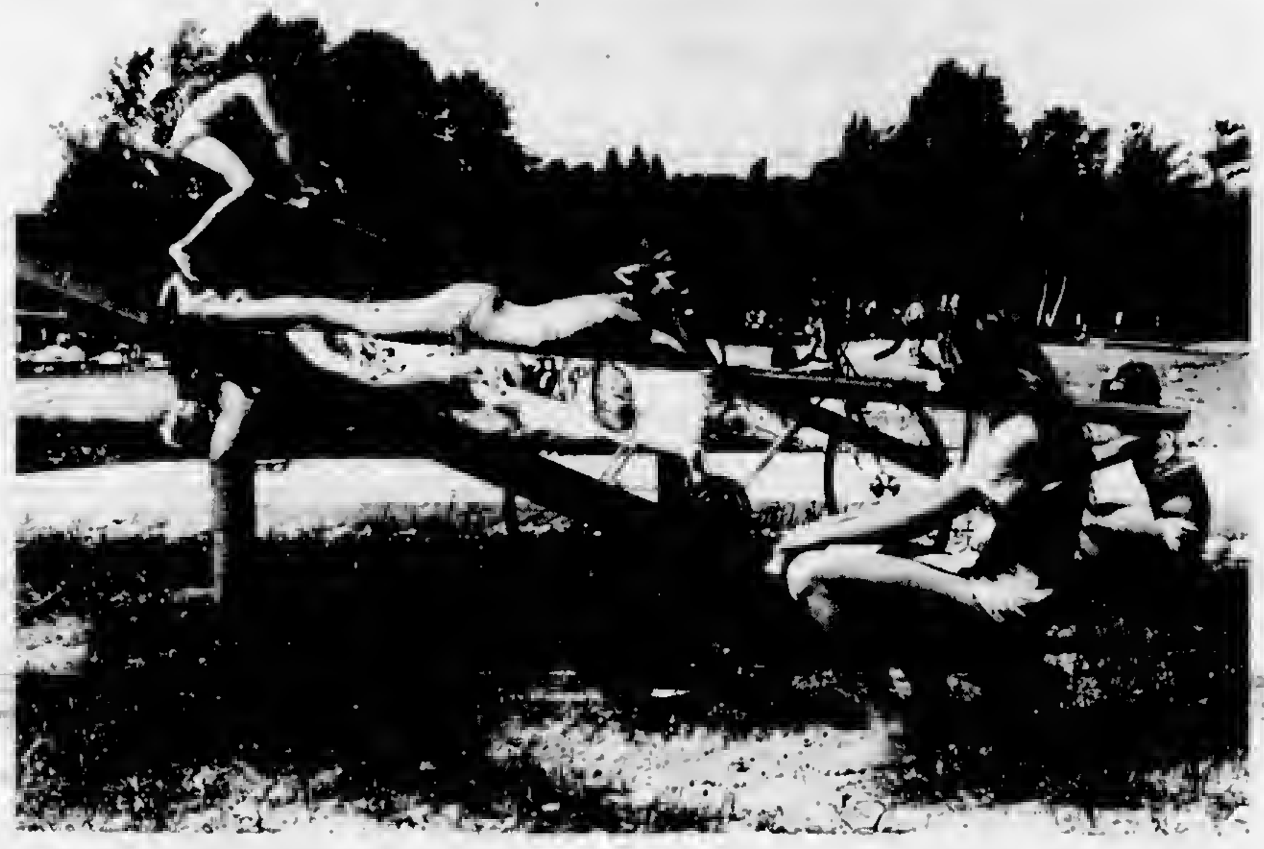
Try to forget about the feet and feet of snow piled below the window sill. Don't think about the last time you saw the ground or how long it's going to be before you see it again.

Forget the fact that winter isn't quite half over. Forget about the aching muscles brought about as you tossed snow shovel after snow shovel of the white stuff around or as you pushed your car out of the drift for the 15th time.

Just enjoy. And remember, it's only 142 days until summer!

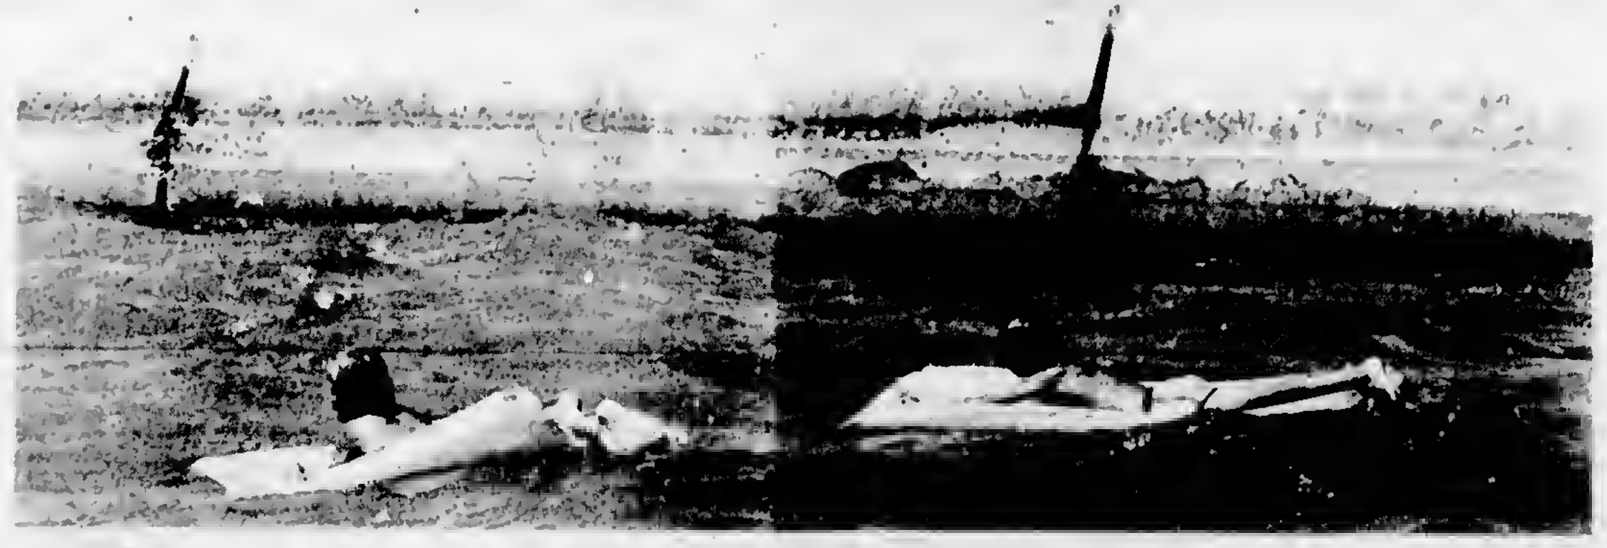


THE ONLY mitt these Charlevoix residents had on last week was a mitten – one to keep each hand warm while shoveling through snow drifts ranging from two to five feet high depending on where the driveway was located.



NEED ANYMORE BE SAID? Summer is summer and winter is winter and never the twain shall meet.

WITH WINDS at 65 miles per hour and gusts even faster than that it was hard to see anything on Lake Charlevoix. These sailboats were part of the Flying Scot fleet visiting Charlevoix last summer. They had their trouble with the winds when they were here, too.



THE WAVES of Lake Michigan have all but stopped rolling into shore in Charlevoix. The most recent storm moved the ice into the shore pretty solidly.

Winter is definitely here.

Lost Resort

It may have been one of the worst storms in recent memory, but that didn't keep the residents of Cherlevoix down for long.

As soon as the wind subsided and even a little before, residents could be found emerging from their homes to begin the long process of digging out.

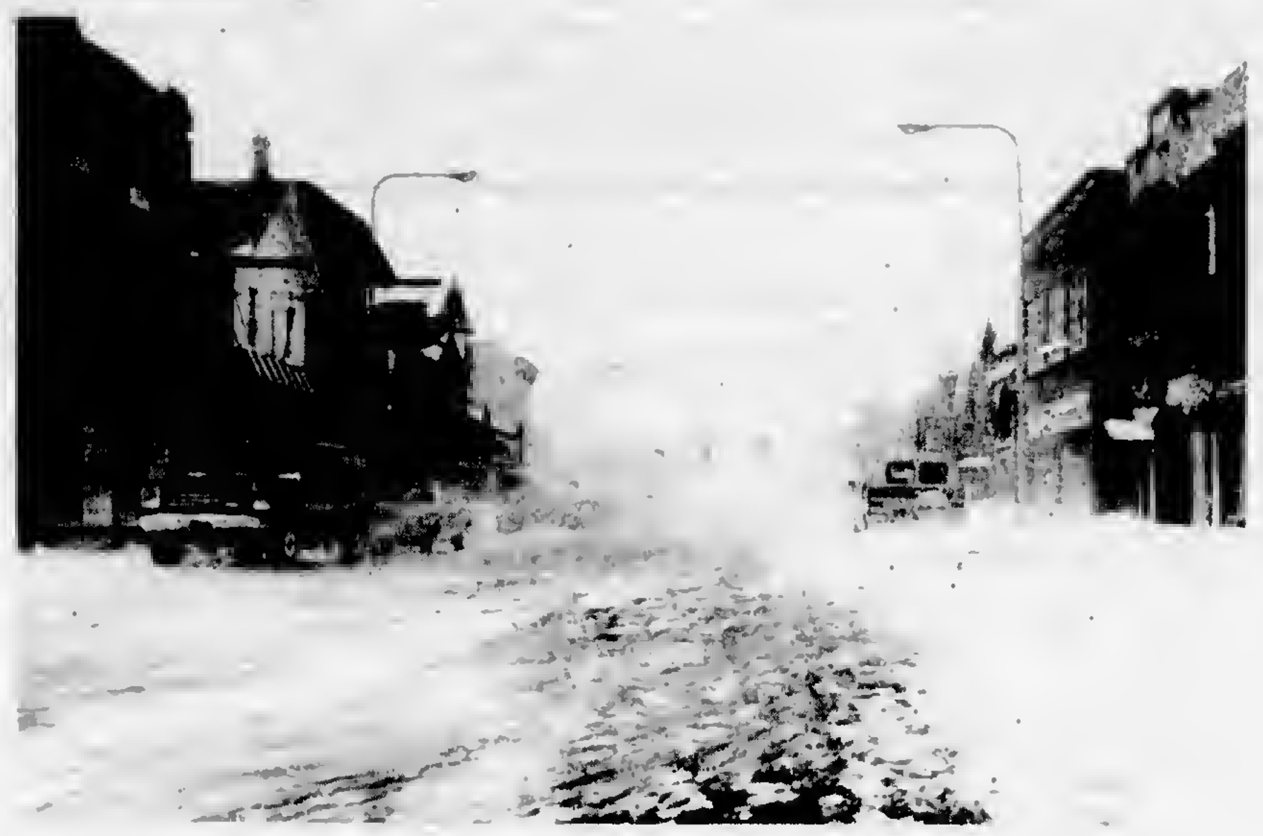
Those affiliated with curiosity or a good case of cabin fever, strapped on their cross country skis or snow shoes and trudged through the sometimes six foot high snow drifts to take a look at the downtown area.

They were greeted with more snow and by a few of the merchants who had managed to dig through the piles of white stuff on their sidewalks to get to their doors.

Although the temperatures were low, spirits were high as residents sensed a bit of adventure in the whole thing as well as the possibility of a good time.

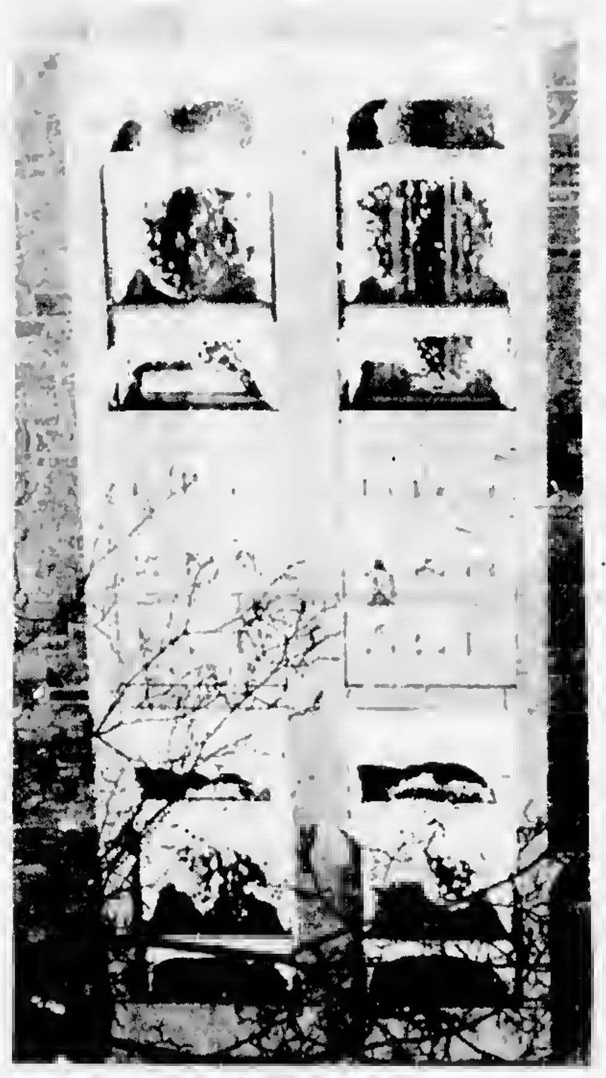
As soon as some of the work of digging out had been completed many people gathered at local bars or neighbors homes to recount tales of the last storm or to dream of sunnier places.

All agreed that winter had defintely arrived.



WINDS WHIPPED SNOW along Bridge Street making it almost impossible to see at times. Gusts of up to 70 miles per hour battered cars and buildings for three days in Charlevoix.

GARY MILLER HEADED for the Charlevoix Post Office on his cross country skis Friday. The post office was open for business but the mail trucks didn't make it in until Saturday.



THERE WAS SOME BEAUTY in the snowfall. Here the wind whipped the snow into designs around the brick windows of the Charlevoix City Hall.

CROSS COUNTRY SKI TRAILS could be seen everywhere along Bridge Street as curious residents dug their way out of their homes and took a tour of the rest of the city.

THE WEATHER didn't bother Mr. and Mrs. Dave Goodeman. They simply strapped on their snowshoes and hiked through town. Not too many Charlevoix residents were house bound for long.

EVEN THE TOW TRUCKS were in trouble following the blizzard in Charlevoix. Before the tow trucks could dig another out they had to be dug out themselves.

KUSINA MOTORS used car lot looked like minieture Himelayas Friday morning as the snow formed mountain-like drifts over the cars. Here Dennis Kusina attempts to dig out one car completely covered with snow.

AFTER THE WINDS subsided and the city snowplow crews got the streets cleared, people could take time to enjoy the beauty of a winter snowfall.

First place Tri-City downs Wojan

First place Tri-City Asphalt defeated second place Wojan 44-39 in Charlevoix Recreation Department B League basketball action last week.

Tri-City opened with only a one-point lead in the first quarter with a score of 10-9. Then Wojan surged ahead to take the lead at the half 25-22. Tri-City came back in the third period to take the lead 34-29 and they held on for the win.

High pointmen for Tri-City were Butch Klooster with 13 points and Dave Norton and Leroy Buchonan with 12 points upiece.

Don Ward dumped in 22 points for Wajan.

Alray Cottages posted a victory over the County State Bank 50-42 in an exciting game ta the finish.

County State Bank had the lead through all of the quarters until the last few minutes. The bank started out with an 11-10 lead in the first quarter, a 22-20 lead at the half and a 37-33 lead in the third quarter.

High scorers for Alray were Scott Blanchard with 13 points and Vice Left with 10 points.

For County State Bank, Larry Potter and Larry Skippergosh were the high point men.

First State Bank defeated Medusa in the final game of the evening 59-35.

First State took a substantial lead in the first quarter with a score of 15-2. At the half the score had jumped to 26-8 and by the third period it was 38-21.

Sam Supernaw and Jim Gels led the First State Bank scoring attack with 15 points apiece and Roger Gowell added 10 points.

Paul Parrish had 8 points for Medusa.

Learn about snowmobile laws

Where is it illegal to operate a snowmobile?

Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has some answers:

You are absolutely forbidden to use a snowmobile on cemeteries or burial grounds, railroads, railroad rights-of-way, and land belonging to another without consent, when such consent is required by the recreation trespass act, and in hunting.

With some exceptions, it is illegal to operate a snowmobile on a public highway. In fact, any time there is an accident between a car or truck and a snowmobile on a public highway, the driver of the snowmobile will be presumed to have been at fault. It is permissible to drive a snowmobile on the right-of-way of shoulder of all public highways except limited access highways such as I-75.

If you are over 16 years old, you do not need an operating license of any kind to use a properly registered and equipped snowmobile. If you are in the age bracket of 12 to 18, you must either be accompanied by an adult, have in your possession a snowmobile safety certificate, or be operating the snowmobile solely on land owned or controlled by a parent or guardian. If you are under 12 years old, the law prevents you from operating a snowmobile except on land owned or controlled by parent or guardian.

Volleyball team drops game to Rogers City squad

It was a tough night for the Charlevoix Rayder volleyball teams lost Wednesday as both the varsity and the junior varsity dropped their games to the Rogers City squads.

For the varsity the scores were Rogers City 15-8, 15-6, 15-12, over Charlevoix.

For the junior varsity squad, the scorers were 15-4, 15-13, 15-13.

The Rayders also played East Jordan last week in an unscheduled game. Both the varsity and junior varsity won their matches against the East Jordan teams.

The next game will be played at 6:30 p.m. today (Wednesday) against the St. Ignace Saints in St. Ignace.

Rayder freshmen lose to Grayling

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball squad lost its game Monday to the Grayling frosh 56-37.

Grayling took an early lead in the first quarter with a score of 19-15. The Rayders then had a cold next two periods as they only managed to hit the basket for six points in the second quarter and five points in the third quarter.

Grayling on the other hand, had a hot next two quarters hitting for 12 points in the second quarter and 15 points in the third quarter, for a score of 46-26.

High point men for the Rayders were Jeff Drury with 11 points and Frank Kaufman with 12.

Roach for Grayling had 14 points.

Catholic education supplies extras

Education is more important than ever these days and its importance to the success of children has caused many parents to spend hours evaluating what is best for their children.

Several parents in Charlevoix have chosen to send their children to St. Mary's Catholic School. During National Catholic School Week, Ed and Joan Buday shared their thoughts on sending their children to St. Mary's.

"We believe the school reinforces what we teach at home as far as faith and moral values are concerned," Mrs. Buday explained.

"The children are given a background in religion at school that I wouldn't have time ta give them at home because I'm so busy with what it takes to raise 10 children as well as other activities. I would just never be able to get them all together to teach them."

"When we started sending our children to St. Mary's that was the only reason we sent them there – so that they could get the religious education," Buday said.

The Budays moved to Charlevoix from Traverse City 15 years ago and they have sent their children to St. Mary's school since then. And the parents have been very pleased with the results.

"The children have had nothing but good schooling and good experiences at St. Mary's," Mrs. Buday said.

"I feel the children have been given a sense of self value as well as an excellent foundation in the basics.

"It's been the experience in our family that the children do very well when they go to the middle school for seventh grade."

She attributes her children's success to the fact that the classrooms at St. Mary's are a little smaller and more conductive to study.

"I feel the teachers are constantly striving for the latest methods in teaching and ways to make the subjects more interesting and alive for the children," the mother said.

The Budays also feel their family has a closer relationship because the children attended Catholic school.

"I think there's a closer relationship between the parents and the children because the parents are quite involved at the school," Mrs. Buday explained. "We all take our turns watching them on the playground or working in the lunchroom. Even many of the fathers pitch in and help."

Buday was involved with the school as a member of the founding school board. In that position, Buday helped hire new teachers for the school and to iron out parental problems and discipline problems at the school.

Mrs. Buday feels attending Catholic school has definitely influenced her older children. In a time when many young people are deserting the church and religious views, two of the Buday children chose to attend Catholic colleges. One son is attending Aquinas College in Grand Rapids and a daughter is attending University of Detroit.

"I think attending Catholic school gave them a way to question religion within the solidarity of the community," Mrs. Buday said.

"They have been taught by several different nuns and priests and they have heard about many who left the church. But they have seen that you don't fall apart and the church doesn't fall apart just because someone sees things in a different light."

"I would hate to see the school close," she said. "I think it has been an important part of many children's lives."

St. Mary's in Charlevoix dates back to 1902 and the present school building was constructed in 1956.

The Dominican Sisters of Marywood, Grand Rapids, have operated the school from its beginning. This year only Sister M. Josine, principal and teacher, is working at the school. The rest of the classes are taught by lay teachers.

The school is totally supported by contributions by the parishoners. At the present time there is no tuition fee for the first through sixth grade school, although children do pay a book rental fee.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC School is celebrating National Catholic School Week this week. Many parents choose to send their children to St. Mary's so that they will get a religious education, too.

Char-Em sponsors program for Charlevoix area job seekers

By PEG OHLE

Unemployed people in the area will have an opportunity to learn how to look for jobs, get them, and keep them, in an eight-session program beginning Monday, February 13, at the Char-Em School.

The program will be sponsored by the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency of Traverse City under a grant from the Comprehensive Employment Act (CETA).

There will be two sessions a week, on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Each session will cover preplanned subject matter with the goal "To help CETA participants and all unemployed become more aware of their potentials to realize how those potentials relate to the employment opportunities in Northwestern Michigan and elsewhere, and to become self-sufficient in finding and keeping meaningful employment in the non-subsidized job market."

The first session will cover an Introduction to the Program, Confidence Building, Personal Clarification of Success, and a movie, "You Pack Your own Chute."

The second session, February 15, will cover Career Preference Inventory, Development of Positive Attitude, and Personal Wants and Needs.

The third session, February 20, will cover More Exploration of Career Areas Related to Your Interests and Needs, and Career-Related Goal Setting.

The fourth session, February 22, will cover Job Search Process, How to Take Advantage of Available Sources, How to Make the Job Search Most Rewarding.

The fifth session, February 27, will cover Getting the Job You Want - Employability Skills That Will Help You Stand Out in the Crowd, and an employer visit to the workshop.

The sixth session, March 1, will cover Interviewing - Becoming Comfortable With it.

The seventh session, March 6, will cover Interviewing - Specific Techniques for Making the Interview Work to Your Advantage.

The final session, March 6, will cover Job Survival - Staying Satisfied; Growing and Changing Directions, and Evaluation and Feedback.

There are two men and two women on program staff, and two of them will conduct each session. Steve Woodrow, who heads the staff, holds a master's degree in social science from Central Michigan University and is presently working on a master's degree in manpower leadership at the University of Michigan.

All residents of Charlevoix County who have been unemployed for seven calendar days are eligible for the course. Registration will be held Friday, February 3, at the Char-Em School board room, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Melt those pounds away with knowledge

The holidays have come and gone, but that extra ten pounds came and stayed. It's time to dust off those old diet guides, and start a sensible program to shed some of the surplus.

A booklet available from the U.S. Department of Agriculture can help. It tells you about how food and exercise affect your weight, gives you tips on losing pounds, and includes suggested menus for diet planning. For your copy, just send 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 36-038F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Everyone knows you can control weight by adjusting the amount of food you eat or the amount of activity you do each day. But it's helpful to understand exactly how food and exercise work together to make you lose or gain weight.

For example, it takes about 3,500 extra calories to produce one pound of fat. It's not hard to consume that much in just two or three big, holiday feasts.

If you plan to lose weight by cutting down on the amount you eat, how much and how fast you lose will depend entirely on the number of calories you subtract. To lose two pounds a week you'll need to cut down about 1,000 calories a day.

But if you combine cutting calories with increased exercise, you could eliminate 500 calories a day, use up another 500 through activities, and still lose two pounds a week.

But remember, sedentary activities, like reading or watching TV, use only about 80 to 100 calories an hour. Moderate activities, like making beds or walking fast, use from 170 to 240 calories per hour. And, if you're really ambitious, strenuous activities, like swimming, tennis, or bicycling, use 350 calories or more each hour.

Whatever plan you follow, it's best to see your doctor first. Your doctor can recommend a combination of food and exercise that will suit your individual needs.

And, your doctor will want to be sure that you are getting enough vitamins, minerals, and proteins. Sometimes fad diets ignore basic nutrition, and this can be detrimental or even dangerous to your health.

A few calorie-wise tips can help you reduce:

Avoid extra, hidden calories. Believe it or not, sometimes additions of fat or sugar during cooking or at the table amount to more calories than the food itself. For example, a half cup of mashed potatoes is only 100 calories; but a half cup of pan fried potatoes is more than double, at 230 calories.

Plan your snacks. Snacks are O.K., as long as you figure them into your daily total. You can eat fruit, skim milk, or even that desert you saved from dinner as long as you remember to count them in your planned number of calories.

But avoid tempting, high calorie nibbling. Just five potato chips, for example, can add more than 50 calories to the day's total.

Food and Your Weight (50 cents) is one of more than 200 federal publications of consumer interest listed in the Consumer Information Catalog. The Catalog, published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Service Administration, is free. Just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

OUR GREATEST LEADERS HAVE BEEN GUIDED BY FAITH

The leaders and founding fathers of free nations who are remembered and honored throughout their country's history have all had several things in common, despite their differences in personality and temperament. Without exception, they have been men of strong character, with an unselfish devotion to duty, a determination to overcome every obstacle and a complete subordination of all personal glory to the best interests of their country. They were men with a kind of principle that is hard to find today, and this was largely a result of their faith, upon which they depended for guidance during the dark hours of adversity. Attend the Church of your choice and learn some of this faith with which our revered leaders gave us our priceless heritage of freedom.

One language held his heart and lip,
Straight onward to his goal he trod,
And proved the highest statesmanship
Obedience to the voice of God.
-John Greenleaf Whittier

Obituary

Pearl Staudenmyer

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Mrs. Pearl Staudenmyer, 84, who died Thursday at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where she had been a patient for five years, were held Monday at the Evangelical Lutheran Church in East Jordan. The Rev. Arden Barden officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

The former Pearl Peek was born in Chicago March 18, 1893 and, on Oct. 6, 1917, was married to Rheingold Staudenmyer. They moved to Charlevoix county in 1947 and made their home on a farm in South Arm township. Mr. Staudenmyer preceded her in death in 1959. She had made her home in Ellsworth with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Best, prior to being admitted to Grandvue Medical Care Facility. She was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in East Jordan.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Bernard (Fern) Best of East Jordan; a son, Roy of Grand Rapids; four grandchildren; one great-grandchild and a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Schmidt of Chicago.

City flips over pancake supper

Not very many things last for 24 years these days – not even many marriages get to be that old any more.

But that's not true at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. This year the church will hold its 24th annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper, Feb. 7.

The annual event, which is sponsored by the Episcopal Church Men's Club, has become a tradition for both church members and nonmembers. Usually more than 250 people attend the dinner each year.

And each year, diners are treated to extra special home cooking, according to Bob Clock, Men's Club member.

"We serve Episcopal sausage along with the pancakes," Clock explained. "We call it that because the only place anyone has ever tasted it is at the Episcopal Church."

Clock explained that church member Mike Hamlin devised a secret recipe for the sausage which includes pineapple as well as meat.

This year the Men's Club will concoct about 120 pounds of sausage for the pancake supper. In addition, the men will mix up 40 pounds of pancake mix with 10 dozen eggs and 15 gallons of milk to feed the crowds at the dinner.

Another feature of the pancake supper is homemade applesauce from the kitchen of Esther Carey. Each summer, Mrs. Carey cans applesauce including enough to feed the hungry people at the Shrove Tuesday meal. About 20 quarts of applesauce will be served at this year's dinner.

Along with all that eight pounds of butter and four gallons of syrup will be needed to take care of the crowds.

Shrove Tuesday pancake suppers, date back to an English custom. The dinner is the last celebration before Ash Wednesday and the beginning of Lent.

Ski team splits meet with Grayling Vikings team

The Charlevoix Rayder ski team split a meet with the Grayling Vikings last week.

The boys defeated Grayling 29-43 while the girls lost a close one 46-33.

For Charlevoix, Erik Lundteigen took first place in both the slalom and giant slalom races. Mark Lignell took second place in the slalom while Greg Krueger took second in the giant slalom.

For the girls, Madelyn Iannotti won both the slalom and the giant slalom, while Debbie Fochtman took third place in the slalom and Cindy Trimper took seventh place in the giant slalom.

The girls were tied with Grayling after the slalom race but went down after the giant slalom as Grayling captured second through sixth places.

Albright assumes command of USS Mt. Vernon

Cmdr. Robert E. Albright, U.S. Navy, assumed command of the USS Mount Vernon (LSD-39) during a formal Change of Command Ceremony in Hong Kong Harbor Jan. 2.

He relieved Cmdr. Lawrence M. Patella as commanding officer of the 510-foot amphibious support vessel.

The auxiliary ship, which is part of an amphibious assault fleet, is equipped with a drydock well; is capable of transporting 21,000 tons of mechanized equipment including 56 LCM's (Landing Craft Mechanized); is helo-equipped with a capacity for eight helicopters and has a limited capacity for a crew that can range from 150 to 300 men. This does not include the troops that would operate the equipment it transports.

The LSD (Landing Ship Dock) is basically a supply ship for establishing a beach head.

Cmdr. Albright is a 1955 graduate of the Charlevoix High School who enlisted in the U.S. Navy in December of the same year. He later attended Officer's Candidate School, advancing to his present rank.

The son of Mrs. Wayne (Leotine) Fitzhugh, a former resident now living at Elborta, he is married to the former Roberta Mayne. They have two children, Shelly and Richard. The family lives in San Diego, Calif.

Former resident tours Egypt with teacher's group

Wayne Sundberg, a former resident who teaches in the Forst Collins, Col., School System, returned last week from a seven-week tour of Egypt with a group of Colorado educators during which they studied the culture, educational system and people of the country.

The purpose of the group, named by the School of Education of the University of Colorado at Boulder, was to gather first hand information on the country and its people for use in the classroom. Their combined findings will be compiled for use in the schools thus giving students a look at current events as they are developing.

Mrs. Sundberg joined him for the last two weeks of the seven week tour.

Sundberg advised his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kip Sundberg that while the entire experience was exciting he felt the highlight of the trip was the group's meeting with Mrs. Sadat.

Lee Moerland takes over helm of CETA group

Lee Moerland

Charlevoix County Commissioner I. Lee Moerland has been elected chairman of the Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium.

The Consortium is in charge of administrating Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds in the ten county Northwestern Michigan area.

Cheboygan man elected mental health officer

The Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board recently elected new officers as follows:

Robert Greenwood, representing Cheboygan County, chairman; W. Richard Smith, representing Emmet County, vice chairman; and Martin Paul, representing Charlevoix County, secretary.

Other Charlevoix County members serving on the board are Sam Kosc and Thora Kotowich.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, February 2, in the board offices at 325 East Lake Street, Petoskey. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Special TV program set on income tax problems

"Ask the CPA's", a telephone TV call-in show dealing with income tax problems, will be aired on Channel 6 today (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

During the half-hour program, several certified public accountants will discuss questions called in by local viewers.

High on the priority list will be questions dealing with the changes in tax laws, filing procedures, and special problems with this year's forms.

"Ask the CPA's" is produced by WCMU/WCML-TV in cooperation with the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Thomas Duke, Jr., named First State bank director

A new director has been elected to the board of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Thomas A. Duke, Jr., was elected to the board at the group's annual meeting last week.

Duke, 22, was a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School where he was president of his graduating class. He also attended Northwestern Michigan College and Grand Valley State College.

He currently serves on the board of directors of the Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington and has business interests in Charlevoix and Farmington where he is active in real estate.

He was previously employed in the International Department of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

Re-elected to the board for the coming year were: Thomas A. Duke, Sr., chairman of the board; Donald C. Coulter, Richard M. Hodgson, Louis J. Hollow, president of the bank; David H. Irish, Glenn L. Kenney, G. Franklin Ochs and William M. Skilbnan.

Officers for the bank were reappointed with Hollow as president; Gary J. Bailey, vice president and cashier; Elaine Martin, assistant vice president and James Wibby, assistant cashier and loan officer.

Hollow reviewed continued growth in deposits and earnings of the bank. Total assets of the bank were $12,242,000 as of Dec. 31, 1977. This represents a 19 percent increase over 1976. For the previous two years the bank had grown 14 percent.

Charlevoix Co. residents up insurance holdings

Reacting to the frequent ups and downs in the national economy and the effect on their way to life, residents of Charlevoix County have been taking steps to bolster their financial security.

They have been safeguarding themselves in several ways – building up their savings, adding to their health, accident and household insurance and budgeting themselves more carefully in general.

They especially have been adding to their life insurance. Total holdings of this form of protection in the local area are now estimated at approximately $168,668,000.

The facts and figures on the number of policyholders and the amount of insurance in force are contained in the 1977 Life Insurance Fact Book and in other year-end statistics. The breakdown is on a state by state basis.

It shows that the American people as a whole have been adding to their insurance in the last few years. Their holdings have reached a record high of $2.34 trillion (yes, trillion).

In the State of Michigan, according to the figures, the amount of force now totals $111.8 billion. This compares with the $65.8 billion reported in 1970.

In general, the amount of insurance carried is in direct proportion of income. The total held by the average family in the state is found to be equivalent to 23.3 months of income, after taxes.

Related to Charlevoix County and to the average income listed for the area, life insurance coverage locally is now estimated at $26,770 per family, which is considerably more than in many sections of the country.

Ordinary insurance is the type of coverage carried by most people in the local area. Group insurance is in second place.

The report shows that policyholders have been borrowing large amounts of money during the last year or two, against the cash value of their policies. They were taking advantage of interest rates that were lower than could be obtained elsewhere. Much of the borrowings, which totaled $25 billion a year, went into the purchase of new cars and homes.

Proposed charter vote denied by city council

To vote on the charter or not to vote on the charter was the question at Charlevoix Common Council Monday night.

And it took several minutes of legal discussion before it was determined what action had been taken.

John Michael, Charlevoix Charter Commission member, requested the council place the proposed new charter on the general election ballot April 3 for the final time.

After 30 minutes of discussion and debate, council voted 3-1 with two members absent in favor of placing the issue on the ballot.

Alderman Ivan Whitley, who cast the lone dissenting vote, questioned whether the issue had been passed since a quorum of the common council had not approved it. It takes four votes of council members to make a quorum.

Michael argued that it merely took a majority of the council members present to place the issue on the ballot, while City Attorney Donald Berlage went to his office to dig out the Fourth Class Cities Act. After some study, it was Berlage's opinion that it did take a quorum of the council members to place the issue on the ballot and that the council's 3-1 vote was not sufficient to place the issue on the ballot.

Michael said he would research the matter and come to the next council meeting to request that the charter be placed on the ballot.

"I can't believe that one man's vote can tell the whole city that it doesn't have the right to vote on the charter," Michael said. "I'm going to research election law and return with any information that I can find."

Berlage asked the charter commission member how the proposed new charter handled such issues, pointing out that tampering with the current charter could eliminate some of the necessary guidelines for the operation of a city.

The third draft of the proposed new charter is completely different from the other two drafts, according to the charter commission member.

"This draft is a whole new ball game," Michael explained to the mayor and council. "It's what the voters have been telling us that they want."

Michael said the charter commission had essentially taken the Fourth Class Cities Act and modernized it.

"You've heard us criticize the Fourth Class Cities Act and call it outdated," the charter commissioner said. "What we've done is keep the essence of good government from the act and left out what we felt was old fashioned and archaic."

The third draft of the proposed new charter would make Charlevoix a home rule city operated through a council-city manager form of government.

"We've put 100 percent of the power with the council," Michael explained. "The city manager is selected by the council and acts entirely under the leadership of the council. He has no appointive powers."

The third draft of the charter also eliminates the ward and city conventions and the at-large elections. The mayor and aldermen will be elected exactly as they are now.

The charter does retain non partisan elections, however Michael explained that the charter commission believed it was unnecessary to have partisan politics in a small city. The commission also felt it would save the city money because it would be unnecessary to hold a primary unless more than two people were running for office.

The new proposed charter also provides that city council must write job descriptions for all of the department heads in the city so that there would be no misunderstanding about what was expected of the officials.

More Comments on Beaver Island Boat Co.

In answer to the taxpayer in the Feb. 1 Hotline, where he or she said, "We can use the building for the Harbor Master." If such a dream enters his or her head again – see your doctor at once – something is wrong because the B.I. Boat Company owns and paid for the new building.

But maybe he or she is talking about the sewer building. What harbor master would want an office in that stinky old building? Furthermore, people benefit by the B.I. Boat Co. at your dock a lot more than if you had a sailboat docked there and tried to get rent for it money-wise.

Thank you – A taxpayer that doesn't mind signing his name,
Paul V. LaFreniere

Replies to Comments on Hockey Rink

EDITOR'S NOTE: According to city officials involved with the recreation department, the reason the hockey rink wasn't finished this year was due to the weather. Work crews attempted to get the rink completed and all of the equipment, including new lights, was purchased in time, but it began to snow and the temperatures dropped making it impossible to finish the rink this year. The city officials wanted to do a good job on the rink and they didn't feel anyone would want to use the rink if it was not constructed properly.

Complains about Cafeteria Chairs

The seats in the high school cafeteria are so darn bad it looks like they haven't been cleaned in three years. The senior citizens had a meeting in the cafeteria the other day and they had a guest speaker. He had to sit on those chairs and it was a disgrace. Maybe only two or three out of the 300 chairs are right. I'm not blaming the new superintendent or anything cause it's been that way for three years. There's grease and food all over those chairs. But I'm going to call up the board of health if something isn't done.

School seeks funds to develop lighthouse education center

Environmental education classes may soon be available to Charlevoix school students on Beaver Island.

The Charlevoix School District is applying for a $50,000 grant through the Department of Health Education and Welfare to establish an Environmental Education Center at the Beaver Head Light Station on the south end of Beaver Island.

The school district purchased the property, which includes more than 60 acres with approximately 2,000 feet of Lake Michigan frontage, several years ago.

"When I first came here, I couldn't figure out what the school district wanted with a lighthouse," Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren said. "But after studying it, I can see what the board of education had in mind. Someday that could be a very valuable piece of property."

In the meantime, the school district would like to upgrade the land and turn it into an environmental education center for students and teachers throughout the state.

The HEW grant would underwrite the cost of a full time working director who would coordinate the entire project. The director would receive a salary of $15,000 and would have to have administrative experience as well as a background in environmental education.

The grant would also cover the cost of a full time caretaker at a salary of $10,000.

The center would be used for in service training for teachers and as a place to prepare curriculum materials for environmental related classes. It could also be used as a base for a school camp.

The school district hopes to make the lighthouse-education center self-supporting through charging for its use by other school districts.

No general fund monies would be used on the lighthouse, Van Wieren said.

The district is also looking into the possibility of obtaining some CETA money to set up a work program on the site this summer. Students would work cleaning up the site and preparing it for the improvements it needs.

Three candidates turn down job of administrator

All three of Mayor Edward Hansen's candidates for the vacant city administrator's position have decided not to take the job.

Mayor Hansen told the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night that the candidates had "opted out."

"I had approached three people, but they have all said they are not interested in the job because of the charter situation," Mayor Hansen explained.

"Word about this charter business is all over the state. They talk about it more down there than we do up here. You think we talk about it a lot, they really go at it."

Alderman Jeannine Wallace asked that advertisements be placed in professional magazines inviting people to apply for the position.

"I think we should take some sort of action," Mrs. Wallace said. "Time is slipping away and there are some things that need to be done.

"I would like to see an ad placed in some of these magazines as soon as possible."

Mayor Hansen agreed to place the ads in the professional magazines. He also suggested that council begin thinking about whether they wanted a city administrator or an engineer who can advise them about the extension of utilities and various other matters.

"I think we have to decide this before we even try to hire someone," he said.

High school expansion plans examined by school board

The Charlevoix Board of Education discussed the proposed expansion program at the high school, hired a French and English teacher for the remainder of the school year, approved a dual enrollment, approved a change in Parent-Teacher Conferences for the Middle School and accepted a new set of encyclopedias given to the high school library.

After consulting with high school teachers and the architects, Manson Jackson & Kane proposed plans for the expansion of the high school were discussed by the board. Under the revised plan, the west end of Building A would be revamped and new classrooms constructed between Buildings A and B thus retaining the west wall as it now exists.

Snow sculpturing can be fun

Usually people shovel, throw or curse snow. It is hardly looked upon as an art medium.

But next week, Charlevoix area residents will have a chance to try their hand at snow sculpture as a part of the second annual Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival.

A snow sculpturing contest will be a part of the events during the two-day festival sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Lions Club.

The judging of the sculptures will be held at 4 p.m. Feb. 17 but interested snow sculptures are encouraged to begin working before then on their sculptures in East Park. For more information about the theme of the snow sculptures please contact the chamber office at 547-2101.

There are basically two ways to go about making a snow sculpture according to Bill Murray, Charlevoix High School art teacher. One is the additive process and the other is the subtractive process.

With the additive process, the sculpture is made like a snowman. The different parts are made separately and then stuck together to make the sculpture.

Under the subtractive process, the artists start with a large pile of snow and then whittle it down until they find a sculpture, Murray said.

The art teacher suggested people interested in trying their hands at a snow sculpture use snow shovels or any other type of shovel to sculpt out the ice statue. He also suggested the artists wear warm clothing and be sure to have an extra pair of mittens.

To add a little color to the statues, Murray suggests mixing powdered poster paint with a slush and putting it on the statue. Crepe paper pressed into the snow is also a good way of making the statues look better and a little glitter helps, too.

As the snow sculpture nears completion, it is important to ice it down so that it won't melt easily and disappear before the judging. The sculpture can be iced down by covering it with a slush mixture or spraying it with water.

Other activities planned for the weekend include the Charlevoix High School Winter Homecoming including half time festivities at the Petoskey-Charlevoix basketball game and a dance following the game.

On Feb. 18, the festival will be marked by outdoor activities. Cross country ski races will be held at Mt. McSauba beginning at 9:30 a.m. with a competitors meeting and at 10 a.m. for the races.

Following the cross country ski races will be the Dual Slalom Ski Cup Races for downhill skiing enthusiasts. Registration will begin at noon at Mt. McSauba with the races starting at 1 p.m.

At 3 p.m. a Bump Jump Contest will begin on the Pale Face Slope at Mt. McSauba and Jim Welch of Summit Sports will conduct a free cross country ski clinic.

A snowmobile safari will open up the celebration Feb. 19. The Charlevoix Snowmobile Club will host the safari which will leave at 10 a.m. from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

Free downhill ski lessons will be given at 1 p.m. at Mt. McSauba.

LAST YEAR'S WINNER IN THE Winter Cup Festival snow sculpturing contest was this statue of a lion constructed by the Senior Class at Charlevoix High School.

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

If this story were a crossword puzzle and the words "Pastor Jim" were the inner clue, the answer words would probably be onion wine, Franz Liszt, sermons, brook trout, gourmet, wood heat and garden among others.

Pastor James Plackner of Charlevoix's Bethany Lutheran Church thrives on challenges and for years creating crossword puzzles has been one of his happiest challenges.

A fellow pastor who fills out crosswords "in ink" introduced Pastor Jim to the habit one summer in Connecticutt.

Once Pastor Jim, as he prefers to be called, became addicted to the puzzles, "because I just enjoy words," he wasn't content to be simply a mere participant.

In 1970, he sent his own crossword puzzle to the New York Times, considered by many to be the pinnacle of crossword puzzle publishers. It was accepted. And since then he has submitted innumerable puzzles, to the Times, most being used in the daily paper.

Pastor Jim chose the Times because, "their puzzles don't call on esoteric or unique knowledge.

"For the Times you must sit and think and try different meanings.

"Their's are more mind teasers than mind bogglers," the minister warms to his subject.

Explaining one of the key elements to a Times puzzle Pastor Jim says, "an inner clue means that from four to eight longer words in the puzzle are related in some way.

"One of the first I did was a play on seasons – summer, fall, winter, spring. positions are about to be copywrited and tentatively sent to a publisher.

Franz Liszt, another inner clue to the puzzle of Pastor Jim, exemplifies Plackner's for challenge. "After going on a Beethoven kick, followed by Karl Nielson, I am trying Liszt, which may be enough to challenge me until I die.

"I don't necessarily like to listen to others play Liszt, I like trying to work it out myself," the minister nods at his stack of music on the piano.

Onion wine, along with parsley, grape, apple, plum and you-name-it wines are another challenge. "They're real toughies," he laughed.

"It's not hard to make, but it doesn't taste very good when its finished. But if it sits bottled for four years and then another six months, it's very good.

"A neighbor once said, "If you could find a recipe you'd make shoestring wine,"' he laughs again.

Persuing challenges is Pastor Jim's avocation. The Church is his vocation.

He says he tries not to mix the two, but admits to relishing a good turn of phrase, an occasional well-timed pun in his sermons.

Words are important he emphasizes, "If people don't use words correctly we'll lose the ability to communicate."

And to escape from daily pressures, Plackner takes on another challenge – brook trout fishing.

Although he researches gourmet recipes for fun, one of his ultimate pleasures is "to bring fresh brook trout home, pan fry them, and serve them with a fresh salad and a glass of wine."

He looked out over the wooded hills, rolling down from his house:

"You know, if you take a close look at a brook trout, you just know there's got to be a God."

I used such words as somersault and fall back on.

"There was another with an inner clue of black and blue, and the words in the puzzle were blackball, My Blue Heaven, Boston Blackie and so on" he continued.

"They used to use the inner clue as a title, but eventually the inner clue was not even given. It just becomes clear as you work the puzzle."

The editor with whom Pastor Jim had dealt retired recently and the Charlevoix puzzler was informed by the new editor that "the Times has enough puzzles to last a year." So Plackner has let some of his other interests cut into his puzzling time.

Actually, he explains, "I could make a puzzle in a half hour or it could take months. "The object is to do the best job fitting clever words together, not to earn a fee."

He adds, it is not something at which he works steadily, but rather in snatches of time, as he can.

The fee for a published puzzle is $15.00 – not enough to make the minister switch professions

And now he has a "music bug" he says, as he sits to play a recent composition, "Christmas Joy" on the small upright piano in his home south of town.

His wife, Elaine, sang "Christmas Joy" at the Lutheran Church, this past season.

In music Pastor Jim concentrates his creativity on the music first, fitting words to both the theme of the music and the idea

"Christmas Joy", as its name implies, is a celebration of the spirit of the season. It and several other com

New advertising rep joins Courier staff

A new sales representative has joined the staff of the Charlevoix Courier.

Patricia Wright of Boyne City, joined the advertising department as a full time member last week. She will assist advertising director Marlin Hofmeyer in handling advertising accounts in the Charlevoix area.

Miss Wright, 25, has had extensive experience in the retail business serving as assistant buyer for Macy's-California. She has also worked as a model for Macy's and at Gocha's in Boyne City.

A graduate of North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. Miss Wright has always been interested in the communications field. She said she is looking forward to working in advertising because it will give her a chance to combine her knowledge of retailing with her skills in the areas of caligraphy, design, and layout.

Mardi Gras special this year and a help to all of Charlevoix

It was a gala weekend in Charlevoix as area residents and visitors celebrated Mardi Gras.

But the celebration took on a special meaning this year because the funds raised through the festivities were earmarked to help the Charlevoix Area Hospital pay for a new X-ray film processor.

Hundreds of people attended the benefit showing of "Off the Edge" Friday night and Saturday and about 200 people also attended the benefit dinner held Friday night.

These people should be congratulated on their support of this very worthwhile cause. And there are several other people who should receive thanks for their efforts.

Jeff Campbell, star of the movie, spent many hours in Charlevoix showing the movie and discussing it with interested residents. Campbell's presence at the benefit was made possible through the contribution of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, who wanted to help the hospital.

In addition, Dave Phillips, owner of the Grey Gables and Al Breeze put in many long hours organizing the event and working with members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital board of directors ironing out the details.

Other people who helped make the event possible include Tom and Esther Carey, long-time supporters of the hospital, who served as Mardi Gras King and Queen and did everything within their power to make the weekend a success.

The owners of the Cinema III should also be thanked for contributing the use of the theater for the two benefit showings of the adventure film.

It's the combined efforts of many people that usually make these events successful. It takes a lot of work and the donation of many hours for planning and organizing purposes.

Charlevoix seems to be blessed with an abundance of people who are willing to look beyond themselves to the entire community. They put in tireless hours so that everyone can benefit.

The community owes a lot to these people. A simple thank you is not enough, but it is a start.

Boy Scouts complete 68 great years

Boy Scouting is marking its 68th year in the United States today (Wednesday). They are making 68 years of a fine tradition in helping boys grow into men who are a welcome part of the community.

But Scouting wouldn't have lasted that long if it hadn't been for the dedicated men and women who have been serving as the leaders of those boys. Those leaders have put in millions of hours over the last 68 years helping boys complete worthwhile projects that not only benefit youth but the entire community.

There have been countless clean up drives in our community under the direction of the Boy Scouts and there have been numerous other things completed by the boys under the direction of a creative leader.

The community owes much to the Boy Scouts but the leaders and hundreds of others who have served on committees and as advisors behind the scenes should not be forgotten either. Without their help the Boy Scouts would not exist.

Let's remember that the next time we are asked to help and give a little more willingly of our time.

SIX MORE WEEKS IN HIDING

Erma Bombeck

I overheard my children arguing the other night over – of all things – my childhood.

The oldest said, "Mama told me they weren't rich, but they always had a little food on the table and a roof over their heads."

The middle child said, "That's funny. She told me they were dirt poor and would have given their eye teeth to have half of the food I wasted."

The baby said, "They were destitute. She told me they were so poor they had to buy parents – an time."

The oldest child said, "All I know is she had to walk eight blocks to school every day, rain or shine."

The middle child said, "It was three miles in a winter with three blizzards and a spring with two floods."

The baby said, "Would you believe she walked eight miles a day...and came home for lunch....with long underwear tucked under her feet for socks?"

The firstborn said, "Once when I told a lie she told me Grandma took a branch off a tree and switched her legs with it."

The second-born said, "I heard that story and it wasn't a tree limb, it was a tree runk."

The baby said, "You got it wrong. She was tied to the tree trunk for three days to bleach in the sun."

The oldest said, "How long was she in labor with you? She told me I took 12 hours to be born."

"She told me three days," said the middle one.

The baby said, "She told me the other day she still gets cramps when she looks in my bedroom."

"All I know," said the oldest, "is she wasn't allowed to drive a car until she was 21."

"She told me 24."

"You get all the breaks. She wants me to vulcanize my feet."

"This is wierd," said the oldest child. "Are we talking about the same Mom? The thin, bright-eyed, dark-haired girl who used to read me stories, bake cookies, paste my baby pictures in the album and giggle a lot?"

The middle child said, "The somber-looking blonde who used to put me to bed at 6:30 and bought me a dog to save on napkins?"

The baby said, "The grayish lady who falls asleep during the six-o'clock news and is going to show me my baby pictures when we finish shooting the roll at my graduation?"

I knew I should have raised 'em in separate parts of the house.

Letter to the editor

Hayes supports police

Dear Mayor Hansen:

I read with dismay the article in the current issue of the Charlevoix Courier that there is consideration of disbanding the Charlevoix City Police Department. This letter is written from my vantage point as the chief law enforcement officer of the County as well as a resident of the City of Charlevoix.

Our police department does an outstanding job. I have worked with numerous police officers and agencies downstate as well as here in Charlevoix and I found that our city police compare quite favorably in their performance to other departments, many of whom are paid at a considerably higher rate.

Police work can be often difficult, unpleasant and at times dangerous. The rewards of the job lie mainly in helping and defending others and often in times like these the work turns out to be thankless and unrewarding. Police work is vital to the well being of our city and the city police do it well. They enforce our law fairly, efficiently and professionally.

Disbanding the Charlevoix City Police Department would be a giant step backwards for our community. The mere consideration of this topic is demoralizing and disheartening to the men whom perform the important service to our community.

Sincerely,
Roy C. Hayes

Call her Curd? No whey!

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to decide if my oldest daughter's nickname can be broadcast on radio and television.

Well, that may not be precisely true. But practically.

Actually, the court will rule on 7 words which the Federal Communications Commission considers indecent. Newspaper reports coyly describe the 7 words as "slang which depict sexual or excretory activities and organs."

Why are there 7 such words, instead of 6, or 8? The precise count is not the result of extensive research done by the FCC on rest room walls. It is the result of a record album made by comedian George Carlin.

The album includes a selection called "dirty words" in which Carlin says the 7 words which, in his opinion, turn sensitive noses bluest fastest. When a New York man and his young son heard Carlin's record on the radio, the father complained to the FCC.

Subsequently, the FCC banned the 7 words from TV and radio. But the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington soon struck down the FCC ban, ruling that it was overly broad and vague. Now the Supreme Court will decide the issue.

I heard Carlin deliver his 7 words routine in person several years ago, in Detroit's plushest theater. I remember it was riotously funny, but no matter how hard I try, I can't remember all 7 words.

I can come up with only 4 of them for sure, and then must guess at the rest. My guesses quickly reach a total of 56, including suffixed words, so you must admit my vocabulary is better than my memory.

So I can't say for sure that my oldest daughter's nickname will be affected by the Supreme Court decision. Her nickname is in the "excretory activities" category, but it is not the most popular word in that category. Rather, it is an auxiliary word, often used by prissy people who wouldn't say the most popular word if they had a mouthful of it.

For fear of offending my wife and my editor, I won't write the nickname here. But I will give you a good hint.

The world has already been told, many times, that my youngest daughter's nickname is Ferd. And her little brother is most commonly called Nerd. Well, my oldest daughter's nickname begins with "T" and rhymes beautifully with the nicknames of her brother and sister.

Her given name, incidentally, is Karen. She and her family live many miles away and I see her only a few times a year. Therefore she doesn't appear in this column nearly as often as Ferd and Nerd, or even the lousy cats. Karen's friends were concerned that she might feel left out and neglected by her father.

So they gave her a nickname as distinctive as Ferd and Nerd, but certainly not as appropriate. Everyone in her little town now calls Karen by her new name. She thinks it's funny.

Her mother doesn't When my wife first heard her firstborn child's nickname – that's when the most popular word hit the fan. Naturally, she blamed me.

I told my wife that sticks and stones might break her bones, but words would never hurt her. She told me I wouldn't say such dumb things if I weren't made of snails and puppy dog tails.

I reminded her that Ferd and Nerd had accompanied me to the show in which George Carlin had given his 7-word routine. The kids were barely teenagers then. When Carlin was through, I asked them if they'd heard any words they'd never heard around school. The answer was no.

"I don't care," my wife said. "I don't think people should have to hear those words if they don't want to, and I don't want to."

The Supreme Court may well agree with her. In which case, when Ferd and Nerd replace Donny and Marie on TV, there will be a great loss of poetical pizzaz when the FCC forces them to introduce their guest star as Karen instead of her nickname.

"Couldn't they call her Curd?" my wife asked.

"No whey," I said.

...Speaking Her Mind

I always enjoy going through the mail at the Charlevoix Courier because I know that everyday one of those envelopes will hold a little tidbit of information that is crucial to my daily living.

What I'm actually trying to say is that I'm a junk mail junkie. I rarely have the intestinal fortitude to toss out an unopened envelope, after all, it might contain something vital.

In the past, I have opened envelopes containing plastic snowflakes announcing the long-awaited arrival of snow in Utah, a recipe for spaghetti to serve 50 people (not even when my family visits me do I have to cook that much food) and my daily horoscope through 1985.

In other words, my efforts are usually in vain as far as the mail is concerned. I can go for weeks before I get something in the mail that is really worth printing.

But this week I got something that really started me thinking. The information come from the Michigan Farm Bureau and it was about the inflation rate. To be honest, I don't pay much attention to the inflation rate except that I know it is constantly increasing. And that attitude was exactly what the Farm Bureau was warning against.

According to the organization, even a 5 percent inflation is dangerous to the economy and something to be concerned about.

Figures supplied by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis show that if prices rise by 5 percent a year from now until the year 2021, just under 50 years away, one pound of peanut butter would sell for $11.23; one gallon of milk, $12.49; and one pair of work pants, $80.69.

A person now earning $6,240 a year would be earning $56,077 a year in 45 years if his salary rose at 5 percent a year. If all things remained equal, a person earning $6,240 last year would receive a $155 refund on federal personal income taxes as a result of the earned income credit, in 45 years he would have to pay taxes of $17,019.

This same person's after income tax earnings would rise from $6,396 in 1977 to $38,058 in 2021 leaving him with after tax purchasing power of only $4,345 in 1977 dollars, a decline of nearly one-third.

So put that in your pipe and smoke it!

I sort of made a vow at the beginning of the New Year not to write so many columns about my family. But I couldn't resist telling a tale about my mother.

I was home visiting last week along with the rest of brothers and sisters and assorted friends. And wouldn't you know it, the dishwasher broke on Saturday night.

"Oh," my mother moaned. 'It's just like Erma Bombeck said. If something needs a repairman to be fixed, it inevitably breaks down on a Saturday night.

I've been telling her for years that if she read it in the newspaper it was probably true, but it took until now to believe me.

Thank you Erma Bombeck.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

The first of the 1978 seed catalogues has arrived, a welcome splash of summer color in the middle of a black and white winter.

It is chuck full of luscious red tomatoes (our very best), pea plants taller than the Jolly Green Giant and acres of chunky Hubbard squash (prized by all for its thick, tender and sweet yellow flesh).

But it's not your regular, garden-variety produce that has captivated my attention this year. It is a special section called the "Fun Corner – Fun for Everyone, Mom, Dad, the Kids." And if I planted half of the fun crops it recommends I wouldn't have room left over for a row of radishes.

Did you know, for example, that you can grow sponges in your backyard? They are called luffa sponges and according to the little picture they grow on trellises and look a little like cucumbers.

"When fruit matures, peel off hard skin and you have a durable sponge for kitchen or car. Rapid growing, with pretty yellow flowers. Oriental cooks stuff the young fruits and bake them like squash. Directions included."

I've got to get some of those seeds. I can't sleep thinking about growing sponges along the fence. Holy moses! We might even go into the sponge business, shipping luffa sponges all over the world. Except to the Orient where they eat them.

Or how about cotton? Did you ever wonder what it would be like to be "old massa" down on a cotton plantation?

Now you can find out without leaving Charlevoix County, north of the 45th parallel. My new catalogue offers large, fluffy white balls of Ornamental Cotton seeds for only 73 cents.

"Cotton makes a very ornamental plant here in the north-central states. Fits well into your flower garden or in the border. Has showy flowers followed by fluffy balls of white cotton."

Oh Boy! Wouldn't the neighbors be envious if the Clocks' backyard suddenly turned into a cotton plantation. The kids would have to learn all the words to "Old Man River" before I'd let them hoe. Of course, we could have the front porch replaced with a white portico and circle drive.

Or how about Spanish peanuts? Why we could turn Charlevoix into another Plains, Ga.

According to my catalogue, peanuts do well as far north as South Dakota, requiring a mere 100 days to maturity, "early enough to ripen in a normal season." The catalogue says the nuts are small but have a fine flavor and they send you an instruction manual on growing, roasting and eating.

Maybe I should rotate my crops, growing cotton one year and peanuts the next, just to outsmart any boll weevils in the neighborhood.

You also can order a packet of seeds that will produce corn 20 feet tall, beans that have pods two feet long, white radishes that weigh up to 15 pounds, snow white tomatoes and strawberries, green cauliflower, onions shaped like torpedoes, yellow radishes, a musk-melon that looks like a banana, white sugar beets so sweet you'll mistake them for candy and ginseng root for the beginning witch doctor.

Just about the only exotic plant not offered in my catalogue is cannabis, but I understand it grows wild hereabouts if you know where to look.

Letters to the editor

Ether Bunny says thanks

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a letter from Joan Strowbridge, nurse anesthetist for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. It is her way of thanking all of the people who helped her last week during the blizzard.

To The Editor:

It was 6 a.m. on Jan. 26th when I nosed my shivering Pinto out of Boyne City toward Charlevoix. The headlights stabbed into the blackness of night, only to reflect back the glare of swirling snow. Small drifts and crusted ruts on the Boyne City Road gave the illusion that I was bouncing over the choppy waters of Lake Michigan in a small boat. Few cars were braving the elements at this hour.

Just north of Horton Bay, I saw the welcome red taillights of a car surging ahead of me, I adjusted my speed to 30 MPH as I eagerly tracked this moving lighthouse. The wind whistled and snatched at my car as it created cyclones of snow from the sides of the road.

Suddenly brake-lights appeared before me. I edged up closer. I could see stationary headlights ahead of me on the other side of the road, beyond and several cars stopped before me. I rapidly pumped my brake pedal as a warning to the car approaching behind me.

Hopeful that the problem ahead was righting itself, we sat immobilized. Soon we resembled a bizarre caravan of white camels being whirled in a cocoon of whipping snow.

I flicked on my CB radio.

"Break 19."

"Go, Break," it responded.

"Do you have any information about the delay on Boyne City Road?" I queried.

"There's a car stalled by Blue Dot Farm, blocking traffic both ways."

Before I could reply to this information, another CBer called for the "Free Spirit" home base in Charlevoix to telephone this delay to his family. When he got an affirmative reply, I jumped in.

"Break for Free Spirit."

"This is Free Spirit."

"Could you please notify surgery at Charlevoix Hospital that the Ether Bunny is stuck en route?"

"Could you repeat that handle, please," a lady's puzzled voice came back.

At this point I spelled E-T-H-E-R B-U-N-N-Y. I hoped they'd take it seriously.

As this was transpiring, I saw the fellow in front of me leave his car to wade forward to assess the problem. He returned, obviously looking for volunteer brown as he informed me that we needed to get the car ahead pushed out of a drift.

"Ether Bunny," a man's voice came from my CB. "Charlevoix Hospital has been advised."

"Appreciate your help," I said. Six men, hunching into the wind, passed me going toward the stranded car.

A deep voice rumbled forth. "This is the Sheriff's Department. Ether Bunny, please advise of your situation."

I wanted to laugh. The Sheriff's "finest" probably felt like Jimmy Stewart talking to his imaginary rabbit, Harvey. Actually, it made me feel very secure.

"I'm three cars behind a car stalled near Blue Dot Farm. There are men trying to push it out now."

"Roger, Ether Bunny, we're approximately half a mile in front of you with a wrecker."

At this point, I could see the lights of the floundering car begin to fish tail, as it was urged through the drifts.

"Hey, Ether Bunny," a new voice filled the car. "Are you keeping warm? I'm running low on gas, how about you?"

I smiled to myself, at this inadvertant pun. As a nurse anesthetist, I'm often called a "gas passer" in surgery – I never run out of gas.

"This is the Ether Bunny. I think we're beginning to roll." The car in front of me swayed forward as two men put their backs to it.

I slipped the gear into low, but the wheels spun. Back and forth I rocked. Then I saw a friendly face dart in and out of view in the swirling snow as I began to move forward with the help of pressing shoulders. I inched ahead, still not getting a good trip on the road.

Then I was stuck again. Another ghostly figure appeared. "Don't worry, we've got you," a man shouted through the window. I crept along with some unknown good samaritan bullying the car just enough to keep it going.

Then the figure disappeared, but I was on wind-swept pavement. Before me blinked the reassuring lights of the wrecker and the sheriff's car.

"Ether Bunny, this is the Sheriff's Department. What is your status now?"

"I see you! I'm coming up along side now. Thanks for your help!"

I rushed on to the hospital. As I prepared to take a little boy into surgery to put him to sleep for a tonsillectomy, his parents said, "We heard you on the CB. We wanted to tell you that we knew you'd make it, but we thought you had your hands full."

It's a small world, but more than that, it's a warm and friendly world even in a blizzard around Charlevoix, Michigan. Thanks good buddies!

Group seeks area support for Interlochen radio station

To the Editor:

For 13 years radio station WIAA in Interlochen, Michigan, has brought non-commercial programming to northern Lower Michigan and the southern Upper Peninsula. It is the only National Public Radio station in the region and thefore the only alternative to commercial broadcasting. In addition to bringing regularly such popular programs as "ALL Things Considered" and the concerts of the Chicago and Cleveland symphonies, the station provides a voice for local groups and a forum for discussion of regional and state problems.

The station now is in desperate need of new equipment to continue broadcasting. Listeners have undoubtedly noticed the frequent breakdowns of the transmitter, now 13 years old. Last year WIAA applied to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for money to replace their wornout equipment. The request was denied, although approval was very close. They are trying again this year, and the application must be sent in by mid-February.

A group of WIAA listeners in the Grand Traverse region, on their own initiative, are urging all listeners to write letters to the station in support of the new grant application. These letters will be included in the application to HEW. Such letters will certainly be influential in convincing HEW of the desire by listeners to keep the station operating.

If you enjoy listening to WIAA and would like to support the station, please take a few minutes to write them before February 10 at WIAA, Interlochen, Michigan 49643.

Accuses Sen. Davis of using office to gain new position

To the Editor:

I am writing this to call attention of your readers to State Senator Kerry Kammer's stand that incumbents should not use their present office to run for election to another office or for re-election.

In my opinion the recent action precipitated by Senator Robert Davis is an excellent example of this type of action. When a Senator starts holding news conferences and issues state wide news releases regarding potluck suppers, it certainly must indicate that he is trying to run for something.

As a resident of Senator Davis' 37th District, I certainly feel that he has been a better political opportunist than State Senator and this latest action is merely a continuation of his blatant attempts at opportunism.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Dorothy Stenman

Charlevoix Council Minutes

JANUARY 23, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Wood that the last phrase in the Motion regarding the Shade Tree Commission, as set down in the Minutes of the January 9, 1978 Council Meeting, be corrected to read "and to have 175 trees pruned, and to provide funds for pruning 175 trees in the 1978 budget, at a cost not to exceed $10,000." Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The minutes of the January 9, 1978 meeting were approved as corrected.

Council discussed dedicating the roadway running north from U.S. 31, east of Martin Road, as a public thoroughfare. City Building Inspector, Alvin Ranger, stated that the dedication of the road had been requested by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company as they wish to run a gas main along the road. Mayor Hansen suggested that the necessary easements be acquired to allow the full width of the roadway before it is dedicated. City Attorney, Donald Berlage, will approach the property owners regarding acquisition of the required easements.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Erber to appoint Sandy VanLoo as Assistant Billing Clerk, as recommended by the City Clerk. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Erber. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Plumm that, due to the increase in cost of the City sewage operation and the continued shortfall in the Sewage Fund, the sewage charge be increased from 1.6 times the water charge to 2.3 times the water charge. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Nays: None. Absent: None.

After the vote on the increase of the sewage rate, Council agreed that the new rate will be effective on the City's March billings.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wood that the electric rate for Residential users be set at .04 kilowatt with a minimum charge of $2.00 per month and that the rate for Commercial and Industrial users be set at .04 per kilowatt with a minimum charge of $4.00 per month. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Morris to approve the transfer of $11,873.00 from the Federal Revenue Sharing Fund savings account to the City checking account to meet the payroll of January 23, 1978. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed a letter from the Village of Saugatuck, Michigan requesting that they pair with the City of Charlevoix for Mayors Exchange Day.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wood that the City of Charlevoix exchange Mayors with the Village of Saugatuck, Michigan for Mayor Exchange Day on May 22, 1978 and that Alderman Wallace be appointed Chairperson of the event. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Erber. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $140,903.68 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Whitley that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Erber. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Judy D. Przybylski, City Clerk

Story lady makes books live in library

TWO CHILDREN LISTEN in awe as the Story Lady reads from a book at the Charlevoix Public Library Saturday morning.

Her smile is contagious and her girlish good looks are friendly – just the kind a young child likes.

And it's hard to believe that she can produce hundreds of different voices as she talks. But she can and does – every Saturday.

She's the Story Lady at the Charlevoix Public Library and it's her job to make books come alive for Charlevoix area youngsters attending the Story Hour at 1 p.m. Saturdays in the library.

When she's not the Story Lady, she's Laura Glass, a very busy Charlevoix High School senior, who is also a member of the high school debate and forensics team.

It was through forensics that she learned to make all the voices. She has competed in the story telling division and also in the humorous reading division and she uses her voices to make those readings come alive, too.

"I enjoy reading to the children," Laura said bubbling with enthusiasm. "They're much more responsive than the audiences at forensics competition.

"When they like a voice or something that I am doing they really show it and then I try to do more for them. And when they don't like something you know right away."

Laura usually comes in a couple of days ahead of time to practice a few stories for the children. She also encourages the children to bring in their favorite books and she reads them for them. And sometimes the children join right in with her.

The high school student has been reading stories to preschool and elementary school students for the post four weeks. Next Saturday will be the last day of the program.

The Story Hour is sponsored by the Xi Epsilon Gamma sorority which wanted to provide the service for the community.

LAURA GLASS, a Charlevoix High School senior, has been entertaining children on Saturday mornings as the Story Lady at the Charlevoix Public Library. The story hour is sponsored by the Xi Epsilon Gamma sorority

Forensics team wins district meet

By LAURA GLASS

Exhausted but happy, the members of the Charlevoix High School one act play, "Lilies of the Field" arrived home from regional competition placing as an alternate in the state competition.

Due to a bus [illegible], the students arrived home at 5:30 a.m. Sunday instead of the originally scheduled time of 12:30 a.m. For many of the play members, the last time they had slept soundly was Thursday night.

"We had to leave Charlevoix around 3:30 Saturday morning because Essexville is about a four and one-half hour drive, so most of us didn't bother going to sleep Friday night," Sue Miller, lighting director for the play, said.

"What started out as a routine trip turned out to be a long cold wait in Pinconning.

The district competition for one act plays was hosted by Charlevoix Wednesday and held at Petoskey High School. The schools placing in the district tournament in order were: Charlevoix, Traverse City and Gaylord.

The first two groups at the district level advanced to the regional competition in Essexville. From there the top three acts go on to the state finals slated Feb. 17 and 18 at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

The Charlevoix forensic team not only placed first in the one act competition at the district level, but the team aluso walked off with many individual acting and crew awards.

Those receiving acting awards were: Matt Stangis for his portrayal of Homer Smith, Louise Caldwell, Ann Marie Watson, Chris Pidek, Laureen Helms and Tammy Helms for their portrayal of nuns and Geoff Nelson who received a dual award for both acting and his musical arrangements.

Charlevoix competed against eight schools at the regional level. The first three places went to Garbor High School, Farwell High School and Bad Axe High School.

Awards for lighting techniques went to Sue Miller, lighting director and also to Kristy Mathews and John Grooters.

Charlevoix placed second alternate for the state finals. Geoff Nelson received a superior dual award once again for his acting and musical arrangements.

"The kids did a great job, I'm very pleased with them," Drama Coach Connie Ford said.

The team hopes to perform the play for the public as they have done in the past, however, no date has been set for the show yet.

Pre-enrollment begins for students in high school

Charlevoix High School students will begin pre-enrollment for next year's classes this week.

Students will be bringing class lists home to work out tentative schedules for the coming school year, Charles Bentley, high school counselor, said.

Bentley said students will be asked to work out the schedules with their parents to ensure that they have selected courses for their level of ability and that will meet their future needs.

Students must complete 20 credits in order to graduate. Of that total, nine are required classes including three credits of English, two credits of math, and one credit in science, U.S. History, U.S. government, and physical education.

The remaining 11 credits are open to electives depending on the type of course the student would like to pursue, Bentley said.

Pre-enrollment also helps the school determine what the schedule will be for the coming year and what classes will be needed, Bentley said. And it gives students and teachers a chance to suggest new courses for the coming year.

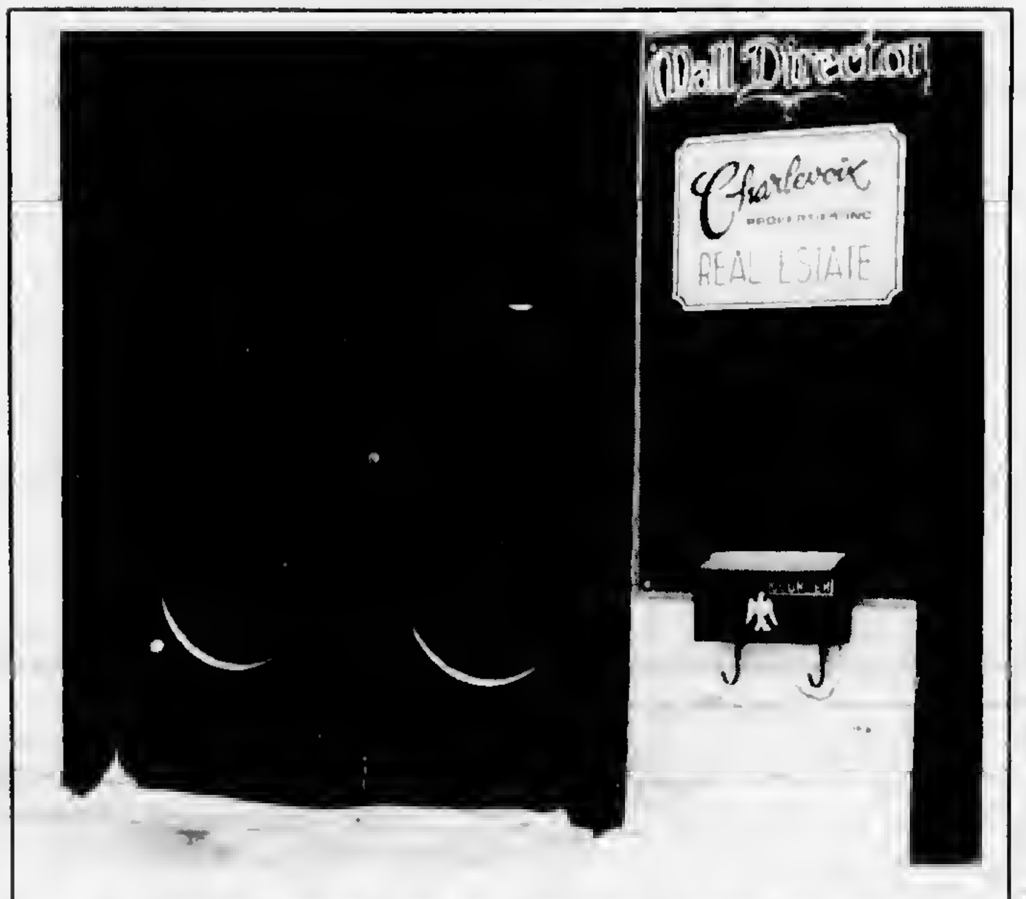
Bentley said that if any parents have questions about their children's schedule or about courses at the high school, they should contact him at 547-2811.

Adult ed courses begin this week

The winter term adult education and enrichment classes will begin this week at Charlevoix High School.

Roy Fortin, assistant high school principal and director of the community education program, said registration had been successful and that the following classes will be held: cake decorating, two classes, Kiddie Craft, welding, graduate equivalent, degree preparation, modern dance, yoga, slimnastics, woodwork, typing and pottery.

Fortin said that only a few more people are needed for the beginning needlepoint class and it will be held, too. People interested in joining these classes may still register for them at the high school.



THE COURIER MAILBOX is now in a new location at the rear of the Market Mall. People wishing to drop materials off at the Courier office after hours should use the mailbox located on Mason Street.

"HEY, THAT'S MY DODGE."

'78 DODGE ASPEN COUPE.
That's what folks are saying these days. Because more and more people are discovering what Dodge has to offer. Like Aspen, the biggest sales [illegible] story in Dodge's history. And no wonder! Aspen has been styled, sized, and priced right.
Aspen gets the right kind of mileage, too. EPA mileage estimates for Aspen coupe with six-cylinder engine and manual transmission are 28 mpg highway and 20 mpg city. Your actual mileage may vary according to your car's condition, its equipment, and your driving habits.
One more thing ... a 1976 Aspen coupe offers greater resale value than Chevy Nova, Buick Skylark, or Olds Omega. This comparison is based on average resale values of comparably equipped one-year-old vehicles as listed in the AMR Guide Book dated October 5, 1977.
So if you're looking for a comfortable, roomy, good-looking, smooth riding car, look into a new Aspen coupe, sedan, or wagon today.
In no time at all, you'll be saying "That's my Dodge!"

Rayders pull off thriller

By BILL MERCER

It was thriller time in far off Huron land this past Friday as Charlevoix's Red Rayders defeated Rogers City, 59-57 in overtime.

This was the first overtime game of the year for the Charlevoix team and it raises their record to 5-4 in league competition and 6-7 overall.

Key factors in the win were team play, balance, good rebounding and a never-say-die attitude. All contributed to the Rayders comeback from a 10-point deficit after three quarters to win in the extra period.

The first half of play was a basic shoot out. Both squads played run and gun basketball with fouls and turnovers kept to a minimum. Unfortunately, Charlevoix ended this first series of battles behind by nine points, 29-20.

In the second half, Coach Dave Moyer switched to a zone defense, which slowed the Hurons' attack and caused them to take low percentage shots from the outside. Charlevoix was able to take advantage of this with superior rebounding after holding Rogers City to one shot.

This defensive maneuver really began to take hold in the fourth quarter when the Huron gunners fell into a cold shooting period. Staying alert, Charlevoix was able to erase this deficit and end the game in a tie at 53 all.

Bob Plumm sparked the Rayders fourth quarter rally when he dumped in 10 points in the third quarter to keep the team alive.

The deadlock was accomplished even though starters Joe Left and Pat Schmidt fouled out of the game late in the final period. Gil Noirot and Steve Schuch came off the bench to play in their places. Both contributed to the final outcome performing well in their substitute positions.

Kevin Kratt and Neil Dziedzic took over in the overtime period to jointly lead the Rayders to victory. Kratt sank two all important free throws and one field goal in the extra period to play to seal the Huron's fate.

Balanced scoring by Rayder players helped offset the 23 point game leading scoring pace set by Rogers City Mark Pilarksi.

In the Charlevoix attack, Plumm had 16 to lead the Rayder scorers. Left added 11 points and Dziedzic, Kratt and Schmidt all talleyed 10 markers.

"The kids were really happy with this win," Coach Dave Moyer said. "It was a super team game with the victory attributable to every player on the team. We really got it together for this one."

This win puts Charlevoix in a position to play spoiler in the race for the championship of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. Currently, Petoskey leads the league with St. Ignace and Gaylord nipping at their heels. Rogers City holds down the fourth spot with the Rayders in fifth.

During the remainder of the season, Charlevoix will play all of the conference leaders except Gaylord at home. Victories over these squads would play havoc with current league standings and with a combination of luck could even land Charlevoix at the top of the heap.

Because of the snow cancellations, the remaining schedule has been altered to accommodate the postponed games. The following is the list of contests for the remainder of the year:

Feb. 7 St. Ignace here
Feb. 10 Boyne City away
Feb. 14 Onaway here
Feb. 17 Petoskey here
Feb. 26 Grayling away
Feb. 24 Rogers City here

With Coach Moyer beginning to achieve a balanced team attack, the Rayders could look good for tournament play. The remaining games should tune up the team for the annual March madness.

THE CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL ski team split its meet last week with Bellaire and Cheboygan. The boys took the meet and the girls lost in close matches.

Ski teams split victories in meet

The Charlevoix Rayder ski team once again split its meet with the opponents.

The Rayders skied against Cheboygan and Bellaire at Schuss Mountain on Thursday. The boys team took the meet with 29 points while Bellaire had 44 and Cheboygan 87. Winning the slalom was Charlevoix's Eric Lundteigen with Mark Lignell in second place and Jeff Richards of Bellaire in third place.

Lundteigen was first again in the giant slalom with Richards in second place. Greg Krueger of Charlevoix took third and Lignell fourth.

In the girl's competition Bellaire had 39, Charlevoix 42 and Cheboygan 84. Charlevoix's Madelyn Iannotti took first place in the slalom while Kristen Lignell took third. Lisa Draper of Bellaire captured second place.

In the giant slalom, Miss Iannotti was first again while Miss Draper took second. Miss Lignell had a fifth place in the race.

Charlevoix will host Gaylord Thursday at 1 p.m. at Nubs Nob.

Junior varsity adds two victories to list

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity basketball squad added two more victories to its list last week.

On Friday, the JVs defeated a tough Rogers City squad 63-46. The JVs opened the game with a slim 2-point lead at the end of the first period with a score of 12-10. At the end of the half, Coach Don Carey's team had jumped the score to 34-16. In the third period the junior Rayders added 13 more points while Rogers City dumped in 14 points for the score of 47-30.

High point men for the Rayders were Scott Morgan with 20 points, Ken Otmanowski with 15 points, Gerard Doan with 12 points and Jack Cross with 8 points.

For Rogers City, Zielinski had 28 points.

On Tuesday, the Rayders downed Kalkaska 74-55 in a decisive victory. The Rayders again took an early lead in the first period with a 18-4 score. In the second period the team added 10 more points while the Blazers dumped in 20 points to close the gap to 28-24.

The Rayders came back in the third quarter to dump in a whopping 24 points for a total of 52 while the Blazers added only 9 more points.

Top scorers for the Rayders were Otmanowski with 24 points, and Morgan right behind him with 22 points.

On Kalkaska's side, Jenkins had 12 points.

Wrestlers squeek by Frankfort team

Charlevoix Radyer wrestlers squeeked by the Frankfort team 31-30 to win their final scheduled dual meet of the season last Thursday.

The two teams were neck in neck through most of the match with Frankfort pulling ahead at the three-quarter point of the meet.

Up to that point Dave Golovich, 112 pounds, had won in a 1:52 pin, Ron Hilton, 119 points, in a 6-1 decision, Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds, in a 5:55 pin and Scott Golovich, 155 pounds, in a 15-8 decision.

It was up to Dennis Whitley, 190 pounds, to win his match in order to bring the Rayders back into competition and to give them a chance at winning the meet. The senior wrestler won his key match in a tough 3:26 pin and brought the score to 30-28 in favor of Frankfort.

Heavyweight Greg Loper then came through for a 6-0 decision win and the Rayders clinched the meet.

Another highlight of the meet was Hilton's victory. The senior wrestler posted his 95th career victory setting a new record at the school.

Kadens downs Swansons in A League

Kadens downed league leading Swansons K & D 82-44 in Charlevoix Recreation Department A League basketball action last week, 82-44.

Kadens jumped to an early lead in the first quarter with a score of 23-12 and the team held on to the lead for the rest of the game.

The second period score was 34-19 and the third period ended at 56-30.

Top scorers for Kadens were Chuck Stanek with 19 points, Kim Hoquard, 14, Tom Beyer, 12, and Jeff Eaton, 10.

For Swansons, Casey Culbertson had 14 points and Kevin Swanson had 11 points.

Bob's Sunoco chalked up another win by defeating Foam Corps 62-50. Bob's started out with a 14 point lead at the end of the first period and summed to a score of 36-14 at the half. By the third period the score was 48-34.

Top scorers were Chuck Pelham with 20 points, Jack Danbert, 16, Jim Danbert, 14, and Max Bolser, 10.

For Foam Corps, Dale Boss had 14 points, Gary Novotny had 12, Randy Holecheck, 11, and Steve Michaels, 10.

Townhouse also moved into the victory circle by downing Site Planning 86-61. Townhouse took the lead at the end of the first period 26-14 and then jumped to 45-27 at the end of the half. The third period score was 69-43.

Top point getters for Townhouse were Spook Coleman with 19 points, Dan McKenzie and Steve Dunkelberg both with 13 points and Steve Smith with 12 points.

For Site Planning, Dennis Dominic had 14 points, Mike Bade had 13 points, Paul Osterberg had 12 points and Tim Carey and Kraag Lieberman both had 10 points.

First State wins battle of the banks in B League play

It was the battle of the banks during the Charlevoix Recreation Department B league basketball games last week.

First State Bank and Charlevoix County State Bank battled right down to the last quarter before First State captured the victory 63-54.

The two teams then battled to a 54-54 tie before First State took the game.

High point men for the First State Bank were Joe Beaudoin with 27 points and Butch Wagner and Jim Gels both with 10.

For County State Bank Steve Martinus had 17 points and Denny Lacroix had 11 points.

In the second game of the evening, Wojan Aluminum defeated Medusa 53-28.

High point men for Wojan's were Don Ward with 12 points and Clay Jones with 10 points.

For Medusa, Bob Holtzmnn had 9 points.

In the final game of the evening, league-leading Tri-City defeated Airay Cottages 54-43.

Tri-City jumped to a 10-point lead in the first quarter with a 20-10 score.

Leading scorers for Tri-City were Mike Crain with 21 points and Leroy Buchanan with 14 points.

For Airay, Vince Left had 19 points and Scott Blanchard had 10 points.

Supernaw lists hiring of administrator as priority

The first priority of mayoral candidate Samuel C. Supernaw, if he is elected to office, will be to seek a city administrator.

"We are without an administrator and a city with a $60 million valuation should not be without a qualified person in charge," Supernaw explained.

"I don't believe it is good government to keep changing administrators or to run without one. I will actively seek a competent city administrator that can communicate with the council, city employees and the citizens of Charlevoix."

Supernaw, an accountant, said he would also take steps to deal with the financial crisis the city is in.

"Our utility rates have just gone up 43 percent," Supernaw, 35, said. "This should tell you something is wrong.

"Our present administration dropped the tax millage from 9 mills to 5 mills. Now we are out of tax dollars with no more significant amount coming in until Sept. 15.

"The administration has also transferred over $200,000 out of the utility funds into the general fund for operation of the city. Subsidizing the general operations of the city out of the utility surplus is illegal and has been determined so by the Attorney General of Michigan. The general fund should consist of tax dollars and not utility monies.

"We should be paying more taxes and lower utility bills. Let me point out that property taxes are deductable on your income tax returns and senior citizens can get their rebates, while utility bills are not deductable."

On the issue of the proposed new zoning ordlanance for the city, Supernaw said he would like to review it more thoroughly before stating a position.

"The new ordinance has been changed so much lately that I need to give it more study," he said.

Supernaw also supported a plan to expand downtown parking.

"I would support any effort to expand downtown parking in Charlevoix," the candidate said. "If we want to maintain our downtown business, we must provide easy access to these businesses.

"A few years back, the council created a parking authority to recommend ways to increase the parking in downtown Charlevoix. They made their report, told how the city could finance it, but the administration chose not to do anything about it."

The candidate also supports a moderate shade tree planting program.

"The shade tree situation is typical of the present administration," Supernaw said. "Why do they wait until the last minute to realize there is a tree problem in Charlevoix?

"The council was told several years ago of this problem, but chose to do nothing about it. A little money each year would preserve the beauty of the trees in Charlevoix and this is how I would handle it."

Supernaw said he decided to seek the mayor's seat at the urging of several city residents.

"After reviewing the situation at City Hall, I decided it was time for a change," Supernaw said. "Our city is not being run properly."

Supernaw said his experience as an accountant which has involved him in the audits of several Michigan cities has helped him learn how city finances should operate and qualifies him as a mayoral candidate. He also served four years as an alderman.

He has been active in the Charlevoix Lions Club, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and First Congregational Church.

Mayor Hansen lists variety of priorities for city

A variety of priorities face the City of Charlevoix, according to Mayor Edward P. Hansen.

Hansen said the city needs to complete four basic things. He believes the city should update the water pumping facility and interconnect water systems with Charlevoix Township to provide back up supplies, continue to pursue the implementation of charges for city services used by the various townships, add two docks at the end of Clinton Street and to seek cooperation from the townships near Charlevoix in developing controls and plans for the orderly growth of the area.

In addition, if Hansen, 50, is re-elected to his position, he will work to re-establish an office of deputy clerk. Hansen believes reestablishing this office would alleviate most of the problems of the city.

Mayor Hansen said he decided to seek re-election so that he could see the completion of projects that he has implemented.

"I have initiated steps to improve the conditions at the water pumping station and I have initiated steps to merge the city with Charlevoix Township," Hansen said.

"I have been the moving force for lower tax rates to control inflation and to improve the climate for economic prosperity in the area and I am confident that through my continuing efforts we will see the completion of our utility update and at a reasonable cost of government services.

On the issue of the proposed new charter for the city, Hansen said he supported the majority view of the voters.

"I certainly go along with the majority of the voters and hope the charter commission will honor the voted with of the people which states that they want to keep the elected officials, keep the absent voters' right to vote and keep the charter that has made Charlevoix the greatest city in the world," Hansen explained.

Hansen said he believes the charter was drafted with one initial purpose and that was to eliminate the executive power of the mayor. The candidate said he believes this is the wrong approach to take. He also opposes transferring the responsibilities of the offices of city clerk and city treasurer to the control of city manager.

Mayor Hansen said he would continue to work for more off street parking for the downtown area.

"I am convinced that it is necessary to the business health of the city," Hansen said. "I have had a major role in establishing the parking off of Mason Street and north of Clinton Street near the water front and I will continue to work for more."

The mayor also supports the proposed zoning ordinance.

"I have recommended the ordinance be adopted," Hansen said. "Delay in adopting the ordinance because of some controversial items is now causing some disruption of site plan reviews which are being torn between the old ordinance and the new one."

The mayor also supports a shade tree program.

"I supported the initial shade tree play," the mayor said. "However, I feel the program has gotten way off track.

"The plan was that the city crews would be trained to handle the trimming, planting and cutting of trees and that has not happened.

"Also the planting of trees in the downtown sidewalks is not consistent with the city's practice of keeping the way open for pedestrians and the removal of snow. We lack adequate width on Bridge Street for shade trees in the sidewalks."

Mayor Hansen has served as mayor for six years and as alderman for six years. He also was the Charlevoix Township clerk for one year.

He and his wife Joan have eight daughters.

Better warm up your pucker, Valentines Day is coming

The custom has its own holiday, Valentine's Day, but its fans celebrate all year long. It's called kissing.

It has been widely popular for a very long time, it shows no sign of dying out, and any number of famous people have things to say about it.

Several hundred years ago Jonathan Swift posed a basic question: "Lord!" he wrote, "I wonder what fool it was that first invented kissing."

History has lost the answer, but kissing was practiced in biblical times, as the Old Testament records in the Song of Solomon 1:2: "Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth: for thy love is better than wine."

Biting Game

Students of the origins of kissing find the beginnings of it all in the billing and cooing of birds and the biting games of dogs. Charles Darwin speculated that kissing once had to do with the way wild animals seize their prey with their teeth.

Some opinions vary on whether nose-rubbing is a good idea gone wrong, an intermediate step, or an improvement of Western kissing.

Even today in the Far East, tradition-minded Japanese and Chinese may be either deeply shocked or hilariously amused when they see a Western husband and wife kiss in public.

About a hundred years ago, when Chinese first began translating Western novels into their own language, they had to invent a special character to describe kissing.

Experts in culture traits say kissing was thought up in Europe, and that it is civilized since semi-civilized people don't.

Kissing and whatever has gone with it was indelibly marked history. Antony and Cleopatra, by way of William Shakespeare, viewed the decline of Egypt and Rome admitting: "We have kiss'd away Kingdoms and provinces."

And to ever-alert Oliver Wendell Homes: "The sound of a kiss is not so loud as that of a cannon, but its echo lasts a great deal longer."

Lipstick Invented

In olden days, social kissing was so big practitioners took to perfuming their lips, thus starting the cosmetic industry. The invention of lipstick helped bring on the untraceable cheek-to-cheek encounter.

Excessive kissing has been blamed for forgetfulness, among other things.

A busy ambassador, trying to combine a diplomatic buss with a bow from the waist, supposedly came up with hand kissing. Energetic Bob Hope has reasoned that "People who throw kisses are mighty hopelessly lazy."

Not all kisses may be affectionate. In the eyes of H. L. Mencken: "When women kiss it always reminds one of prizefighters shaking hands."

For those trying to live on love, advice-to-the-lovelorn columnist Dorothy Dix once warned: "Nobody wants to kiss when hungry."

"A kiss without a mustache is like an egg without salt," according to the Spanish, and "like a day without wine" to the French.

Kissing also may produce an immunity to vice. Arturo Toscanini once revealed: "I kissed my first woman and smoked my first cigarette on the same day. I have never had time for tobacco since."

But for whatever reason people pucker up, there is still Dr. Henry Gibbons' 150-year-old definition of a kiss as: "The anatomical juxtaposition of two orbicularis orts muscles in a state of contraction."

Hodgson wants to keep city beautiful, thriving, alive

Keeping Charlevoix, the beautiful, will be a main priority of the Charlevoix Common Council, if Richard M. Hodgson is elected alderman in the First Ward.

"It is my feeling that Charlevoix is on the edge of a new period of development," Hodgson said. "At this point we are seeing the tip of the iceberg, the new Captains Corners shopping center, the auto dealerships south of town, and Kit Carson on M-66 to name a few. It's a preview of much more to come."

Hodgson is concerned that the large shopping areas will draw businesses out of the downtown area and that the Bridge Street area will suffer urban decay. He believes this can be avoided by providing adequate parking and encouraging the business community to stay downtown.

Hodgson is also concerned about the fiscal integrity of the city and would work to operate the city as a business if he is elected alderman.

"Last summer the city millage was cut by a very substantial amount," Hodgson explained. "Now the city has been forced to raise the electric and sewer rates to make up the cash shortage.

"The city utilities should be operated as the business they are. They should operate at a small profit in order to accommodate their own growth and maintenance, but not to artificially subsidize the operation of the city as a whole.

"The general taxes should be sufficient to operate the government and to provide the service we expect from our city. Anything else is certainly misleading and inequitable."

Hodgson, who operates Walker Marine, also feels the proposed new zoning ordinance should be adopted.

"Our present ordinance is a patchwork of new and old," he explained. "The council has been working on a revised ordinance for many years and it is high time the job was completed."

Hodgson would like to have public hearings held on the proposed ordinance to ensure that there are no inequities and then he would like to see it adopted.

As far as a new city charter is concerned, the candidate does not support the first two drafts. He opposed the ward convention idea. He also objected to the city manager having so much power.

Hodgson, who attended Wayne State University, is a member of the board of the First State Bank of Charlevoix and is involved with his family's business in Cincinnati, Ohio.

He has also been active with the Charlevoix Yacht Club, Charlevoix Lions Club, Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

He and his wife, Lois, have three sons.

Judy Przybylski seeks reelection to city clerk job

Seeking election to her second term as Charlevoix City Clerk is Judy Przybylski.

Judy Przybylski

Mrs. Przybylski, 26, has served one full term and completed the term of Lyle King, who resigned from the office.

The clerk, who is a Charlevoix native and a graduate of Charlevoix High School, feels that her two and one-half years of experience in the Petoskey City Clerk's office and her five years experience as an assistant in the Charlevoix clerks office qualify her for the position.

"I enjoy the type of work and involvement that the clerks office offers," Mrs. Przybylski said explaining why she decided to run again.

Mrs. Przybylski and her husband, Michael, have one child, Kelley.

Experience qualifies Annabelle Cunningham for city treasurer

More than 45 years of experience in the treasurer's office of a municipality heads up the qualifications of Annabelle Cunningham, candidate for Charlevoix City Treasurer.

Miss Cunningham has served as city treasurer for the last 18 years and was employed in the county treasurer's office for 26 years before that.

The Charlevoix native, who graduated from Charlevoix High School, was first elected city treasurer in April, 1960. She is seeking re-election because she enjoys the work.

Miss Cunningham, 65, is a member of the Community Church of God.

Porter seeks efficient operation of city government by council

Creating an efficient city government and improving communications between voters and elected officials are two of the goals of a candidate for First Ward alderman.

"I hope to work throughout my term to identify, plan for and fulfill the best possible long range plans for Charlevoix," Jeffrey L. Porter, 34, said. "I will strive for a municipal government that can and will provide services at the lowest possible cost but with maximum efficiency.

"I will cultivate quick and easy communication between voters and taxpayers and their elected city officials. And I shall weigh cautiously proposals of concern to all of us as they relate to such matters as taxes, utility rates, zoning, senior citizen housing, consolidation of local government, the use of state and federal grants and management of recreational facilities."

Porter said he decided to run for office because there were major issues concerning the city that were not being dealt with properly.

"I feel my views of city government reflect the way the great majority of the voters in the First Ward feel," the candidate said. "Because of this I decided to enter the race for city council and to help solve these problems."

Qualifications

Porter has been heavily involved in city government in the last two years as an elected member of the Charlevoix Charter Commission. He feels his experience on the commission has given him a great deal of understanding about the efficient operation of a city along with his other involvement in community activities such as Boy Scouts, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and serving as moderator of the First Congregational Church qualify him for the position of alderman.

The dentist who has lived in Charlevoix for eight years feels the priority of the city should be to restore a positive attitude toward city government through positive actions including the adaption of a Home Rule Charter, establishing a modern management organization with the city council as the director and designing the highest quality programs to upgrade the lives of Charlevoix citizens.

"We as a city have to sit down and decide what we want from city government and determine what our goals as a city are in order for elected officials to be able to formulate forward-looking programs to meet these objectives," Porter said.

Porter would like to see the proposed zoning ordinance adopted and he opposes granting zoning variances which dilute the ordinance's authority.

The candidate said he also supported the shade tree program.

"It is necessary for our economy to attract tourists and trees add beauty to the downtown shopping area," Porter said explaining his stand on downtown plantings. "Petoskey and Harbor Springs are examples of this. We also have to be concerned with replacing old and dying trees to preserve the beauty of Charlevoix."

Porter also favored downtown parking but he believes the city must seek outside advice on a plan.

"My family's business in Lansing is parking and there is a lot more to it than the council can possibly imagine," he said.

"The key to the downtown area is parking, land use and above all planning. The longer the mayor and council hesitate, the more expensive the solution will be."

Porter, a graduate of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan, and his wife, Nancy, have two daughters.

Improvements made on Mt. McSauba tow rope

The capacity of the tow rope at Mt. McSauba has been improved.

Dwight Boss, city recreation director, said the rope tow on the main hill had been changed to a chain drive mechanism, which has quadrupled the capacity of the tow.

Boss said this will eliminate the standing in line to ride the tow up the hill. The rope tow for the back hill will be converted to a large capacity this week.

Boss also announced that area youth who would like to toboggan or sled at Mt. McSauba are welcome to do so on the Pale Face hill at the ski area. Youth are welcome to use the hill free of charge.

OUR GREATEST LEADERS HAVE BEEN GUIDED BY FAITH

The leaders and founding fathers of free nations who are remembered and honored throughout their country's history have all had several things in common, despite their differences in personality and temperament. Without exception they have been men of strong character with an unselfish devotion to duty, a determination to overcome every obstacle and a complete subordination of all personal glory to the best interests of their country. They were men with a kind of principle that is hard to find today and this was largely a result of their faith, upon which they depended for guidance during the dark hours of adversity. Attend the Church of your choice and learn some of this faith with which our revered leaders gave us our priceless heritage of freedom.

Swanson wants to provide jobs, opportunity in city

Keeping Charlevoix a desirable place to live with enough job opportunities for the city's young people should be the main priorities of the city, according to Lawrence "Stub" Swanson, a candidate for Second Ward alderman.

Swanson hopes to accomplish these goals if he is elected alderman in the upcoming primary Feb. 20.

"My roots and interest are in the Second Ward and I hope to represent it to the best of my ability," Swanson said.

The Charlevoix native said his sole reason for running for city council was to represent the Second Ward. Although he has never held an elected position, Swanson feels his business background qualifies him for the job.

"My experience of being in business for a number of years I feel should make me able to serve the city," Swanson said. "I have always had in mind the best interest of the city."

Swanson said he would support the new zoning ordinance for the city, but he believes it should be flexible and that the planning commission should not be allowed to turn into another bureaucracy.

"We should be careful not to let it turn into a large bureau employing a large staff who are making rules we are expecting to obey as laws," Swanson said.

The Second Ward alderman candidate also supported a shade tree program.

"I do like our big trees around town," he said. "But I don't think downtown tree planting would be practical."

Swanson said he did not support the proposed charter, but he would support the city manager.

Swanson, 67, is retired after being in business for 30 years. He and his wife Alma have five children.

Mrs. Wallace seeks return to Second Ward council seat

"I was thinking of not running for re-election, but so many people called me or came to see me and asked me to run for re-election that I decided to give it another try," Jeannine Wallace said explaining her candidacy for Second Ward alderman.

Mrs. Wallace has served on the common council representing the Second Ward for four years in two non-consecutive terms.

"I feel my past experience qualify me for the position and give me some insight into the operation of city government that others don't have," she said.

"I feel this experience is especially valuable now when the city is without a city administrator because I am familiar with various operations. I can also be helpful to the new administrator when he arrives."

Mrs. Wallace said the main things she would like to accomplish if she is re-elected fall in the areas of planning, parking and establishing citizens committees.

"I would like to see the proposed zoning ordinance passed," the incumbent candidate said. "And I would like to see the planning commission get into operation and begin working on some long range plans for the growth of the city.

"The zoning ordinance and the planning commission are definitely needed especially in light of the growth we have experienced and the problems it has caused."

Mrs. Wallace believes a planning commission can ensure that the city will be well planned and thought out and that unique parcels of land which add to the charm of the city will be better protected.

The Second Ward alderman would also like to see something concrete done about the lack of parking in the downtown area. She feels adequate parking will help the economy of the downtown area and the city and will help draw more people to the city.

Mrs. Wallace would also like to see more citizens committees established to aid the council with the study of various issues affecting the city.

Jeannine Wallace

"I feel citizens committees are very worthwhile and that their input is invaluable to the council when it is making decisions that have a major effect on the community," she said.

Mrs. Wallace would also like to see a city administrator hired as soon as possible.

"I would like to see the city hire someone who is knowledge enough to advise the council on all city operations and who has a background in municipal government," she said. "Municipal government is becoming so complex that lay people have trouble keeping up with all of the changes."

The alderman said she supported the revised proposed charter.

"I believe it is a fine document and that it is something the city can live with," she said. "I think we can work within its framework and do very well. I like the council-manager form of government."

On the shade tree program, Mrs. Wallace said she was delighted with council's recent action allowing it to continue.

"I was disappointed about the downtown tree planting being denied, but I feel it is more important to have the overall program," she said.

Mrs. Wallace and her husband, Lawrence, have two children and reside on Clinton Street.

Muma tries for council seat in Third Ward campaign

Seeking election as the alderman in the Third Ward for the second time is Forest Earl Muma.

Muma, who is part owner in Muma's Sunoco and Total service stations, decided to run for the position again because of the urging of Third Ward residents.

Muma feels his business experience qualifies him for the position.

"Since getting out of the Air Force, I have lived in Charlevoix. My home, business and family have all settled here and become a part of the community," Muma said. "I have talked to a lot of people and being in a business where you meet the public, I have heard their views and complaints."

"This is a nice place to raise your children and I want to help keep it that way."

Earl Muma

As far as issues facing the city were concerned, Muma felt the city should have a new charter.

"The city needs something before the time runs out in 1980 for the Fourth Class Cities act," Muma said. "I think the city would be better off adopting a form of government that was designed and worked for the City of Charlevoix and its people.

"If we go the limit then we might have to take what the state gives us."

On the shade tree program Muma felt it was important to keep trees in the city.

Muma has been active in Charlevoix as a member of the Charlevoix Lions Club, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Flying Club.

He and his wife, Alice, have three children.

Land use planning topic at E.J. forum

A special forum on land use planning will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the East Jordan High School band room.

"Land Use Planning" is the title of the third session of the East Jordan Community Forum series and it will feature Donna Stein of the House of Representatives Democratic research staff. Ms. Stein will discuss Rep. Steve Monsma's land use planning bill HB 4189.

Land use planning involves determining the capabilities of different types of land and the best uses for it.

Mickey Merriner completes basics

Marine Private First Class Mickey R. Merriner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Trumbie of 406 Main St., East Jordan, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

A 1977 gruduate of East Jordan High School, he joined the Marine Corps in February 1977.

Mrs. Roloff wants to improve facilities for youth, seniors

Concern for the problems of senior citizens and youth in Charlevoix prompted Shirley Roloff to throw her hat in the ring for the Third Ward alderman position.

Mrs. Roloff has been active as a volunteer with the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services and is aware of many of these problems.

"I am concerned with the problems of our senior citizens and youth," Mrs. Roloff said. "I know the great need for a senior citizen housing complex and shall direct my time and energy to help get one in Charlevoix.

"Also, I think we should plan for the future and maybe a youth center. It's time we stop complaining about our young people standing around downtown and do something about it."

Mrs. Roloff would also like to work with the police department and sheriff department in developing a list of senior citizens in the area so that they can be checked on if she is elected to city council.

She would also like to work closely with the city and Charlevoix Township.

"I think to start a merger, one of our council people should attend the township meetings for a year and have one of their officers attend all our meetings," she said. "This way we both could have some insight on the problems facing both city and township."

As far as goals of the city are concerned, Mrs. Roloff would like to see a city manager selected to aid the mayor and council in the operation of the city.

Shirley Roloff

Secondly, she would like to have a charter adopted that would meet the needs of the city.

She also believes an agreement should be worked out with the Beaver Island Boat Company and that the zoning ordinance should be adopted.

"But our most important goal should be getting our city united," she said.

The Third Ward alderman candidate also supports the shade tree program, but does not favor downtown planting.

"I would replace our dying trees and work out a program to help them grow," Mrs. Roloff said. "This project should be completed in the most economical way possible."

Mrs. Roloff also favors some sort of additional downtown parking area, but she does not want it to interfere with the parks in the downtown area.

Mrs. Roloff feels she is qualified to serve Third Ward residents.

"I am honest, sincere, concerned and determined to fight for the things I believe are right," she said.

"I would like to represent the Third Ward and the City of Charlevoix with honesty and sincerity. I shall do my best for the city and its people."

Incumbent Morris pledges more responsive unit

Creating a municipal government more responsive to the needs of the people of Charlevoix is one of the things incumbent alderman Joseph Morris would like to accomplish if he is re-elected to his Third Ward seat.

Morris also believes a priority of the city should be to hire a competent city administrator. The alderman sees the administrator as devoting his time to the operation of the city and researching things and presenting facts to the council so that it can make a decision.

The third priority of the City of Charlevoix should be to construct a senior housing complex or to get a program going in the city, Morris said.

In addition to accomplishing these goals, Morris would also like to create an atmosphere that will encourage early decision making in city operations and that will prevent things from being swept under the rug or buried in committee.

The alderman also hopes to respond to the many suggestions and comments he has received during his door-to-door campaign for Third Ward alderman if he is re-elected.

Morris, 56, has been a council member for two years. He feels his more than 30 years of business experience which centered on problem solving and working with people qualify him for the position.

He also has past experience as a member of the Village of Glendale Board of Public Affairs where he worked in utility management.

Morris decided to seek re-election for a varsity of reasons.

"With my background, exoeriences and interests, I sincerely believe I can continue to provide good representation for my ward and the city as a whole and make substantial contributions to the operation of the council," the alderman said.

Morris said he supports an expanded downtown parking program. He believes it should be an ongoing program addressed to the needs of the city.

Joseph Morris

To create more parking in the downtown area, Morris said the city should analyze the spots now ruled out for parking, check out driveways that are not being used, eliminate unauthorized painting of yellow on curbs which indicates no parking and try to create a cooperative effort among downtown business people to park at a distance from their place of business.

Morris, a graduate of University of Cincinnati, has been active with the Charlevoix Lions Club, Charlevoix Boy Scouts, Charlevoix House, Charlevoix Historical Society and Christ Episcopal Church.

He and his wife Keith have three children.

Obituary

Lawrence L. Lewis

Funeral services for the Rev. Lawrence L. Lewis, 69, of Grand Rapids, former pastor of the First Baptist Church here, were held Thursday at the Burton Baptist Church in Grand Rapids. The Rev. Frank Gillett and the Rev. William Harrington officiated. Interment was in the Spring Lake cemetery.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis died unexpectedly on Jan. 23.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis was pastor of the First Baptist church here from 1949 until 1952 and again from 1959 until 1962. After leaving here he had served a church at Boon near Cadillac and, more recently, had lived in Grand Rapids.

Surviving are his widow, Ruth; one daughter, Mrs. Russell (Joan) Lunn of Livonia; a son, Vernon (Bud) of Clio; five step-children; 23 grandchildren; one great-grandchild.

MARJORY KALEY

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Marjory Kaley, 63, who died Jan. 23 at the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital after an illness of two months, were held Thursday at the Hastings Funeral Home. The Rev. Harley Barber of Central Lake officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth cemetery.

Born in Banks township July 8, 1914, the former Marjory Miller was married to William Kaley in Ellsworth April 2, 1932. They always resided in Ellsworth. Mr. Kaley preceded her in death in 1976. She had been employed at Morweld Steel Products for 15 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Sue Snook of Vicksburg and Mrs. Shayn Barber of Ellsworth; three sons, William of Muskegon, Robert and Daryl of Ellsworth; 17 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Bertha Webster and Mrs. May Sage of Traverse City.

Five Rayder wrestlers place in conference

MIKE KITELEY had a lot on his hands during the conference meet but the Rayder wrestler managed to capture the championship along with five of his teammates.

Five Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers captured first place wins in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet last week.

Taking championships were: Dave Golovich, 112, pounds; Ron Hilton, 119 pounds; Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds; Craig Golovich, 138 pounds and Greg Loper, heavyweight.

Two Rayder matmen placed second in the conference meet, Ande Keller, 178 pounds and Dennis Whitley, 191 pounds. Taking a third place was Norbert Scharenbroch at 145 pounds and Don Mol, 98 pounds, took fourth place.

Although the Rayder wrestlers worked hard and were very successful, they still couldn't stop the Rogers City team from capturing their fourth straight conference title. At the meet held in Grayling, Rogers City wrestlers captured 203 points while Charlevoix took a second place with 163.5 points. Grayling had 113 points for third place and Petoskey had 104.5 points for fourth.

Candidates squaring off over utility fund transfers

City finances are emerging as a major campaign issue during the last week before the primary election in Charlevoix.

Mayoral challenger Sam Supernaw is charging that the city is in a severe financial crisis due to the recent cut in the millage rates. He also charges that the increase in utility rates was needed to replace the cut in property taxes, not to cover a deficit in the utility funds.

Supernaw said figures from the city clerk's office show a total of $100,000 in the general fund as of Feb. 1.

"There will be no more tax revenue coming into the city until Sept. 15 when the summer taxes are due," Supernaw pointed out. "And the city has been averaging expenditures of about $55,000 a month.

"It's obvious that they had to raise the utility rates to subsidize the general fund."

Supernaw said he opposed the transfer of funds from the various utilities to the general fund as an unsound financial practice for a municipality. He said he had an attorney general's opinion which stated that it is illegal for a municipality to use funds from a utility for anything except that utility.

Supernaw said the city clerk's figures show that close to $200,000 has been transferred from the utility funds to the general fund this year.

Supernaw pointed out that raising the utility rates while lowering the property taxes also is detrimental to city residents.

"If I owed $1,200 to the city, $600 in property taxes and $600 in utilities, I'd much rather have the rate changed so that I paid $800 in increased property taxes and only $400 in utilities, because I get credit for that on my taxes," Supernaw said.

"And senior citizens especially would benefit. They can get most of their property taxes back, but they don't get any credit on their utility bills."

Supernaw pointed out that if he is elected mayor, he will have to follow the same pattern of taxes and utility rates that is currently in effect.

"If I win and get into office, I will have to do the same thing until we can get the problem straightened out," Supernaw explained. "But I will attempt to straighten it out."

"I was interested in this in 1976 and I brought it up then asking the council and the mayor to plan for the future, but they never did."

In response to challenger Supernaw's charges, Mayor Edward Hansen replied that he was surprised that the challenger would pick the electric rates as an issue.

"It's up to council to decide what the electric and water service is worth and to set the rates," Hansen said. "And it's up to the council to set the millage rates. I simply gave them a schedule to choose from."

Hansen pointed out that increasing property taxes and lowering electric rates simply amounts to paying taxes and subsidizing the electric fund instead of the other way around.

"Also decreasing the electric rates and increasing the property taxes would be a furtherance of the imbalance of payments for services provided by the city and used by city and township residents," the mayor said.

"A substantial number of the electric customers are township residents."

The mayor said the only reason the electric and water rates had been increased was to cover deficits in the two utilities. Expenditures in the utility departments were exceeding revenues.

"Of the 16 municipally owned electric utilities, only one had rates lower than ours," Mayor Hansen said. "I don't think our rates are out of line."

The mayor also took issue with the attorney general's opinion on use of electric funds.

"I've read this opinion," Hansen said. "The attorney general says the funds may not be used for the general fund, but there's nothing that says it can't be used for the maintenance of the system and to me that means the entire city."

Hansen said the recent cut in property taxes was calculated to reduce the surpluses in the city coffers.

"We saw the property tax cut as a way to prudently use the city's excess funds while stopping the excess levying of taxes," Hansen said. "And we wanted to bring the city into a position where it would not be vulnerable to the pressure of special-interest groups that want to use city funds for less than prudent projects."

Students taking on jobs as well as school work

By LAURA GLASS

Moonlighting. That used to be a word known only to adults.

But more and more moonlighting is becoming a word common among teenagers who divide themselves between going to school fulltime and working part time after school.

Many high school students could be accused of cramming school, job and extracurricular activities into a hectic week, all in the name of success.

The success? It's having the first year or two of college paid for, or that dream car and its upkeep, money for entertainment or even that new pair of jeans.

"I'd say there are definitely more kids working," Charles Bentley, Charlevoix High School counselor, said. "It almost seems to be the rule instead of the exception.

"And that's too bad because I feel it (work) can get in the way of their school work."

It has been reported that more than 37 percent of the high school upperclassmen in the state have jobs, a rate more than twice as high as 15 years ago.

"Today's kids have much more money and do a lot more spending than they used to," Vane Smith, high school principal, said. "With the increase of factories and service jobs, kids are given bigger opportunities for employment and not only work during the summer but carry over those jobs through the school year."

"Back 20-25 years ago there were no year-round jobs available, most kids worked for summer residents doing domestic chores and in the fall—there were no more jobs," Smith said.

Today's teenagers are faced with the ever increasing cost of living and are pressured by family and friends to "get a good job and make some money." Parents feel a job teaches responsibility and budgeting of time.

One CHS senior who has been working since he was 11 years old, said: "I started out as a paperboy, then I worked as a dishwasher for four years, then as a shortorder cook and now I work on the co-op program for a gas station."

"I work about 40-45 hours a week."

While the demand for jobs is intense and having a job is important to many students, the extracurricular activities at the high school have not suffered, according to Roy Fortin, assistant high school principal.

"The numbers of kids in the sports programs and other activities is greater than it has been in the past, but percentage wise, it has stayed about the same," Fortin said. "The same is true for our co-op program."

The fast-paced life of a teenager keeps young men and women active for many long and odd hours, but those hours don't seem to affect students responsiveness in class.

"Occasionally a teacher will complain about a student sleeping in class, but usually that student is less responsive because of his indifferent attitude toward school, than his being overly tired," Principal Smith said.

Because of the short supply of jobs and the competition for them from college students as well as other high school students, many high school youth hold onto their jobs year-round to insure fulltime employment in the summer.

Proposed charter to appear on April election ballot

The proposed new charter will appear on the ballot during the Charlevoix General Election April 3, after all, Charlevoix Charter Commission members have announced.

A State Election Commission represented has confirmed commission member John Michael's opinion that the charter commission has the power to put the issue on the ballot with or without common council approval.

The charter commission asked the council to put the issue on the ballot last week, but the request was turned down when the council couldn't muster enough votes to make a quorum approving the issue.

Michael said the charter commission sought council approval for placing the charter issue on the ballot because that was what it had done in the past.

"Requests from the charter commission for the July and December elections had to be acted on by common council because they involved the calling of special elections and it's up to council to approve or deny requests for special elections," Michael explained.

"So this time we routinely took the matter up again with the council. We felt it was only fitting that the council again be the body to direct that the voters be given a chance to express themselves, especially since this is the last version of the new charter that can be offered by the charter commission."

Michael said the new proposed charter is quite different from the two earlier versions.

"We've dropped the at-large election and nominations will be by petition as they are currently," Michael explained.

"Also primary and general elections will be held except they are slated for August and November to coincide with state and national elections which will save the city time and money.

"And there are several other changes which we hope will remove the objections that people have had to the proposed new charter in the past."

Brenda Boss named 1978 Sweetheart for Campus Life

A Charlevoix student has been selected the Campus Life Sweetheart for the Northern Michigan area.

Brenda J. Boss was chosen from a field of six candidates for the title following the 10th annual competition held Sunday in Petoskey.

"It feels really good," Miss Boss said describing how it felt to win the competition. "I just floated around school today."

"I never really thought I would win," Miss Boss said still bubbling from the excitement. "I knew the only way I could ever win would be through the efforts of the club."

The Campus Life Sweetheart explained that 40 percent of the points she was awarded during the competition was based on the amount of money raised by the Charlevoix Campus Life group and by the attendance of Charlevoix residents at the competition Sunday.

"I would have gotten 100 percent of the possible points in the fundraising category if we had raised $1,000," Miss Boss explained. "But we came up with $3,336 through all of the club activities. And we only needed to have 108 people there to get all of the points for the attendance part and we had 157 people there."

Miss Boss accumulated 99 of a possible 100 points. She took first place in every category except the talent division where she placed second. Miss Boss also had to give a prepared two-minute speech.

She was escorted by Scott Swanson, who also had to give an impromptu speech.

Hints on how to handle accidents

No one expects a car accident. Yet winter increases the chances of having a crash and one out of every four drivers has one on wet, icy or snow-covered roads.

But there are several precautions to prevent confusion during the aftermath.

—Stop, identify yourself and summon aid for the injured.

—Write down each other's names, addresses and drivers license numbers.

—Obtain the names and addresses of all passengers and witnesses involved or seeing the accident.

—Explain to the police officer on-the-scene the details. Too often driver's walk away from an accident forgetting to look at the police report. Once the police report is filed, the driver has no say-so if it's a wrong account of the accident.

—Never admit fault under any circumstances.

—Make a note of the officer's name, badge number, jurisdiction. Also get the number of the police report for your insurance company.

—Refuse to sign any liability waivers or assurances that you're uninjured because many injuries are not immediately evident. See a doctor if you suspect any injuries.

—Take notes on the circumstances surrounding the accident including time, place, weather and road conditions, any evidence of a law violation, approximate speed of cars and relevant details.

—If the other driver admits fault, get it in writing and before witnesses, in case of a suit.

—Diagram the scene of the accident as accurately as possible including the precise place of cars and people.

—Take pictures of the accident, and the placement of cars for your insurance company:

—Report the accident to your insurance representative promptly since most policies require such notification within a specified period. To speed up the claims settlement, include your policy number and all details of the accident in your report.

—If your passengers or you are injured, keep detailed information and bills from any medical examinations. The insurance company will ask for them later.

Almost every state requires the driver to report in writing to a specified state agency all acidents involving damage over a predetermined dollar amount. This amount and time period allotted for filing the report varies from state to state. Your local police can provide this information as well as the report form.

It's been a long first year for Sheriff Lasater

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"You can't please all of the people all of the time, but you can please some of the people some of the time," may be a worn out political adage, but Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater is discovering its appropriateness.

It has been a long first year in office for Sheriff Lasater as he has attempted to iron out communication problems between himself and the county board of commissioners, which is responsible for overseeing his office — mainly on fiscal matters.

But despite these problems, a survey of Charlevoix County residents revealed that the sheriff is enjoying a great deal of grass roots support.

In a recent interview with Sheriff Lasater about his goals and achievements, his failures and his lessons during his first year in office, the sheriff said his first goal for 1977 was the establishment of a sheriff's substation in Boyne Falls. And with the help of the citizens from the area, the substation opened in March, 1977.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners was at first reluctant to endorse the plan, but according to Sheriff Lasater, when financial questions were met by citizen contributions, the substation was approved.

A telephone survey revealed that people in the Boyne Falls, Boyne City and outlying areas universally cited the substation as their major reason for thinking the sheriff is doing a good job.

Citizens Like Substation

"We now think of calling the sheriff, when in the past we let things go," observed Boyne Falls village clerk, Joan Bell.

"The substation makes a difference," Norman Baker, 17, of Boyne Falls said.

"I think the branch office in Boyne Falls is worthwhile. It brings the sheriff's activities closer to these people," answered Fred Edwards of East Jordan.

John Kujawski, chairman of the Police Committee of the board of commissioners agreed with these citizens assessments of the substation: "It has made a big difference for the people in the eastern part of Charlevoix County. They have more police protection."

However, Ralph Richardson, another Commissioner expressed several concerns with the substation, in terms of law enforcement and the procedure used to obtain it.

"I haven't sat down to figure out response times, but we are currently not too well covered in this end of the county," Richardson said.

But this complaint wasn't expressed in a telephone survey of residents living in the western end of the county. In fact, these residents supported the substation, too.

"I don't feel our service has declined and the substation was badly needed," observed Elaine Avery of Ellsworth Road.

Mrs. David Rosenthal of Rosenthal Orchards concurred. "As far as I'm concerned, I think he's doing a very good job. They were promptly here when we had a complaint."

"They are doing quite a good job. They responded well to a couple of small complaints I had,'" said Lawrence Swanson of Charlevoix.

Lasater explained the division of manpower: "We have nine officers in Charlevoix and two officers who man the substation. We have three patrol cars. One car is always at the substation and one car stays here in Charlevoix."

Lasater said he calculated "our response time to a complaint averages 14 minutes county-wide."

Fiscal Concerns

County commissioner chairman Clyde Cunningham expressed fiscal concerns over the substation. "If and when funds such as CETA and revenue sharing are cut off, I wonder if the county will be able to fund this and other projects they anticipate."

Both Cunningham and Commissioner Richardson expressed dissatisfaction with the handling of the funds for the substation. The two commission members said the law requires any funds donated to the sheriff's department go through the county treasurer, not directly to the sheriff or his office.

Lasater said he was not initially aware that funds were suoposed to go through the County Treasurer, but that now he was.

Mistakes of a procedural nature, however, continue to haunt the sheriff, causing friction with the county commissioners. Charlevoix Township recently agreed to donate $200 toward the purchase of radar equipment for the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Lasater requested the check be sent to the sheriff's department, which would in turn deliver it to the County Treasurer.

Richardson responded to this with frustration. "He starts the year saying he's made a mistake and then makes them again."

When asked about this the sheriff said he couldn't understand why his delivering the check was causing such a stir.

George Lasater

Professionalize Department

"Professionalizing the department was another of my major goals this year -- actually my top priority," the sheriff said.

"We have invested 1,270 man-hours in training for the department. Seventy percent of our officers have participated in some form of training.

Among the training sessions in which sheriffs deputies participate are: Brethalyzer Operator training; Defensive Tactics training, which certified one officer to return to train his colleagues; Crisis Intervention school, especially important in dealing with domestic cases which is a major complaint in the county; a school in interrogation procedures; and two training sessions for the new sheriff.

"And the beauty of this," the sheriff said, "Was the schools were all free, the only costs were travel."

Apparently Lasater's efforts to "professionalize the department" have been noticed.

"They are doing a professional job," said Howard Parsel of Charlevoix.

"When I asked for help last summer they were prompt and they were very professional," reported Weldon Price, who lives on Boyne City Road.

Commissioner Kujawski of the sheriff's committee referred to this as a major accomplishment. Kujawski cited both the training programs and changes in appearance as aspects of professionalizing.

Lasater received no criticisms on this score.

Adds Rehab Programs

Lasater also counts among his achievements the several rehabilitative programs begun at the jail for the prisoner population.

"Two G.E.D. programs are offerred — these are high school diploma equivalency courses. Our jail is full right now and we have several long term prisoners, up to a year. Ninety-six percent of our prisoners are not high school graduates and 40 percent have real problems reading."

He illustrasted the need for such programs, telling the story of one trustee who had been arrested several times. The last arrest had been just after he had been unable to obtain a job because he could not complete a written application. In his anger and frustration he committed a string of breaking and enterings.

Lasater reports the trustee completed a G.E.D. course and, after being released from jail, applied for and obtained a semi-skilled job.

The sheriff discussed several goals he had set and not achieved, among them adding a female juvenile officer.

"I think we should have a female juvenile officer in the department. Seventy percent of our breaking and enterings are done by young people under the age of 21."

"I think a young male offender would relate better to a female 'mother' image. Also, she would have the dual role of working with female victims of crime."

The sheriff cited statistics which show women are reluctant to report rape to male officers and specifically mention a situation in Charlevoix last summer where delay resulted in a poorer case against the alleged rapist.

The sheriff said he does not understand why he has not been able to get funding for his position.

Cunningham indicated the boards point of view. "A female juvenile officer would have no legal powers other than as a deputy. She would have to work with the county juvenile officer who is the juvenile officer by law. There is already too much duplication."

In other criticism, Commissioner Richardson worried about cooperation between the sheriff's department and the three city police departments in the county.

Questioned about this, Chief John Tallboys of Boyne City, Chief Joe Hammond of East Jordan, and Chief Jack Mil of Charlevoix all said that working relationships are very good between the law enforcement agencies and that they enjoy good mutual cooperation.

Too Much Publicity

A few citizens questioned in the phone survey who refused to allow their names to be published, said they felt the sheriff was getting too much publicity.

And Commissioner Richardson was reluctant to agree to the interview initially because he too felt there was too much emphasis on publicity.

Lasater responded that the public has a right to know what is going on in the department and therefore he has solicited media coverage.

His program of recognition for citizens who perform acts "above and beyond the call of duty" has received mixed reviews, as well.

"Giving recognition to people is something which needs to be done in all our socie[t]y," Linda Beers Aydlott of East Jordan volunteered in an interview.

People critical of the program asked not to be named, calling it just more publicity.

The sheriff was asked what he felt had been his stumbling blocks during his first year. "Quite candidly, when I became sheriff I had all these goals. I think I was too new and I tried too fast.

"If I had it to do over again I would move slower, but steadily. "I was a novice when it came to working with county government. I have learned the hard way, by making mistakes."

Kujawski offered a similar assessment. "George goes out and does things, but there are a lot of decisions for which he did not know all the ramifications. He didn't know procedures.

"But he is definitely learning to work with his committee. There is a high degree of cooperation now."

Several other members of the Board of Commissioners echoed this observation.

In the end, Sheriff Lasater's first year seem to have received better reviews from the public than his commissioners — as the sheriff has acknowledged in his determination to improve communications with the commissioners — the people who hold the purse strings of his department.

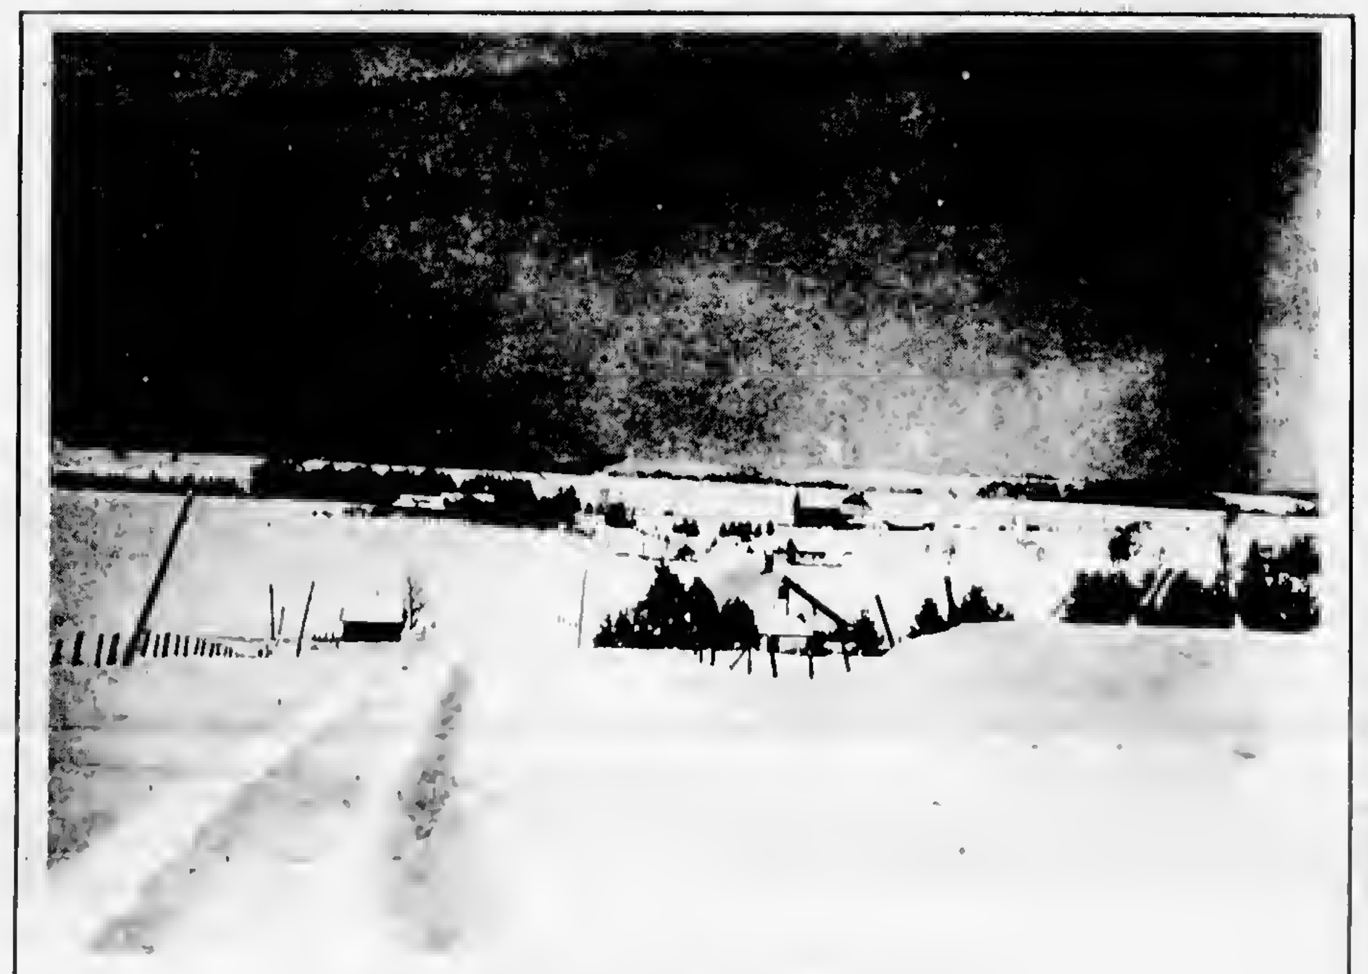
A Lot Like Carter

Commissioner Ira Davis of Hurton Bay remarked on a parallel between the sheriff's problems and President Jimmy Carter's problems. Davis saw a comparison between the Presidents learning to work with the United States Congress and the sheriff's need to learn to work with his commissioners.

"They are similar, because they came in with all these goals and discovered you can't do them all," Davis observed.

"He just needs experience," Davis concluded.

With very few exceptions, even his harshest critics, were optimistic for Sheriff Lasater's second year — 1978.



Charlevoix Yesterday

School board discusses plans on expansion with architects

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at a special meeting Monday night, asked the firm of Manson Jackson & Kane of Lansing to finalize plans for an expansion program at the Charlevoix High School; accepted bids for two school buses and opened bids for the renovation program at the Charlevoix Middle School.

In addition to asking the architectural firm to finalize plans that would add 39,000 square feet to the existing high school, the board has requested permission of Michigan Municipal Finance Commission to bond for $3.2 million to underwrite the cost of the expansion, renovation, site development, alterations and the purchase of equipment. A total of $500,000 alone has been earmarked for remodeling existing areas of the present high school building.

The program will include remodeling the existing study hall and environs to house the library, up-date the science department plus enclosing the area between the building, enlarge the cafeteria so all students can be served, utilize the cafeteria as three teaching statyions by using folding doors and addition of a multi-use room and locker space to meet the needs of Title IX which states that equal physical education must be made available to both boys and girls. The expansion would also allow the art, math and English classes now taught in portable classrooms to be placed under one roof.

Connie Pointner of the Building committee said the program would merely meet existing needs. At the present time, 640 students are youséd in a building built for 472 and while some schools in the area are finding their enrollment shrinking, projections find the need for additional space here in demand. Projections for 1980 find the population estimated at more than 100 over present capacity with the same figure holding true in 1985.

Energy conservation is another important factor and with the closing of the area between the two buildings this is expected to be a major item.

Hints on how to handle accidents

No one expects a car accident. Yet winter increases the chances of having a crash and one out of every four drivers has one on wet, icy or snow-covered roads.

But there are several precautions to prevent confusion during the aftermath.

–Stop, identify yourself and summon aid for the injured.

–Write down each other's names, addresses and drivers license numbers.

–Obtain the names and addresses of all passengers and witnesses involved or seeing the accident.

–Explain to the police officer on-the-scene the details. Too often driver's walk away from an accident forgetting to look at the police report. Once the police report is filed, the driver has no say-so if it's a wrong account of the accident.

–Never admit fault under any circumstances.

–Make a note of the officer's name, badge number, jurisdiction. Also get the number of the police report for your insurance company.

–Refuse to sign any liability waivers or assurances that you're uninjured because many injuries are not immediately evident. See a doctor if you suspect any injuries.

–Take notes on the circumstances surrounding the accident including time, place, weather and road conditions, any evidence of a law violation, approximate speed of cars and relevant details.

–If the other driver admits fault, get it in writing and before witnesses, in case of a suit.

–Diagram the scene of the accident as accurately as possible including the precise place of cars and people.

–Take pictures of the accident, and the placement of cars for your insurance company.

–Report the accident to your insurance representative promptly since most policies require such notification within a specified period. To speed up the claims settlement, include your policy number and all details of the accident in your report.

–If your passengers or you are injured, keep detailed information and bills from any medical examinations. The insurance company will ask for them later.

Almost every state requires the driver to report in writing to a specified state agency all accidents involving damage over a predetermined dollar amount. This amount and time period allotted for filing the report varies from state to state. Your local police can provide this information as well as the report form.

It's been a long first year for Sheriff Lasater

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"You can't please all of the people all of the time, but you can please some of the people some of the time," may be a worn out political adage, but Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater is discovering its appropriateness.

It has been a long first year in office for Sheriff Lasater as he has attempted to iron out communication problems between himself and the county board of commissioners, which is responsible for overseeing his office – mainly on fiscal matters.

But despite these problems, a survey of Charlevoix County residents revealed that the sheriff is enjoying a great deal of grass roots support.

In a recent interview with Sheriff Lasater about his goals and achievements, his failures and his lessons during his first year in office, the sheriff said his first goal fur 1977 was the establishment of a sheriff's substation in Boyne Falls. And with the help of the citizens from the area, the substation opened in March, 1977.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners was at first reluctant to endorse the plan, but according to Sheriff Lasater, when financial questions were met by citizen contributions, the substation was approved.

A telephone survey revealed that people in the Boyne Falls, Boyne City and outlying areas universally cited the substation as their major reason for thinking the sheriff is doing a good job.

Citizens Like Substation

"We now think of calling the sheriff, when in the past we let things go," observed Boyne Falls village clerk, Joan Bell.

"The substation makes a difference," Norman Baker, 17, of Boyne Falls said.

"I think the branch office in Boyne Falls is worthwhile. It brings the sheriff's activities closer to these people," answered Fred Edwards of East Jordan.

John Kujawski, chairman of the Police Committee of the board of commissioners agreed with these citizens assessments of the substation: "It has made a big difference for the people in the eastern part of Charlevoix County. They have more police protection."

However, Ralph Richardson, another Commissioner expressed several concerns with the substation, in terms of law enforcement and the procedure used to obtain it.

"I haven't sat down to figure out response times, but we are currently not too well covered in this end of the county," Richardson said.

But this complaint wasn't expressed in a telephone survey of residents living in the western end of the county. In fact, these residents supported the substation, too.

"I don't feel our service has declined and the substation was badly needed," observed Elaine Avery of Ellsworth Road.

Mrs. David Rosenthal of Rosenthal Orchards concurred. "As far as I'm concerned, I think he's doing a very good job. They were promptly here when we had a complaint."

"They are doing quite a good job. They responded well to a couple of small complaints I had," said Lawrence Swanson of Charlevoix.

Lasater explained the division of manpower: "We have nine officers in Charlevoix and two officers who man the substation. We have three patrol cars. One car is always at the substation and one car stays here in Charlevoix."

Lasater said he calculated "our response time to a complaint averages 14 minutes county-wide."

Fiscal Concerns

County commissioner chairman Clyde Cunningham expressed fiscal concerns over the substation. "If and when funds such as CETA and revenue sharing are cut off, I wonder if the county will be able to fund this and other projects they anticipate."

Both Cunningham and Commissioner Richardson expressed dissatisfaction with the handling of the funds for the substation. The two commission members said the law requires any funds donated to the sheriff's department go through the county treasurer, not directly to the sheriff or his office.

Lasater said he was not initially aware that funds were supposed to go through the County Treasurer, but that now he was.

Mistakes of a procedural nature, however, continue to haunt the sheriff, causing friction with the county commissioners. Charlevoix Township recently agreed to donate $200 toward the purchase of radar equipment for the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Lasater requested the check be sent to the sheriff's department, which would in turn deliver it to the County Treasurer.

Richardson responded to this with frustration. "He starts the year saying he's made a mistake and then makes them again."

When asked about this the sheriff said he couldn't understand why his delivering the check was causing such a stir.

Professionalize Department

"Professionalizing the department was another of my major goals this year -- actually my top priority," the sheriff said.

"We have invested 1,270 man-hours in training for the department. Seventy percent of our officers have participated in some form of training."

Among the training sessions in which sheriffs deputies participate are: Brethalyzer Operator training; Defensive Tactics training, which certified one officer to return to train his colleagues; Crisis Intervention school, especially important in dealing with domestic cases which is a major complaint in the county; a school in interrogation procedures; and two training sessions for the new sheriff.

"And the beauty of this," the sheriff said, "Was the schools were all free, the only costs were travel."

Apparently Lasater's efforts to "professionalize the department" have been noticed.

"They are doing a professional job," said Howard Parsel of Charlevoix.

"When I asked for help last summer they were prompt and they were very professional," reported Weldon Price, who lives on Boyne City Road.

Commissioner Kujawski of the sheriff's committee referred to this as a major accomplishment. Kujawski cited both the training programs and changes in appearance as aspects of professionalizing.

George Lasater

Lasater received no criticisms on this score.

Adds Rehab Programs

Lasater also counts among his achievements the several rehabilitative programs begun at the jail for the prisoner population.

"Two G.E.D. programs are offerred – these are high school diploma equivalency courses. Our jail is full right now and we have several long term prisoners, up to a year. Ninety-six percent of our prisoners are not high school graduates and 40 percent have real problems reading."

He illustrated the need for such programs, telling the story of one trustee who had been arrested several times. The last arrest had been just after he had been unable to obtain a job because he could not complete a written application. In his anger and frustration he committed a string of breaking and enterings.

Lasater reports the trustee completed a G.E.D. course and, after being released from jail, applied for and obtained a semi-skilled job.

The sheriff discussed several goals he had set and not achieved, among them adding a female juvenile officer.

"I think we should have a female juvenile officer in the department. Seventy percent of our breaking and enterings are done by young people under the age of 21."

"I think a young male offender would relate better to a female 'mother' image. Also, she would have the dual role of working with female victims of crime."

The sheriff cited statistics which show women are reluctant to report rape to male officers and specifically mention a situation in Charlevoix last summer where delay resulted in a poorer case against the alleged rapist.

The sheriff said he does not understand why he has not been able to get funding for his position.

Cunningham indicated the boards point of view. "A female juvenile officer would have no legal powers other than as a deputy. She would have to work with the county juvenile officer who is the juvenile officer by law. There is already too much duplication."

In other criticism, Commissioner Richardson worried about cooperation between the sheriff's department and the three city police departments in the county.

Questioned about this, Chief John Talboys of Boyne City, Chief Joe Hammond of East Jordan, and Chief Jack Mil of Charlevoix all said that working relationships are very good between the law enforcement agencies and that they enjoy good mutual cooperation.

Too Much Publicity

A few citizens questioned in the phone survey who refused to allow their names to be published, said they felt the sheriff was getting too much publicity.

And Commissioner Richardson was reluctant to agree to the interview initially because he too felt there was too much emphasis on publicity.

Lasater responded that the public has a right to know what is going on in the department and therefore he has solicited media coverage.

His program of recognition for citizens who perform acts "above and beyond the call of duty" has received mixed reviews, as well.

"Giving recognition to people is something which needs to be done in all our society," Linda Beers Aydlott of East Jordan volunteered in an interview.

People critical of the program asked not to be named, calling it just more publicity.

The sheriff was asked what he felt had been his stumbling blocks during his first year. "Quite candidly, when I became sheriff I had all these goals. I think I was too new and I tried too fast.

"If I had it to do over again I would move slower, but steadily. "I was a novice when it came to working with county government. I have learned the hard way, by making mistakes."

Kujawski offered a similar assessment. "George goes out and does things, but there are a lot of decisions for which he did not know all the ramifications. He didn't know procedures.

But he's definitely learning to work with his committee. There is a high degree of cooperation now."

Several other members of the Board of Commissioners echoed this observation.

In the end, Sheriff Lasater's first year seem to have received better reviews from the public than his commissioners – as the sheriff has acknowledged in his determination to improve communications with the commissioners – the people who hold the purse strings of his department.

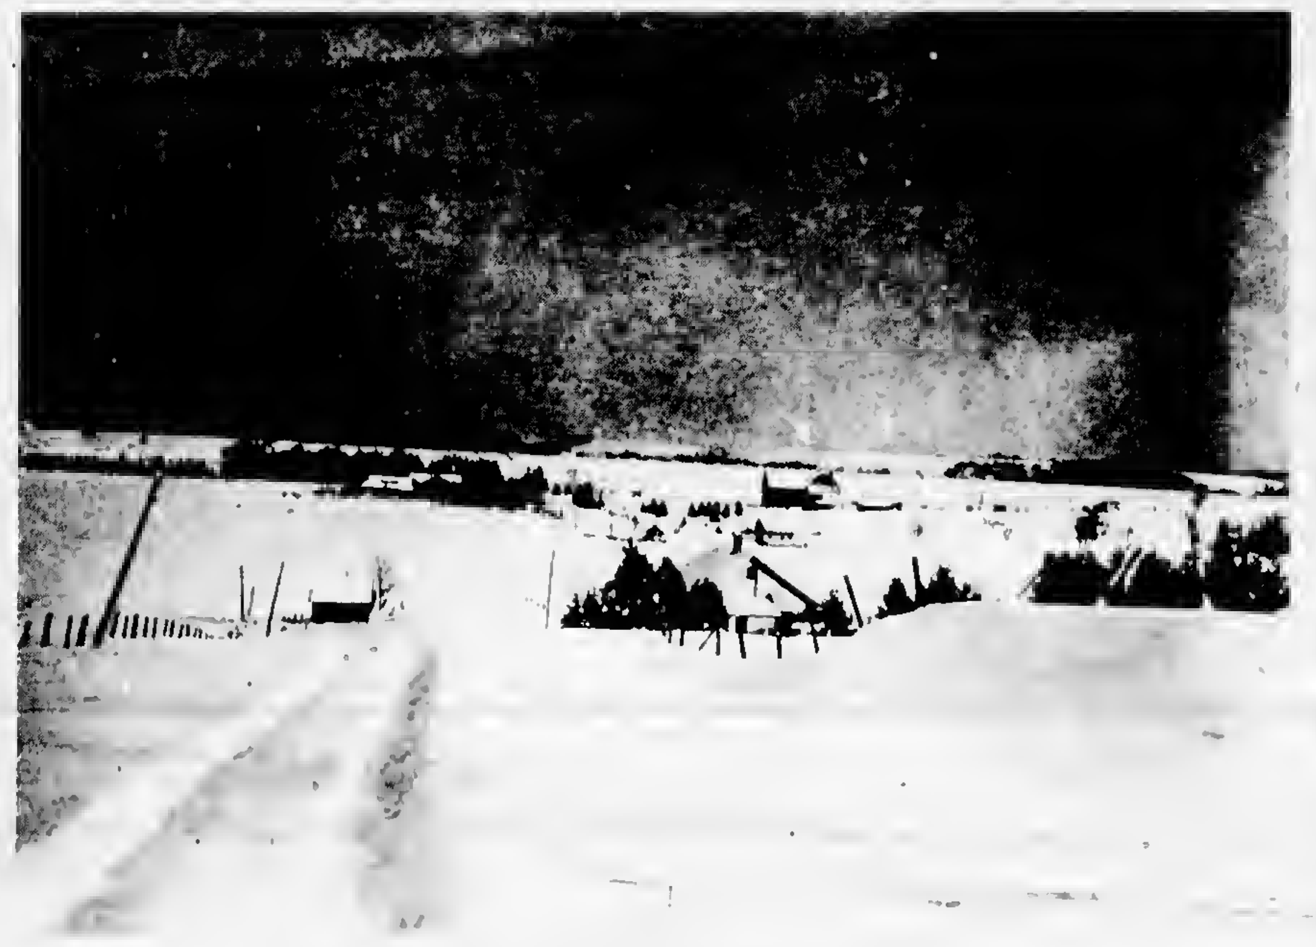
A Lot Like Carter

Commissioner Ira Davis of Horton Bay remarked on a parallel between the sheriff's problems and President Jimmy Carter's problems. Davis saw a comparison between the Presidents learning to work with the United States Congress and the sheriff's need to learn to work with his commissioners.

"They are similar, because they came in with all these goals and discovered you can't do them all," Davis observed.

"He just needs experience," Davis concluded.

With very few exceptions, even his harshest critics, were optimistic for Sheriff Lasater's second year – 1978.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS PICTURE WAS TAKEN in 1916 for the ferry hill in Ironton. The ferry had been pulled around to the south side and pulled with a windlass up a track for this annual repair work. William Benway, an old ship builder for Charlevoix, helped Sam Alexander with the caulking of the seams using oakum that was made by unwinding twisted rope as the old ferry was made of wood. When the ice was safe a road was kept open so that people could go across Lake Charlevoix to the other side during the winter, too. (Photo Courtesy of Mrs. Sam Alexander)

School board discusses plans on expansion with architects

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at a special meeting Monday night, asked the firm of Manson Jackson & Kane of Lansing to finalize plans for an expansion program at the Charlevoix High School; accepted bids for two school buses and opened bids for the renovation program at the Charlevoix Middle School.

In addition to asking the architectural firm to finalize plans that would add 39,000 square feet to the existing high school, the board has requested permission of Michigan Municipal Finance Commission to bond for $3.2 million to underwrite the cost of the expansion, renovation, site development, alterations and the purchase of equipment. Primary election no time for apathy among voters in City of Charlevoix

Critics and complainers wake up, you will soon have your chance.

Next Monday is the primary election for the City of Charlevoix. On the ballot will be the names of 11 people seeking election to city offices. All of the candidates are after the Republican spot on the ballot for the General Election in April.

But since there are no Democratic nominees and since the only names that can appear on the general election ballot are those of the winners in the primary, this election will pretty much settle who will be the next mayor, aldermen, clerk and treasurer of the city.

It's important to vote, so don't forget that date. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday at Charlevoix City Hall.

Mayor Candidates

On the ballot will be two candidates for mayor, Incumbent Mayor Edward Hansen and challenger Sam Supernaw.

First Ward Candidates

In the First Ward, the names of Richard Hodgson and Jefrey Porter will be placed before the voters.

Second Ward Candidates

In the Second Ward, two-term incumbent Alderman Jeannine Wallace is being challenged by Lawrence "Stub" Swanson.

Third Ward Candidates

And in the Third Ward two challengers, Earl Muma and Shirley Roloff, are squaring off against incumbent Joe Morris.

Clerk, Treasurer Candidates

For the city clerk's position, only the name of Judy Przybylski will appear on the ballot, while Annabelle Cunningham is running unopposed for city treasurer.

It's been a long time since this much interest has been shown in a city election. Last year, none of the candidates were opposed in the general election. The primary election was cancelled due to lack of interest.

All of the candidates have spent a great deal of time making their stands known and getting out and meeting the people of their wards and city. The voters couldn't ask for much more dedication and determination than that.

All of the candidates also responded to a questionnaire sent to them by the Charlevoix Courier and their opinions were printed in story form in the Feb. 8 edition of the newspaper. Copies of the paper are still available at the Courier office in the Market Mall for interested voters.

The voters have the opportunity, and a well-informed opportunity at that to make any changes they may wish to make in city government. Or the voters will have the chance to stick with the status quo.

So get out and vote. Don't miss your chance to have an input into city government. It's better than just complaining.

"THEN IT'S AGREED—WE'LL PROPOSE A PROGRAM FOR GROWING SLOW-BURNING WOOD AND ADOPT A WAIT-AND-SEE ATTITUDE!"

Erma Bombeck

Okay, I'm like the rest of you. I've become uptight about crime, mistrust strangers and am suspicious of my neighbors.

I've turned from a trusting naive woman who used to leave her keys under the doormat to a neurotic who locks her car doors when she gets out to fill her own gas tank.

I've gone from a devil-may-care madcap to a woman who sits with a handbag, winter coat, attache case and luggage on her lap when she uses the public facilities.

Yes, I'm older and wiser now. A lot of Kojaks have gone under the bridge. A lot of Starskys and Hutches, Rookies, Adam 12s, Columbos, Barnaby Joneses and Rockfords have served to make me install hidden cameras focused on my refrigerator.

The other night I heard Baretta say, "I know where you're comin' from, turkey, and it's heavy, but I got a lot of bread comin' down on this one and if you're doin' a number on me, either I'll bust you or the dudes will waste you and that'a the name of that tune!"

I didn't understand one word he said, but I'm no fool, I quit eating my popcorn.

Readings of newspapers and viewers of television have absorbed so much crime, I don't know if they can handle the following story, but I hope they try.

In Sun City, Arizona, recently a woman decided to have a garage sale. She made up her signs, priced her merchandise and got everything in order for the sale which was to begin the next day.

Everything in readiness, she left home for some errands. While she was gone, a neighbor's automatic garage door opener raised her door by mistake, bringing all the signs and merchandise into full view.

When our heroine arrived home she found the sale had gone on without her and the garage was picked clean. However, she found a tally of items sold and the prices paid. All items were not only accounted for, but the collection amounted to $15.20...75 cents more than there should have been.

Seventy-five cents. At today's prices, it won't buy much, but it bought something for me...a piece of integrity...a good feeling...a bit of optimism...a rebirth of trust...a resurgence of decency...an assurance that maybe, just maybe, we only read the stories about human frailties and mistakes.

Maybe once in awhile, we have to know that honesty still abounds – and that's the name of that tune!

Rev. Moore suggests lay court be established

Dear Editor:

Thought the enclosed editorial might interest you.

When city editors expose the corruption of political courts and praise the Lay-Judge it seems that county editors in Michigan should urge the voters to regain Democracy by voting in a new system of lay judges and juries that would judge, as a unit, on all or most cases involving residents of their jurisdiction – township or precinct. Help us reclaim this part of Democracy taken from us by certain elements of the legal profession that put greed above service to the country or client.

Most cases that cost residents a small fortune should be settled in a lay court with decisions based on the traditional common law, common sense, common decency and conciliation.

TRIBUTE OR TAXES

Bureaucracy, schools beside Political costly courts
Will cause many to lose pride
And seek charity support.
Just paid my increased taxes

Paula Holmes... ...Speaking Her Mind

I don't know if you've ever moved your office before, but it's an experience that you won't soon forget.

The Charlevoix Courier packed up its belongings and moved a mere two weeks ago, it seems like an eternity. And it's only now that things are beginning to settle down and return to normal.

Our first attempt at moving was snowed out by the Great Blizzard of '78. And as the movers carted box after box after box after box of paraphernalia out to the moving van and then into the new offices in the Market Mall, it looked like we were going to be snowed out again.

But the movers and our equipment made it safely into the new offices and we spent the rest of the week unpacking.

The movers did a terrific job of handling our equipment. And we were ready to roll the following day without too many complications. Even a beautifully decorated egg that had been given to me as a gift survived the move without a crack.

It'a a weird experience to come into your office in the morning and recognize your desk, typewriter and other materials and at the same time feel like you've never seen them before in your life.

I don't know how many times I reached for something that wasn't there merely because it had been relocated in a new place. But, by the end of the week, I had it down pat. Even my book shelves, which had been reorganized, were familiar to me again.

So, when I went in to work Saturday for a few hours, I was actually feeling right at home with the office. I sat at my desk merrily typing away, trying to make up for the hours of writing time I had lost due to the move, the unpacking and the general uproar the two events had caused, when all of a sudden my book shelves came crashing down on the typewriter, my head, the desk and the floor.

Stunned, I sat at the typewriter for a few minutes before realizing exactly what had happened. After all, book shelves don't just fall down out of thin air.

Then I began the hours of work it was going to take to restraighten the book shelves, my desk, the typewriter and the office.

In the middle of the mess, I found my beautifully decorated egg, you know, the one that had survived the move. It was in at least 1,000 pieces.

"Oh, well," I sighed. "At least I don't have to worry about it breaking."

I finished straightening the shelves in record time and they've stayed on the wall ever since. So, why don't you come and visit us in our new location. I promise there won't be any flying books.

Space technology being as complicated as it is, it is a wonder we haven't had more trouble in the satellite department before now.

In the early days of the space age, we were told that hardware reentering the earth's atmosphere would surely ignite from the increasing friction and burn itself out before reaching the earth's surface. Just like meteorites on an August night.

And we have no reason to believe this hasn't happened hundreds of times to both American and Russian spacecraft, much of which is of lightweight construction designed to incinerate.

In fact, when Russia first learned that its nuclear-fueled Cosmos satellite was in trouble last fall, it was hoped that the satellite would burn itself out well above mother earth.

But, as you know, it didn't. Early in the morning of Jan. 24, Cosmos 954 lit the sky over Northwestern Canada as it plunged toward earth. True to prediction, some components did catch fire and burn up on the way down; but some rather large chunks reached the ground intact, punching holes through the ice of Great Slave Lake and digging miniature craters where they landed on the tundra.

The debris, of course, is radioactive to varying degrees, depending, I suppose, on how close that particular component was to the core of the nuclear fuel pack.

A massive search is now underway in the frozen north by American and Canadian space technicians to find as much as the debris as possible and deliver it to safe storage in lead lined vaults.

But we won't find it all. The satellite descended over a path hundreds of miles long. And despite the most sophisticated radiation detection equipment, searchers are working in one of the most inhospitable areas of the globe, a sub-arctic region of long winter nights where the temperatures as low as 50 degrees below zero are not uncommon.

If the search is delayed until spring, conditions will be little better. When the deep frost melts to muskeg, black flies by the billions will swarm out of their winter lairs, making life next to unbearable for wild creatures and human inhabitants.

So we might as well make up our minds that we won't find it all. There will remain, hidden somewhere in that wasteland, a festering sore of radiation capable of effecting strange mutations in plants and wildlife in tl area, depending on the duration and intensity of their exposure.

These same chunks of radioactive debris also can cause radiation sicknesses, ranging from a general malaise and weakness to some forms of cancer, again depending on duration and intensity of exposure.

As you might suspect, the Russians have not been alone in equipping their space missiles with nuclear engines. No sir. The United States has been doing it too. But our scientists feel there is little danger because our satellites are designed to stay aloft for 400 years.

They do not say, however, what is going to happen at the end of 400 years to render our spaceships harmless to napless earthlings.

An answer is expected sometime before 2378, the year our own nuclear powered satellites will start raining down on the earth.

In the meantime, if you have a cast iron umbrella in the broom closet, hang on to it. Your progeny may need it.

Terrible Jean Takes Over

What really bugged me was when a stranger joined our table at the Woodbridge Tavern and asked Terrible Jean for her autograph.

"You are my favorite character," this unknown woman gushed as Terrible Jean modestly stood on the table and blew kisses to the world.

But after the roar of the crowd had died down, Terrible Jean did have the decency to ask the autograph seeker if she would like to meet her little brother, the columnist who first told the general public that Jean is Terrible.

"No," the woman answered.

She was crouching next to me but not once did she take her adoring eyes off Terrible Jean and turn her head to see how much better looking I am. I do not exaggerate, cross my heart and spit to die.

Nothing that happened at the Woodbridge that night can be exaggerated. On the contrary, some of the details should probably be toned down or completely suppressed to project my credibility, not to mention my neck.

Terrible Jean said she would kill me if I wrote about her joining the floor show to give her singing imitation of a chicken laying an egg. But I feel the public has a right to know what a 52-year old mother of five will do to break into show business.

The Woodbridge is one of Detroit's oldest saloons, near the riverfront east of downtown, an easy walk from my apartment, but a more difficult crawl. I picked it as the best place for me to give a small party because there is nothing on the menu more expensive than a hamburger deluxe. Terrible Jean has the muscles in our family, but I have the class. I wanted to bring my own soup, but my thoughtless wife sent my suit with the oilcloth pockets to the cleaners.

Gerry O'Connor sings on alternate Fridays at the Woodbridge, and Yolanda Jones plays the piano. I'm never sure I'm going on the right Friday, so I pack a suitcase. When the moon is right, and her audience is jumping, Gerry O'Connor might be the best entertainer in Detroit. She'll certainly do until someone rolls the boulder from in front of Al Joslon's tomb.

For Terrible Jean, Gerry's greatest charm was the extra-long cord on her microphone. Gerry likes to stick the microphone in customers' faces. The usual response is a few lyrics from the chorus, mumbled bashfully. But when Terrible Jean saw her chance for amplification, she turned into Ethel Merman produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer directed by Busby Berkley.

This gung-ho performance was no surprise to me and the other people at Terrible Jean's table. We have known for years about her automatic reaction to crowds, and we are used to seeing her tap dance at funerals.

But the rest of the Woodbridge customers probably thought a crazed woman had escaped from 10 years captivity inside a juke box and wanted the world to hear what she had heard. An amazed man at the bar said it was the first time he had seen the Andrew Sisters with only one head.

Terrible Jean married wisely. Her husband, Bill, always encourages her to perform. She thinks he does this because he recognizes her great talent. Actually, he does it because he figures if she can entertain the troops, so can he.

Bill's contribution at the Woodbridge was an indescribable rendition of the "Whiffenpoof Song" sung while dancing a jig with his trousers rolled to his knees. When Bill announced he was married to the one-headed Andrew Sisters, the amazed man at the bar proclaimed their marriage the most fortunate partnership since a cement truck locked bumpers with a calliope.

In fairness to my mother, who feels a certain responsibility, it should be admitted that Terrible Jean is not typical of my 4 sisters. Mary Lou, sister No. 2, is more typical. She was also at Woodbridge, and not once did she reach for the microphone. She is shy and unassuming, like her only brother.

Unfortunately, Mary Lou is married to Jack, who thinks he is a barbershop quartet. When Jack and the one-headed Andrews Sisters sang a duet, the amazed man at the bar swore he could count 5 heads.

And if you think that's confusing imagine the bewilderment of that insensitive autograph hound when she saw that Terrible Jean had signed: "Patty, Laverne and Maxine."

Support city policemen, change administration at polls

Wake up, Citizens of Charlevoix:

The Primary election is almost upon us again, and I, for one, think it is time for a change in City Administration, in view of recent events. Our present Administration has threatened to do away with our Police Dept. or consolidate it with the County, and that would be just as bad as not having any at all, because they would not have any jurisdiction of their own. If I sound biased against the County, it is only because I want our City to have the very best, and not have to be at the mercy of someone who neglects their job.

When we go to the polls, let us bear in mind that our present city Administration would rather squander our tax dollars on costly arbitration proceedings than to give our hard-working Police and Fire Departments a well deserved raise. After all, they do risk life and limb every time they go out on a call, but they knew what their jobs entailed when they applied for them. As a result, you have dedicated Police and Fire protection twenty-four hours a day, every day in the year. The arbitration proceedings will cost the City a huge sum, and when it's all over, they will have to give the men a raise anyway. Furthermore, the City did not offer a raise to the Police and Fire Departments as it claimed it did recently, in the newspaper.

Our present Administration thinks nothing of spending thousands of dollars on a tree planting program though. I love trees, too, and realize that they are a necessity to the beautification of our City, but why try to replace them all at once? After all, they didn't all grow where they are, all at one time. They should be planted prudently, over a period of time.

The time has come for the citizens of Charlevoix to wake up and find out what is going on in our City. We must quit being so lethargic about how our City is being governed, and henceforth be ever watchful that our City Officials do the job that they were elected to do.

Remember, when you go to the polls, that a good official keeps the best interests of the people uppermost in his mind as he proceeds to fulfill his duties while in office. It is your tax dollars that are being spent or mis-spent, so elect the one whom you think will do the best job.

A fellow Citizen.
I request that my name be withheld.

Fowler raises questions on zoning ordince need

To the Editor:

Recently, I went to a work meeting of the city council and was impressed on how they functioned. The topic in which I was interested was first on the agenda, the development of land into additional condominiums. Not one as expected, but two siteplans were presented. The gentlemen each showed their drawings for the two different locations and told their impressive stories.

I was sold; they satisfied me 100 percent for the purpose that I was there.

However, plans for a site "A" needed three zoning variances. They were: 1/ A few feet (about 2) over the 35 foot height limits; 2/ A waving of 38 feet of the 50 foot restriction to be able to begin 12 feet from the lot line on both sides (76 feet total); and 3) A reduction of parking spaces from the required 2½ per unit to a few less spaces. Site "B" plans weren't quite as demanding on the zoning variances needed. He needed only four feet, four inches shaved off his lot line, his height was just inches too high and he had more than enough parking spaces.

Both men wanted some kind of assurance to move ahead with their plans and the mayor and council correctly stated that those assurances could not be given until the people have a chance to speak.

Though my reason for being there was satisfied, I could not help but think that personally I was not satisfied because I feel that if we are going to have zoning then we should abide by it as close as possible to keep out the poorly planned developments. Though the developments seen were beautifully planned, do we want to set a precedent? Where do we draw the line? Why have zoning at all? Please contact your councilperson and express your views.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
David Fowler, R. Ph.

Committee corrects article on Mrs. Roloff's candidacy for council

Dear Editor:

We the undersigned, feel that there were important ommissions in your alderman profile of Shirley Roloff in your issue of 2/7/78. We would like to take this opportunity to elaborate on some of the community and civic involvements.

Shirley attended Hickory Business College in North Carolina, and was employed by Montgomery Wards for 5 years as a Regional Management Trainer. Mrs. Roloff 'retired' from her career to raise 5 children. Since Shirley and her husband Bill have been in Charlevoix these past 4 years, she has been actively involved on a voluntary basis with the American Cancer Society, Parent Teacher Council, Northern Michigan Legal Aide Services, Department of Social Services and the Red Cross Blood Bank. Shirley has also spent 2 years as a special education teacher's aide, a librarian aide, and has even found time to work with the Cub Scouts.

For the past 2 years, Shirley has been honored by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services for her outstanding contributions, specifically her involvement with elderly clients. Shirley also was a member of the Commission on Aging Planning Committee for the development of the Senior Citizens Health Screening Program.

We also would like to correct some information in your article regarding the mayor manager relationship. Mrs. Roloff believes that the administration and mangement of the city is a full time responsiblity, and as such, this immesne undertaking should be vested in one person, either the mayor or a city manager. She believes that the concept and reality of "Charlevoix the Beautiful" is the foundation of our city government.

We thank you for the opportunity to relate those many activities which we feel adequately reflect the motivation, activism and sense of community that Mrs. Roloff would dedicate to the job of alderman.

The Committee to Elect Shirley Roloff

Charlevoix Hospital says thanks

To the Editor:

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Staff and Board of Directors would like the community to know that we are deeply grateful for the overwhelming support given us during the Mardi Gras Benefit Film and Dinner.

As a result of the generosity of people in the hospital serving area, over $3,700.00 has been contributed toward our new x-ray film processor in addition to the $3,000.00 donated earlier this year.

We are gratified by the support which is so vital to a community hospital such as we.

To the people too numerous to list who worked tirelessly to make this project a success, goes our very special thanks

Sincerely,
Richard L. Kruegr
Administrator

Mr. Racignol wants to know about senior housing progress

To the Editor:

As an interested taxpaying native of Charlevoix that has retired to Florida for four to six months a year and read the Courier from front to rear would like to know if anything is happening toward getting low income housing for the Senior citizens of Charlevoix.

The Courier has an article of interest about once every six weeks in regards to the subject. If nothing more is happening than what you print, that project will maybe get to the drawing boards by the time our present grand children are senior citizens. How about lighting a fire under some of our leadership.

The neighboring towns, within the county and Petoskey seem to get some action and they sure don't have to pay any more taxes than the people in Charlevoix do. We're paying for benefits for all others and letting like benefits pass us by 'cause our gogetters are late in the going and getting.

Respectfully (and not too warm)
Ervin Racignol

March of Dimes expresses gratitude to community, workers

To the Editor:

The Charlevoix County March of Dimes would like to thank all of the people involved in this years Mother's March. A special thanks to Juillerets, Dockside & Weathervane for coffee day, they helped to make it the best one yet.

Thanks also to the area captains for their efforts in obtaining marchers and filling in when needed.

A big thank you to the marchers who braved the cold to collect and to all the community for their contributions.

Because of their efforts, the march was very successful.

Teacher Feature

...Sally McNamara

Sally McNamara

Bridging that gap between elementary school and middle school can be an almost impossible job, but it's a task that Sally McNamara loves.

Mrs. McNamara has taught fifth grade, that grade just before the ever-frightening jump to middle school, since the new Charlevoix Elementary School opened in 1969—and she wouldn't have it any other way.

"Oh, we all have our days," Mrs. McNamara said, with something like a cross between a smile and a grimace crossing her face as she recalled one of those days.

"But the way we work here (at the Charlevoix Elementary School), there's so much going on and so much change and so much challenge, that you can't possibly get bored.

"And you never have enough time to get everything done."

Mrs. McNamara said she and the other fifth grade teachers, Ronald Cox, Carol Elliott and Jeanne Seymour, do many things to prepare their 120 students for middle school.

"The kids are concerned about leaving the elementary school for the middle school," the 18-year teaching veteran explained.

"The first thing they worry about is that they are going to be the youngest in the school and they're used to being the oldest. And they are afraid about getting lost in the school and not knowing where to go.

"They're apprehensive about going to the middle school and yet they look forward to it, too. They're anxious to get involved in some of the programs like band and sports."

To alleviate some of the fears fifth graders have about the Charlevoix Middle School, the students are given a one-half day orientation visit to the middle school where they have a chance to tour the building, meet the teachers and even to talk with Principal Vince Chew.

The fifth grade teachers also work with their students on developing self discipline and other skills they will need in the middle school.

"We work a lot on self responsibility and self discipline," Mrs. McNamara said. "We give them long range assignments with deadlines that they have to complete for us just as they would in middle school.

"We also help them develop so that they can keep track of such things as their lunch tickets."

Academically, the fifth grade teachers also work hard to prepare their students for the middle school.

"We stress individual skills in the fifth grade, especially in reading, math and language arts," the fifth grade teacher explained.

In the area of math, the teachers stress the basics. They have also added an additional math class in the afternoons which covers metrics, standard measurement, a little geometry and story problems.

Grammar and parts of speech and parts of sentences are stressed in the language arts classes.

"Reading is still taught in the fifth grade," the teacher said. "And what we stress depends on the child's ability."

The students also study a smattering of U.S. geography and history and biology, astronomy, and physics.

Mrs. McNamara, an East Jordan native, is a graduate of Central Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in education. She has added an additional 30 hours of courses to her basic degree by attending classes given through Michigan State University, Wayne State University, Eastern Michigan University and Central.

Why did she decide to go into teaching?

"I was just like any other kid that goes to college because his parents expect him to. I didn't really know what I wanted to do so I took a battery of apptitude tests to find out what my interests were and where my talents were," she said.

"I found out that I was interested in music and that I liked to work with people and eventually that led to the college of education."

Mrs. McNamara began her teaching career in Monroe at the kindergarten level. She then left teaching to raise a family.

In 1963, she and her husband, Ed, and two children moved to East Jordan while they built a house in Charlevoix.

"We had always wanted to move here and we were just lucky enough to get transferred here by Consumers Power," the teacher explained.

The teacher substituted in the Charlevoix School system teaching one term of special education and teaching kindergarten in the basement of Charlevoix City Hall. Then she began teaching fifth grade.

Over the 18 years that Mrs. McNamara has been in the classroom she has seen many changes.

"The children have changed tremendously, mostly because of television and travel," the teacher said. "Families do a lot more traveling now.

"And the students are so much more aware of what's going on."

Mrs. McNamara said the teaching profession has changed quite a bit in the last 18 years, too. The structure has changed from a self-contained classroom to an emphasis on open classrooms and individualized programs for students.

"This involves much more prepartion and work for the teacher and many more people, but it is better, too," the teacher said.

The rewards of teaching have not changed over the years, however.

"It's very rewarding to go to a concert or a basketball game and have some of my former students come up and talk to me," the teacher said. "It's rewarding to see the kids that you've had in your classroom grow up and do well."

Age requirement changed for kindergarten enrollment

Children entering kindergarten in the Charlevoix Public School System will be a little older from now on.

The Charlevoix Board of Education recently established a board policy suggesting that students entering kindergarten for the 1978-79 school year be five years old by Oct. 1 instead of Dec. 1. The policy further states that children entering kindergarten in the fall of 1979 should be five years old by Sept. 1.

The new policy was recommended to the school board by the Charlevoix Curriculum Council, which is composed of teachers from the Charlevoix elementary, middle and high schools, the three principals and Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren.

"The suggestion actually came to the curriculum council from the lower elementary school teachers," Superintendent Van Wieren explained. "These teachers felt the children would have a greater chance of success in school if they had reached a little more maturity before they entered kindergarten."

Van Wieren said the teachers' suggestion was based on a study of students at the elementary school who were having trouble academically and emotionally. It was found that these students tended to be the youngest ones in the class.

"The first few years of school are crucial to a student's success during their entire educational career," Van Wierden explained. "We felt this was one way to insure a better chance of success."

Van Wieren said the teachers had also studied the idea of a junior primary room for students who had completed kindergarten but who weren't quite ready to begin first grade, but it was decided to try the age requirement change first.

The superintendent suggested that parents having any questions about the maturity of their child talk with Ralph Raymer, Charlevoix Elementary School principal, or Kay Smith or Barbara Berlage, kindergarten teachers.

Van Wieren pointed out that the change in the age requirement for students entering kindergarten was a school board policy. The state law still allows children turning five years old by Dec. 1 to enter kindergarten.

CHARLEVOIX TAXPAYER IMPORTANT!!

We owe it to candor, and the need to preserve the Faith of the people to answer the unfounded claims of ex-councilman, Sam Supernaw.

CLAIM I: "Our utility rates have just gone up 43%." Fiction!
The fact is that utility rates have been raised only enough to cover increases in normal costs the total raise will be less than 20%.
CLAIM II. "We should be paying higher taxes and lower utility bills." False!
We should never substitute taxes for utility bills. Cities that gave away their electrical power, have lost their electric systems. Fair charges are being made, treating people justly with no favorite to special interest groups.
CLAIM III. "The administration did nothing about parking." False
The administration has completed phase one of the parking program. It is north of Bridge St. at the Water Front. (Where have you been Sam)
CLAIM IV. "Our city is not being properly run." Nuts!
As a councilman in 1973 Sam Supernaw would not and did not act on the appointment of a City Administrator. Instead of properly bringing the appointment to a vote - Sam was absent from six of the sixteen council meetings left in his term of office. Sams 67½ % attendance was improper!
COMMENTS: During a six year tour as Councilman, Edward Hansen has a perfect record of attendance. In fact Edward Hansen has been absent from just one of 318 meetings, he was properly, 99.68% present. This administration has lowered your taxes, kept your utility rates low, improved your electric utility, maintained a street paving program, improved parking, rebuilt Ferry Avenue swimming dock.

Winter homecoming activities to last throughout the week

By LAURA GLASS

The third annual Winter Homecoming is underway at Charlevoix High School and promises to be a spectacular event.

Thursday the 10 members of the homecoming court were selected by the Senior Class and this Thursday the entire student body will pick the Queen and King to reign over the weekend's festivities.

The CHS student council has scheduled a fun filled Spirit Week for the students. Starting Monday, classes were expected to begin snow sculptures in East Park with the theme of animals. Also planned for Spirit Week is a "Dress Code" week. Monday was Jeans Day and students wore jeans to school. Tuesday was Crazy Socks Day while today (Wednesday) is Bell Day, with students wearing bells on their shoes. Thursday is Farmer Day with the students dressing as farmers and Friday is the traditional Maroon and White Day and everyone must wear the school colors.

The dress code was originated by the cheerleaders and each class receives a number of points for each of its members who follow the code.

Other scheduled activities include a hall decoration contest and a tug-of-war between classes. The winning class in each event receives points to be totaled on Friday afternoon, the class with the most overall points will be awarded a tag on the CHS Spirit Plaque.

Friday is the climax of the Winter Homecoming festivities and the pep rally at the end of the school day will feature a skit competition between the classes.

Activites scheduled for the halftime during the Charlevoix Rayder-Petoskey Northmen game include the introduction of last year's Winter Homecoming King and Queen, Tracy Sell and Terri Hufford, the announcing of the winners by class of Spriit Week and the winner of the snow sculpture contest and then the crowning of the new king and queen.

A dance will follow the game at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Feast, happy hours highlight Winter Cup Festival night life

A special Winter Cup feast and happy hour will highlight the night life Friday and Saturday at the Argonne, Grey Gables Inn and Weathervane Inn restaurants during the second annual Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival this weekend.

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce director Jacquie Merta said the three restaurants have announced they will hold a special happy hour from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and that they will be serving a Winter Cup feast at special rates for the general public on both nights as a means of marking this special weekend in Charlevoix.

Enthusiasm for the second Winter Cup weekend is high, according to chamber of commerce officials. More than 50 requests for registration forms for the downhill and cross country ski races and the snowmobile safari have been recieved at the chamber office from out-of-town visitors.

The festival, sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Lions Club, will open Friday with an ice sculpture contest. Middle School and high school students, families and businesses are invited to try their hands at making an ice sculpture in East Park

City crews will be making piles of snow in the park for interested groups to use for their sculptures. Mrs. Merta asked that all people interested in participating in the contest contact the chamber office to find out what the theme for the sculptures is. The theme is being kept a secret from the general public

Judging for the ice sculptures will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. Friday in the park.

Also on Friday, Charlevoix High School students will hold their annual Winter Homecoming festivities during half time of the Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game. The homecoming dance will follow the game at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The second day of the Winter Cup Festival, Saturday, will be filled with outdoor activities. Cross country ski races will be held at Mt. McSauba beginning at 9:30 a.m. with a competitors meeting. The races will follow at 10 a.m.

A 3 kilometer, 10 kilometer and 25 kilometer race course will be marked for the contestants competing in the two junior boy two junior girl, two senior woman, and four senior men classes.

Preregistration for the cross country ski races will be taken at the chamber of commerce office. Out-of-town contestants may register at 9 a.m. Saturday at Mt. McSauba.

Following the cross country ski races will be the Dual Slalom Ski Cup Races for downhill skiing enthusiasts. Registration for the downhill races will begin at noon at Mt. McSauba with the races commencing at 1 p.m.

Racers will be able to compete in three junior boy classes, three junior classes, one mens class and one womens class.

At 3 p.m. a Bump Jumper Contest will begin with girls and boys between the ages of 6 and 17 years trying their skill at riding the bumps down the Pale Face Slape at Mt McSauba.

Also at 3 p.m., Jim Welch of Summit Sports in Gaylord, will conduct a free cross country ski clinic for all interested winter sports enthusiasts at Mt. McSauba.

Sunday's Winter Cup acitivites will be highlighted by a snowmobile safari. The Charlevoix Snowmobile Club will host the safari beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The snowmobilers will travel to Norwood where they will feast on chili and hot dogs around noon before returning to the airport by 3 p.m.

Preregistration for the safari will be held at the chamber office and must be made by Saturday.

Free downhill ski lessons will also be given by Dick Georgi, Reed Friedinger and Rick Lobenherz at 1 p.m. Sunday at Mt McSauba for all interested people.

For further information about the Winter Cup Festival, call the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101

4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

Please pardon me if I brag a bit today, but I would like to write about a new 4-H group that you'll be hearing about quite often in the next few months. This is the 4-H teen service club.

For years, the state 4-H office, at Michigan State University has been concerned with providing proper activities and incentives for older teens. From this concern emerged programs such as 4-H Challenge (wilderness survival) and 4-H Exploration Days, a three day learning adventure at Michigan State University. Many counties, however, are finding their own solutions. And in this area of the state, one answer seems to be the 4-H Service Club.

The Charleoix County group, which was formed in October has flourished because of three things – fun, fellowship, and service.

Let's fact it, all people need some degree of enjoyment if they are going to continue on a project. With this in mind, our Service Club began activities by hosting Presque Isle County for a hay ride & party in December. This, plus the monthly club meetings, and the recent 4-H Snow Camp, has made for a strong sense of fellowship in the club. Because our members have this rapport, and try to help each other, the next logical step is to help the community.

Our club has now reached this level of community service. In the next 3-4 months, 4-H, in co-operation with the Michigan Farm Bureau, the Charlevoix County Sheriffs Department and the Michigan State Police, will be working on a Rural Crime Prevention Project. When this project begins, 4-H members and County Sheriff Cadets will travel to participating county farms, and mark tractors and other farm & lawn implements with an identification number. This number will make the implement traceable in case of theft. At the same time, if participants wish to have household items marked, the Michigan State Police will make "Operation Identification" kits available. It will then be possible for rural residents to have their entire farm marked in one day.

Thanks to the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, this service will be available, at no charge, to all rural Charlevoix County residents. Application instructions for all interested people will be made available in a few weeks. I am, needless to say, quite proud of both the Sheriffs Cadets, and 4-H Service Club members for taking on this project.

Other Items

Do you have some marketable junk lying around the house? Why not get rid of it at the 4-H Horse Development Committees "Great Spring Combination Used Tack and Rummage Sale." This sale will be on March 4, and will feature both used tack and other horse related items, and also a general rummage sale. Items may be donated, or sold on consignment, with 10 percent going to the 4-H Horse Committee. For information, call Terri Kenifeck at 547-2128.

And finally, our 4-H Spring Achievement Day will be Saturday, April 15 at the East Jordan High School. All children interested in showing projects should contact me at the Cooperative Extension Office. My phone number is 582-6232.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing will be held before the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix on Monday, February 27, 1978, at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall, to discuss the proposed zoning ordinance.

KRIS FIEDLER really had to dig to set up this shot for her teammates. Sue Hodge and Tina Klama watch as Kris does her stuff.

IT WAS a spike by Chris Lehman during this part of the game as teammate Tina Klama ran up to cover the play.

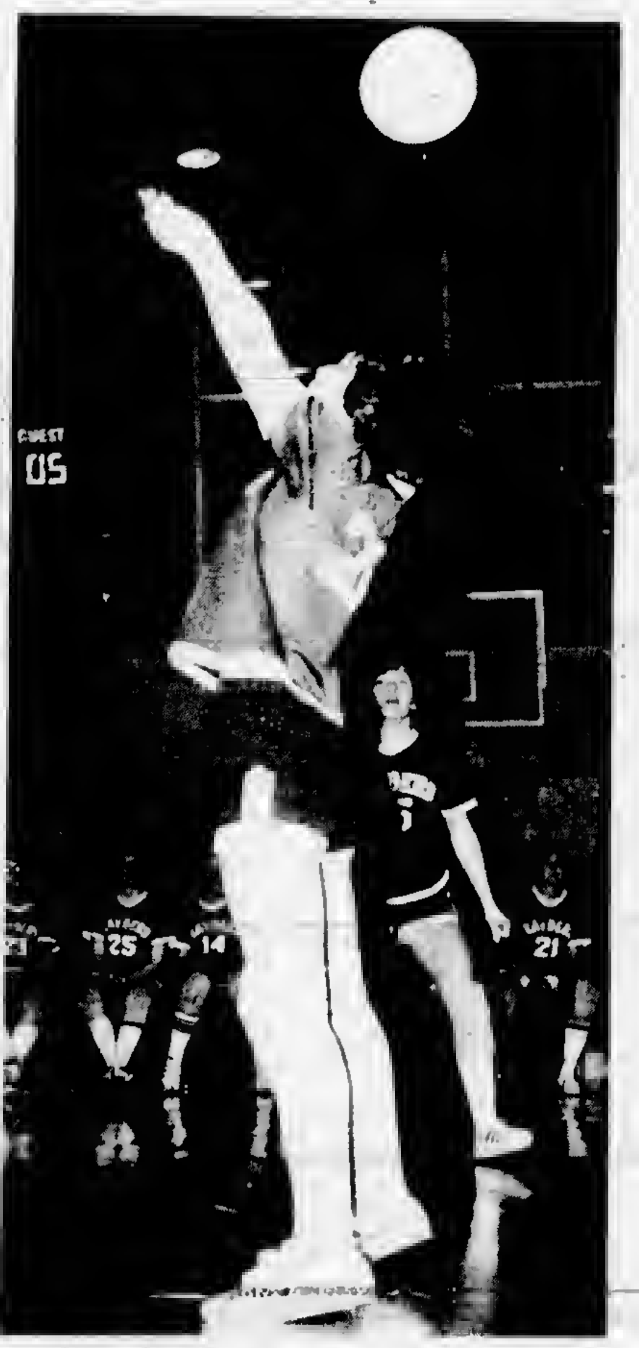
CAROLYN LOPER revs up for a serve during the Charlevoix-Boyne City game. The serve was good, but the Rayders lost the match to their cross-city rivals.

CHRIS LEHMAN tries an over-the-head shot during the Charlevoix Boyne City game last week. The Rayders won the first game, but lost the next three to the Ramblers.



KAREN LAMEREAUX sets this shot up for teammate Sue Hodge as she moves across court to spike the ball across the net to the waiting Boyne City team.

TINA KLAMA puts the spin on this spike and fear into the heart of the waiting Boyne City team member. The Rayders won one out of four games to their cross country rivals.

SUE HODGE was down on her knees trying to save this shot from becoming a point for the Boyne City squad. The Ramblers defeated the Rayders in three out of four games.

Rayders drop two squeakers

By BILL MERCER

Last week was "Close Only Counts in Horseshoes Week" for Charlevoix's Red Rayder basketball team as they lost squeakers to St. Ignace and Boyne City by three and two points respectively.

The Saints' game was a "come-from-behind, only-to-lose-in-the-last seconds" affair and while the Ramblers contest saw the Rayders allow a nine point lead slip away in the closing moments.

The battle against cross-county rival Boyne City started as a run-and-gun fast action ballgame with both teams hitting the boards and the referees getting a lot of lip exercise on their whistles. Turnovers, steals and fouls were the order of the day.

At the end of the first quarter, after the smoke had cleared, the two teams were deadlocked at 14. Bob Plumm picked up six of his total 18 points in this stanza to lead the Charlevoix squad.

In the second quarter, the Rayders took charge and racked up a 10-0 scoring advantage at the six minute mark of the period. The defense put the stops on Boyne star Dave Denise during this time and held him scoreless for the quarter. At the halfway point, Charlevoix led 39-32.

Both teams came out of halftime with cold shooting hands and even though they kept the fast pace going, neither squad could put the ball through the hoop. Still Charlevoix held on to its lead with a nine point edge going into the final period of action.

At this point, the spirit of victory departed the Rayder bench and moved over to the Rambler side. With the help of foul outs by Charlevoix's Neil Dziedzic at 4:29 to play, Steve Schuch at 0:49 after attempting a steal during a Boyne City stall and Kevin Kratt at 0:31 allowing Denise to sink the game-winning free throws, the Ramblers were able to come-from behind and register a victory.

Charlevoix once again achieved evenly balanced team scoring, but the cold spell at the end of the game was their downfall. During that crucial time, nobody on the squad could get the ball through the nets, while Boyne City players rarely, missed.

Denise was most devastating as he tossed in three field goals and sank four freethrows for a total of 10 of the Rambler's 20 fourth quarter points.

For Charlevoix, Plumm had 18 points on the evening. Sixteen of those came in the first half as the Boyne players concentrated more of their defense on the talented junior forward during the second half of action.

Following Plumm, Pat Schmidt canned 11 points, Dziedzic helped out with 10 and Joe Left, Schuch and Kratt had 8, 7 and 6 respectively.

The loses last week put Charlevoix at 5-6 in the Michigan-Huron Shores league race and 6-9 on the season. This week's opponents are Onaway at home on St. Valentine's Day and Petoskey at home on Friday. Both teams have handed Charlevoix a loss on the road and Coach Dove Moyer's squad will be looking for revenge.

STEVE SCHUCH went up for the lay up in his move against the St. Ignace Saints. The Rayders lost the heartbreaker by two points.

JVs down Boyne City, lose to St. Ignace Saints

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity split its games last week defeating Boyne City on Friday night and losing a close one ot St. Ignace on Tuesday.

The Rayders defeated intercounty rival Boyne City 55-53 in a come from behind effort. Although the Rayders were never very far behind they started out with a two-point deficit in the first period with a score of 16-14. By half time the score was 33-30. And at the end of the third period it was 44-41.

However the Rayders out shot the Ramblers in the final period, adding 14 points to their score while the Ramblers in the final period, could only hit the basket for nine points.

Top scorers in the game for the Rayders were Scott Morgan with 15 points and Girard Doan with 10 points.

In the Charlevoix-St. Ignace game, the Rayders started out with a two-point lead in the first period at a 14-12 score, but the team fell behind at the half to trail by two points, 30-28.

In the third period the Saints pumped in 16 points to the Rayders 12 as the score jumped to 46-40 in favor of the Saints and in the final period the Rayders hit the basket for 10 points while the Saints only pumped nine more points in. However it was not enough and the Saints won the game by five points.

Top scorers in the Rayder-Saints game was John Grooters with 14 points and Morgan with 12. Ken Otinanowski had 8 points.

Volleyball team splits games with Boyne, E.J.

The Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team split two games last week as they faced East Jordan and Boyne City.

The Rayder varsity squad had to go five games Monday against East Jordan before it could defeat the squad. The Rayders lost the first game to the Red Devils 15-10 but bounced back to take the next game 15-10. The third game went to East Jordan, 15-8 and then the Rayders took the next two games 15-5 and 15-4.

On Thursday, the Rayders met their other intercounty rivals, Boyne City Ramblers. The Rayders started off well taking the first game 15-13.

But the Ramblers came back to take the next three games 15-10, 15-12 and 15-6.

The junior varsity squad took both of its matches defeating East Jordan handily in three games, 15-12, 15-13 and 15-2.

The Boyne City match was just as easy for the Rayders as they whipped the Ramblers 15-0, 15-10 and 15-6.

First State defeats Alray in double OT

First State Bank won a squeaker against Alray Cottages during Charlevoix Recreation Department B League play last week. And it took a double overtime to do it.

First State won the game in a come from behind effort. Alray held a slim two-point lead in the first quarter which increased to a 30-20 halftime score. In the third period, Alray was still ahead 39-27 at the end of the third period, but First State came back to tie the score at 47 all in the fourth quarter.

The first overtime ended at a 55-55 score with First State finally winning 62-61.

Top scorers for First State Bank were Joe Beaudoin with 18 points, and Butch Wagner and Roger Gowell with 11 points. Sam Supernaw dumped in six points during the overtime periods.

For Alray, Dave Martinchek had 20 points, Scott Blanchard 17, and Vince Left, 12.

Tri-City Asphalt defeated Medusa 61-30. Tri-City opened the game with a 16-9 lead which jumped to 39-15 by halftime. In the third period the score was 47-24.

For Tri-City, Butch Klooster had 18 points, Dave Norton, 12, Leroy Buchanan, 10, and Mike Crain, 11.

Jerry Pease had 8 points for Medusa.

County State Bank defeated Wojan Aluminum 58-51. Wojan took the lead 16-15 in the first period but fell behind 34-27 at the half. By the third quarter, County State Bank was ahead 46-38.

High pointmen for County State Bank were Larry Potter, 15, Steve Martinus, 11 and Larry Skippergosh, 11.

For Wojan, Don Ward had 25 points and Stan Martin had 18 points.

HOW DO you make pizza? Well first you start with an apron, Jim Withers, owner of Village Inn Pizza in Charlevoix, explained to first grader Mike Stargardt. Mike was one of eight students in the Program for Academically Talented children that participated in the pizza making adventure last week.

THEN YOU mix up the dough until it is at the right consistency, Withers explained as Mitch Hough, Lara Stargardt and Masako Regier listen.

"THROWING THE pizza isn't so hard," Withers continued as Masako Regier watched in wide-eyed amazement. "It just takes a twist of the wrist

So, thats-a how you make-a-da pizza pie

It was exciting. It was an adventure. And to top it all off, it was a learning experience.

For eight Charlevoix Elementary School students, a visit to the Village Inn Pizza restaurant last week was the highlight of their day. The students are a part of the elementary school's new Program for the Academically Talented.

Under the direction of Barbara Christensen, the program is designed to provide enrichment opportunities and additional experiences for the exceptionally academically gifted child.

The program has been in operation for three weeks and has 17 students in it from the first through fifth grades which is about 3 percent of the student population at the elementary school. Students were nominated for the program by their parents and other teachers.

Miss Christensen said the students had been visiting different people in the community and learning about various topics from them. The students had mentioned learning how to make pizzas and Jim Withers, owner of VIP, agreed to demonstrate.

But, it wasn't all fun and games. After the students learned how to make pizzas, they then returned to the school to write and draw about their experiences, furthering their language arts skills.

SO THAD Morgan decided to try his hand at it while Lara and Mike Stargardt watched. Throwing it up in the air wasn't so hard...

BUT, CATCHING it sure was Thad found out. Never mind, there was plenty of dough left...

Central dispatch has advantages for police, sheriff departments

A lot of talk has been flying around Northern Michigan about disbanding and consolidating various police departments.

The City of Grayling is taking steps to disband its police force because the city can no longer afford to foot the bill for the department's salaries and expenses.

Talk of disbanding the police department and consolidating forces with the Charlevoix County sheriff's department is also being heard among Charlevoix city officials. The common council voted recently to look into consolidating the police force with the sheriff's department and to talk with representatives of each unit about the idea.

The city has been negotiating with the patrolmen for more than a year and still hasn't come to an agreement on salaries and fringe benefits.

And while neither City Police Chief Jack Mol nor Sheriff George Lasater will discuss the disbanding of the city police department or the consolidation of the two forces, both agree there may be some things that could be combined to the benefit of both units.

And representatives of police and sheriff's departments in a handful of counties across the state agree and have already taken steps to consolidate the communications operations of the two departments into a central dispatch unit. In neighboring Grand Traverse County, for instance, a new central dispatch center has been in operation since Jan. 4.

The Traverse Bay Area Communications Center, located in the Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Department, operates as the dispatcher for the sheriff, the county fire department, state police, ambulance services, Traverse City police and the city Department of Public Works.

The dispatchers at the center also monitor the citizens band (CB) radio emergency channel and with the aid of television monitors they can also watch the county jail.

All of the calls for these various departments come into the communications center via the same telephone number, 941-9111. Eventually, Grand Traverse residents will merely have to dial 911 for any emergency call.

"Acceptance of the new number has been slow, but our calls are picking up," Jack Bensley, county emergency services director and administrative coordinator for the dispatch center, said.

"We were in operation five days when we had our first bad snow storm of the year and then we had two weeks rest before the second storm blew in.

"During two days of the second storm we handled 2,000 emergency phone calls on seven telephones. For the week we had 4,217 calls and 2,320 lein messages."

Bensley said there are some definite advantages to the new system.

"People only have one telephone number they will have to remember in case of an emergency," he pointed out. "And the response time for emergencies is better because of the centralized dispatch."

The dispatchers keep track of where all the police vehicles are in the county and they send the closest vehicle to the emergency caller, no matter which department it is from, Bensely said.

"A centralized dispatch provides better service for the people, that's it's greatest advantage," he said.

Bensley said most of the problems of the center are based on politics.

"When you starty talking about central communications, you start talking politics," the coordinator said. "Both the sheriff and the police think they are giving up the world, but they don't really.

"They give up a little autonomy, but they still have control over their own men."

The Traverse Bay center is set up as a separate legal identity with a five-member board made up of a city commissioner, a county commissioner, a state police representative, the city manager and Bensley. The board makes all operating decisions and spends the $130,000 budget supplied by the county through taxes.

The center got its start through a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) with the federal government paying 95 percent of the grant and the county matching with 5 percent. Under the grant, dispatching equipment, mobile units, portable units and chargers and vehicle repeaters were purchased according to specifications designed by the sheriff and chief of police.

"Our center looks a little bit like "Star Wars," Bensley said. "But we got the equipment that the two men wanted."

Bensley said the police and sheriff decided to go with the new centralized dispatch because they both needed new equipment. The LEAA said it would give them both a grant if they agreed to centralize the operation.

"The state has mandated that all counties will have to switch to a 911 number by 1982 anyway," Bensely said. "I suggest that counties look into a centralized system now, because the time will come when they will have to have it anyway."

DEBBIE FILTER, a dispatcher in the Traverse Bay Communications Center, works on one of her reports. Over her head are the television monitors used to observe the county jail.

Local Boy Scouts celebrate group's 68th anniversary

Boy Scout Troop 11 observed the 68th anniversary of Scouting recently at the annual Boy Scout banquet held at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria. The event was attended the Scouts of the troop, their parents, their adult leaders and advisors and members of the sponsoring organization, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Larry Anders of Petoskey, one of the Charlevoix's Eagle Scouts, as guest speaker, spoke on the subject "Scouting...Who Needs it?" In which he told of the advantages of Scouting and what it means to a Scout.

Kevin Whitley, Senior Patrol Leader, as master of ceremonies, introduced Scoutmaster Louis Edwards who presented perfect attendance awards to Kevin Whitley for three years perfect attendance; Willie Ranger and Paul Stangis, two years and Dan Day and Mike Paul, one year. Badges of Office were presented by Scoutmaster Edwards and Assistant Scoutmaster John Houting.

Skill awards were presented by Greg Wojan and Steve Schuch to David Buday who received camping, hiking, first aid and swimming awards; Dan Buday, camping, first aid and citizenship; Paul Stangis, camping, hiking and first aid; Jim Landon, camping and citizenship; Tim May, physical fitness, camping and first aid; Mike Paul, camping and family living and Willie Ranger, physical fitness.

Merit badges were presented to the following by Jerry Paul and Frank Schuch of the Scout committee: Kevin Whitley, swimming, canoeing, orienteering and emergency preparedness; James Duke, canoeing, lifesaving, rowing and orienteering; David Buday, swimming, canoeing and orienteering; Tim May, swimming, canoeing and rowing; Jim Landon, swimming, canoeing and rowing; Paul Stangis, basketry and orienteering and Dan Buday, basketry.

The Scout rank was bestowed by Mr. Edwards and Mr. Houting on James Works, Matt Landon, Lee Allard and Jeff Novotny; the Tenderfoot rank by Arthur Ranger of the Scout Committee, on Jim Landon and Dan Buday; Second Class rank by Valois Avery on Tim May, Paul Stangis, David Buday and Mike Paul.

The color guard was composed of Tim May, Mike Paul, Gerald Zeitler, Paul Stangis and Jim Works.

Other members of Troop 11 are Patrick Avery and Shane Wade; other members of the Scout Committee are Gunnar Lundteigen and David Novotny; Jeffrey Mays made the one year pin presentation; Mitch Martin is a member of the leadership corps with Kevin Whitley and Steve Schuch.

The Scout troop and committee expressed its appreciation to Oleson's Food Store and the Kiwanis Club for making the banquet possible.

Budget assistant to address council of social agencies

The deputy director of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget will address the Charlevoix County Council of Social Agencies next week.

William Nugent will discuss the budgeting process with members of the council and interested area citizens at noon Feb. 24 at the Weathervane Inn.

Nugent, who was appointed to his position in 1975, is responsible for the budgrt und programs functions including criminal justice programs, health and medical affairs and the budget.

Before being oppointed to the budget office, Nugent was a special assistant to Gov. William Milliken and the director of Michigan's Washington D.C. office. Prior to joining the governor's staff, Nugent represented Detroit in Washington D.C. for two years.

For reservations for the meeting contact Suzanne M. Wickert, 547-4471.

La Leche League plans meeting

"The Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby," will be the topic at the Charlevoix La Leche League February meeting.

The lecture will be the first in a series of four monthly discussion meetings which offer both information and encouragement about breastfeeding to interested women. Nursing babies are always welcome at the meetings.

Pregnant women usually find it quite helpful to attend one series of meetings before their baby is born, Jenny Bellairs, a member of the league, said. The meeting discussions include the latest medical research as well as personal experience. Other services include a lending library of books on childbirth, child care and breastfeeding.

The league has changed the date it meets to the third Tuesday of the month. This month's meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 21 at the home of Mrs. Connie Bradley, 1000 May St., Charlevoix.

For further information contact Mrs. Bellairs at 547-8255.

25 band members qualify for state

The halls of Charlevoix High School are filled with music and with top flight musicians.

Charlevoix High School will be represented by 25 musicians at the state Solo and Ensemble competition April 1. Band director Gary Stutzman said eight soloists, five duets and three ensembles will attend the state festival sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

The students qualified for the state festival by placing first in the Northern Michigan District II solo and ensemble competition held recently at Indian River. The Charlevoix students competed against musicians from Boyne City, East Jordan, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Gaylord, Cheboygan, Mackinaw City, Inland Lakes, Rogers City and Posen high schools.

The soloists who will be attending the state competition and their instruments are: Laura Dziedzic, flute; Darlene Smalley, and Steve Landon, oboe; Joan Cook, clarinet; Lorri Paul, alto sax; Kris Fiedler, cornet; and Jeff Wellman and John Crinnion, snare drum.

Students playing in duets who will be attending the state meet and their instruments are: Su Simmerman and Mary Horton, flute; Sue Simmerman and Mary Horton, oboe-flute; Lori Schorsch and Becky Allard, bass-clarinet; Kris Fiedler and Jean Lenhart, cornet; and John Crinnion and Dave Boal, drum.

Students participating in ensembles in the state competition and their instruments are: Aimee Elzinga, Don Sonnenberg, Dori Olach and Mike Klama, brass quartet; Dave Taylor, Kathy Cook, Kerry Speer and Lisa Flower, sax quartet; Joan Cook, Janeen Boal, Debbie Batdorff and Becky Juilleret, clarinet quartet.

Other students who placed in the District II competition, but who will not be participating in the state competition were: soloists, Debbie Lenhart, flute; Darlene Manville, clarinet; and Sheri Cook, cornet.

The duets were Debbie Shores and Mary Hooker, Debbie Lenhart and Laura Zaremba and Penny Kane and Debby Potter, all on flute; Dori Olach and Mike Klama, Sue Smith and Teresa Noirot, and Beth Carey and Shari Gibbs, cornet; Joel Schnackenberg and Tim Shupert, flute-clarinet; and Teresa Noirot and Sue Smith, cornet.

The ensembles were Sue Smith, Teresa Noirot and Shari Gibbs, cornet trio.

Band boosters participate in Glen's Save and Share program

The Charlevoix Band Boosters will be participating in the Share & Save project offered by Glen's Market Mrs. Nell Jones, president of the group, has annnunced.

Under the project, sales slips from the store are saved and turned in for cash. The Bank Boosters are asking patrons of the store to keep their sales slips and turn them in to the organization so they may be used to support the band program at the public schools.

The sales slips may be turned in to any band member or at the the band room at either the middle school or the high school.

"Each sales slip, by itself, doesn't seem like much but if the enitre community will cooperate, it is really worth while" Mrs. Jones said in asking the cooperation of the community.

Sorority plans fluoride program

"Look ma, no cavities," may be heard a little more often around Charlevoix County thanks to Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Once again this year the sorority will be sponsoring fluoride treatments for Charlevoix County youth. The treatments are for children who don't have fluoridated water.

Janet Freidinger, chairman of the committee arranging the treatments, explained that the program, which is supervised by the Michigan Department of Public Health, will be made available to certain preschoolers, second, fifth and eighth grade students and to children with special cases who are referred by dentists.

Parents of eligible children in Charlevoix County will be notified about the program at a later date and be given the opportunity to enroll their children in it.

The fluoride program consists of four visits to the clinic. The child's teeth are cleaned on the first visit and a fluoride solution is applied directly to the surfaces of the teeth. The fluoride application is then repeated during the next three visits.

The technique has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about 40 percent, compared to 60-65 percent reduction with fluoridated water.

Masons take second win in annual cribbage tourney

The Masons came through with another 270 points in the annual cribbage tournament last week to trim the Odd-Fellows' lead to 964 points.

Gerald Johnson had 963 points for the Masons and A.D. Cunningham 965 for the Odd Fellows.

Seven and one-half tables were in play. This week the action will move to the American Legion post home.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

FEBRUARY 6, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Morris, Wood, Whitley, and Wallace. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Wallace that the first sentence in the sixth paragraph of the January 23, 1978 Council Meeting Minutes be corrected to read "Council discussed dedicating the roadway running north from U.S. 31 then east to Martin Road as a public thoroughfare." Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Morris, Wood, Whitley, and Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

The Minutes of the January 23, 1978 Council Meeting were approved as corrected.

John Michael of the Charlevoix Charter Commission appeared before Council to answer any questions from Council members regarding the third revision of the proposed Charter. Mr. Michaels also requested that Council pass a Resolution approving the Commission's proposed wording of the ballot to be used in the election on the Charter question in the April General Election.

Moved by Alderman Wallace and supported by Alderman Morris that the City accept the wording on the ballot for the Charter Commission Election to be held with the General Election, April 3, 1978. Roll call vote was as follows: Yeas: Aldermen Morris, Wood, and Wallace. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

Immediately following the vote, Alderman Whitley stated that he questioned if the Motion had passed or if four affirmative votes were necessary to pass a motion of this nature. Later in the meeting, City Attorney, Donald Berlage, stated that, according to MSA 5.1703, the Motion had failed. Mr. Michaels suggested that this particular subject may be covered in the Election Law Statutes, which he would research, but that he would accept the City Attorney's decision for the present time.

Gordon Van Wiernen, representing the Charlevoix Board of Education, appeared before Council to request the City's support in the Board's plan to develop an Environmental Education Program at the school-owned lighthouse property on Beaver Island.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Wallace and supported by Alderman Wood.

RESOLUTION 78-2-1

WHEREAS, the Charlevoix Public School has made application for financial assistance to develop an Environmental Education Program at the former lighthouse on Beaver Island, and,

WHEREAS, the City deems that the proposed project is in the best interest of the area school district and a needed aid to education.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Charlevoix City Council gives its full support to the proposed project.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Morris, Wood, Whitley, and Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

An application for a SDM license by Crown Drug Center, Inc. to be located at Captain's Corner Shopping Center, was discussed and Council determined to turn the matter over to the Chief of Police for his report.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Wallace and supported by Alderman Wood.

RESOLUTION 78-2-2

BE IT RESOLVED by the City Council of the City of Charlevoix,

THAT Alice Tunison, Coordinator, Charlevoix County Emergency Services is hereby authorized to execute for and in behalf of the City of Charlevoix, a public entity established under the laws of the State of Michigan, this application and to file it in the appropriate State office for the purpose of obtaining certain Federal financial assistance under the Disaster Relief Act (Public Law 288, 93rd Congress) or otherwise available from the President's Disaster Relief Fund.

THAT the City of Charlevoix, a public entity established under the laws of the State of Michigan hereby authorizes its agent to provide to the State and to the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for all matters pertaining to such Federal disaster assistance and assurances and agreements printed on the reverse side hereof.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Morris, Wood, Whitley, and Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

Council discussed the question of responsibility for payment of taxes assessed on the City-owned building leased by the Beaver Island Boat Company. Mayor Hansen stated that the property had been placed on the tax roll two years ago but that the Boat Company's lease does not cover the payment of taxes and that they are currently delinquent.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $117,414.24 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Wallace that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Morris, Wood, Whitley, and Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Plumm and Erber.

Council adjourned.
Judy D. Przybylski,
City Clerk

OUR PRAYERS ARE ALWAYS SUBJECT TO GOD'S WISDOM

Beginning with childhood, most of us have had the disturbing experience of praying for some specific object or occurrence, only to be keenly disappointed when our prayers were not answered. In the course of our lives, the repetition of such incidents can result in a gradual erosion of faith, and yet in each case the fault lies with us, because of our erroneous assumption that we always know what is best for us and therefore that our judgment is superior to that of the Almighty. On the other hand, we should not attempt to inform God of our genuine needs and problems, for He is already aware of them. At the Church of your choice you will learn that the right way to pray is to thank God for your many blessings and affirm your faith in His infinite wisdom.

When praying, don't give God instructions: just report for duty.

REACT donates CBs to school system for use in buses

"What's your 10-20, good buddy?" may soon be a common phrase aboard a Charlevoix School District bus.

Northwest REACT (Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Team) No. 3433, presented 13 citizens band radios and seven antennas to the school district for use in the school buses last week.

The local REACT group began collecting funds from area businesses and private citizens for the CB radios in November as a way of celebrating National REACT Month.

Gregory Seese, president of the group, explained that there has been a long-time need for communication systems for school buses that travel isolated areas of the school district in all types of weather. The school district has not been in a financial position to purchase the radios, however, so REACT decided to help.

"This is something we've needed for a long time," Vince Olach, business manager for the school, explained. "It will help us in keeping track of buses in bad weather."

Olach said the school system would be installing the radios in the buses on slide mounts so that they can be easily removed when the buses aren't in use.

A special training program on the use of CB radios will also be held for the bus drivers. Olach said the radios would only be used in emergencies. Channel 9, the emergency channel, is monitored by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department around the clock and by members of REACT.

Seese said the REACT members are still seeking funds to purchase the remaining six antennas needed for the radios. Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund drive may send checks to: REACT, Route No. 2, Box 112 A, Charlevoix, 49720.

Businesses and private citizens who have already contributed toward the purchase of CB radios and antennas are: Haggards Bath and Bed Shop, Mettler's By the Bay, Fran Milner, Carey Boot Shop, Townhouse, Ski and Shore Properties of Charlevoix, Colwell and Company, Mardeans, Helen's Beauty Shoppe, Corhin Real Estate, Woodrow Wilson, Butch Frye, D.M. Spice up winter with courses

Spice up your winter with gourmet cooking ideas. Or shake up your family with a new figure, or, learn more about the role additives play in food.

Charlevoix and Emmet county residents are invited to learn more about these topics by attending a series of "Food and You" programs sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

The first session will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday at the United Methodist Church, 324 S. Park St. in Boyne City. The program consists of lectures on food additives by Dr. Kathy Kalossa, food science department, MSU, and weight control by Julie Michael, Emmet County extension home economist.

Steve and Margie Bartha of Natural Harmony Restaurant in Harbor Springs will discuss gourmet delights and the food science students in the Petoskey High School food service education program will discuss herbs and spices in meat cookery.

Registration for the program begins at 9:30 a.m. A $1 fee will be charged. Participants are asked to bring a sack lunch. Coffee will be furnished.

The program is open to all interested people. For more information contact Marlene Caszatt, Charlevoix County extension home economist, 582-6232, or Julie Michael, 347-2596.

Engaged

Goss-Bascom

The engagement of Mari Jo Goss to J.C. Bascom has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Robert E. Goss.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. S. A. Bascom and the late Mr. Bascom.

Both are graduates of the Charlevoix High School. The bride-elect is a graduate of Central Michigan University with a B.S. degree in Education. She is presently teaching in the Boyne City Elementary School. Bascom is presently employed at Site Planning and Development of Charlevoix.

The wedding will be an event of May 27 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

RUSSELL AND SUE Bolt discuss a career education program about artists with Gail Wiemer, coordinator of the program for the Char-Em school district. The Bolts are two of several area artists who will be featured in the program.

Area artists featured in career education program

By GAY DAMMANN

Several area artists will be the focus of a career education project – Arts in Education – conducted by the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District and the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

A $2,500 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts is enabling the Char-Em District and Crooked Tree Arts Council to initiate a program to bring successful area artists into the schools and to develop four film strips on these artists at work.

The emphasis of the project is to offer students an opportunity to consider art as a career and to see working artists "in their life roles as workers, part of a family, at leisure and in the community," according to Gail Wiemer, curriculum consultant for the Char-Em District.

Charlevoix artists Todd Warner and Russel and Sue Bolt, East Jordan jewelry designer Linda-Beers Aydlott, and Petoskey artists and art teacher Doug Melvin were selected as the subjects of the film strip project.

These artists will also visit area schools to demonstrate their varied work and discuss art as a career.

"Because this area is unique in having so many successful artists," observes Jan Nagel, administrative assistant at Crooked Tree Arts Council, "it is pertinent to discuss art as a career for young people."

Each of the film strips, which will be produced over the next several months, will have a slightly different emphasis, according to Wiemer.

Todd Warner, as a creator of whimsical ceramic creatures which are sold all over the country, will be shown as an artist and as a businessman marketing his product.

"And along with that," adds Warner, "we'll show how artists can be family people and people involved in the community. We'll show that artists are not isolated, that they function in society."

The Bolts, Russell and Sue, and their three children will be highlighted in another film strip. Each of the Bolts will be photographed at their own work: Sue as a printmaker; Russell as a water colorist; daughter Lori as a fabric designer; son Russell as a leather worker; and son Bobby as a creator of ceramic model cities. Sue and Russell will also be filmed at work together on their well-known ceramics.

Jewelry designer Linda Beers Aydlott and her husband, Jerry's, film strip will focus on a younger couple with a newborn baby, both as artists and as a family.

Doug Melvin's work as art instructor at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey and as a creative artist in his own right, will demonstrate another career avenue in the arts.

The completed film strips will be in the Char-Em media resource library for distribution throughout the various school districts.

Mrs. Wiemer predicts, "these artists will then become valuable resource persons for the art teachers in the area, as well as career models for students in the arts."

Superintendent of the Char-Em District, Jim Shepard, says he welcomes the project because "with everything we have in Northern Michigan, we haven't tapped the art resources we could."

Shepard explains that in addition to the direct grant of $2,500 from Michigan Council for the Arts, the Char-Em District and Crooked Tree Arts Council are providing a matching amount in both funds and in-kind services to complete the project.

TODD WARNER demonstrates one of the puppets he has designed at his Charlevoix area studio. Warner is one of several area artists featured in a career education program sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council and the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District.

PUBLIC NOTICE CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Section 1. Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, being Sections 211.1 to 211.157 of the Compiled Laws of 1948, is amended by adding Section 34a to read as follows:

Sec. 34a. The equalization director of each county shall prepare a tabular statement each year by the several cities and townships of the county, showing the tentative recommended equalization ratios and estimated multipliers necessary to compute individual state equalized valuation of real property and of personal property. The county shall publish the tabulation in a newspaper of general circulation within the county on or before the third Monday in February each year and furnish a copy to each of the boards of review in the county and to the state tax commission. All notices of meeting of the boards of review shall give the tentative ratios and estimated multipliers pertaining to their jurisdiction. The tentative recommended equalization ratios and multiplying figures shall not prejudice the equalization procedures of the county, board of commissioners or the state tax commission.

Obituary

Doris B. Ochs

Funeral services for Mrs. Doris B. Ochs, 65, who died Thursday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a patient for two weeks, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Boyne City March 5, 1912, the former Doris B. Solomon came to Charlevoix with her parents in 1914. She was graduated from the Charlevoix High School. In February 1945 she was married to G. Franklin Ochs at Waukegan, Ill. They always made their home here. She was a member of the First Congregational Church and its Mary Burns Circle.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Micheal (Virginia) Walton and a son, John F., both of Kalamazoo; two grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Harold (Ruth) Withers of Charlevoix and Mrs. Edward (Virginia) Sobleskey of Petoskey and one brother, Leon Solomon of Port Huron.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Och's memory contribute in her name to the American Cancer Society or the charity of their choice.

THE CHARLEVOIX High School ski team split its meet again this week with the girls losing by a close three points.

Rayder skiers split meets again

A cross country ski race will be held Sunday in Petoskey by the Bill Koch League.

Racers will meet at 1 p.m. at Dr. Tom Depuydt's house at 54 Greenfield Ave. in Parkview Estates. The race will be run on a course near Blackbird Road and will begin at 1 p.m. and last until the presentation of awards.

All racers must preregister at LeCycliste Ski Shop in the Woodland Mall in Petoskey before 5 p.m. Saturday. There is no fee for the race.

There will be six competitive classes with one for boys and girls age 9 and under, boys and girls ages 10-11 years and boys and girls ages 12-13 years.

It is suggested that the racers bring refreshments such as orange slices, lemonade, hot chocolate or other things that will refresh a tired racer.

Also, anyone with stopwatches, clipboards, paper, pencils or magic markers is urged to bring the items to the race.

Anyone interested in volunteering to work on the race should call Bill Prall, 347-2261, Tom Depuydt, 347-2261, or Gary Hice, 547-4471.

Courier Sports

THE RAYDER ski team will be participating in the regional meet at 9 a.m. Friday at Thunder Mountain. Winners in this meet will go to the state finals.

Cross country race set for youth

The Rayder ski team split its meet again this week with the girls squad just being squeaked out by three points.

The boys defeated the Gaylord squad 28-48 at Nub's Nob Thursday. Erik Lundteigen took first place in both the slalom and giant slalom races. Placing second in the slalom was Mark Lignell, Jeff Wilber of Gaylord was in third and Greg Krueger was in fourth place.

In the giant slalom, Dan Samalie of Gaylord took second with Lignell finishing third and Krueger fourth.

In the girls race Gaylord won 35-38. Taking first place in the slalom was Debbie Johnstone of Gaylord with Debbie Fochtman placing second, Corinne Ranger third and Liz Morris fifth.

In the giant slalom, Laura Engel of Gaylord took first and Janet Kaiser of Gaylord took second. In third and fourth places were Miss Ranger and Miss Fochtman.

The Rayders will meet Harbor at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Nub's Nob and will participate in the regional meet at 9 a.m. Friday at Thunder Mountain.

Supernaw defeats Hansen in primary race

Sam Supernaw

In a clean sweep, Charlevoix voters changed the leadership of the city Monday.

Voters ousted every incumbent common council and mayoral candidate during the primary election for city offices that saw electors cast a record 500 absentee ballots as 55 percent of the registered voters participated in the election.

Winning the Republican nomination for the mayoral seat was Sam Supernaw, while Jeffrey Porter took the First Ward alderman nomination, Lawrence "Stub" Swanson, the Second Ward nomination, and Earl Muma, the Third Ward nomination.

Since there were no Democratic nominees for the various city offices, the candidates' names will appear on the April 3 General Election ballot unopposed. However, write-in campaigns may be conducted.

Mayor Edward Hansen won re-election to his seat two years ago by waging a write-in campaign during the spring general election after losing the primary race to Ralph McRae, First Ward alderman.

Former First Ward alderman Supernaw upset incumbent Mayor Hansen by a 3 to 2 margin in Monday's primary race. City voters cast 832 ballots for Supernaw while casting only 561 ballots for Mayor Hansen.

Supernaw received 230 votes in the First Ward, 158 votes in the Second Ward and 191 votes in the Third Ward on the voting machines. The mayoral challenger received 119 absentee ballot votes in the First Ward, 44 in the Second Ward and 90 in the Third Ward.

Mayor Hansen received 58 votes in the First Ward, 153 votes in the Second Ward and 138 votes in the Third Ward on the voting machines and 50 absentee ballot votes in the First Ward, 77 in the Second Ward and 85 in the Third Ward. He has served as mayor for six years.

"The people have spoken," Supernaw said about his victory on election night. "It's time for a change and obviously the voters want a change. I will do everything in my power to represent the people and to bring about these changes.

"Judging by the outcome of the election, the points that I brought up in my campaign are the things that people want changed and I will try to do that.

"I hope to actively work toward the hiring of a competent city administrator and toward getting the utilities and the taxes back in line."

Mayor Hansen said he did not plan to run a write-in campaign during the spring election.

"The people have their right to vote the way they want and they have done that," Hansen said.

"I said earlier that there was no way any candidate could survive this charter fight and that's exactly what happened, they voted everyone out.

"I lowered the taxes the lowest they have ever been and got voted out of office. That ought to tell you something."

In the races for alderman, Porter received 217 machine votes and 130 absentee ballot votes for a total of 347 votes to capture the nomination for the First Ward seat currently held by Susan Erber. Mrs. Erber decided not to seek re-election.

Porter's opponent, Richard Hodgson, received 76 machine votes and 36 absentee ballot votes for a total of 112 votes in the election.

Porter, who won election to a seat on the Charlevoix Charter Commission three years ago, said he was pleased by the outcome of the election in general.

"I think, due to the changes in the council and the mayor that the council will have a lot more input in the planning of city government than it has had in the past and I think that will be a good thing," Porter said.

As far as priorities of the city go now that the primary election is over, Porter would like to see the city adopt a new charter.

"Then I think the mayor and the council should hire a new city administrator and begin some long range planning and develop long range goals for the city," Porter said.

"We've got to stop looking at the trees and start looking at the forest."

In the Second Ward, Swanson upset incumbent Jeannine Wallace by a margin of 131 votes. The victor received 204 machine votes in the primary election and 72 absentee ballot votes for a total of 278.

Mrs. Wallace gathered 99 machine votes and 46 absentee ballot votes for a total of 145 votes.

Swanson said he was a little suprised by the outcome of the Second Ward election, but that he is looking forward to representing his ward on the common council.

In the Third Ward, Muma captured the three-way race by defeating incumbent alderman Joe Morris and challenger Shirley Roloff. Muma received 183 votes, 125 on the machine and 58 absentee ballots, while Mrs. Roloff received 162 votes, 104 on the machines and 58 in absentee ballots and Morris received 157 votes, 96 on the machines and 61 in absentee ballots.

Muma said he appreciated the efforts of the people who worked on his campaign and made his election possible.

"But there isn't anything that anyone can promise anybody that they'll do on council," the candidate stressed. "It's going to take the combined new council and mayor to get things done and I just hope that we can serve the people.

"If there's anything that anybody ever wants to bring up at the council the telephone numbers at the garage and at my home are always available."

Senior housing program suffers another setback

The Charlevoix senior citizen housing program has suffered yet another setback, according to Charlevoix Housing Commission members.

Federal funds for the construction of senior housing are not being released at this time, Marge Dinwiddie, housing commission member, said.

"The government seems to be favoring low income housing and the funds are being directed toward these projects at this time," Mrs. Dinwiddie explained. "The funds for senior housing seem to be in a holding pattern."

She said the housing commission had been informed of the situation by Richard Wiggins, coordinator and developer, who is working with the housing commission to get a senior citizen housing complex constructed in the city.

"What this means is that senior citizens will have to wait a little bit longer before they can have housing in Charlevoix," the commission member said.

The housing commission has been working on plans for the senior citizen housing complex since 1974, when it was founded.

The commission recently decided to ask Wiggins to act as its developer for the project after other attempts with other developers failed. Wiggins has a good track record as far as getting federal and state funds for the construction of senior housing complexes is concerned and the commissioners were hopeful that he would be able to get the housing project off the ground.

The commission had hoped to get the project under construction during the summer of 1976. The commission and the developer it was working with had found a piece of property in the city that met all of the requirements of the funding agencies and were in the process of getting the site approved for construction when the funding laws changed and the project had to be dumped.

Tax Money Goes to Wrong Place

In the past week's Courier the pictures of the Pizza pie dough being thrown up in the air like that, sweeping cobwebs off the ceiling, wowed us. We think that is silly, very silly, teaching children such things. It is no wonder they come out of some schools with such poor educations that they cannot even read properly. I wouldn't say anything even if the students were taught to stand on their heads if we didn't have to pay such exhorbitant school taxes.

Here we need waterfronts and parks cleaned up, sidewalks repaired and other work done for which more tax money would be available but no, the schools have to gobble it all up then what have we? Kids being taught to throw good food material around and Lord knows what other nonsensical things are taught in some schools.

I'm not trying to talk down what the City Crews are doing. They keep busy and do good work but, if more tax money was available more men could be working, more needed work would be done, etc.

More on Boat Company

This is in answer to a Hotline article in a previous paper about the Beaver Island moving to Petoskey, where this person said he came up with "something good" such as moving the Beaver Islander to Petoskey. He said the boat dock was an eyesore because of the cargo on the docks. Well, this so-called cargo he has seen is called food which the islanders otherwise could not live without. It is there only during the boat departure time until it is loaded. Any other cargo he has seen is not the boat company's. Also, he said that only a few people benefit by the Beaver Island Boat dock. I worked at the boat dock for 2 years and if anyone benefits by the boat company, it is Charlevoix. Thousands, and I mean literally thousands, use the Islander each year. I pointed out to them the different restaurants and gift shops and so on, in Charlevoix, which these people wouldn't ordinarily be going to if they weren't waiting to go to Beaver Island. Maybe the Beaver Island Boat Co. should move to Petoskey and let all the summer people pass Charlevoix by on their way to the dock in Petoskey.

Two new condominium projects proposed for construction in city

Variance-requests for the development of two new condominiums in Charlevoix were heard by the Zoning Board of Appeals Monday night.

No action was taken by the board of appeals, which is made up of all the members of the Charlevoix Common Council and Mayor Edward Hansen, on either of the requests because the appeals board wanted more time to study the proposals.

The board members said they would take action on the variance requests in two weeks.

The first set of variance requests was made by Ralph Bergsma for the construction of a condominium unit on a lot on Park Avenue currently owned by Charlie Taylor. The lot abuts Bob Miles' property.

The condominium, to be called Captain's Watch, would include 18 units—12 two-bedroom units and six three-bedroom units. Construction plans also call for a set of enclosed garages made of a wood construction.

The proposed new 18-unit condominium would sit back from Park Avenue on the bluff of the Pine River Channel. The condo be in approximate line with the Sand Castle condominium, which is also located on the bluff.

In order to construct the proposed unit, Bergsma needs a 28 foot setback variance on the east side and a 38 foot setback variance on the west side of the lot. He also needs a heighth variance. The proposed building is 35 feet 4 inches from the ground to the highest point and the ordinance limits the height of buildings to 35 feet.

Bergsma said he also needs a variance on the amount of parking spaces required for the unit. In order to preserve some of the existing trees on the lot, he took out two parking spaces, reducing the number from the required 45 spaces to 43.

In the second variance request, Ron Steffes appeared before the board seeking approval for the development of an eight-unit condominium called Belvedere Apartments on Belvedere Avenue next to the Wharf Condominium.

In order to construct the four three-bedroom and four two-bedroom units that includes indoor recreation facilities and swimming pool, Steffes requested a height variance to allow the building to be 43 feet high at the gabled peaks of the roof and to allow a front yard setback.

Several neighbors living on the bluff on the south side of Belvedere Avenue opposed the development because it would obstruct their view.

Morning Light

SLOWLY THE WORLD awakes, opening sleepy eyes to the brilliant rays of the sun as they spill down on the earth creeping through tree branches and around roof tops slowly gathering force until it's light and another day begins.

School bus drivers honored for records

The Charlevoix school bus drivers are some of the safest drivers around and they've got the records to prove it.

The school district honored 14 drivers recently for completing a total of 79 years of safe driving. And that means driving an entire year, or even several years without any accidents and that includes the most minor ones, too.

"Even if they are backing out of the school bus garage and they knock a rear view mirror off, that's counted as an accident," Vince Olach, school district business manager, explained.

"We had one driver who had a seven year perfect record and somebody ran through a stop sign and slid into her. Even though it wasn't her fault, that counts as an accident on her record and she has to start her perfect driving record all over again."

Olach said the Charlevoix School District was one of the few districts that honored its bus drivers for safe driving records. The business manager said the state urges school districts to come up with programs honoring the drivers.

"One of the bus manufacturers supplies the patches for us at no charge and we honor the drivers once a year," he said.

The drivers honored for one year of safe driving were: Peg Thorpe, George Tompkins, John Murawski and John Golovich.

Ray Browe was honored for four years of accident free driving while Lawrence Hull and Eldon Potter were both honored for five years of safe driving.

Pat Smalley received an award for seven years of accident free driving and Bud Heeres, bus superintendent, and Gordon Wolgamott were each honored for eight continuous years of safe driving.

In the nine year category were: Harold DeYoung, Beverly Sladek and Angel Bearss and Al Thorpe has driven school buses 11 continuous years without an accident.

Methodist congregation plans evangelistic outreach program

"Four Great Days for God," an evangelistic outreach campaign, will be celebrated by the Charlevoix United Methodist Church Sunday through Wednesday.

The 11 a.m. Sunday worship service will kick off the campaign and feature the message of Rev. Stanley Hayes of the Evart-Avondale circuit of the West Michigan Conference. Rev. Hayes is known in the area, having served the East Jordan-Norwood-Barnard circuit from 1966-1970. He has served as a United Methodist minister for the past 19 years in Michigan.

The worship service will also feature special music by the church choir under the direction of Mrs. Melvyn Thayer. At 7:30 p.m. Sunday, the congregation and guests will gather again for music and inspiration.

Monday and Tuesday evenings, area residents are invited to continue the celebration with special services at 7:30.

Climaxing the campaign will be a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday followed by Rev. Hayes' concluding message and a special dedication service.

All services are being held in the basement of the church on State Street while the sanctuary is being remodeled and redecorated.

World Day of Prayer set March 3 at St. Mary's

The anoual World Day of Prayer sponsored by Church Women United will be held at St. Mary's Church on Friday, March 3, it has been announced following a meeting of representatives of local churches.

The service is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

On this day women of the Christian Countries of the world will meet to pray and meditate on a given subject. This year the topic, chosen by the women of Canada, will be "Community Spirit in Modern Living."

Women from all Charlevoix churches will join to observe this special day of prayer and worship.

An invitation is extended to all women of Charlevoix to join the service.

The Rev. R. Dale Magoon, pastor of St. Mary's church, will present thoughts on the theme for the service and the benediction.

Representing the churches in the area in the service will be Mrs. Vincent Brewster, organist; Sister Lucy Ann and Mrs. C.D. Geiken, St. Mary's church; Mrs. Robert Klooster, soloist, and Mrs. Robert Drenth, Community Reformed Church; Mrs. Agnes Lombard, Church of the Nazarene; Mrs. Herbert Boss, Community Church of God; Mrs. Dawson Way, Assembly of God Church; Mrs. Roger Ames, Christ Episcopal church; Mrs. Joseph Williams, United Methodist Church; Mrs. Floyd Chamberlain, First Congregational church, and Mrs. Benjamin S. Horse woman has hopes for handicapped

By Sara Gay Dammaan

"A horse can provide the legs to take a handicapped child places he can't go in his wheel chair," Marla Hoekwater, riding instructor at Lake Charlevoix Farms, began.

Ms. Hoekwater was talking about a new program she is preparing and hopes to introduce to Charlevoix and Emmet counties — "Therapeutic Riding for the Handicapped."

She has just returned from a four-week intensive training course at the Cheff Center for the Handicapped, in Augusta, Mich., (between Kalamazoo and Battle Creek).

The 4-H Clubs of Charlevoix and Emmet counties awarded Ms. Hoekwater a scholarship to become a Certified Instructor for the Handicapped, so she would be able to begin riding lessons for both physically and mentally impaired people this coming summer.

Last summer she helped the two county's 4-H Clubs organize a six-week riding course for six handicapped people.

Her enthusiasm about initiating a full-scale program in the area was redoubled by her experiences at the Cheff Center, she said. It is the only training center in the United States.

"These children don't have many recreational programs," she pointed out.

"To see a child arrive in a wheel chair, get out of it, and sit on a horse, which can take him places his wheel chair can't go – it's wonderful," her thoughts flowed with excitement.

"And, it is therapy, too.

"The child forgets it is physical therapy. There are no doctors, nurses, nor mommies hovering around. They have fun and work hard.

"Riding improves leg movement and hand movement for example. Riding can help loosen up the stiffness of cerebral palsy.

"It's good for circulation, balance, posture, and coordination," she enumerated.

Talking about people with emotional problems, she recalled: "We saw children who were withdrawn, who wouldn't or couldn't talk, such as autistic children. They became friends with their horses and all of a sudden they began talking to the horses."

Ms. Hoekwater is a firm believer in the benefits handicapped people might derive from a program of therapeutic riding. The handicapped riders, in a program such as she hopes to start, would be encouraged to take responsibility for their horses, saddling and bridling them if they are able, as well as enjoying the riding, she said.

With the help of the school districts, the local 4-H groups and interested individuals who will donate funds and time, and, she hopes, horses, the program will become established.

"One of the things I learned at Cheff Center was how to screen the horses to be sure they are well suited for handicapped riders. "We'll need ponies and average sized horses who are in good shape, gentle, and who are smooth to ride," she explained.

She also became acquainted with special riding equipment necessary for teaching beginning handicapped riders – from special boots and stirrups to safety helmets and body harnesses.

"Safety is our first concern," she emphasized several times.

Ms. Hoekwater, a Boyne City native, has been working with and riding horses since the age of eight. After graduating from high school and attended Potomac Horse Center in Potomac, Maryland, and received a "Horse Masters Certificate."

The course at the Potomac School was devoted to all aspects of horse care, training and riding, with focus on English equitation, dressage, and jumping. The school is accredited by the American Horse Association.

She trained and showed horses in Virginia, Maryland and the Washington, D.C., area, before returning to Michigan.

For the past two years she has been instructing both English and Western riding at Lake Charlevoix Farms. She has trained several of the top young riders in the area and two horses she has been training have been consistant winners in regional shows.

"I will be speaking to groups and doing fund raising now," she said. "I want to get this program for handicapped riders established."

She quickly added that the program for the handicapped will be in addition to her other teaching and training programs.

Asked why she had decided to launch this new effort, she replied:

"It's a thrill for me.

"In many cases children make physical progress overcoming their disabilities while riding. On trail rides they see places they could never have dreamed of going before. I've seen that it can produce a change in their mental attitude.

"And you see children laugh who may never have laughed before."

MARLA HOEKWATER WORKS with her horse as she prepares to start a horseback riding program for handicapped children in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Resident taxpayers must make personal appearance to protest bill

Local taxpayers who want to protest their property taxes must appear in person during the board of review session or send a representative, according to Joan Blanchard, Charlevoix County equalization director.

Mrs. Blanchard said that the Michigan Tax Tribunal dismissed a property tax appeal case because a resident taxpayer was out-of-town during the board of review and had filed his protest by a letter.

According to the September, 1977, decision, only nonresident taxpayers and property owners may file a protest by letter, all other taxpayers must appear in persons at the board of review session or send a representative.

"Many people are under the impression that they can file a letter with the board of review in protest of their taxes instead of appearing in person," Mrs. Blanchard said. "But it is only the nonresident taxpayer who is allowed to do this. All others must make an appearance or send an agent or representative.

The equalization director said the agent or representative could be a relative, neighbor or friend of the taxpayer.

Charlevoix county smokers spend average of $111 yearly on habit

What have Charlevoix County residents been doing lately about their cigarette smoking? Have they cut down? Are they smoking more or less than people in other parts of the country?

These questions come to the fore in the light of a new attack on cigarettes, begun recently by the Government. The campaign, undertaken by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is based upon its contention that people are committing "slow-motion suicide" by smoking. It points to the increase in the number of lung cancer and heart disease deaths.

And, from a dollars and cents standpoint, smoke-induced illnesses have been driving up the nation's health care costs, it states.

According to the findings of the American Cancer Society, many people have "seen the light" and have quit smoking completely. Others have cut down on their consumption.

However, there has been a constant influx of new smokers, mostly teen-agers and women, offsetting these reductions.

In Charlevoix County, cigarettes sales came to approximately 2,680,000 packs in the past year, according to a breakdown of statewide figures released by the Tobacco Tax Council.

Related to the local population over age 16, this was equivalent to 206 packs per capita.

It was less than in some communities and more than in others. Throughout the United States as a whole, by way of comparison, the average was 204 packs. In the East North Central States it was 203.

As outlined by Joseph Califano, the HEW secretary, the anti-smoking campaign will include a major public information and education effort involving an outlay of $23 million a year. In addition, proposals will be made for an increase in the Federal tax on cigarettes.

Objections to the plan have come from health groups, as not being tough enough, and from the industry, as being unrealistic.

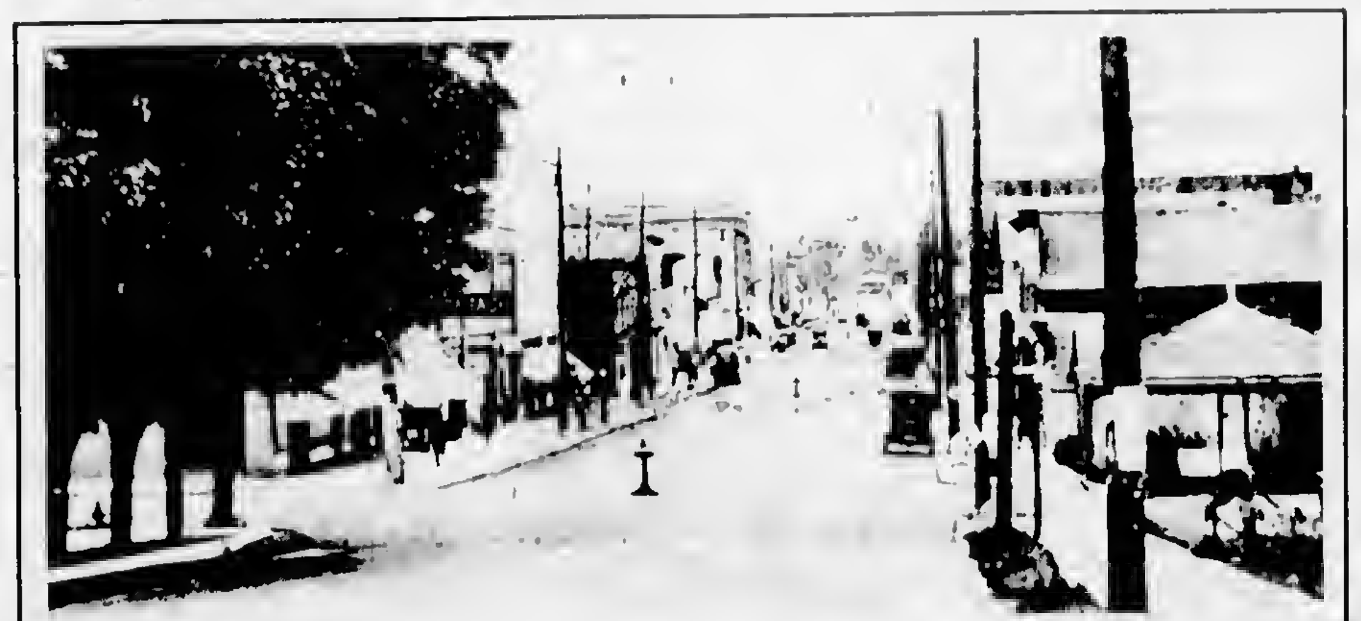
All in all, because of inflation and higher taxes, cigarette smoking has become a more costly pastime. It cost residents of Charlevoix County some $1,447,000 during 1977, or about $111 per local smoker, it is estimated.

High school schedules parent-teacher meetings

The Charlevoix High School will hold Parent-Teacher conferences from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. today (Wednesday) and Thursday.

No formal appointments will be made but the teachers will be in their rooms and available for discussions about the progress of any student.

Parents are urged to stop in and meet with the teachers during the conference hours.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THIS PICTURE OF BRIDGE STREET looking north reflects the days of the "dummies". As the automobile became more numerous in Charlevoix the problems involved multiplied. Traffic control, though nothing like the headache of today, was first on the list of problems and ever present. To eliminate traffic snarls on Bridge Street, wooden traffic directors called dummies were placed in the middle of each of the four downtown intersections. To make a left turn, a car was supposed to keep to the right of the dummy while the driver held his left are outstretched to indicate the turn. The system worked out all right except that policemen were kept busy righting the dummies knocked down by cars and drivers during turns. The wooden dummies were then replaced by iron half spheres about five inches high and soon these were eliminated, too.

Action needed now to correct problem of downtown parking

A lot of changes have been taking place in Charlevoix – changes for the better.

Economically, the city seems to have come alive with activity as the new shopping center, Captain's Corners, begins to open its doors and as some of the downtown stores take on new tenants.

Several businesses are taking up new residences along Bridge Street and plans are in the works for division of the Hess Furniture store on Bridge Street into four smaller stores and the upgrading of the current Hess Warehouse and alley area into attractive additional shopping space in the downtown area.

All of this activity makes things look great for downtown Charlevoix the Beautiful. Ever since the plans for the new shopping center and its seemingly limitless parking space were announced, pessimists in town have been predicting the demise of the downtown area.

And while their predictions are not well founded, the main reason why people are concerned about the state of Charlevoix's downtown still is present. Adequate parking does not exist for the downtown shopping district.

Adequate parking did not exist when the proposed plans for the shopping center were first presented, either. And during the course of the 18 months it has taken to get the shopping center underway, nothing was done to improve the parking in the downtown area.

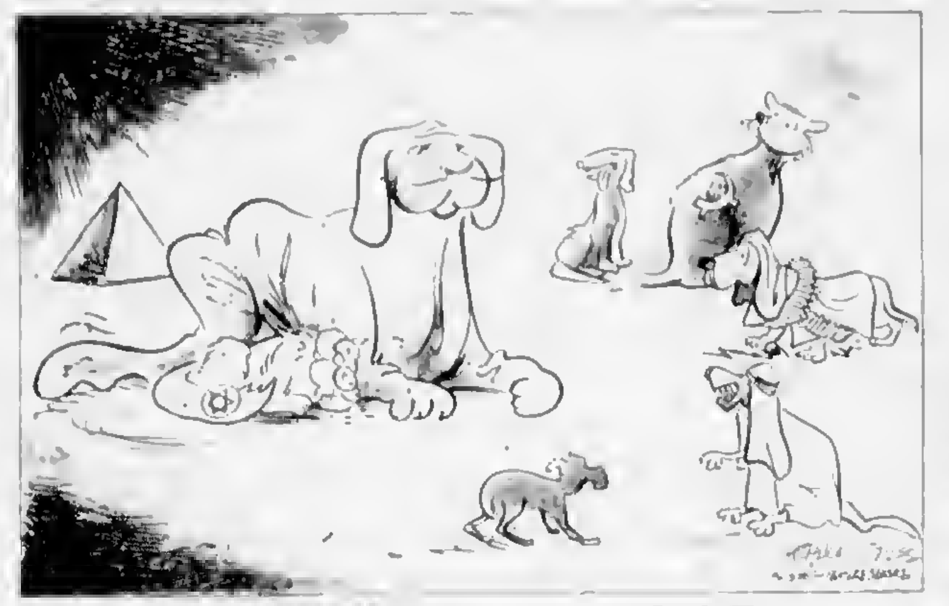
All that was heard about the downtown parking situation was moaning and wailing from people that the downtown shopping district was going to die when the shopping center opened because there is not enough parking space.

The time has come for positive action to be taken toward achieving a solution to this problem. This week Charlevoix residents selected common council representatives for the coming two years. Perhaps these new faces mixed with old can combine to bring about some action on a problem that has been hanging around for the past five years.

Several years ago, a parking commission made some recommendations about ways to improve the parking situation in the downtown area. Perhaps these recommendations should be revitalized or perhaps a new commission should be appointed to make new proposals for solutions to the parking problem.

Some action should be taken, by the council and the mayor. The moaning and wailing about the situation has gone on too long. The time for action is now while the city is looking at some growth in its business and industry.

Putting off making a decision about the parking problem will only hamper efforts presently being made to keep the downtown area as well as other parts of the city economically viable. The decision can not be that difficult to make and it would be a decision that would help improve the entire community.



Paula Holmes...

...Speaking Her Mind

Last week was a sort of lost week. I spent the week off in a world of my own, peering out into the real world over kleenex tissue and through bleary eyes watery from the effects of a winter head cold.

I spent the week singing the "Gosh-I-wish-my-nose-would-quit-running, boy-am-I-miserable Winter Cold blues." I can't even remember the last time I was in such a fog, but I am sure I have been, it was just never quite as apparent to me as last week.

My desk was on big collection of kleenex, cough drops and cans of liquid refreshments as I tried every remedy known to man in an attempt to cure my cold. By the end of the second day, my desk looked like the Blizzard of '78 had hit it. What appeared to be large white tissue paper snowflakes covered the desk and were strewn haphazardly from the desk to the wastebasket and around the rug. The kleenex, like snowflakes, blew around on their own whim, no matter where I tried to direct them.

On the third day of the cold, following two solid nights of sleep and two days of only semi-consciousness, I was beginning to think only a drastic measure would make the cold dislodge from its residence in my head. This thought came to me as I sat at my typewriter, my hands perched over the keys waiting for my brain to direct them. But nothing came out.

Deciding to give my brain a little break, I moved back to my desk placing my elbows on my desk top and cradling my chin in my hands. Actuully I made that move to hold my head up, as my neck felt like it was about to give out under the added weight of the head cold.

Thinking this would give me a little rest, I gently closed my eyes to concentrate on what I was trying to write. But this was all to no avail.

Sudeenly my desk began to rumble and I felt my head and elbows along with my desk vibrate up and down. No cold can be that bad, I thought to myself. It's just impossible that a simple virus can make my desk as well as my head and arms vibrate.

Quickly I openmed my eyes to see if that would stop the vibration, but it did not. Thinking as quickly as someone with three-day-old plugged up sinuses can, I decided that there must be some sort of artificial element moving the desk, which in turn was moving my head and hands and not the reverse, which I had first suspected.

Adn as I slowly marshalled my senses I became aware that my chair was also vibrating as was the desk across from me. The feeling was akin to the kind of motion you feel when you plop a quarter in one of those hotel bed vibrating machines.

It occurred to me that the furnace downstairs was running and was probobly the culprit and not my head cold. I can't tell you how much better that made me feel. In fact, I think it was one of the mojor elements toward moving me back on the road to recovery. I even felt so good I came up with a money-making scheme. In the future, when you come to the Courier office, be prepared. We're going to charge anyone who stands on our floor longer than five minutes a quarter, for the use of our vibration machine.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Would you give a pyromaniac a book of matches to play with?

Of course you wouldn't.

But this is precisely what President Carter has done in the Middle East by promising to sell highly sophisticated American war planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Carter might just as well climb up on his soapbox and shout: "OK, fellas. Let's you and him fight."

Of course, it is no secret that the entire arms race among nations is sheer insanity, based on the premise that nobody attacks the tough guy. No thought is given the fact that if no one is armed, no one is going to want to fight.

Furthermore, just look at the wealth of Planet Earth that we have wasted in our perpetual quest for quicker triggers or bigger bombs.

It is little wonder that cancer is still with us; that children are born blind, crippled and retarded; that millions of our citizens live in perpetual poverty; that thousands of our smartest, most talented young people must forego higher educations because the money is needed for long-range ballistic missiles.

No sir. We have set our priorities – and they do not lie with the ill, the poor or the young. They lie with arms makers and arms buyers the world over.

The proposed sale of war planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia is all the more frustrating because Carter couldn't have picked three nations closer to a bloody holocaust. Although Israel and her Arab neighbors are talking peace, that dream is still far, far away. And girding such old enemies for battle isn't going to bring them any closer together.

How much wiser it would have been for Carter to give both the Jews and the Arabs a polite "no" when they came, hat in hand, in search of military assistance.

So far as I know, he didn't even make such aid contingent upon the signing and ratification of a peace treaty between them, which is the very least he could have done.

All of which makes me wonder what happened to the old time religion Jimmy Carter was supposed to bring to the White House. Of all the presidents of this century, Carter is the only one who could end arms proliferation on religious grounds and get away with it.

Fortunately, the arms deal has not been finalized. Carter has struck the bargain, but Congress must give its approval. If you have any influence with your congressman, now might be a good time to use it.

Isn't it a pity that the United States, with its tremendous capacity for doing good, is still the world's biggest and most prosperous arms merchant? Think about it. It will give you a warm feeling all over.

Perhaps – just perhaps – Carter had in mind the nation's frightening balance of trade deficit when he promised the would-be combattants in the Middle East that he would help arm both sides. I really don't know. But I do know that selling arms to the world's tough guys is not a very laudable means of correcting an economic problem.

Come to think of it, why didn't Carter arrange to sell foodstuffs to the Arabs instead of war planes? We're pretty good at producing wheat.

And it doesn't hurt at all when you hit someone over the head with a loaf of bread.

Erma Bombeck

A year ago last December, our college son borrowed $600 from us to buy a second-hand car. We wired the money to him and it cost $3.00.

In January of the next year he wrote us a check for $100 as payment on account. The check bounced.

He called us (reversing the $1.80 phone charges) and said we'd better cover it or he'd look bad at the bank. We wired him $100 to cover the check which cost us another $3.00.

He wrote us back and said, "I had to pay a service charge because you processed the check in the first place so you owe me $5.00.

He came home for the Easter break and said he was crediting his account with $105 because that's what he saved us by not flying. He also subtracted $1.35 as a gas allowance because he drove his sister to the dentist.

In September, he made another payment of $35. However, he called again ($1.80 collect) to report that the $35 depleted his checking account balance to 87 cents and the bank insisted he have a $5.00 minimum due to the payment we received we owed him $4.13.

In November, he sought our advice on what to do about "our" investment. We could either write the car off aa a loss as it no longer ran or put it in running order to keep our investment alive and productive. To be "alive and productive" would cost us $311.00., (Phone consultation)5.40.)

In December he called ($2.30) to tell us a tree had thrown itself in front of his right fender and caused him $56 worth of damages. However, he could live with the dent and was sending the $56 check to us from the insurance company as payment on his debt.

The insurance company, however, raised our rates and we were obliged to pay an extra $3.00 per month on the premium.

Last week, he appeared with a ledger and said, "Counting the $400 I saved you in air fare, the $56 from the insurance company, the $15 I spent getting estimates, the $75 worth of aggravation of maintaining my own transportation, the $30 errands I've run for you and the $24 worth of car washes, we'll just consider the debt paid in full. And don't think about the break on the income tax I give you because I'm dependent. After all, you ARE my parents."

Somehow, I always imagined we'd feel better when he paid the car off.

Assistance available

To The Editor:

Assistance is available in coping with the spiraling costs of energy in Northern Michigan. Public Act 278 of 1977 provides for state expenditures of up to $38 million for an energy cost assistance program. The program, to be administered by the Department of Social Services (DSS), is designed to assist certain low income persons in the payment of heating bills. Persons who are recipients of some forms of public assistance, including ADC, at the time of application for energy assistance are excluded from participation in the program.

Amounts of assistance will be determined on the basis of two different income scales. For applicants who are directly responsible for the payment of heating bills, payments will be made directly to participating utilities, with 90 percent of the payment going to the applicant's heating energy provider and 10 percent to the electrical energy provider. For a family of four with an income of $5,250 or less, for example, a basic payment of $130 will be provided, and for a family of four with an income above $5,250 but less than $7,300, the basic payment will be $120. One or two member households containing at least one senior citizen may receive $100 if household income is greater than the amount allowed for comparable sized households but less than $7,000. Recipients purchasing energy from a nonparticipating utility will be sent a check requiring the endorsement of both the recipient and the energy provider.

A different payment scale is used for persons whose heating costs are included in their rental payments, and no assistance will be available to those whose heating and electrical costs are included in rental payments. Payments will be made entirely to electrical energy providers for qualified applicants who are renters whose heating bills are included in their rental payments. Amounts of payment will range from $180, for a family of four with an income of less than $3,950 to $80, for a family of four with an income over $5,850 but less than $7,300. One or two member households containing at least one senior citizen may receive $60 if the household income is greater than the amount allowed for a comparably sized household but less than $7,000.

Applications for energy cost assistance are now being distributed through the Area Agencies on Aging, county officers of the Michigan Department of Social Services, energy providers, and various community service agencies. All applications for assistance must be postmarked no later than April 30, 1978. For additional information, including the names of local agencies providing applications and instruction on their completion, phone the toll free number, 1/800/292-5930.

Peace bill war torn

Remember State Rep Jackie Vaughn's bill which would require that public schools teach kids something about peace? Forget it.

As any loni could have predicted (and I did), lunkhead legislators amended the bill beyond recognition. Vaughn has now pulled it back into committee, and not a day too soon. The way his opposition was inserting dumb clauses into his peace bill, Vaughn would soon have found himself the chief sponsor of a bill declaring World War III and forbidding battlefield abortions.

Originally, Vaughn's bill would have amended the current school code to include this paragraph: "Time shall be devoted in the public schools within this state to teaching the pupils kindness and justice to, and humane treatment of, human beings and the teaching of peace as opposed to war. This teaching may be through readings, stories, narratives of daily incidents, or illustrations taken from personal experiences."

It was last October that I wished Vaughn (D-Detroit) luck with his bill, but offered him no hope. I knew the organized veterans of numerous wars would oppose the bill as a communist plot aimed at weakening our national defense. Not many legislators went to offend the American Legion.

The most offensive phrase was "the teaching of peace as opposed to war." Wasn't it possible to say something good about peace without saying something bad about war? Much to Vaughn's dismay, the phrase was deleted before the bill left committee.

So now the bill required that teachers teach the virtues of peace without comparing them to the horrors of war. This makes as much sense as teaching a kid to swim without telling him he'll drown if he sinks.

Another amendment requires that pupils must not be taught kindness unless thy're also taught "partiotism to one's country."

Certainly. Children must learn there are limits to kindness. "My country, right or wrong." A true patriot must be cautious about treating foreigners kindly, otherwise this nation might run out of enemies and we'll be stuck with several warehouses full of unkindness and nowhere to use it.

It would seem reasonable for Rep Vaugn to ask why a class in peace should include instructions on how to salute the flag. Certainly it is glorious to be patriotic, and to fight for one's country, but hasn't this subject been pretty well convered in every American history course taught since 1776?

If students in a peace class are required to learn what made General Patton great, soldiers should spend part of their basic training learning how to turn the other cheek from Quaker sergeants.

Ridiculous? You ain't heard nothin' yet. Wait until you hear what Reps. Thaddeus Stopczynski, D-Detroit and John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, wanted to do to Vaughn's bill.

They wanted to insert a line requiring that the peace course include "the subject of fetalogy."

Fetalogy? The word isn't listed in the biggest dictionary in my office. But the first 5 letters tell it all. Fetal.

Stopczynski and Engler wanted an anti-abortion amendment to the peace bill.

I guess they figure that kids should be taught that peace begins in the womb. It is equally logical to suggest that pro-abortion propaganda should be part of a karate class.

In the face of all this foolishness, it isn't surprising that Vaughn asked that his crippled bill be returned to committee, probably never to be heard of again.

"It is regrettable," he told me, " that these ludicrous and ridiculous suggestions and attitudes will continue to have a negative impact on the young minds of our children and that war, not peace, will continue to dominate the thinking of the current generation."

Chalk up one more win for the lunkhead legislators.

Meet Charlevoix

... Tom Wieland

This week the Charlevoix Courier interviewed one of the busiest men in Charlevoix, Tom Wieland. Wieland, a dairy farmer, is involved with many governmental and civic organizations. In fact, he was recently elected chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. The Courier talked to Wieland about planning, farming and how he keeps his schedule straight!

COURIER: First of all, what organizations are you involved with?

WIELAND: Well, I'm chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, I'm on the executive committee of the Farm Bureau and am a past president, vice chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), on the advisory board of the Michigan State University extension service, District I chairman of the Animul Breeders associotion, member of the board of directors of the Michigan Milk Producers Association upstate local, and the state resolutions committee and districting committee, member of the board of directors of the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange, member of the Nurwood Township Board of Review and a member of the International Joint Commission on Pollution of the Great Lakes (PLUARG).

COURIER: When do you find time to farm?

WIELAND: (laughing) Oh, I don't farm, Ardeth (Mrs. Wieland) farms. Actually, I only miss a day or two a month. When I'm gone at chore time she can handle it by herself, but when I have to be gone for several days then my brother or my nephews come up from Ellsworth and help.

COURIER: How does your farm operate?

WIELAND: We operate as a partnership, my brothers, nephews, and I. I take care of the young stock and calves and machinery operations.

COURIER: How did you happen to get involved with all of those organizations?

WIELAND: It started back in 1965 when I was approached about participating in a study project called the Kellogg Farmers Study Group. I made a couple of applications and was accepted a few years later.

COURIER: What is the Kellogg Farmers Study Group?

WIELAND: It was a three-yeor study program at MSU funded by the Kellogg Foundation. We spent four weeks a year studying and the first year spent a week touring Michigan. The second year we took a two-week tour of the United States and the third year we took a month tour of the world. We studied economics, politics, the highway system and the educational system.

COURIER: What was the basic purpose of the program?

WIELAND: It was a leadership program we had experiences that would give us knowledge about different areas that we could use in these different organizations. The only thing woa they forgot to teach us how to say no to these jobs. Later on we had to have speakers come in and tell us how to say no.

COURIER: Whot were some of the things you did as a part of the program?

WIELAND: We spent a day with our senator and representatives in Lansing which was quite interesting. And then on a tour of the country we met one of the U.S. Supreme Court justices and I met the president of India on a tour of the world.

COURIER: How long have you been involved in farming?

WIELAND: All of my life. I was born in Charlevoix and raised in Ellsworth.

COURIER: How do you feel about the future of farming in this country?

WIELAND: I'm little concerned about the price of farm labor in this country. There are other countries that can compete with us in the same products and they get their labor for practically nil. That makes it hard for U.S. farmers to compete. For instance in Argentine they raise a lot of beef, which the fast food chains like to use. They can grind the meat, box it, ship it over here and sell it for less than the U.S. farmers can raise it for right here in this country.

COURIER: What about food prices. Are they unfair?

WIELAND: In my lifetime we have never paid as much of our national average income as any other country has for food. In India the pay between 70 and 90 percent of their disposable income for food. Here the last figure I read was that we pay between 18 and 20 percent of our income for food.

COURIER: But prices are continuing to go up.

WIELAND: That's because we demand too many fringes and packaging. Also a lot of people buy things at a grocery store that aren't even grocery items, but because they bought it there, they count it as part of their grocery bill and all they see are the prices going up. I'm glad to see us getting away a little bit from all of these throw away bottles. You've got to think that everytime you throw away one of those bottles it's going to drive costs up.

COURIER: As the new chairman of the planning commission, what are some of the things you would like to accomplish?

WIELAND: I would like to see rural development and the development of ngricultrual lands curtailed. Since 1940 the State of Michigan has gone from 18 million acres of agricultural lands to 10 million acres in agriculture.

Tom Wieland

In another 30 years we will probably drop down another half of that. I am interested in changing the zoning so that the agricultural zoned lots are big enough to discourage strip development on the highway and so that they could be put back into farming if they were sold again.

With the way the current development is now, the farms are sold and developed into tiny lots that would take a lifetime to buy back enough of them to put a farm together again.

COURIER: What size lot do you think there should be in the agricultural zone?

WIELAND: I would like to see a minimum lot size of 40 acres. That would certainly discourage development, but then people wouldn't be able to sell their land either. The problem is going to be that farms will be farther and farther apart and there will be pressure from the surrounding residential areas.

COURIER: What kind of development would you like to see in the rural areas?

WIELAND: The kind of development I would like to see is like we have in Island View. There you have clustered housing with central water supply and roads. There is only one opening onto the highway instead of 10 driveways a quarter of a mile apart. Also they left the open space and this can be used for farming or recreation or whatever. I hate to see good farmland developed.

Tax limitation petitions circulating in county

A statewide petition drive called Tax Limitation has arrived in Charlevoix County.

Karl Waldner of Boyne City is the coordinator of the drive organized by Taxpayers United to give voters control of state and local taxation.

Under the proposed constitutional amendment, a freeze would be placed on spending by the Michigan Legislature and local governments. The amendment also provides for tax refunds if the amount of taxes collected exceeds the state's need and if the state requires local governments to institute programs, then the state must pay the bill.

The amendment also requires local government to get voter approval before it can levy any new taxes and it prohibits the shifting of state tax burdens to the local government.

A total of 260,000 signatures are needed to place the issue on the ballot.

For more information contact Waldner at 582-7098.

Rayders scalp Northmen

ERIC SWENOR of Petoskey attempts to block this shot by Joe Left (33) of Charlevoix. Instead, Swenor ended up with a foul at a crucial point in the game Friday night. The Rayders scalped the Northmen 58-52.

IT WAS PAT SCHMIDT (35) of Charlevoix all alone under the basket as Petoskey's Wally Coffey attempts to interrupt Schmidt's concentration. Schmidt broke loose for 16 points in the second half of the contest to bring the Rayders to victory.

ERIC SWENOR and Mike Buday from Petoskey were up blocking the shot, but the Rayder's Neil Dziedzic was way ahead of them as the shot went in for two points during Friday's game. The Rayders won 58-52.

Rayders upset league leading Petoskey

In a valiant come-from-behind effort that couldn't have been sweeter on Winter Homecoming night, the Charlevoix Rayders upset the Petoskey Northmen 58-52, Friday night.

The Michigan-Huron Shores Conference leading Northmen came out on the basketball court in the Charlevoix High School gym looking like the winners they are. They took command of the game and the lead with a solid 19-13 score in the first period which increased to a 31-22 halftime margin.

Both teams played a run-and-gun game in the first half and both had an even number of fouls and an even number of chances at the free throw line.

But the Rayders had a few more turn overs and were colder in their shooting which enabled the Northmen to build up a lead which at some points was as high as 13 points during the first half.

But the Rayders weren't about to let a nine-point lead dampen their spirits. Following halftime ceremonies which saw team co-captain Jimmy Elzinga crowned Homecoming King along with Queen Sue Hodge, the Rayders came back gunning for a victory.

Behind the scoring efforts of conference high point man Pat Schmidt, who broke loose for eight points, the Rayders moved within one point of the Northmen for a third period score of 45-44 as the Rayder fans went wild with cheers and calls for a homecoming victory.

Also adding to the 22 points the hot Rayders dumped in during the third quarter were Joe Left, Bob Plumm and Steve Schuch who each hit for four points and jumping jack Neil Dziedzic who had two points.

As the Rayders moved into the fourth quarter, the Rayders traded baskets with the Northmen before gaining a one-point lead with only 7:49 left to play in the game at a score of 46-45.

But a one-point lead was all the Rayders needed as they quickly took control of the game jumping the score to 48-45 and then 50-45 with 8:04 left to play.

Then the Northmen narrowed the score at the free throw line when Wally Coffey dumped in two points at 5:25, but the Rayders quickly recovered the lost two points and moved the score to 52-47 as they went into a stall at 4:08.

A foul gave the ball to Petoskey and Mike Buday put one shot in narrowing the score again. Buday missed the second shot and the ball was rebounded by Petoskey. But the Northmen were unable to score as the Rayders grabbed the ball away and marched it down the court.

With 1:55 left to play it was Left at the free throw line, but under the tension of the game the ball was wide and went to Petoskey. However, the Rayders got the ball back as the Northmen, also feeling the pressure, threw the ball out of bounds.

The two teams traded a few more fouls and then a few field goals. The Rayders got control of the ball and again went into a stall at 48 seconds.

Seeing an opening Schuch went in for the shot at 31 seconds to make the score 56-50. Not to be out done, hot shooter Schmidt dropped in the Rayder's last basket at 20 seconds to move the score to 58-50, but his basket was answered in the last few seconds by a Northmen to make the finals score 58-52.

The stunned Northmen only hit the basket for seven points during the final quarter as they watched the revitalized Rayders use full and half court presses and every other tactic possible to grab the ball and move it into their own court.

Schmidt continued to lead the Rayder scoring attack as he hit for eight more points in the final period with Plumm adding four points and Schuch adding two to the Rayder score.

Grapplers capture Class C regionals

Last weekend was the weekend of the firsts for the Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team.

For the first time in the history of Coach Norm Probert's grapplers, the team captured the Class C Regional title edging out a strong Rogers City team as well as contenders from Shepherd and Clare.

Also during the regionals, senior Ron Hilton became the first Rayder wrestler ever to accumulate 100 career victories and the team qualified five grapplers for competition in the state finals, the highest number ever qualified for the state meet by the Rayders.

Coach Probert said the regional victory was a total team effort.

"The Rayder victory was a true team effort with all eight boys getting points for the championship," Probert explained. "Despite the fact that the matmen never had a first place finisher, we won the championship because everyone contributed and worked hard."

Placing second in the regional finals was Hilton at 119 pounds, Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds and Greg Loper, heavyweight. Craig Golovich at 138 pounds and Ande Keller, 178 pounds both took third place. All five wrestlers will compete in the state wrestling championship Friday in Middleville.

The three other wrestlers who did not place but who were an important part of the regional victory were: Dave Golovich, 112 pounds, Lee DeMitchell, 126 pounds and Dennis Whitley, 191 pounds.

"All three of these boys came through with key victories before bowing out," Probert explained. "They helped win 11 team points which carried us to victory over runner-up Shepherd by a margin of eight points."

Hilton helped spark the Rayder victory by winning his first match against a Shepherd wrestler in a 7-0 decision. He also won the second match by a closer 3-2 decision against John Henry of Sanford Meridian.

The excitement was tremendous during this match which was Hilton's 100th victory. Hilton held the lead until the final 20 seconds when Henry tied the score only to have the Rayder wrestler get one point for escape during the final 10 seconds and to capture his 100th victory.

Craig Golovich pulled off what many called the upset of the tournament by defeating Noe Perez of Lakeview in a 11-6 decision. Perez had an overall record of 36-1 and when the two wrestlers met, their match determined who would be able to qualify to go to the state meet. Golovich worked his way into the finals by coming up through the consolation bracket.

Kiteley and Loper both won their tickets to the state meet by winning their first two matches before losing to competitors in the final match of the day.

Keller lost his first match and later came back to defeat the same opponent in the consolation finals before going on to other victories.

Coach Probert was also honored during the meet by being selected by the regional coaches to present Northern Michigan as regional coach of the year.

County State, First State, Alray all take victories in B League

County State Bank defeated Medusa in a close game during Charlevoix Recreation Department B League play. County State Bank won by a 54-51 score.

The bank team opened with a solid lead at 16-5 in the first period and then jumped to 30-24 at halftime. The third period ended at 41-38 with County State Bank holding on to its three-point lead until the end of the game.

Top scorers for County State Bank were Steve Martinus with 23 points and Larry Potter with 11 points. For Medusa Jerry Pease also had 23 points and Dick Putman and Bob Holtzman each had 10.

In the second game of the evening, First State Bank handed league-leading Tri-City Asphalt its first defeat of the season.

Tri-City started out with a 16-9 lead in the first period which jumped to 25-18 at halftime. By the third period First State Bank had come back to take a one-point lead at 34-33.

Sam Supernaw was the leading scorer for the First State Bank with 14 points. For Tri-City Asphalt, Mike Crain had 17 points and Butch Klooster had 15.

In the final game of the evening Alray Cottages defeated Wojan Aluminum, 61-48. Alray took an early lead with a score of 15-8 in the first period. At halftime the score had jumped to 26-20 and by the third period it was 42-34.

High point men for Alray Cottages were Vince Left with 24 points and Dave Martinchek with 17 points. For Wojan the top scorers were Don Ward with 16 points and Stan Martin with 15.

Volleyball team drops games, JV posts wins

The Petoskey Northmen dominated the court against the Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team last week.

The Northmen took three of four games defeating the Rayders in the first two games 12-15 and 11-15. The Rayders came back to take the third game 15-5, but the Northmen got back on the winning trail 15-10 in the final games.

The Rayder junior varsity fared much better, winning all three of its games against the Petoskey JV. The young Rayders took the match 15-8, 15-11 and 15-1.

The Rayders next game will be against the Gaylord Blue Devils at the Charlevoix High School gym Wednesday.

Lei G. Johnson, Community Relations Manager, Petoskey, offers you this telephone tip:
Call us before you move . . . you might save unnecessary expense.
If you're planning to move to another home, now's the time to think about how many phones you might need in your new home and what kind of changes you might need in your phone service. A little planning can help you avoid unnecessary installation charges. . .
Call your Michigan Bell Service Representative. Allow enough time before moving for a full explanation of service and equipment options and time to order the phone service you need when you need it. Remember, once your new service is installed, extra visits by your installer mean extra expenses for you, expenses we'd rather you didn't have to pay.

Junior varsity drops two games

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity dropped two games to opponents last week, losing close games to Petoskey and Grayling.

In the Petoskey game Friday night the Rayders lost 66-62. Penalties hurt the young Rayders as a Petoskey player dumped in 11 free throws in the fourth quarter to account for half of the Northmen's final period points.

The Northmen took a slim two point lead in the first period with a 15-13 score which they increased to 32-26 by half time. The Rayders came back in the third period to narrow the scoring margin to four points at 44-40 but the Northmen munaged to hold on to the lead with the aid of the shots from the penaltyline.

Both the Rayders and the Northmen scored 22 points in the final period, but the Rayders, only had 5 points worth of free throws in their total.

Top scorer for the Rayders was Jeff Peters with 13 points while Jim Stowe had 10 points, Jack Cross had 8 and Ken Otmanowski had 9.

In Tuesday's low-scoring game, the Rayders lost 44-38 to the Grayling Vikings.

Once again, the opponents got the lead in the first period with a score of 8-4 and then lost as the Rayders surged ahead 20-18. The Rayders held on in the third period as they upped the score to 30-26, but then the Vikings came back in the final period to drop in 18 points to the Rayder's 8 to grab the game.

High pointman for the Rayders in the game was Peters with 11 points and Otmanowski with 7.

Bobs trips opponents in A League action

Bob's Sunoca tripped up Site Planning 75-72 in Charlevoix Recreation Department A League play last week.

Bob's started out with a strong 18-12 lead in the first quarter which Site Planning whittled down to 34-30 by halftime. At the end of the third quarter, Site Planning had knocked ane more point off of Bobs lead to make the score 49-46 but then Bobs held on to its three point lead until the end of the game.,

High point men for Bobs were Jim Danbert with 20 points, Roger Bolhuis, 16 points, and Chuck Pelham, 16 points, Jack Danbert 14 points and John Nachazel, 13 points.

For Site Planning, Kraag Lieberman had 20 points, Dennis Dominic had 22 points and Paul Osterberg and Tim Carey each had 12 points apiece.

In the second game of the evening Swansons defeated Foam Corps 65-47. Swansons took a 14-9 lead in the first period which jumped to 33-23 by halftime. Swansons came back hitting in the third period to up the score to 52-28 and held onto the lead until the end of the game.

Top scorers for Swansons were Bruce Meggison with 22 points, Randy DeYoung with 18 points and Dave Moyer with 17 points.

For Foam Corps Randy Holecheck had 14 points.

In the final game of the evening, Townhouse defeated Kadens 75-47. Townhouse took an early lead with a first period score of 13-8. The score jumped tn 34-17 at the half and then to 59-28 at the end of the third period.

Leading scorers for Townhouse were Spook Coleman with 20 points and Steve Dunkelberg with 16. For Kadens Tony Williams had 11.

Winter Cup festivities top weekend

CROSSING THE finish line neck-in-neck were two particpants in the downhill ski races sponsored at Mt. McSauba during the Winter Cup Festival. More than 100 youth and adults participated in the races.

GARY KNAPP of the Jordan Valley, puts the final layer of wax on his skis before participating in the second annual Winter Cup Festival cross country ski race. Knapp came in fourth in his division. More than 80 people participated in the races.

THE JUNIOR CLASS of Charlevoix High School took first place in the snow sculpturing contest in East Park over the weekend. The juniors created a new monster with a dragon body, pig's head and rabbit feet.

BUMP JUMPING was a highlight of the afternoon festivities at Mt. McSauba as everyone, young and old, got into the act on the Pale Face slope of the mountain.

A MASS START FOR the 10 kilometer and 25 kilometer cross country ski race looked like a stampode as skiers juggled for position on the course near Mt. McSauba on Waller Road.

Arm & Shoulder Pain

Continuing, nagging pains in the arms and shoulders can be distracting, painful and unnerving. They can bring sleepless nights and unproductive days. They can affect the disposition, the ambition and the general well-being of the afflicted person.

The action of all organs, glands, muscles and tissues of the body is governed by the flow of nerve energy from the brain through the spinal column to the assorted nerves which affect the various areas of the body.

When any injury or displacement in the spine creates pressures on the spinal cord or any of its nerves, pain generally results in the area supplied by the affected nerve. The chiropractor, qualified by training and practice, uses scientific procedures to locate the impinged nerve which is responsible for the pain. Through gentle adjustments he adjusts the spine to eliminate the pressure and restores the normal flow of vital nerve energy to the affected area. The soothing, sensitive hands of the chiropractor provide fast immediate relief and lasting comfort. Another Health Article from the:

GOD'S WIDOM WILL EMERGE FROM THE DEPTHS OF SORROW

At some time in our lives there comes a moment of tragedy that compels us even in the midst of our grief to ask the eternal question, "Why?" Yet what seems too cruel and senseless to us nevertheless happens for a reason that we are unable to comprehend. Somewhere, hidden from our eyes and our understanding, there is a divine purpose in everything. It is all part of the preordained pattern of our lives, the building of our character and the preparation for an ultimate destiny as yet unrevealed to us until the dawn of some bright tomorrow. At the Church of your choice, you will receive the comfort and strength you need, as well as the wisdom to trust God; because He has a master plan for the universe and you are part of it.

God's ways seem dark, but, soon or late,
They touch the shining hills of day.
-John Greenleaf Whittier

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."
-ICorinthians 2:9

Haiti trip a working one for group of optometrists

When people hear the name of the country, Haiti, they usually think of sun, the tropics and a wonderful, warm vacation.

And while most Americans and others visiting Haiti go there for a week or two of sun and fun in the West Indies, a Charlevoix resident recently visited the island as a part of a medical mission.

Dr. Robert Anderson, Charlevoix optometrist, spent a week on the island in the Caribbean Sea, examining the natives, treating eye diseases and prescribing glasses for those who needed them.

Anderson and Bob Olson of Petoskey, were among the 20 optometrists who made the trip as a part of Volunteer Optometric Services to Humanity (VOSH). The group has been making an annual trek to Haiti to help the citizens for the last five years.

"We went down there basically to work. It wasn't a vacation, too," Dr. Anderson said explaining his trip. "We were told before we left that we would be -pected to see at least 100 patients a day.

"We worked Monday through Friday and then took Saturday off to do a little shopping before we went home."

Anderson and the other optometrists stayed in the capital city of Port au Prince, but they would travel an hour each day into the countryside by bus to an Episcopal missi in a small community called Darbonne where they saw patients.

"People come from all over to go to the clinic, we even found a lot of people from Port au Prince coming to the clinic," Anderson said. "They just couldn't afford the regular prices."

The only charge for the medical care and eyeglasses was 35 cents charged by the Episcopal priest as admission to the clinic. The priest sold tickets to the clinic to prevent it from being overcrowded any particular day.

"But there were always people at the clinic who hadn't been able to get a ticket that we would try to work in," Anderson said.

Haiti is a poor country comprised of citizens who are mostly ex-slave brought to the country centuries ago to work on the various plantations. Anderson estimated the average yearly income of a Haitian at around $100. Most of the people couldn't afford any type of medical care, let alone a pair of glasses.

The optometrists not only donated their time to running the clinic and seeing the patients, but they also brought with them a bank of 5,000 lens and pairs of glasses which had been donated to the group for use in this project.

The doctors also provided their own instruments and paid their own air fare and food and lodging costs.

Anderson said he done some boning up on tropical eye diseases before he made the trip to Haiti Jan. 1.

"I saw some eye diseases that I had only seen in books before," the optometrist said. "The diseases were mostly tropical eye diseases that are rather rare in this country, although you do find them in the southern United States occasionally.

"Mostly they had the same eye diseases that we have, only I saw extreme cases. When we get a scratch on the eye we go running to the doctor to have it treated. There they don't have the funds or the facilities to get treatment."

Anderson said that even in Port au Prince he did not see any optometrist's or ophthalmologist's offices.

The optometrist said there was a language barrier between the doctors and the patients, but interpreters were on hand to help out with communications.

"I speak French and they could understand me, but I couldn't understand them," Anderson explained laughing. "But the interpreters did most of the talking."

The Haitians speak a language called Haitian Creole which is based on French and various West African languages.

Dr. Robert Anderson

Anderson said he learned about the project through a flyer sent to him in the mail.

"I was a little skeptical at first about what good it would do," Anderson said. "But I decided to try it. There's not too many places where you can go and help 500 people in a week.

"In this country it's hard to help anybody any more. There's always 10 government agencies ahead of you."

The optometrists' dedication to their project was catching, Anderson said. There were several other Americans staying at the same hotel in Port au Prince as the optometrists who ended up going out to the clinic and helping with the project before the week was up.

"Three were a few physicians staying at the hotel who went out and worked with us and the others went out and did clerical things for us," Anderson said. "It got so that you couldn't be staying at that hotel and not go out and help."

Anderson said he felt the trip was a worthwhile experience and he plans to go back next year.

"It's not something you can do just once," he said.

Wise officially opens campaign

"Hello, I'm your next state Senator," a booming voice accompanied by a strong handshake said.

The voice belonged to Charlevoix resident Bob Wise, who spent Friday evening getting acquainted with Charlevoix area residents during a special dinner for community leaders.

The dinner was the first public appearance Wise has made since announcing that he was seeking the Republican Republican nomination for the 37th District senatorial seat. That seat is presently held by Bob Davis, R-Gaylord. Davis may seek the Republican nomination for the 11th Congressional District seat.

In a brief address to the gathering, Wise outlined the various campaign issues and his stands on them. Among the issues he mentioned were: the controversial single business tax which was introduced by Sen. Davis, environmental issues, economic expansion, property taxes versus personal income taxes and land use.

Wise labeled the single business tax as the most unfair tax to ever hit Northern Michigan. The candidate said that as he traveled around the area in his business, Wise Window Cleaning and Floor Care, he had heard more complaints about the SBT than anything else.

"The single business tax is not based on profit, ability to pay or on a flat percentage rate as it now stands," Wise said. "The tax is based on net profit, payroll added to benefits for employees and depreciation. Because of this tax, employers may be reluctant to award employee raises or to add to employee benefits because they are penalized by the SBT.

"Eliminating the glaring inequities of the tax will be my foremost priority in the Michigan Senate."

Wise said he was aware that some changes had been made in the bill, but he did not feel the measures were strong enough.

BOB WISE
STATE SENATE

AREA RESIDENTS filled the back room at the Grey Gables Friday night to learn more about Bob Wise candidacy for the state Senate. Wise, a Charlevoix resident, is seeking the Republican nomination for Sen. Bob Davis' seat.

Nurses attend medical workshops

Nurses from Charlevoix Area Hospital attended two medical workshops last week, as part of the hospital's program of "continuing education and self-improvement for its staff," according to Kathy Boss, Director of Nursing Services.

A three-day workshop on "Management of Cardiac Emergencies" conducted at Boyne Mt. Ski Lodge by the Michigan Heart Association, had four RN's from the Charlevoix Area Hospital participating.

The nurses, Barbara Papineau, Helen Balsley, Lynda O'Brien, and Sue Pettis, who work in the hospital's coronary care unit heard lectures by physician-specialists in coronary artery disease, on identifying different types of heart disease and the medical and surgical treatment of each problem.

On Friday (Feb. 10), five RN's attended an all-day workshop on fetal monitoring, at Petoskey's Holiday Inn, conducted by the Medical Education Division of Corometrics, a manufacturer of fetal monitoring equipment.

Engaged

McGinn-Evans

Mary Ann McGinn of Petoskey has become engaged to Halbert K. Evans of Charlevoix.

Miss McGinn is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack McGinn and Evans is the step son of Robert M. Knapp of Pittsford.

The bride-elect attended Nazareth College in Kalamazoo where she received a bachelor of arts degree in education in 1972. She is currently teaching at St. Francis School in Petoskey.

Evans received his bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in 1969 and a masters degree from Oakland University in 1971. While attending MSU, Evans was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity.

He is a teacher at the Charlevoix Middle School.

The couple is planning a June 24 wedding at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

Sorority pledges eight new members

Eight new members have pledged the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority in Charlevoix.

Jo Ann Barnes, Elaine Coughlin, Judy Edger, Diane Haggard, Barbara Holmes, Irene Richardson, Mary Lou Smith and Linda Yarroch recently joined the social and service group.

Beta Sigma Phi was founded in 1931 as an international community organization. Nationally the group supports cancer research, cystic fibrosis, kidney foundation, burn centers and homes for neglected girls.

On the local level, the Kappa Sigma chapter has organized and staffed the canteen at the bloodmobile, conducted sight testing at the Lions Sight mobile, collected clothing and staffed the outlet for TIN (Those In Need), provided clothing, food and toys for needy families at Christmas and financially supports Santa Claus Anonymous.

The Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was established for members who had completed four years in the Sigma Kappa chapter. The members of the second chapter have sponsored the story hour at the Charlevoix Public Library, and adopted retired citizens with no family in the area and remembered them with fruit baskets at Christmas and cookies on Valentine's Day.

Rae Anne Slone named to Hope Dean's list

A Charlevoix student has been named to the Dean's List at Hope College.

RaeAnne S. Slone, a senior at the college, was named to the Dean's List for her academic excellence.

Miss Slone is a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is the daughter of Raymond and Marie Slone of Charlevoix.

Tuition grants available to state students

Tuition grants totaling up to $1,500 are available to students under the Michigan Tuition Grant Program.

The State Board of Education reports nearly one out of five students attending independent colleges receives financial help under the program. A total of $18.4 million has been awarded.

Additional information on the Michigan Tuition Grant Program and other financial aids may be obtained by writing: Association of Independent Colleges and Universities of Michigan, P.O. Box 1018 W. Lansing, Mich., 48901.

Obituary

Joba Kircher

Funeral services for John F. Kircher, 84, retired automotive sales owner and director of the Boyne USA Resorts, will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City. Rev. James Hempstead of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Petoskey will officiate. visitation will be from 6 to 9 p.m. today (Monday).

Services will then be held at the Bucholtz Funeral Home in Spanish Lake, Mo., on Wednesday at 11 a.m. Visitation at that funeral home will be Tuesday at 7 p.m. Final interment services will be held at the Valhalla Chapel in St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Kircher died Feb. 19 at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals, after a long illness.

He was born Jan. 19, 1894 in St. Louis, Mo. In 1915 he married the former Hilda Metzger and the couple moved to Michigan 63 years ago.

Mr. Kircher spent 48 years in the Detroit suburbs where he established Kircher Motor Sales of Rochester. Upon his retirement 15 years ago, he moved to Boyne Falls where he has resided since.

He was one of the founders of the Boyne USA Resorts 29 years ago and has been very active in its conception, development and growth throughout the years.

Surviving are his wife, Hilda; one son, Everett F.; four grandchildren; one brother, Elmer and two sisters, Maybelle and Violet, all of St. Louis, Mo.

The family suggests anyone wishing to honor the memory of Mr. Kircher, may do so by contributing in his name to the American Cancer Fund.

CAROLYN AND DALE ROBERTS show off the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department citizens award they received when they recovered stolen property during a walk in the woods.

Eveline township couple receives sheriff award

An Eveline Township couple is the latest recipient of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Citizens Award.

Dale and Carolyn Roberts of Wilson Road in Eveline Township received the award for recovering stolen property. The couple was walking in the woods near their home when they came across $2,000 worth of stolen property that had been taken from a residence in Evangeline Township, Sheriff George Lasater said.

"We were checking out a spot where we go hunting when we came across a television .and some guns," Roberts explained. "The stuff was just laying there, it wasn't covered or anything."

Roberts called the sheriff's department and the items were removed from the woods and will be returned to the original owners.

"Without the help of the Roberts, it is most likely that this stolen property would have been sold or taken out of the county within a few days," Sheriff Lasater said.

Band to compete Saturday

The Charlevoix High School Symphony and Concert bands will travel to Petoskey Saturday to participate in the annual District II MSBOA festival.

Each band will play three numbers for the concert judges and then will have seven minutes to study music the director and students have not seen before prior to playing for a sight reading judge according to their director, Gary L. Stutzman. He went on to say that this is not a competition. All participants are judged by a high set of standards and those receiving a combined first division rating will qualify for the state festival scheduled for April 29.

The 62-member Concert band will make its initial appearance in the Class D division of the festival at 8:20 a.m. The band will play "Wings of Army," King; "Fantasy for Band", Erickson and "Pagentray", Holcomb, plus the sight-reading selection under the direction of Mr. Stutzman The concert and sight-reading scores will then be tabulated to give the band its final score.

This band ,will leave Charlevoix at 6:45 a.m. in order to meet its early morning appointment. One bus will return immediately following the band's performance and a second at 11:30 a.m.

The 92-piece Symphony band, playing in the Class B division of the festival, will play at 2:20 p.m. Saturday. The concert selections, directed by Mr. Stutzman, will be "Morcho Poco", Smith; "Impertitrix", Alfred Reed, and "Folk Song Suite", Vaugha Williams. The fourth selection will be the sight-reading number.

This band will depart for Petoskey at 12:30 p.m. and return at approximately 4:15 p.m.

The Charlevoix bands are among bands in Class A through Class D from thoughout northern Michigan who will be appearing in the festival being held at the Petoskey Middle School Auditorium.

Spectators are invited to attend the festival. The auditorium may be reached via the Howard Street entrance.

Oddfellows win in cribbage tournament

After losing points for two weeks, the Odd Fellows surged back last week to increase their lead to 1651 points in the annual Masons-Odd Fellows cribbage tournament.

With seven tables in play, Erwin Beify had a score of 958 for the Odd Fellows. Ron Geer had 926 for the Masons.

The Odd Fellows picked up 686 points to increase their lead to 1651.

The tournament will be played at the Masonic Temple this Thursday.

Dr. John Fochtman elected to medical group

A local doctor has been elected to fellowship in the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, the national professional organization for medical specialty.

John A. Fochtman, M.D., of Petoskey, was elected to the college which was founded to promote the health and medical care of women, accepts physicians who specialize in obstetrics and gynecology who have demonstrated clinical ability by successful completion of an examination and who have been judged by their colleagues as competent and ethical physicians.

Dr. Fochtman, an independent physician, is on the medical staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc., and Otsego Memorial Hospital.

He resides at 1019 E. Mitchell St. in Petoskey with his wife Moureen and three children.

Annual Florida picnic slated March 8 for area

The annual Charlevoix-Antrim county picnic will be held March 8 in the Count Phillippe Park two miles north of Safety Harbor, Fla., at shelter 2.

All Charlevoix and Antrim county residents in Florida on that day are invited to attend the picnic at 12:30 p.m. Gertrude Drake, secretary-treasurer of the group, urges all interested people to bring a dish to pass, their own table service and a beverage.

There will be a drawing for prizes as well as a chance to renew old acquaintances and make new ones, according to Mrs. Drake. Pass the word along.

For more information contact Mrs. Drake at 119 Lansing Ave., Zephyrhills, Fla., 33599.

No wonder people gripe about taxes!

Charlevoix County residents do have good reasons for griping about their property taxes.

A survey conducted by the U.S. Commerce Department as a part of its "1977 Census of Governments" shows that assessed value of property has gone up substantially over the last 15 years.

In a 10 year period from 1966 to 1976, assessed valuation of property in Charlevoix County increased 223 percent, while property taxes rose only 170 percent in the state and a mere 147 percent across the nation.

The assessed value of taxable property in Charlevoix County rose from $57,854,000 in 1966 to $186,773,000. Preliminary figures from the county department of equalization estimate that the property in the county will be worth $421,979,865 by the end of 1976.

The growth in population and the development of the county are the main reasons for the dramatic increase in property valuations here, according to Joan Blanchard, equalization department director.

"We're seeing this type of increase in our property valuation because of the exoduses from the city to this area," Mrs. Blanchard explained. "This percentage does not just reflect increases in valuation due to a rise in the property value, either.

"We've had a lot of new construction in this area both in residential and commercial categories. And the new construction adds to the total property valuation of the county."

Since 1966 Charlevoix County has seen the construction of Medusa Cement Company, Impoc Tool, Lexalite, Charlevoix Chemical, American Mold, Lietz Industries, Royne Country and Courter, Inc., to name a few industries that have moved to the North country.

At the same time, the county's population rose 25.4 percent from 15,186 in 1966 to 19,047 in 1976.

Mario Amstbuechler, an appraiser in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, was not surprised to learn that property valuations had jumped 223 percent during a 10 year period in Charlevoix County.

"I would say that there are certain parts of the county where the valuation probably did go up that much," Amtsbuechler said. "But I wouldn't say that an individual home has increased from say $20,000 in 1966 to $65,000 today

The appraiser pointed out that Charlevoix County is unique in many respects and that has caused the property valuations to skyrocket.

"The property valuation in Charlevoix County is unique because it is affected by so many sales of parcels on lakes for condominium developments," he said. "You don't find that in too many other rural counties."

In the City of Charlevoix alone four condominium developments have been constructed since 1966 and there are several others throughout the county

And where did the tax dollars generated by the increase in property valuation go? As the population increased in the county, the amount of services provided by the county government and the schools increased, too.

In 1966, the Charlevoix County budget was $396,064 with a millage rate of 5.375 mills which raised $299,727 in tax monies.

In 1976, the county budget was $1,463,829 with a millage rate of 4.7 which generated $856,715 in taxes.

The school district's budget rose from $620,467 to $2,180,660 in the same 10 year period. The school system receives about three-quarters of the money generated through property taxes.

During that time the student population rose from 1,306 to 1,800 students and the staff increased from 54 teachers to 84.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren and Business Manager Vince Olach hastened to point out that the school's cost rose during that period at about the same rate the budget increased.

FOG ROLLS OFF of Lake Michigan almost every morning in Charlevoix no matter if the lake is frozen or not. Here a wintry fog engulfs the lake and the lighthouse off of the pier in the Pine River Channel.

Cut Down Snow Banks

I really think it's time that some of the snow banks on the corners of intersections be cut down. Everyday, I come east on Carpenter, heading west and cannot see cars coming on Bridge St. because of the high snow banks on each corner, until I get into the middle of the highway. I think this should be eliminated. It's a very serious hazard. Thank you.

All Learning Experiences Important, Valuable

Since "we" and "I" were continually referred to in the Hotline article "Tax money goes to the wrong places", I am wondering if I am responding to an individual or group of individuals. I am also wondering whether or not the individual or individuals read the article accompanying the photographs of students watching and taking part in making a pizza at the Village Inn Pizza. According to that article, students were not only given the chance to see the behind the scenes operations of a business, but were able to take part in making a product. A lot of folks in Charlevoix do buy Village Inn pizzas, and as a follow-up activity, were going to write about their experience. All of the children's senses were going to be employed in this learning experience. Is it not our job as parents or teachers to give our children as many diversified experiences as possible? Especially since this was part of an enrichment program for academically gifted children. I agree that waterfront and parks need to be cleaned up and sidewalks repaired. I do disagree, however, that schools gobble up our taxes. Children are the adults of tomorrow and the purpose of education is to broaden the person's views and scope of knowledge. Unfortunately, the writer or writers of "tax money goes to the wrong place" must have missed some education. It is clearly illustrated by narrow-minded remarks, poor sentence structure, and wandering construction of theme.

No Cobwebs on VIP Ceilings

I am a taxpayer in the Charlevoix school district, and I am complaining about the person who wrote the letter about the pizza dough being thrown up in the air and taking our money for such foolish things, which isn't really true. I'll also sign my name. I'm Mary Moore, and my telephone number is 547-2112, and I have worked at this establishment since they have had it, and have found no cobwebs on the ceilings and I don't think that our tax money was paid to let these children come down and see how the pizzas are made. It was all donated by the owner of this establishment and I think that it's pretty cheap of this person to say these things and not have the guts to sign a name on something like this. Thank you.

Proposed zoning establishes plan unit

The proposed new zoning ordinance will update Charlevoix's current ordinance for growth and development, but it probably won't do much to change the approach to zoning in the city, according to Mayor Edward Hansen.

"It doesn't make much difference if you change, amend or vary the old ordinance, it won't make much difference in the administration of the ordinance," Mayor Hansen said during a discussion of the proposed ordinance at a public hearing Monday.

"If somebody comes in with a reasonable request that doesn't match the zoning ordinance it will probably be approved by the council. And likewise, if somebody has an unreasonable request then it will be denied.

"A zoning ordinance is simply a set of guidelines to give people a starting point. I think the proposed ordinance is an improvement over what we have, but I'll be the last one to say that it won't be changed within 30 days after it is passed."

One of the main changes in the proposed ordinance is the creation of a planning commission. The commission will be composed of seven city residents appointed to the board by the mayor and common council.

Commission members will study proposed zoning requests and hold site plan reviews. The commission will then make recommendations for approval or disapproval to the common council which will have the final say in the matter.

The planning commission will also be responsible for making an annual report about the growth and development in the city and recommend any changes that may be necessary in the zoning map or the ordinance.

"I would estimate that the council is spending 30 to 40 percent of its time on zoning matters," Alderman Joe Morris said. "And we aren't getting anything else accomplished."

Alderman Sue Erber agreed.

"Because we are spending so much time on zoning matters, there is a lot of city business that isn't getting done," Mrs. Erber said. "If we (the council) can get some outside help to move these things along, we would be at fault not to take it."

Currently, common council considers all site plan reviews and zoning change requests as well as any variance requests.

Oscar Ward, county commissioner and city resident, warned that council could become a rubber stamp under such a system.

Another highlight of the proposed zoning ordinance is the marine zoning districts. Three specific types of marine zoning dealing with commercial and industrial use of waterfront property are included in the ordinance.

JOE THOMURE, Charlevoix High School student council president, presents a plaque to Clifford "Tip" Riley and Mrs. Riley. Riley has been the timekeeper and scorekeeper for Charlevoix basketball teams for the last 31 years. He was honored by the Charlevoix High School athletic department, the sports boosters club and the student body

Thanks to the man behind the clock

Clifford "Tip" Riley probably has the fastest reflexes in town.

But, after 31 years of practice he ought to have.

Riley is the man behind the clock at the Charlevoix High School basketball games. As official timekeeper, he is a real clock watcher. He is responsible for stopping and starting the clock on the scoreboard at the drop of a referee's whistle.

Riley has been involved with the high school athletic department since the 1947-48 season. And he was honored last Friday by the athletic department, the Charlevoix Sports Boosters Club and the student body for his dedicated service to the school.

Riley said he got involved as the timekeeper for the basketball games by accident. A Petoskey native, he married a Charlevoix girl and began going to the Charlevoix athletic events when he moved to the community.

"It's been so long now, I can't even remember who was handling the books, but they wanted to go on vacation and I was asked if I would take it over," Riley said.

And he's been at it ever since. At that time John Swanson was the timekeeper, but soon Swanson quit to become a referee and Riley took over the timekeeping duties and Larry Feindt took Riley's place at the scorebook.

The timekeeper said he hasn't missed too many games during that 31 years. Most of the games he has missed have been in the last five or six years when he and his wife have taken vacations to visit their daughter in Texas. Other than that, Riley's been right on the job.

Riley said the game of basketball has changed somewhat over the last 31 years.

"The game is a lot faster now," the timekeeper commented "There have been several rule changes that have speed it up."

Riley said the one on one rule has brought about a lot of the change.

"It used to be with one on one that if you made the first basket then you took the ball out of bounds at mid court instead of having the second basket," he explained. "Teams kept possession of the ball that way."

The timekeeper said the teams haven't changed much during the last 31 years but the spectators have.

"The student body doesn't seem to have the esprit de corps that it used to have," he explained, "The students don't follow the cheerleaders like they used to. There just doesn't seem to be the participation there used to be in the game.

"A lot of people run around during the game and they don't seem to pay much attention to it. But I guess we live in a lot faster world, now, too, and people have many things on their minds."

Riley, whose nephew, Chuck Fairbanks is the coach of the New England Patriots, said he planned on serving many more years as timekeeper.

"I'll do it until I get tired of it – or until they pull me out."

Three zoning issues before council

Three zoning issues will be before the Charlevoix Common Council during its regular meeting next Monday.

The six aldermen and Mayor Edward Hansen are expected to discuss variance requests for two condominium developments in the city and the proposed new zoning ordinance. The city officials are expected to take action on all three issues.

One of the proposed condominium developments will be located on Park Avenue on a lot currently owned by Charlie Taylor. The development, called Captain's Watch, will include 18 units on the Pine River Channel including 12 two-bedroom units and six three-bedroom units. Construction plans also call for a set of enclosed garages made of wood along the Park Avenue side of the property.

The architect developer Ralph Bergsma is requesting side yard setback variances of 26 feet on the east side and 38 feet on the west side. He is also seeking a variance on the amount of parking spaces required for the condominium development. In order to preserve some of the existing trees on the lot, Bergsma took out two parking spaces.

The second condominium development is planned for a location on Belvedere Avenue next to the Wharf. The development is called Belvedere Apartments.

The development includes eight units – four three-bedroom and four two-bedroom units which include indoor recreation facilities and a swimming pool.

The Belvedere Apartment complex requires several variances including a front yard setback of seven feet, a height variance of eight feet which would make the building 43 feet high instead of the allowed 35 feet and density and occupancy variances which would allow the developers to cover a larger percentage of the land with building than the ordinance provides for.

Council is also expected to adopt the proposed new zoning ordinance which would also establish a planning commission for the city.

Big Rock employees win President's Award for safety

JOHN SELBEY, president of Consumer's Power Company, presents the President's Award for safety to Cyril Hartman, plant supervisor at Big Rock Nuclear Power plant. The employees earned the award for being the safest plant in the Consumer's system.

The employees at Consumer Power Company's Big Rock plant in Charlevoix were honored recently for their safety record.

The 100 employees at the nuclear power plant won the company's President's Award for being the safest generation plant in the Consumer's system. The system includes two nuclear power generation plants, six fossil fuel generation plants and one gas reforming plant.

On hand to present the award to the Big Rock employees last week was the president of the company, John Selbey, and Charles Bilbey, vice president in charge of production and transmission.

Earlier in the year the plant was honored for its record run without any accidents or shut downs.

Medusa applies for dredging

Medusa Cement Co. of Charlevoix has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a permit for maintenance dredging of the channel used by the Medusa Challenger.

In the application for the permit, the cement company requests permission to annually dredge the entrance channel in Lake Michigan to a depth of 24 feet below the low water datum elevation of 576.8 feet.

Approximately 1,200 cubic yards of sand will be dredged from the channel and trucked away to a disposal site on the Medusa property.

The Medusa application stated the purpose of the work is to provide adequate water depths for the channel.

Medusa company breaks record for plant safety

The Medusa Cement Company plant in Charlevoix is a record setter.

The more than 100 employees at the plant were honored recently for its safety record. The plant made it through the calendar year of 1977 without a single disabling injury and has currently operated more than 480 days without a disabling injury, according to Al Kaiser, plant manager.

Employees were honored for their accomplishment at a dinner held at the Grey Gables Inn.

Business looks good to county's small firms

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Things are looking up for the economy during the next few years according to Charlevoix County businessmen.

Business reports from county automotive parts manufacturing plants are optimistic, despite the current slump in auto sales.

More than 18 small and large manufacturers in the county supply parts or tools and dies to make parts for the automobile industry. And only one, Gulf and Western, with plants in East Jordan and neighboring Antrim County, said that business is not booming.

"Last year, the Fall and Winter of 1977, we were at our all time high," Gulf and Western spokesman Mike Spear said.

"Anticipating inventory adjustments at the auto plants and the repercussions of the coal strike, we've laid off 50 people in East Jordan and 20 people in Mancelona," Spear continued.

"However," he was quick to add, "We're doing alright. We had added employees and now we are about on a par with last year."

The Gulf and Western East Jordan plant employs 425 people who manufacture small mechanical assemblies such as parking brakes, door hinges and window regulators. The 300 employees at the Mancelona plant produce the parts for those assemblies.

One of the most optimistic views of the economy was offered by Altair Tool and Engineering Company's Manager Gil Redner.

The Boyne City plant turns out wire end terminals and the tools and dies to make them for the automotive industry and computors and appliances.

Altair is now making dies for 1979 and Redner said, "I feel we are going to be strong through then.

"We are expanding here, as we can," the manager continued.

Altsir, in Boyne City, currently employs six skilled workers. Redner, an East Jordan native, is an enthusiastic booster of bringing skilled jobs to the north.

"These little plants will help the area. There is a good job market for skilled labor. And it is becoming competitive up here, which means wages are improving," Redner observed.

Explaining his bright perception of the industry, Redner said, "We have tooling contracts through this year and into next.

"Usually February through mid-March is a slow time, but right now our business is the strongest it's been in 10 years."

Another employer of skilled workers, Melvin Revoir of Boyne Machine Company, on the Boyne City Road between Horton Bay and Charlevoix, reported that business was up 25 percent.

"We are now quoting eight weeks for delivery, instead of our customary four weeks," he said.

Revoir's eight skilled workers are putting in 60 hours a week, turning out replacements of small precision tooling for General Motors, Fisher Body and Saginaw Steering Gear.

Control Engineering Division of the Detroit-based Jervis B. Webb Co., has four plants in the area, one in Boyne City, two in Harbor Springs and one in Pellston. Each employs about 50 men, all involved in various stages of making and putting together the material handling equipment which Webb sells and installs at automobile factories and many other industrial plants.

This could be one of our best years," said General Manager Ray Becker, caught moving rapidly between plants.

Donald Hufford of Hufford Industries in Charlevoix, another manufacturer of material-handling machinery for the auto and appliance industries, reported that his 30 employees are working 9 hours, four days a week and 8 hours on Saturdays in two shifts. He said the appliance industry is booming and that Ford and General Motors are purchasing machinery to reload assembly lines for smaller model cars two years from now.

Jim Bearss, who started his Charlevoix Machine Products Co. in his garage 10 years ago, now employs an average of 10 workers making engine parts for auto makers such as Volkswagen and for the die casting industry as a whole.

"A couple of companies are pushing us as hard as we can go," Bearss said. "We're air-freighting pulleys for V-belts every day to Volkswagen in Texas."

Douglas Hancock, owner of H and S Mold in Boyne City, employs four full time workers and three part time workers making plastic injection molds for components of carburetors and small plastic electric connections.

"Eighty five percent of the work we do is for the automotive industry and business is very good," Hancock told an interviewer on the telephone.

Jim Doyle, owner of another Charlevoix based company, Impac Tool Co., which makes component parts for machinery that helps make automobiles, said he is in full production. He employs 10 workers.

Metric Tool Co., of Charlevoix another maker of auto production tools, employs four workers who put in 10 hours a day, four days a week and eight hours on Friday. The company's owner, Richard C. Landon, echoes what the others have said – business is very good.

Hubert Lietz, of Lietz Industries in Charlevoix reported: "Business is quite a bit better than last year."

Lietz employs six workers producing tools and dies for the auto and appliance industries.

At Ell-Tron Manufacturing in nearby Ellsworth, co-owner Marjorie Rohrabaugh, said "Business is really good, but we don't know how the energy problem will effect Ford."

Ell-Tron which makes wire harnesses for Ford Trucks and plastic molding for electrical terminals, employs six people.

"We've more than doubled in most sales in recent years," Mrs. Rohrabaugh said.

Redner at Altair Tool explained that contracts with the auto industry, which set prices for goods over several years, are not actually binding, because the manufacturer works on "releases" which cover shorter time periods.

But he maintained his optimism for similar businesses in the north.

"We are finding we can do more and move up here, because we can get better qualified people," he repeated.

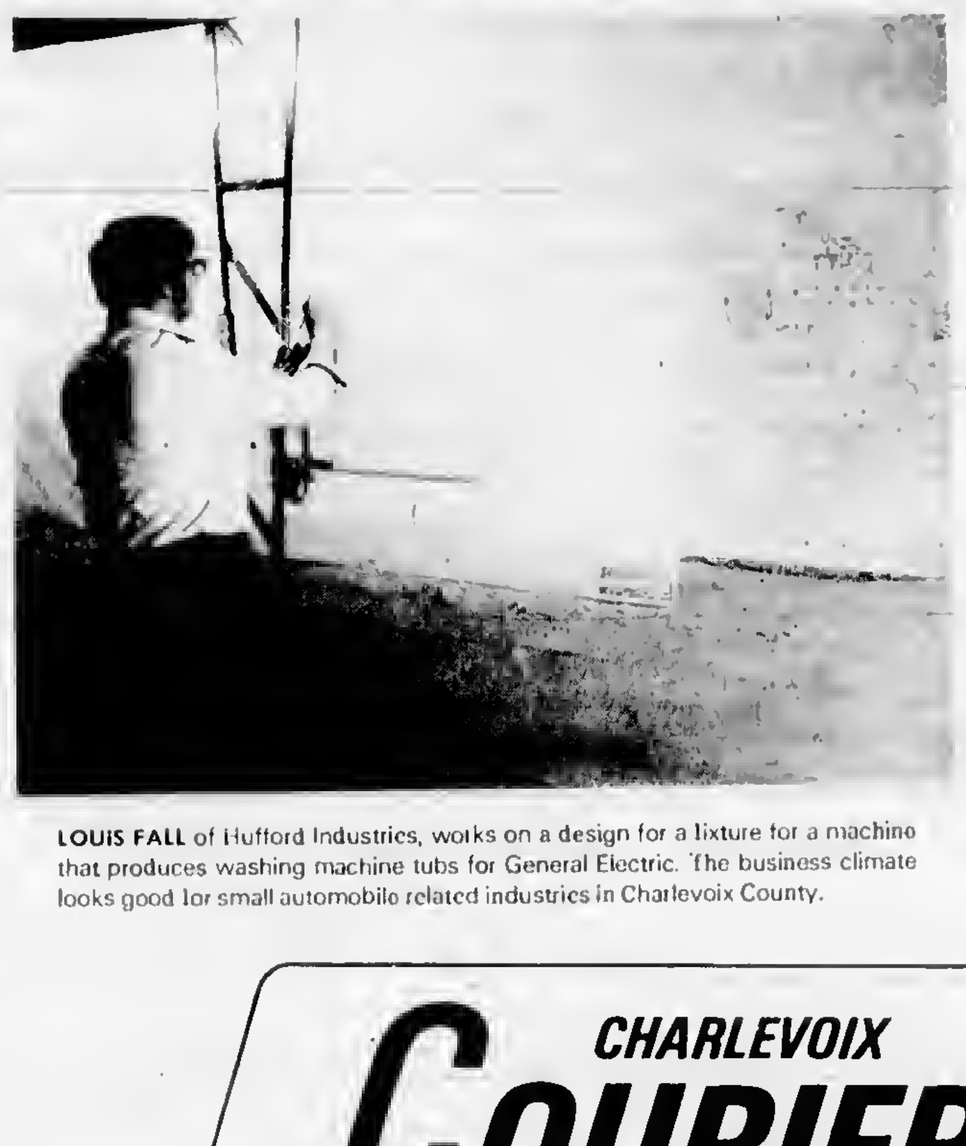
Robert Dyksterhouse, Charlevoix inventor and businessman, who has established some 13 plants in the area, and is embarked on a new plant in Mancelona, said he receives a lot of applications from downstate skilled workers who are anxious to move north.

Dyksterhouse's Mancelona plant, which will turn out wire harnesses for the Ford Motor Car Company. And he predicts the next "two to four years will be good because the industry will be changing over to smaller cars."

His new plant will begin employing some 30 to 40 people in early summer and he has expansion plans for up to several hundred employees in the future, he said.

Thus, while few businessmen would predict trends for the general economy, most were hopeful for the automotive supplying businesses for the next few years.

All of which should have a positive effect on the economy of the Charlevoix County area.



LOUIS FALL of Hufford Industries, works on a design for a fixture for a machine that produces washing machine tubs for General Electric. The business climate looks good for small automobile related industries in Charlevoix County.

MELVIN REVOIR of Boyne Machine, demonstrates the operation of percision tool and die machines.

It may seem cold, but it's actually been warmer this year

The facts are in and it's true. This winter has been warmer than last winter, no matter what the various parts of your body have been telling you.

But it has still been colder than normal, which may be the reason why your nose, fingers and toes don't feel so good when you're outdoors for extended periods of time.

According to Consumers Power Company statistics, this winter has been 11 percent warmer than the winter of 1976-77, but it is running 7 percent colder than the average for the past 30 days.

The percentages are based on data from Nov. 1, which is the date each year when the company begins keeping a record of weather conditions, through Feb. 11, which is the halfway point of winter. The utility company keeps records through the end of April.

The company bases its percentages on degree days. A degree day is the difference between a day's average temperature and the commonly accepted base of 85 degrees. The higher the number of degree differences, the colder the weather.

From last Nov. 1 through Feb. 11, the company has recorded a cumulutive total of 3,946 degree days compared with 4,445 for the same period in 1976-77. The 30-year average is 3,683.

According to the company's weather statistics, Northern Michigan had a warmer-than-normal period beginning at the end of the first week of November and extanding into early December. Since that time the weather has been colder than normal except for a few days in mid-January.

Last winter, the degree days were far below normal from November until early March.

Even though temperatures have been somewhat more bearable this year than they were last year, old man winter has been making his presence felt in another way. According to the National Weather Service in Lansing, the snowfall there has totalled 60 inches so far this year compared to 45.1 inches for the same period last winter.

Zoning ordinance needs support of community

At long last some positive action may be taken on the zoning situation in the City of Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Common Council held a public hearing on the proposed new ordinance Monday night and action will probably be taken to enact the ordinance at the next common council meeting.

The proposed ordinance represents several years of work and is a good beginning point for the city as far as working with a new ordinance is concerned. The proposed zoning law sets up a planning commission, which will provide for more indepth study of various zoning proposals.

It is especially important that the proposed new zoning ordinance be adopted now. The city seems to be experiencing growth both in commercial and residential areas and more and more demands are going to be put on the available land in the community.

The city needs a good, solid zoning ordinance to help it grow in a planned, organized way that will be beneficial to both the old and the new residents of the area. A strong ordinance will protect the city from the pressures of the developers while allowing planned growth.

But, adopting a zoning ordinance, no matter how strong it is, will not solve all of the city's growth problems. City residents have to pull together to ensure that the community does not become a mishmash of buildings instead of a planned, pleasant community.

The first order of business of the planning commission should be to devise a land use plan. This is going to involve hours and hours of study and discussion of the various lands in the community in an attempt to determine what the best use for the land is.

There are many parcels in the community that are under debate now by various groups of people. A planning commission should hear discussion about these parcels, such as those on Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, from both sides and then determine what use would most benefit the community.

This type of a study may require the advice of a planner, a professional in the zoning world. It would be wise for the common council to also consider funding this type of study along with its actions on the zoning ordinance.

But the development of a land use plan alone will not bring about the proper atmosphere for the operation of a zoning and planning commission in the city.

The people must also understand and support the ordinance and the work it is trying to accomplish. It is up to businessmen and fishermen, retirees and students to learn about the values of planning and zoning, to learn about the zoning ordinance and the various zoning districts and what the reasoning is behind them.

In order for zoning and planning to work, the people must be behind it. Together we can keep Charlevoix beautiful. But we have to work together at it and we have to start now.

Seeks re-examination

To the Editor:

The nuclear waste disposal issue surfaced again as a major topic at an energy forum held at Northwestern Community College in Traverse City on Feb. 16.

John Purcell, representing the U.S. Department of Energy, who was one of the panel members, stated that Michigan remains a prime target as a state for nuclear waste disposal.

Dr. Robert Asperger of Midland, Mich., another panel member, pointed out that among the major criteria for siting of nuclear disposal dumps is the willingness of the people of a prospective dumping area to accept power for their use from nuclear power plants. Since the rural electric cooperatives of Northern Michigan have purchased 20 percent of the Fermi No. 2 nuclear plant for $200 million, the moral right of the people of Northern Michigan to resist nuclear waste dumps has been compromised.

Lightfoot, chairman of the Board of Cherryland Rural Electric Power, who was present at the meeting, stated that economics was the only consideration that was made in the decision of the cooperatives to buy 20 percent of Fermi No. 2 – a loan which will be backed by taxpayers dollars through the Rural Electrification Administration.

Meanwhile, Dr. Asperger pointed out that since nuclear fuel costs, the cost of decommissioning and of ultimate waste disposal from nuclear power plants are not known, the Iowa legislature has passed a bill that, in effect, outlaws the siting of any nuclear plants in their state. The Iowa bill requires that only those power plants that provide the lowest cost power can be approved in their state. Nuclear plants cannot be built in Iowa because their real costs cannot be determined.

Top management of the Dow Chemical Company testified under oath in hearings last year that there is no economic advantage from the Midland nuclear plants and that these plants will be "disadvantageous" not only to the Midland division but to the community and their employees. They remain bound to their contract only because they have been threatened with a $600 million law suit by Consumers Power Co.

The citizens of Northern Michigan should require the management of the rural cooperatives not only to do their arithmetic again on the cost of nuclear power plants, but to examine their conscience about their moral values. By buying into Fermi No. 2, they are inviting nuclear waste dumping into one of the most beautiful regions of the nation. This can only result in a drastic loss in property values in Northern Michigan and also create a permanent health hazard to present and all the future generations of the Great Lakes area.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Eleven years ago, the late Charles de Gaulle of France stood on the steps of the Montreal City Hall and shocked Canada and the rest of the civilized world by making his infamous pitch for a "Free Quebec."

British Canadians tried to pass off the remark as the ramblings of an old man. "Liberty, Equality, Senility."

But it didn't work. de Gaulle had fanned coals of independence that had been smouldering for years under the facade of unity which Canada liked to present to the world.

Judy and I had visited Quebec Province in 1963 and if the separatist movement was alive then, no one was talking about it. We visited Quebec again shortly after de Gaulle's visit and were alarmed to see "Quebec Libre" scrawled on fences, billboards and barns.

And the movement has been gaining momentum ever since. Two years ago, Rene Levesque was elected premier of Quebec Province on a separatist platform. The question will come to a vote of the French-speaking province next year.

And chances are good that Quebec will vote to establish its own independence, regardless of the agony such a move will visit upon the rest of the dominion.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is committed to keeping Quebec within the union, with every means short of force.

High-ranking government officials concede that if Quebec breaks away, the fate of Canada itself is in the balance.

The maritime provinces, which would be separated from the rest of the nation by a large and alien neighbor, could well elect to join the United States, a country with whom they share a common border.

The western provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, might also decide to join their larger neighbor to the south. Although I am a stranger to the Canadian plains, the residents seem to have a great deal in common with the free-wheeling population of the American west.

The two question marks are Ontario and British Columbia, widely separated by miles but very much like the motherland in language, temperament and customs. For those two provinces, union with the United States is clearly out of the question.

Although the majority of Canadians, I am sure, would prefer to remain under one flag, there is no way of telling what will happen if Quebec votes to secede.

How has Quebec withstood the "melting pot" syndrome of the North American continent for more than 300 years?

The answer to that one lies deep in the archives of European and American history. Although the initial forays into North American waters were made by an Italian living in England – John Cabot – in 1497, most of the early exploration and settlement was carried out by the French. In the mid 1500's, Jacque Cartier penetrated the broad mouth of the St. Lawrence River and discovered a fertile valley pleasing to eye but people by fierce aborigines.

Others followed, including Samuel de Champlain and Sieur de Monts who established colonies in sunny Acadia and as far west as the present city of Quebec, bringing with them not only settlers but also Jesuit and Recollet missionaries to convert the heathens and to establish schools and hospitals.

Needless to say, the French endured hardships beyond the call of duty, including massacres at hands of the Iroquois in the vicinity of Georgian Bay in 1648.

However, a century later, in 1759, British military supremacy succeeded in ousting the French from control following a battle on the Plains fo Abraham at Quebec.

That battle 320 years ago will be one of the central issues when Quebec goes to the polls next year.

Students say thanks

Citizens of Charlevoix,

On the behalf of the students of Charlevoix High School, we would like to say, "THANK YOU" to the many people who helped to make our 1978 Winter Homecoming such a success.

We would also like to thank the local merchants who supplied us with their goods and services; Charlevoix Branch Of Petoskey Floral, The Weathervane Inn, Reusch Jewelry and Chester's of Ironton.

A note of thanks also goes out to The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, whose assistance and co-operation was greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

...Speaking Her Mind

I've been a little dismayed by the negative reaction a recent report in the Detroit Free Press about birth rates received.

The report indicated that of the 900 women who have graduated from one of the Ivy League's sister colleges in the last five years, only 120 have married and only three have given birth.

During the last few days, concerned newspaper columnists have pointed to this trend as a reaction to a massive brainwashing by militant feminists who have set traps for young women with their rhetoric and turned them against the "American Way of Life" and the joys of raising a family.

As a young woman who graduated from college during the last five years, although it wasn't from one of the so-called top drawer women's colleges in the East, and who is working and not married and raising a family, I object to these conclusions.

All I can say is, it takes two to tango. Somewhere out there, there must be 900 men who graduated from Ivy League colleges in the last five years, of whom only 120 have gotten married and only three have had babies. It's not just the young women who aren't getting married, it's the young men as well.

Was it the feminist rhetoric that turned these young men away from marriage and child rearing? I think not.

And this is a good sign for American society. It shows that young people today are taking time to get their feete on the ground economically and emotionally before they rush into the commitment of marriage and child rearing.

In light of the statistics about the burgeoning divorce rate – approximately 50 percent of all the couples who get married get divorced – I should think concerned newspaper columnists and others would be glad that young people are taking the institution of marriage a little more seriously these days.

Also the economy is a little different now than it has ever been before. Many of us young people who have graduated from college in the last five years were brought up in families where the father was the chief bread winner and the mother did stay home and take care of the children. But economically that isn't feasible any more. In many cases it takes two people working to earn the buying power of the salary that one person used to bring home.

And the cost of having children isn't what it used to be either. While my parents paid in the neighborhood of $500 in hospital bills to have me, I have friends who have had children in the last year at a cost in the neighborhood of $2,000. That's a nice hunk of change.

Rearing children, isn't so cheap either, as I'm sure any graduate of a top-drawer women's college is well aware of. Current estimates are that for a child of one of these graduates it could cost as much as $200,000 to raise them from zero to 21. Another nice hunk of change.

So don't blame the feminists and young women for the sudden decline in birth rates. Remember that young men, economics and a confrontation with reality probably play an important part in this, too.

And don't worry, I'm sure those young women will have children sooner or later. It's just that it will probably be later.

My grandmother used to have a line that broke up the entire family. She'd say, "I called you today, but you knew it was me and wouldn't answer your phone."

No amount of logic could convince my grandmother that every ring of the phone was an unknown adventure and that surprise was on the side of the caller.

She was paranoid about not wanting to talk with her. And with good reason. To begin with, she called every day. Not only that, she could go 78 rpm for 30 minutes, non-stop. At first I used to put one of those little sand timers by the phone. That little number filled up before she got out, "Hello." Later, I approached the phone with a calendar, a change of clothes, and a tank of oxygen strapped to my back.

Her opening line was always the same: "I don't suppose you know who this is. It's been so long since you called me you probably forgot what my voice sounds like."

"I remember it from yesterday, grandmo."

"I guess you're busy."

"Compared to what?"

You let the phone ring five times. Probably trying to decide if it was me or not."

"I was outside."

"Sure. They all say that. I called Louise yesterday and she left it ring 15 times before she decided not to answer it."

"So, what's new?"

"Don't change the subject. Do you think I like calling you and reminding you I'm alive?"

"I was going to call you after lunch."

"You know I'm on the phone until I get dinner at 4:00. So that's your game. Only call when you get a busy signal."

"No, it's just that I can talk longer when the kids are napping."

"Oh, you have children now? I didn't know."

The other day I read something that stopped me dead in my tracks. The phone company is at work perfecting a new device that will electronically light up and tell you who's calling. For example, two short rings and a long one could be your husband, while two long rings and a short one could be your best friend.

Grandma was 30 years before her time.

Somehow, I always knew she knew.

Nerd upstages Franklin

"Benjamin Franklin is here," I told my wife, pointing across the restaurant toward that round face made famous on Saturday Evening Post covers.

She didn't hear me. She was too busy telling me about the strange behavior of our son Nerd.

Married couples eat in restaurants for 2 reasons.

The husband eats out because he's hungry and the wife forgot to melt anything for dinner at home. The wife eats out because she wants to talk to the husband and she can't do it at home because he is always watching TV or reading the newspaper.

"The only time we ever talk is when we go out to dinner," Pat always says to me.

"The only time we don't go out for dinner is when I open the freezer compartment in the morning and a slab of ground beef falls on my foot and doesn't get picked up until dinner time," I always say to her. "That night we have your famous Meat Loaf Accidental."

Anyway, on this particular evening we were at Vittorio's Dinner Theatre in Livonia, and Pat was talking about Nerd.

"I had to get up at 2 o'clock the other morning and I found him in the bathroom drying a flour sifter with a hair dryer," she said.

I don't make these things up. That is exactly what she said. Is it any wonder that I temporarily forgot that Benjamin Franklin was sitting just a few tables away?

"A flour sifter?" I said incredulously. Incredulously is the only way I know how to talk when the subject is Nerd.

"Yes," Pat explained, "he was making cupcakes from scratch."

Certainly, I don't know why I didn't think of that. In the dotage of his teenage years, Nerd has taken up baking. He does it late at night because he has to be up anyway to see the Bowery Boys on TV.

Working from a scratch recipe, Nerd had to use a flour sifter which his mother inherited from a long-gone aunt.

Pat has never used it because she can never remember to melt the flour. So naturally the sifter had to be washed and then it had to be dried with the hair dryer because that's how Nerd dried all the dishes. He dries his hair with a dish towel.

But enough of the Nerd.

Benjamin Franklin really was at Vittorio's that night. He later introduced us to Mrs. Franklin, who said Ben reads my column aloud to her over breakfast, bless him. I would do the same for my wife except she never has time to sit down for breakfast because she's too busy in the kitchen making sure nothing falls out of the freezer compartment.

Franklin's other name is Ralph Archbold, but he's strictly Benjamin Franklin to the thousands of people who have seen him give his delightful impersonation at Greenfield Village or at hundreds of school assemblies or in TV commercials.

It wasn't surprising that Archbold was in the audience that evening. The after-dinner show was "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," starring Phil Marcus Esser, Barbara Bredius, Charlie Latimer and Mary Ann Paquette singing Brel's splendid songs.

It was this Esser troupe that turned Ralph Archbold into Benjamin Franklin.

Esser's Brel show was the finest entertainment in town when it had a long run at Mercy College a few years ago. Archbold was its steadiest audience. After he'd paid to see over 20 performances, the management began to give him a discount.

When it topped 30, the cast presented him with a certificate of appreciation. After 40, they gave him a job.

Esser needed someone to play Benjamin Franklin in his next production, "Personals." Archbold had the face, figure and with for the role. Esser lost his best customer, but Archbold, until then a photographer, had a new career.

End of success story. Except it should be added that Esser and Company, reunited after too many years apart, are once again the best show in town. I'll never follow Archbold's route to fame, but I've seen the Brel show three times now, and I'll be back again.

Much of Brel's poetry is sad, but it could still cheer me up after dinner conversation in which I learn that my son broke a tooth eating cupcakes made from frozen flour and sifted hair dryer.

Teacher feature

...Lucile Martin

Lucile Martin

Libraries and books are still an important part of children's lives, despite all the talk about reading problems and the influence of television, according to a Charlevoix Middle School teacher.

In fact, television is sometimes responsible for sending children to the library, Lucile Martin, middle school librarian and reading teacher, said.

"I have found that when something is on TV or in the movies, then there will be a run on the book in the library," Mrs. Martin explained.

The teacher said the recent showing of the classic, "Black Beauty," prompted many children to check the book out of the library, and when the movie "Jaws" was so popular, children were not only requesting the book, but they were taking out any book on sharks they could find in the library.

Mrs. Martin said the middle school library has seen a lot of changes since it opened 10 years ago.

"The middle school library started essentially as a collection of leftovers from the high school and the K-5 school," the librarian said. "But it's no longer the stepchild of the school system. We have a fine library here."

The library consists of 6,000 volumes and middle school children can borrow freely from the high school or the elementary school libraries, too.

Mrs. Martin said the books for the library are selected largely from the School Library Journal which offers suggestions about books needed in a library. The librarian also tries to fill student and teacher requests for books.

But the library doesn't contain just books, it also has a large store of audio-visual equipment, including individual film projectors and tapes with fiction stories on them. But the use of tapes and film strips usually results in the children seeking out books and reading them after they have seen or heard the story, Mrs. Martin said.

The librarian said it has been interesting to watch the trend of the times as it comes out in fiction for children.

"There are a lot more problems in children's books than there used to be," she said. "I guess life for this age child is not quite all the fun and games that adults think it is."

Mrs. Martin said the library carries several fiction and nonfiction books in its collection about adjustment to divorce in the family that are heavily read by middle school students.

"Five years ago you wouldn't have seen any children's books at all dealing with this problem," she said.

Another popular book at the middle school library is a volume entitled, "Don't Hurt Laurie," a story about child abuse. Mrs. Martin said there is a long waiting list for this book.

On the lighter side, many students are also interested in how to book, like how to make boats, how to make camping shelters and how to make go-karts.

"One book that we have trouble keeping in the library is 'Fun Projects for Dad and the Kids'," Mrs. Martin said. "It seems like every years someone borrows it permanently."

Mysteries and horse stories are also popular among the middle school students.

"The old classics have to be pushed," the librarian said. "But when you do push them the children seem to like them."

Mrs. Martin said she has spent a lot of time reading children's classics that she didn't read as a child and re-reading the ones she has forgotten so that she can push the classics even harder. She feels it is important for the children to get exposure to the literature.

"Modern literature tends to be narrow and focused," the librarian explained. "And the vocabulary is limited to what they hear every day. And with what the children hear on TV, the language is so fragmented that there's just no place that they can be exposed to the beauty of the phraseology that is in the classics.

"Their imagination just can't take wings with the modern literature like it can with the classics. I think the children are impoverished if they don't get exposed to it."

The librarian said that part of the reason the students are less inclined to read the classics is that the books don't grasp the attention and emotions like the modern books. A lot of words are spent describing the scene and setting the tone in the classics that aren't used in modern books.

Mrs. Martin, who has been a teacher for 17 years, said she has enjoyed the last 10 years she has spent as a librarian.

"The thing I like about library work is that you deal with the children as individuals," she explained. "In no way am I a threat to the children. I don't evaluate them, I'm there to help whether it's a school project or a personal project.

"I'm there to help them learn and grow and that's exciting."

But when Mrs. Martin first came to the middle school as the librarian, she wasn't so sure she would like it.

"I had always taught English and speech at the high school," she said. "Then I took a year off and I got bored with that so when they needed someone to work in the library at the high school, even though I hadn't had any library experience I decided to do that."

And as she worked in the library she found she enjoyed and she began taking classes toward her certification as a K-12 librarian. She worked for three years at the high school, but because she wasn't certified and because the North Central Association wouldn't accredit the school unless it had a certified librarian, Joy Mudge was hired.

After a year of working with Mrs. Mudge, Mrs. Martin moved to the middle school.

"I didn't want to go," Mrs. Martin recalled. "I didn't feel I knew anything about middle school children or that I would understand that age group.

"But after my first year was up and they asked me if I wanted to go back to the high school, I had changed my mind."

Mrs. Martin said she enjoys the challenge of working with the middle school-aged child.

"Children are very exciting at this age," she said enthusiastically. "They change so rapidly it almost seems like it's day-to-day.

"It's exciting to see a youngster come in in the sixth grade and watch how he changes during the three years he's in the middle school.

"The students are so open and full of surprises."

Mrs. Martin did her undergraduate work at North Central College in Illinois and her graduate on-campus work at Central Michigan University and Wayne State University. She has also taken extension courses at Michigan State University and University of Michigan.

Her hobbies include outdoor activities such as boating, bicycling and cross country skiing, and her work.

"In a way my working life is like a very time consuming hobby," she explained. "I like kids and being with people."

Letters to the editor

Mrs. Gaskin urges study of condo growth

To the Editor:

Next Monday the city council is scheduled to vote to grant or deny permission for further condominium development on the shoreland of Charlevoix. I am opposed to such a vote at this time because I am alarmed that the scenic beauty which Charlevoix inhabitants take for granted is seriously threatened.

In part I feel resentment against rich outsiders "exploiting" the shorelands to their own advantage but I feel a sense of unease has been spreading for years about the vulnerability of the shoreland to unplanned and minimally regulated developments.

Suddenly there is the realization that we have no apparent ability to control developments. For this reason I suggest that before even one more permit is granted that the city council create a study commission to investigate the impact of further development on Charlevoix waterways, to analyze the capabilities of the land and the visual impact of development, and to protect the scenic and historic character of the area for all of us.

If you also feel this way, please make it known now before Monday to your city council member. Jump in with both feet, we need public pressure. Let's study what should be done with that shoreland that is still open, clear and free.

Sincerely,
Helen Gaskin

Mrs. Roloff thanks citizens for support during campaign

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank you for the good job you did covering all the candidates for the primary on February 20.

To the winners – Sam, Jeff, Stub and Earl I would like to take this opportunity to say congratulations and wish all of you the best of luck. A Special thanks to all of you who had faith in me and voted for me in the past election. You can be assured I will continue working for the city of Charlevoix and it's citizens.

Sincerely,
Shirley Roloff

Charlevoix Schools receive $65,290 in state aid funds

The Charlevoix School District will soon be receiving its third payment of State School Aid Funds for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

The school district is expected to receive checks totaling $65,290 for transportation, special education, Title 1 and vocational education at the school.

Other area schools and the amount of money they were expected to receive included: Boyne City, $136,130; Boyne Falls, $4,752; East Jordan, $115,923 and Petoskey $106,707.

The funds are dispersed to school districts based on a formula which on the average enables each school district to provide equal education opportunities for all of the students throughout the state.

Airport Inn purchased by local duo

The Airport Inn has some new owners and soon will have a new name, too.

Richard Selissen and Mark Cross are the new owners of the popular watering hole on U.S. 31 south and "The Flight Deck" will be the new name for the bar next to Paul Bunyan Lanes.

"We're both nautical," Selissen, a recent retiree from the U.S. Coast Guard, said explaining the name change. "But the bar has always been across from the airport. So to combine the two things–the aviation and the nautical–we came up with Flight Deck."

The two brother-in-laws said they weren't planning any other changes for the bar at this time.

"We aren't going to be doing any drastic remodeling at this time," Selissen said. "We're just going to clean the place up a little bit and go from there."

Selissen said he decided to purchase the bar on a whim.

"I was out here one night having a good time and I asked the owner when he was going to sell the place," he explained. "We've been working out the details since then."

Cross, a hospital personnel director in Warren, got involved with the business after his brother-in-law found out the sale would go through.

"I needed a partner," Selissen explained. "And he was interested."

Cross, a Charlevoix native, said he was interested in returning to his hometown after being gone for 18 years.

"But the main attraction was to go into business for myself," Cross explained. "It's a nice feeling to work for yourself after working for someone else."

MARK CROSS and Richard Selissen are the new owners of the Airport Inn south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31. The two men are planning to change the name of the local watering hole to The Flight Deck.

Jerry Wilson earns Ph.D. from Mich. State

The director of Northern Mental Health Centers recently completed work for a doctor of philosophy degree from Michigan State University.

Jerry Wilson, director of the mental health center, has been in that position in Petoskey since 1974. Wilson has helped the center develop a decentralized counselling system in Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Cheboygan counties.

The four offices that are a part of the mental health center include: Petoskey Area Counselling Center, East Jordan Area Counselling Service, Otsego Area Counseling Center and Cheboygan Area Counseling Center.

Wilson is licensed in the state as a certified marriage counselor, certified social worker and holds memberships in the Biofeedback Society of American and the Community Development Society.

He received his master of social work degree from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's in psychology from Olivet Nazarene College.

Schnackenberg joins Thomas Real Estate firm

A new salesman has joined Thomas Real Estate.

Dick Schnackenberg will be working for the company in residential and commercial sales. Schnakenberg, who was formerly employed by Lexalite, said he decided to try his hand at real estate sales because he has always been interested in the field and because he likes the area and is familiar with it.

Following completion of a real estate course at North Central Michigan College, Schnackenberg passed the state licensing test and then joined Thomas Real Estate last week.

Schnackenberg, his wife Lee, and their four children, moved to Charlevoix from Howell 12 years ago.

County road group receives state funds

The Charlevoix County Road Commission received $188,598 as its share of the state's Motor Vehicle Highway fund collected during the fourth quarter of 1977.

This figure showed a slight increase over the figure of $182,085 the county road commission received during the fourth quarter of 1976.

The City of Charlevoix received $18,502 up from $17,683.

A 2.7 percent increase in the state's gasoline sales during the last quarter of 1977 as compared with the same three months in 1976 is responsible for the increase in the amount of money the county road commission and the city street department received, according to State Highway Commission officials.

The small increase, less than half of the 6.1 percent increase in gasoline sales between the same quarters of 1975 and 1976, probably reflects increased registration of lighter weight automobiles and improved engine performances.

The number of motor vehicles registered in Michigan rose by about 270,000 to a record 6.14 million from mid 1976 to mid 1977.

Revenues from the 9 cent a gallon gas tax totaled $103,171,559 during the quarter and the 7 cent a gallon diesel fuel tax produced $6,106,982 for a 9 percent increase.

Weight taxes from the sale of license plates to resident motorists totaled $28,282,586 for an 8.1 percent increase.

The revenue from these taxes is divided between the 83 county road commissions, cities and villages, the Department of State Highways and Transportation, the State Waterways Fund, the General Transportation Fund and for collection costs.

The amount of money each county receives is based on a formula which uses the number of miles of roads and other factors to determine the amount of money each county will receive.

Surrounding counties and the amount of funds they received include: Antrim, $199,786, Emmet, $219,948 and Otsego, $193,401.

Cities and villages in the county which received funds included: Boyne City, $19,486, Boyne Falls, $2,379 and East Jordan $11,086.

State's economy looks pretty good

The economic situation in Michigan looks good for the coming two years, according to the deputy director of the state Office of Management and Budget.

"The economy has definitely turned around and things are improving," William Nugent, deputy director of the state budget office, said.

Nugent was in Charlevoix Friday to address the Council of Social Agencies about Gov. William Milliken's proposed budget for fiscal year 1979. Fiscal year 1979 begins Oct. 1.

The deputy budget director said the job situation in the state had greatly improved since the bottom fell out of the automobile industry in 1973.

"When we went through the recession and the automobile industry laid off its workers, we had an additional 310,000 people unemployed in this state," Nugent said. "That was more people than the entire work force of nine other states."

Nugent was quick to point out that Michigan generally suffers more during an economic setback than most of the rest of the country.

"If the rest of the country gets a cold, Michigan comes down with pnuemonia," Nugent quipped.

But the state has recovered from its economic illness and is in an even healthier state now.

"We now have re-employed those 310,000 people plus we have 250,000 more people working than we did before the recession," Nugent said.

It is partially because of the health business climate that the state has been able to hold the line on the proposed budget for the coming fiscal year.

"The change in the economy and the performance of the Department of Social Services has allowed the state to keep expenses down," Nugent said. "The DSS budget represents one-third of all the state's spending and this is the first time since 1960 that there has been a decline in DSS spending."

The total budget for fiscal year 1979 is $8.7 billion.

Nugent said that as members of the office of management and budget approached the proposed budget, they looked at it with the goal of establishing a responsible budget which included fiscal stability and tax relief.

"We had to determine what our needs were and how to provide fiscal stability while returning the services with tax relief," Nugent explained.

The state is providing fiscal stability in the budget by setting up a "rainy day" fund. Under this idea, any growth in the state revenues over 2 percent is set aside in the fund.

Last year the state experienced "real growth" which doesn't include inflation, of 3.7 percent, so 1.7 percent of that was put in the rainy day fund.

"What we are doing is taxing when times are good and lowering taxes when the economy is bad," Nugent explained.

Nugent said he was also in favor of establishing a sunset law. Under the sunset law, certain programs would be reviewed each year and it could be determined if they should be funded for another year or not.

"However, this method could not be used on all agencies," the deputy director said. "There are some agencies, such as prisons, that you will want to continue every year and so it does no good to review them under sunset conditions."

Some of the highlights of the proposed budget include: funds for heating bill relief, an increase of $61.7 million for higher education, $7.1 million for the Detroit Institute of Arts to help it maintain its world class excellence, a 23 percent increase in funding for the Michigan Council for the Arts, a quadrupling of funds for prison health care and expanded facilities, $470,000 to set up the sunset law review, and continued funding for the study of toxic substances and for problems related to PBB.

Tickets are $3.00 for adults; $2.50 for senior citizens; $1.50 for children under 12 years; children under five years, free and family tickets, $12.50.

Citizens still concerned about energy situation

The energy situation is still one of major concern to the voters in the 11th Congressional District in Michigan.

U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Houghton, recently released the results of his 1977 questionnaire which found that 39 percent of the almost 18,000 people returning the survey felt the energy situation was very serious in this country.

Another 47 percent said they believed the situation was fairly serious and 14 percent said they didn't think the situation was serious at all.

Rep. Ruppe said he was disappointed that the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives could not come to agreement on an energy bill.

"There is no question about the seriousness of our energy problem and the faster Congress moves to enact an effective energy bill, the sooner our country can begin the long process of attaining energy self-sufficiency.

In relation to that, 61 percent of the respondents were opposed to the deregulation of natural gas prices even if it meant an increase in fuel supplies.

Ruppe explained that he favored the gradual relaxation of price controls. "I think this is in the best interest of the consumer and the country even though it is the most unpopular of the two positions," the representative explained. "I don't believe that deregulation should be coupled with a windfall profits tax so gas producers are prohibited from making exorbitant profits."

On the issue of automatic federal minimum wage increases, only 40 percent of the survey respondents approved of it while 60 percent opposed it. And on the issue of using tax dollars to finance Congressional campaigns, 20 percent favored the bill while 80 percent opposed it.

Nagging Backaches

Few ailments can be as aggravating, not to mention painful, as a constant, nagging backache.

Backache may result from a fall, a sudden movement, an accident, a cold, or some completely unnoticed happening

Whatever the contributing factor, the direct cause of the ache and pain is easily traced to a pinched or impinged nerve. Once the pressure or "pinch" is removed, the pain departs and that normal, healthy glow returns.

Dr. Jeffrey Ricks

Home remedies, sedatives and similar treatments may bring temporary relief, but it remains for the chiropractor to tract – through scientific procedures – the cause of the persistent pain and – through gentle adjustments – remove the cause and bring quick, long-lasting, effective relief.

The chiropractor, through training and experience, is thoroughly familiar with the spinal column and the nerves which carry vital nerve energy to all parts of the body. With skillful hands, the chiropractor aligns the spine, removes the irritating pressures and replaces exasperating pain with glowing health and well-being.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS MAINTAIN A TIMELESS VALIDITY

The moral law is intended for all mankind, and it has never been abrogated nor repealed.
-- William C. Procter

"These are the words which the Lord hath commanded, that ye should do them."
– Exodus 35:1

A leader called Moses achieved his renown
By ascending Mount Sinai alone,
To receive the Commandments the Lord handed down
And recorded on tablets of stone.
Now those ten rules of conduct reflected the times,
And to parents and neighbors gave heed,
Plus instructions for worship; while various crimes
Were condemned, with the evils of greed
And though time marches on, human nature remains,
As the Church of your choice will convey,
So the same Ten Commandments the Bible contains
Are as valid as ever today!

Charlevoix youth selected for Nazarene conference

Jim Knight

A Charlevoix High School student has been chosen as one of 39 teenagers from across the state to represent Michigan at the Church of the Nazarene World Youth Conference.

Jim Knight, a freshman at the high school, was selected as a representative based on a personal interview and school and community activities as well as church participation.

Knight was a member of the freshman football and basketball teams and is in the marching and concert bands. He is also active in the youth group at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, where he is youth treasurer and the teen representative for the Grand Traverse Zone Council.

The Nazarene World Youth Conference is held every four years. This year's conference will be held in Estes Park, Col., at the YMCA of the Rockies Conference Center July 18-23.

In addition to experiences in worship, devotion and fellowship the conference will also acquaint them with the international church as well as equip them for services in the church in a discipling ministry.

All of the participants in the conference will be high school students in grades 9-12.

Bands, speech teams win during weekend competition

By LAURA GLASS

Saturday was an important day for both the speech team and the concert and symphony bands of Charlevoix High School.

For the two bands it was the day of district competition and for the speech team it was the first forensic tournament of the season held at Essexville-Garbor High School.

Both groups returned victorious. The speech team placed first with their multiple group reading, "Pardon Me, Is this Planet Taken?" Members of the multiple group included: Matt Stangis, Scott Swanson, Steve Hufford, Craig Boss and John Grooters.

Placing third in extemporaneous speaking was Ann Marie Watson. Others who participated in the speech competition were: Sue Miller, oratory; Pam Sutherland, and Laurie Dusdal, radio news broadcasting; Laura Glass and Carla Sizemore, humorous interpretation; Janet VanWieren, Louise Caldwell, Deby Totlas, Chris Pidek and Mary Egler, story telling and Kristy Mathews, serious interpretation; and Corinne Ranger and Anne Henderson, dramatic duo.

Connie Ford is the speech team coach.

The symphony and concert bands returned victorious from the district competition held at Petoskey High School, where they competed against 11 schools.

The symphony band received straight Is for its performance. The concert band received three Is and a II in district competition.

The bands are required to plan on preselected number and then two songs of their choice during the competition. They then advance to the sight reading part of the competition.

During the sight reading the band receives two pieces of music – a march and a concert piece – and it is given a certain amount of time to practice the music.

The two Charlevoix bands will now advance to state competition April 1. The bands were directed by Gary Stutzman.

Schools participating in the district competition were: Posen, Gaylord, Cheboygan, Inland Lakes, Harbor Springs, Johannesburg-Lewiston, Littlfield, Onaway, Petoskey, Boyne City, Rogers City and Charlevoix.

4-H sponsors 2 energy contests for area youth

With energy becoming more scarce and expensive, it is important for people to become aware of energy usage and methods of conservation.

To help youth learn more about energy conservation, the Michigan 4-H has developed two new programs designed to encourage young people think about energy usage, according to Bob Bellairs, Charlevoix County 4-H program assistant.

"Energy conservation can be applied to areas other than space heating, electricity and gasoline," Bellaires said. "We would like young people to think about conserving energy in all phases of their life including the clothing that they wear."

So the state 4-H developed "Reach for the Stars," a clothing design contest for youth aged 12-19. Participants in the contest will [illegible]n an outfit or piece of clothing which conserves body heat or recycles materials already on hand.

The 50 winning designers will receive a $15 scholarship to Exploration Days at Michigan State University, June 22-24. The winners will also attend a special staging session that covers lighting, technical assistance, sound and choreography in preparation for modeling their designs for the public June 24.

The second program is aimed at youngsters in the third through sixth grades. Students are asked to draw a cartoon or comic strip depicting their solutions to the energy crunch in a special cartoon contest.

Entrants in this contest will receive an energy sticker with the top 100 cartoonists also receiving an energy T-shirt. Winning cartoons will be printed in a comic book and displayed at Energy Day '78 at MSU June 24.

Any Charlevoix County youth interested in entering the contests should contact Bellairs at P.O. Box 119, Boyne City, 49712, or call 582-6232.

Armed Forces recruiters visit high school recently

A group of five recruiters from the various branches of the Armed Forces visited Charlevoix High School recently.

High school counselor Charles Bentley invited the recruiters from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Army National Guard to the school to talk with junior and senior students.

"I see the armed forces as a reasonable alternative to a job or college for graduating seniors," Bentley explained.

"I think with the advent of volunteer service and since we are not in a situation where students are being forced to join the service against their will that this is something the students should look into.

"The program, the money and the education that the services has to offer could be very valuable to a lot of kids."

A large number of Charlevoix High School students have enlisted in the various branches of the armed forces in the past, Bentley said. In 1977, 10 students of a graduating class of 140 joined up while eight of 112 students joined in 1976.

Bentley said four students that he knew of had already entered the service under the delayed entry program.

Approximately 75 students talked with the recruiters during the three hours they were at the school.

"The discipline and organization are a small price to pay for the opportunity for travel, training and education that the service offers," Bentley said. "I think it's something students should look very carefully at before making a decision."

James Marshall appointed ombudsman at Central

A Charlevoix student has been elected a board member of the Central Michigan University Student Association.

James Marshall, a junior at the university, is the ombudsman of the student association which is composed of elected and appointed students representing student interests, goals and needs at Central. The student group works in cooperation with academic and administrative officials to improve the academic, social and psycholgical environment at the university.

Services of the student association include free legal counseling, off campus housing information, entertainment, environmental information, women and minority rights information and health counseling.

Marshall is the son of Marilyn and James Marshall of Charlevoix.

COUNCIL MINUTES
FEBRUARY 20, 1978
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Wallace, and Morris. Absent: Alderman Erber.

The Minutes of the February 6, 1978 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council recessed to the Board of Appeals to discuss two separate variance requests.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all Council members present.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wallace to appoint Judy Przybylski, City Clerk, as representative for the EPA Step II Sewer Planning Grant. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, and Morris. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $313,093.65 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Whitley that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, and Morris. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

BOARD OF APPEALS
FEBRUARY 20, 1978

The Board of Appeals convened with Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Wallace, and Morris present. Absent: Alderman Erber.

Mr. Ralph Bergsma appeared before the Board of Appeals to present a request for a variance at Lots 1, 2, and 3 of Block 17 of the Original Plat of the City of Charlevoix to allow construction of an eighteen unit condominium to be known as Captain's Watch. Enter Alderman Erber. Mayor Hansen advised the Board of Appeals that the property is presently zoned partially Commercial and partially R-2 but that it must conform to the R-4 zoning laws if used for construction of a multiple dwelling unit. The plans presented by Mr. Bergsma would require reducing the east side yard setback to 28' and the west side yard setback to 38' as well as a possible height variance. Members of the General Public present expressed their opinions for and against the requested variances. Mayor Hansen stated that, in order for Council to grant a variance, Mr. Bergsma must prove that not granting it would cause him undue hardship, practical difficulty, or, that it would be in the best interest of the City for the City for the variance to be granted. In reply, Mr. Bergsma stated that he is being caused an undue hardship as similar projects have been allowed to build to the lot line and that the best interest of the City would be served in that his condominium project would be preferable to certain commercial uses which are allowable under the present zoning.

The Board of Appeals generally agreed to discuss the matter further at the Committee of the Whole meeting on February 27, 1978, and to set a Board of Appeals meeting for March 6, 1978 to determine the matter.

Ron Steffes appeared before the Board of Appeals on behalf of Clark Matthews who wishes to construct an eight unit condominium on his property, Lots 6 to 13 of Block 19 of newman's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, proposed project to be known as Belvedere Apartments. Mr. Steffes stated that the proposed plan will require a 4' 4" variance of the east side yard setback and a 8' variance of the 35' height requirement in order to comply with the R-4 zoning requirements. Several owners of property in the area of the proposed condominium stated that they objected strongly to the project as it would block their view of Round Lake. Mayor Hansen and Councilman Plumm also presented written statements from other area property owners objecting to the proposed project. Other members of the General Public present also stated their opinions for and against the project. Harvey Varnum, an attorney representing Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hufford, stated that his clients view would be completely blocked by the condominium and that, in his opinion, this would be an infringement of their rights. He also sited other requirements of the R-4 zoning laws not complied with in the present design of the project including the density requirement. Mr. Steffes stated that an extreme hardship has been created for Mr. Matthews as the property is extremely restricted and it is not economically feasible to comply with the zoning requirements.

The Board of Appeals agreed to discuss the matter further at the Committee of the Whole meeting on February 27, 1978, and to schedule a Board of Appeals meeting for March 6, 1978 to determine the matter.

The Board of Appeals adjourned to the regular Council meeting.

Judy D. Przybylski, City Clerk

Kevin Martin visits Cape Canaveral

A Charlevoix resident recently traveled to Cape Canaveral, Fla., for a tour of the base.

Kevin Martin attended the three-day field trip with 41 cadets in the Michigan Technological University Air Force ROTC program. Included in the trip were visits to the Air Force's Space Museum near Patrick Air Force Base and NASA's Kennedy Space Center. Transportation was provided by C-130 Globemasters, the Air Force's tactical airlift transports.

Martin is a junior majoring in civil engineering.

This is a tale of two tomatoes

This is a tale of two tomatoes and the lady who grew them.

Lillian Moore of Charlevoix is quite a gardener. The soon-to-be 94-year-old lady has tomatoes growing on the vine, in the dead of winter yet. And she's tickled red—er, pink—about it.

Mrs. Moore lives in an apartment above Gebeau's Grocery Store on Lincoln St. Because it's hard for her to get around during the winter, she contents herself with tending to her houseplants and other projects.

The tomato plants are her pride and joy. She grew them from seed and pollinated them herself so that they would bear tomatoes.

She began working on the tomato project last spring when a friend gave her a fresh tomato.

"When I cut the tomato, the seeds just looked so nice and the tomato was so nice that I decided to try and sprout them," Mrs. Moore explained.

"I grew up on a farm and we were always planting something, if you know what I mean. So I decided to give these seeds a try."

She took a spoonful of the tomato seeds and placed them in a pot and waited.

"Four days later, I had a spoonful of plants," she said smiling. "I took out all of the plants except for two and let them grow."

And grow they did—straight up. Soon they produced flowers and with a toothpick, Mrs. Moore pollinated the blossoms of one plant with the pollen from the other plant and vice versa.

"I said I was going to have tomatoes by Christmas and I did," she exclaimed. "I noticed that I have some more new sprouts in the plants. Maybe I'll get some more flowers and have even more tomatoes."

Mrs. Moore said she wasn't going to eat the tomatoes because she wanted to save them to prove to her friends that it could be done.

NINETY-FOUR-YEAR-OLD Lillian Moore is quite a gardener. She has gotten her tomato plants to bear fruit in the middle of winter. Because it is hard for Mrs. Moore to get around in the ice and snow she devotes time to her gardening with this result.

Parents may register children for fluoride clinic until March 10

Parents have until March 10 to enroll their children in this summer's topical fluoride program in Charlevoix.

Children eligible for the program include three and four-year-old preschoolers, second graders, fifth graders and eighth graders who drink water from private wells or from nonfluoridated public water systems, Jane Freidinger, chairman of the project, said.

Eighth graders who have lived in the Charlevoix area less than seven years, fifth graders who have lived here less than five years and second graders and preschoolers with less than three years residence in the area are also eligible for the program.

Most of the children in Charlevoix have had the benefit of fluoridated water during the time that their teeth were developing and will receive no additional benefits from the topical applications of fluoride.

Parents may enroll their children in the fluoride clinic by returning the registration cards that were distributed to the children or by contacting Mrs. Freidinger at 547-6478. The fee for the clinic is $5.

The fluoride treatment consists of four visits to the clinic which will be held in the basement of the Charlevoix Public Library. The children's teeth are cleaned on the first visit and a fluoride solution is applied directly to the surface of the teeth. At the following three clinics only the fluoride solution is applied.

Fluoride application has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about 40 percent as compared with 60 to 65 percent reduction obtained with fluoridated water.

In addition to providing protection against cavities, the program offers a valuable dental experience for children. The clinic personnel provide dental health education including instruction in the proper methods of brushing teeth.

Hospital room scene of local couple's wedding

Room 12 of the Charlevoix Area Hospital was the scene Thursday of the wedding of Mrs. Luana Klama of Charlevoix and Norman A. Sulkowski of East Jordan.

Magistrate Marilyn Blauman officiated at the service in the presence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Simmons of Burbank, Ill., who were the only attendants.

Why the hospital? Mrs. Klama had been injured in a two-car accident on M-66 on Feb. 17 and remained in the hospital for treatment as the date they had planned for their wedding approached.

"Rather than change the date, we decided to be married as planned despite the accident." The present Mrs. Sulkowski explained.

She was discharged from the hospital the following day.

The couple will reside in Charlevoix.

Sulkowski is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William June of Beaverton.

Rayder hoopmen win last game of season

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity basketball squad closed out its season on a winning note with the decisive defeat of tough rivals Rogers City Hurons.

The Rayders came out running for a victory from the first minute of the first quarter and victory was what they got. The Rayders ended the game 79-70.

The Rayders were hot the first quarter and they dumped in 21 points to the Hurons meager 12. The points were well spread out among the players as Pat Schmidt and Bob Plumm both hit for six points and Joe Left and Steve Schuch each popped for four points.

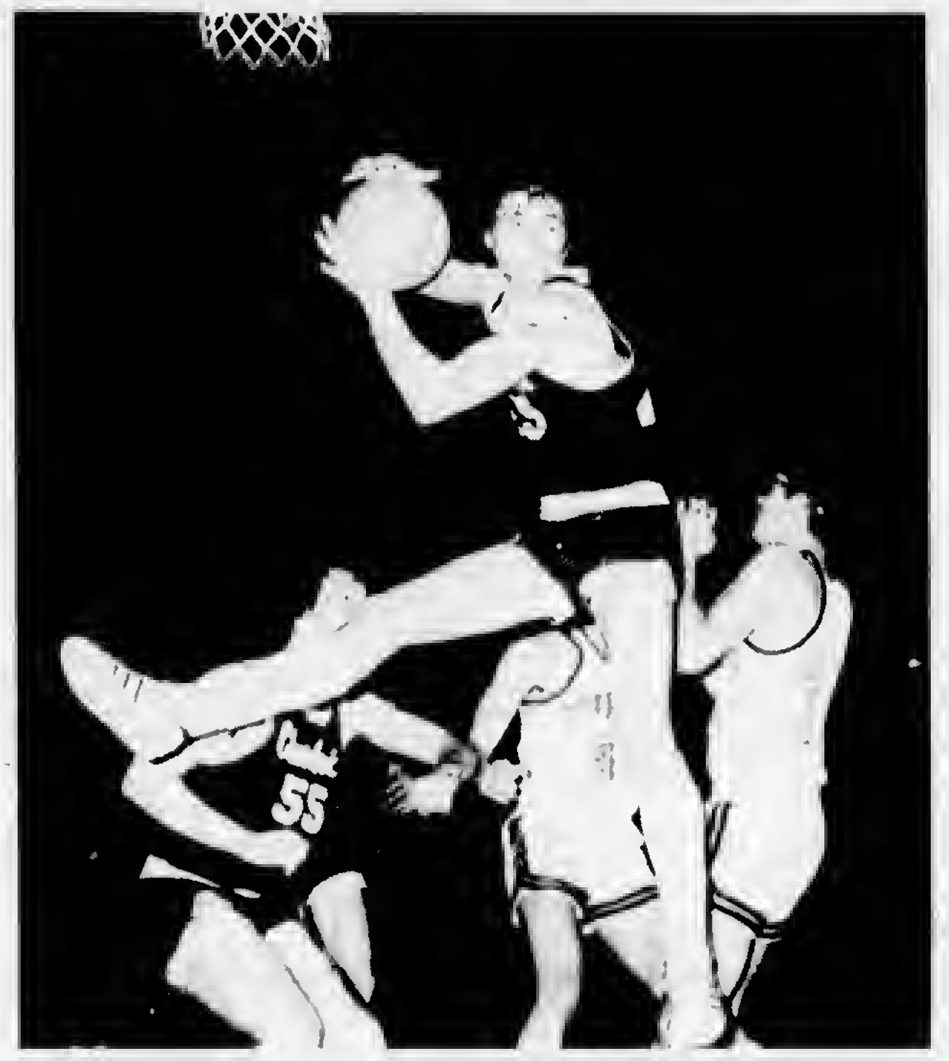
The sluggish Hurons came back in the second period to whittle the Rayder's "nine-point lead down" to a mere three points with a half time score of 40-37. Both teams helped each other gain points as they went to the free throw line for nine points a piece.

Free throws were an important part of the game as the Rayders earned 25 of its total 79 points at the free throw line and the Hurons made 18 of their 70 points at the charity stripe.

During the third period, both teams came out ready to win, but the Rayders outscored the Hurons by hitting for 19 points while the Hurons could only see tha basket for 15 points. This gave the Rayders a solid seven-point lead as they went into the final quarter of play.

As in the first period scoring, the final 20 points sunk by the Rayders were split between six players in a solid scoring attack. A total of 12 points were given to the Ryaders at the charity stripe ond they hit the basket from the field for the remaining eight points.

The Hurons hit for 22 points in the final period, but they couldn't overcome the Rayders.



STEVE SCHUCH played a terrific rebounding game Friday night against the Rogers City Hurons. Charlevoix took the game 79-70 during their final night of season play.

JUMPING JACK Neil Dziedzic was determined not to let this shot get through the hoop during the Rayder's last game of the season against Rogers City.

Volleyball team loses to Gaylord squad

It was a battle to the finish during the exciting Charlevoix Rayder volleyball team meet against the Gaylord Blue Devils.

The Gaylord team took the first round 15-12, but Charlevoix bounced back to take the second match 15-9. Then Gaylord came back to take the third game 15-1 and the fourth game 15-12.

It was Parent's Night for the Rayders and the girls honored their parents and Coach Mary Gengle during pregame ceremonies.

The junior vorsity volleyball squad fared o little better Wednesday night winning two of three gnmes against the Blue Devils. Charlevoix won the first game 15-11 and lost the second one 15-3. The Rayders came back to take the final game 15-11.

Freshmen win final game

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball team ended its season on a winning note last week. The freshman Rayders defeated the Harbor Springs team 60-47.

The Rayders took control of the game from the very start leading in the first period 20-16. By half time the Rayders hnd added another 19 points to the score while holding the Harbor Rams to a mere seven additional points for a score of 39-23. In the third period the Rayders were cold hitting for only an additional 10 points while the Rams threw in 14 points.

But the Rayders held on to win the game.

High point men for the Rayders were Jeff Drury with 26 points and Ben Shores with 12 points.

On the Harbor Springs side, Jerry Keller had 12 points and Kevin Worthington had 20.

Obituary

Mayme I. Staley

Funeral services for Mrs. Albert (Mayme I.) Staley, 80, who died Tuesday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a patient for nine days, were held Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Walter Hastings of Community Church of God, the Rev. Austin Regler of the United Methodist Church and the Rev. Daniel Abner of the First Baptist church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

The former Mayme I. Spring was born in Daverton, Ohio, May 25, 1897, and later lived in Detroit before moving to Charlevoix in 1940. In 1941 she was married to Mr. Staley who preceded her in death in February 1971. She was a member of the Community Church of God.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Walter (Virginia) Jarvis and Mrs. Betty Inman, both of Charlevoix; four grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; a step-son, Clarence Staley, and two step-grandchildren.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Staley's memory contribute in her name to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Community Church of God or the charity of their choice.

Harry Cooper

ELLSWORTH — Funeral services for Harry Cooper, 78, who died Thursday at the Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility at Bellaire where he had been a patient for three months, were held Saturday at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. The Rev. Warren Lammers officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

Born in Chicago May 23, 1899, Mr. Cooper came to Banks township with his parents in 1900. He operated a farm in Banks township until 1965 when he retired and worked for several years for Shooks Wood Products of Central Lake. He was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. On Feb. 27, 1927, he was married to the former Persis VanderStreek at Ellsworth.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Herman, of Grand Rapids; two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Kaye) Arnold of Central Lake and Mrs. James (Mildred) Peck of East Jordan; six grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Helen Jansen of Ellsworth, Mrs. Gerrit Bergsma and Mrs. John Bergsma, both of Grand Rapids.

The Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Gabrielle Lee Swanson

Funeral services for Gabrielle Lee Swanson, two-day-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Swanson, were held Thursday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Austin Regler of the United Methodist church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born Feb. 19, 1978, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He died Tuesday, Feb. 21, at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a twin brother, Kraig; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Meggison; his maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Clarence B. Meggison; his maternal great-grandfather, Herman Kaske of Petoskey and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Swanson.

Ellen Cook Chew

Ellen Cook Chew died Jan. 26 at Browns Nursing Home in Middleton. Services were held Jan. 30 at the Dewey Funeral Home in Alma, Dr. Donald Scranton of the Methodist Church officiating.

Mrs. Chew was born March 10, 1903, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Edwin and Clara Ann Cook. She was a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Western State College of Kalamazoo.

She taught second grade in Charlevoix from 1934-36. She married Galo Chew in June, 1936, and moved to Alma where she taught until her retirement.

She is survived by her husband, a son Richard of Lansing, one brother, Frank Cook of Detroit, three sisters, Mrs. Ed (Effie) Weldy of East Jordan, Mrs. Stanley (Hilda) Maritratt of Clawson and Mrs. Robert (Bernice) Needham of Alma.

Rayder wrestlers finish ninth in Class C state finals Saturday

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers continued with their string of firsts last weekend as the team set more school records at the state Class C wrestling meet.

The Rayders finished ninth in the state, the first time ever that the team has finished among the top 10 teams in the state at the meet.

Craig Golovich, 138 pounds, took a runner-up title, as he lost the final match to Jerry Winsor of Fulton-Middleton. Winsor is a former Class C state champ.

Golovich finished his high school wrestling career with a 96 win, 29 loss and one tie record.

Finishing in seventh place in the state were: Ron Hilton, 119 pounds, Mike Kiteley, 132 pounds, and Greg Loper, heavyweight. Each of these wrestlers won their first two matches before losing the last two to finish in seventh place.

Hilton finished his high school career with a new school record of 102 victories during high school wrestling, 36 losses and one tie.

Ande Keller, a junior, also attended the state meet, but he lost his first two matches in the 178 pound class.

Taking the Class C state title was New Lathrop with 174 points while Montrose, the defending champions, came in second with 129 points.

The rest of the teams placing in the top ten in order were: Haslett, DeWitt, Shelby, Edwardsburg, Flint Bendle, Marlette, Charlevoix and Perry.

Townhouse, Swansons, Site Planning win last week

Townhouse, Swansons and Site Planning were all victors in Charlevoix Recreation Department A League action last week.

In the first game of the evening, Townhouse defeated Foam Corps 73-45. Townhouse opened with a slim three-point lead in the first period at 16-13. But the score jumped to 34-23 by halftime and then to 59-38 at the end of the third period.

Top scorers for Townhouse were Ike Bass and Dan McKenzie both with 16 points and Spook Coleman and Jerome Harris each with 10 points a piece.

For Foam Corps, Steve Michaels had 16 points.

In the second game of the evening Swansons ran over Bobs Sunoco 81-47. Swansons took control of the game in the first period with a 12-6 score which expanded to 29-19 by halftime. Swansons added another 22 points in the third period to increase the score to 47-30.

For Swansons, Dave Moyer had 18 points while Bruce Meggison put in 15 points and Dave Swanson had 12 points.

On the other side, Chuck Pelham had 10 points and Jack Danbert had 12 points for Bob's Sunoco.

In the final game of the evening, Site Planning squeaked by Kadens 61-59. Site Planning opened with a three point lead in the first period at 14-11. But Kadens came back to take a one point lead at halftime at 30-29. Kadens held onto the lead in the third period with a score of 48-44, but Site Planning came back to dump in 27 points in the final period to Kadens 11 points.

High pointmen for Site Planning were Dennis Dominic with 20 points, Mike Bade, 14 points, Paul Osterberg, 13 points and Tim Carey, 10 points.

For Kadens, Al Looze had 27 points, Tom Beyers had 11 points and Jeff Eaton had 10 points.

Beginning bowler makes 7-10 split

Anything can happen when you're bowling and it usually does. Just ask Debbie Sutton.

Twelve-year-old Debbie bowls in the Middle School League on Saturday mornings at Paul Bunyan Lanes. This is her first year as a bowler and her average settles at around 87.

Debbie Sutton

But last week, Debbie did something during her first year of bowling that most people don't accomplish in their entire lifetime. She made a 7-10 split.

"A 7-10 split is very difficult to make," Mrs. Stan Fiodorek, co-owner of the bowling alley, explained. "It's very out of the ordinary for anyone to make that split, especially a first year bowler."

Debbie, a seventh grader at the Charlevoix Middle School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sutton.

March Madness

MARCH ROARED INTO CHARLEVOIX like a lion this year. Temperatures well below zero have been the norm rather than the exception this year. But the cold temperatures have brought a little beauty to the area, too, as is exhibited by the ice formations on this tree in East Park in downtown Charlevoix.

Council adopts zoning, denies variances for condos

Zoning issues highlighted the Charlevoix Common Council meeting again this week.

In a 5-1 vote, the council adopted a new zoning ordinance for the city. Council also unanimously rejected two variance proposals for proposed condominium units in the city.

The resolution to adopt the proposed new zoning ordinance was introduced by First Ward Alderman Susan Erber.

"This ordinance is no different from the one in Boyne City, East Jordan or Harbor Springs," Mrs. Erber said. "We, and I mean this council, ad hoc committees and others have taken this ordinance and tried to make it fit Charlevoix and meet the city's needs as best we could."

Mrs. Erber said she felt one very important part of the ordinance was that it provided for the establishment of a planning commission.

"I feel at this time that the council does need the help of a planning commission in the site plan review and other planning areas," she said. "And I think it is important to have this commission."

"I know that this document is not perfect and that there will have to be changes. But the council as a whole does not have the time to devote to this and I think a planning commission is needed to keep planning and zoning going in this city."

Mrs. Erber saids one of the reasons she has been such a staunch supporter of the new zoning ordinance has been because of the imput she received from citizens in the community.

"Everyone wants a new zoning ordinance," she said. "Especially when it doesn't affect his property."

Various planning commissions, city councils and consultants have been working on a proposed new zoning ordinance for the city for the past 10 years. During the last year alone, common council has held three public hearings to try and get the document to a workable point.

The newly adopted ordinance takes effect 20 days following publication. Mrs. Erber said the common council would begin considering names for appointment to the planning commission at next Monday's committee of the whole meeting.

Anyone who would like to be considered for an appointment to the commission should submit his or her name to the city administrator's office.

In other action, the council turned down a request for variances to construct a proposed 18-unit condominium on Park Avenue. The variance request was made by Ralph Bergsma for a development called Captain's Watch.

Bergsma requested a setback variance which left 12 feet between the building and the lot line on both sides and a variance for a decrease in parking spaces from 45 to 41 spaces.

Several city residents and property owners attended the meeting to protest the granting of the variances. Most of the objections to the variances came from residents of the Sand Castle condominium, which would be next to the Captain's Watch condo.

Michael Gibbons, attorney for one of the residents, stated that his client had no specific objections to the condominium proposal.

"But he objects to the magnitude of the proposal," Gibbons explained.

Another Sand Castle resident also said he had no objections to the condominium development, but he felt the setback variances should not be allowed.

"I think you should retain the setbacks so that the total street retains its value," the resident said. "If this project is allowed to go in with no setbacks it won't do anybody any good. It will destroy the value of the property."

Council turned down the proposal unanimously with one member Joe Morris, abstaining. Morris is employed with Ski and Shore Properties, of Charlevoix, which was working with Bergsma on the development.

The second condominium proposal for eight units on Belvedere Avenue next to the Wharf Condominium was also denied unanimously.

Ron Steffes and Jack Begrow were requesting a 4 foot 4 inch side yard setback, a 47 foot front yard setback and a 7 foot height variance.

"Everyone knows this is a hardship piece of property," Begrow told council. "It's been around a long time and nothing's been able to be built on it."

Council however felt differently and turned down the request. Several neighbors were also on hand to object to the height and density of the project.

Local income tax deductions average $4,130, statistics show

Were the charitable donations made by Charlevoix County residents in the past year larger or smaller than those made by most other people in their income brackets?

Were their medical expenditures, local taxes and interest charges higher or lower?

Taxpayers who are busy assembling their income and expense figures for 1977, in preparation for their annual encounter with Uncle Sam, will be interested to know how their deductible expenditures compare with the average.

Some guidance in this direction, for those who itemize their deductions, comes from the Commerce Clearing House, an authority on business and tax law, based upon data released by the Internal Revenue Service.

It has prepared a breakdown detailing just how much the average taxpayer in each income category has been listing for contributions, medical costs and the like.

In general throughout the country, it reports, families with earnings corresponding to the Charlevoix County average have been deducting a total of $4,130, which is equivalent to about 24 percent of their adjusted gross income.

For those with incomes that are larger than the local average, the amounts deducted are usually greater, but they represent a smaller percentage of their earnings. The converse is true for those with lower incomes.

The total deductions of Charlevoix County families with earnings of $17,500, for example, will come to about $3,960 if they conform to the average. Those with incomes of $9,500 will be listing close to $3,250 if they match the norm.

Of the $4,130 in total deductions taken generally by families with incomes approximating the local average, $460 is for contributions, $1,710 for interest on loans and other obligations, $1,450 for state and local taxes and $510 for medical and dental expenses.

Questions Assessments

I want to comment on this year's assessed value on my property. I just noticed that it's gone up by 32 percent between 1977 and 1978. I don't know who's responsible for the assessment or why they had to increase it by that much, but as far as I am concerned it's most ridiculous and I myself will go over backwards to vote for the tax limitation proposal for this November, because this has got to stop. People can not just keep increasing assessments and taxes without matching increases in income. Thank you.

Assessments Have Gone Up, Too

This is concerning the assessment notices we got today, I presume that you are getting a lot of calls on the subject of taxes. But, the people who had an average of 223 percent rise in their taxes got it easy. In ten years, our assessed valuation increased 960½ percent. Our property is now at assessed valuation of over $20,000, but in no way, could we sell our property for $40,000. In past years, applying to the Board of Review and trying to appeal these things hasn't done one particle of good. I don't know what's going on and hardly anybody else does either.

P.S.

School board to seek approval of expansion

The Charlevoix Board of Education has called a special election on April 24 to vote on a $3.2 million bond issue for an expansion and renovation program at Charlevoix High School.

In approving the election and setting the date the board explained that the building has been overcrowded for years and the expansion and renovation program would bring it in line with enrollment needs projected through 1985.

The proposed program also includes expansion of library facilities so the school can retain its accreditation, updating of science and home ec labs to meet present day needs; saving of energy by closing in the breezeway; elimination of the portable classrooms which are in need of extensive repairs alleviate the problem in the cafeteria which allows only a small percentage of the student body to be served at one time; allowing the school to conform with the requirements of Title IX which requires facilities for all students, boys and girls; allowing room for all physical education for all students and facilities for nine sports as compared to the three offered when the school was constructed.

Thomas Caldwell, director of Social Education for the Char-Em District, addressed the board on the benefits of constructing rooms in the existing schools in order to integrate special education students into the schools. The proposal was discussed briefly but no action was taken.

The mandatory breakfast program was discussed. Supt. Gordon W. Vanwieren advised the board it would have to make a decision regarding the program which he called "an unnecessary mandated program which is taking the responsibility from the family and placing it in the schools." He said school buses would have to run one-half hour earlier if the school was to participate in the program.

Charles Elzinga, chairman of the library committee, reported to the board on recommendations for the Charlevoix Public Library which is operated by the school system.

The board also wants to extend library hours until 10 p.m. on Wednesday evenings to allow students additional time to utilize the library and opening the library at 10 a.m.

City residents may face electric power black outs if coal strike isn't settled

The black outs are coming. The black outs are coming.

Mayor Edward Hansen informed Charlevoix Common Council Monday night that Consumers Power Company had been in touch with the city about cutbacks in electrical power supplies.

Mayor Hansen said Consumers Power, which supplies the city with wholesale power which the city sells to its residents, would begin cutting back the power supply to various customers when its coal reserves reach a 30-day supply. Hansen estimated the company had about a 45-day supply at the present time.

Hansen said the power company suggested residents and businesses take all the power saving measures they could such as turning down thermostats and turning off display lights.

The mayor said city electrical crews had been working on the diesel generator in the electrical plant and checking out how to hook it up in case the generator was needed for a back up if the coal strike is not settled. Hansen said the city needs a cooling system for the engine to make it operational.

City seeks people for plan unit

Charlevoix Common Council is looking for a few good men—and women to serve on the newly established Charlevoix Planning Commission.

Now that the common council has adopted the proposed new zoning ordinance, it must appoint a seven-member planning commission to carry out the work of the zoning ordinance.

The council is requesting that anyone who is interested in serving on the body contact the city administrator's office before next Monday. Council will consider names of appointees at the committee of the whole meeting next Monday night.

What to look for in air charters

Air charters are the original bargain in air transportation. Millions have taken advantage of this low-cost alternative to schedule flights, especially when schedule and convenience are secondary to cost.

Even in this day of discount air fares, charters still offer some of the lowest-priced flights available—if you are careful enough to check all details before you invest. A new booklet from the Civil Aeronautics Board, Consumers' Guide to Air Charters, explains eight different types of charters, their requirements, and some charter pitfalls to watch out for. For a free copy, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 825F, Pueblo, Colo 81009.

Charters cost less because their price reflects the actual cost of flying a full plane one time over a specific route. But charters are organized by independent charter organizers, not the airlines who fly them. When you join a charter, your contract is with this organizer and you agree to his terms regarding money and schedules. Booking and payment requirements vary with each trip. Cancellation and refund privileges are limited. And often you must accept changes in price, flight schedules, or even complete cancellation of the trip.

So when you decide on a charter, you accept limited flexibility in exchange for the economy of group travel. But because of charter requirements, prospective travelers should know exactly what they want and what a charter can offer them. Here are a few (but not all) of the questions which each charter contract should answer:

1. Who is the charter organizer and what airlines is involved?
2. What are the sign up, cancellation, and refund rules?
3. Where and when do I get final information about the flight?
4. What are the exact details of the flight schedule? These should include the exact dates of travel both ways, the origin and destination airports, the type of charter, and the type of aircraft to be used.
5. Is there a surety bond or escrow account established?

Rev. Ernest Knight named chaplain for Grandvue group

The pastor of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene has been selected by the Charlevoix County Ministerial Association as chaplain of Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Ernest I. Knight, pastor of the church, succeeds Rev. Arden K. Barden, who recently moved to Wisconsin.

Knight is a graduate of Lincoln Park High School, in Lincoln Park, and has studied at Bethel College in Mishawaka, Ind., Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, and Nazarene Bible College, Colorado Springs, Colo.

He began a Home Mission Church in Mishawaka, served at the State Line Indiana Church of the Nazarene and as the director of Christian Education, youth director and director of Nursing Home Ministries.

Rev. Knight and his wife, Barbara, are the parents of four children James, Susie, Edward and David. The family resides at 201 Clinton St., Charlevoix.

Chimney sweeps enjoying revival of work

Earl Weir

It's a magical, mystical world that comes to mind when the words chimney sweep are spoken.

Visions of men in top hats and tall coats standing high on the roof tops pop into mind along with the tune of a song from Walt Disney's movie version of "Mary Poppins."

"Good luck will rub off when he shakes hands with you," part of the song goes.

But once you get past the storybook tales of chimney sweeps, they begin to look a little less magical and a little more practical. Chimney sweeps are more important than ever these days, according to Earl Weir of Charlevoix.

Weir, who has just opened a chimney sweep business in town, said he decided to become a sweep as a matter of practicality.

"There's a definite need for chimney sweeps and their services," Weir explained. "Especially with the energy situation and the emphasis on wood stoves and fireplaces.

"There's a lot of chimneys that need cleaning and people aren't even aware of it."

Weir explained that fly ash and creosote build up in the chimneys and can heat up to about 3000 degrees. Once the particles get that hot they will catch on fire in the chimney and come blasting out as hot coals that can set the roof as well as the chimney on fire.

Weir said he first learned about chimney sweeps by watching them in Germany while he was stationed there with the U.S. Army.

"I watched them for a while and got fascinated with them," Weir said. "It's really quite an art."

Weir, who does carpentry and masonry work in the Charlevoix area, said he decided to run a "feeler ad" in the classified section of the Charlevoix Courier to see if anyone needed a chimney sweep last year.

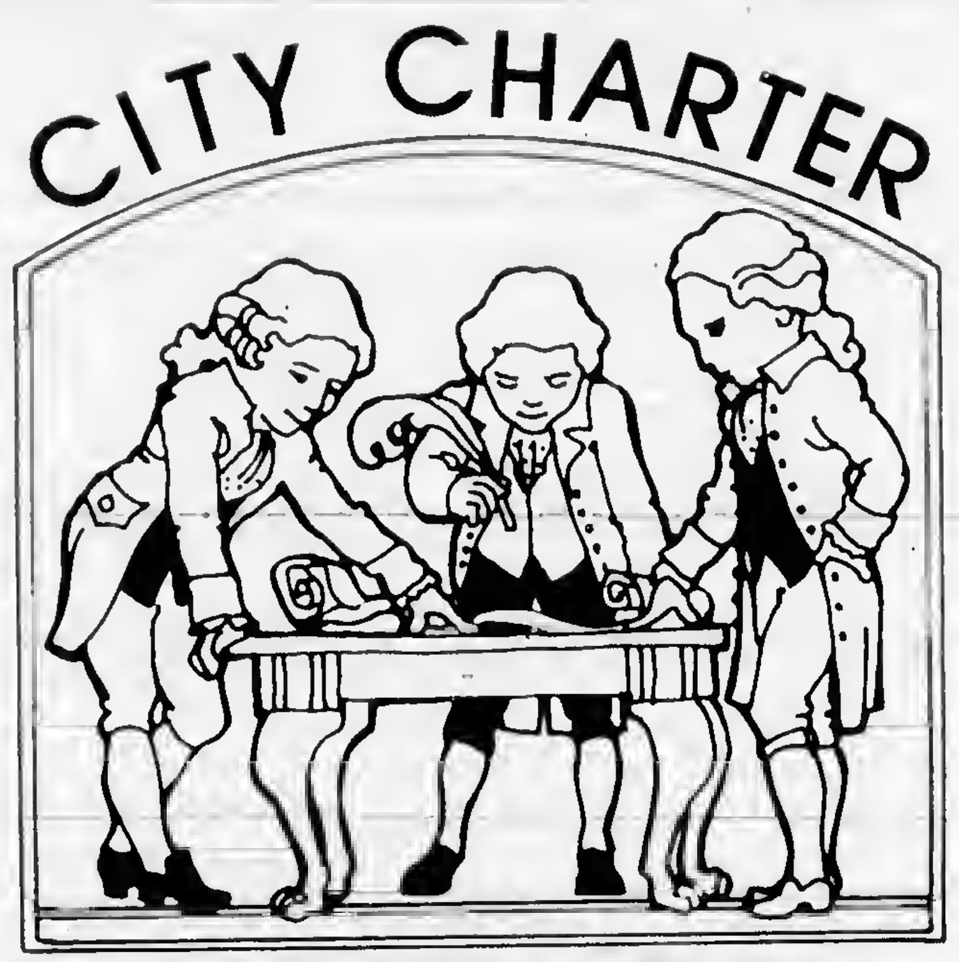
"I got a few jobs from that and through trial and error, I learned how to clean chimneys," he explained. "I cleaned a few chimneys practically for free so that I could get the experience."

Now that he's got the first few chimneys under his belt, Weir is ready to clean chimneys full time. He uses a big steel brush and a vaccum cleaner to take the soot out of the chimneys.

Weir said he just wears regular work clothes to clean chimneys out. He doesn't have a top hat or a tail coat in his wardrobe.

"My dad has an old top hat that I would like to get to wear," he explained. "But someone offered him $100 just for the box he keeps it in, so I know I won't be able to afford the hat."

Weir said he feels lucky anyway and with any luck his new business will bring him more.



CITY CHARTER COMMISSION

EDITOR'S NOTE: A vote on a proposed new charter for the City of Charlevoix will be held during the General Election April 3. This will be the third and last vote that can be held on the proposed charter.

Charter commission members have worked long hours over the last three years writing a home rule charter for the city. The first proposed charter was rejected by city residents, so charter commission members went back to the drawing board to write a charter that suited more people. The second attempt was also rejected.

Now the commission has come up with a third, totally different proposal. The following comparison shows that the new charter proposes as compared with what the current charter provides. The comparison was prepared by the Charlevoix Charter Commission.

COMPARISON OF 4TH CLASS CITY ACT AND CHARLEVOIX HOME RULE CHARTER - THIRD DRAFT

4TH CLASS CITY ACT	HOME RULE CHARTER - THIRD DRAFT
FORM OF GOVERNMENT: Elected Council and Mayor. Office of City Manager unknown at time Act was written. Strong part-time Mayor form of Government. Little or no professional assistance and guidance for Mayor and Council. No focus of responsibility on either Mayor or Council. Requires partisan elections. Mayor has the sole power of appointments. Act which was written over 83 years ago by the State Legislation cannot be changed or modified by the people. In 1909 there were over 150 4th Class Cities in the State. In 1978 only 17 remain.	FORM OF GOVERNMENT: Council-Manager Home Rule form of Government. Six Member Council elected from their Wards, working with City Manager. Council sets policy and direction to be followed and carried out by City Manager. City Manager has direct guidance and control over various departments of the City. Non-partisan and nonpolitical form of Government. Focus of responsibility directly on City Manager. Council makes all appointments. Elected Mayor presides at all Council meetings and votes on tie-breakers. Home Rule Charter can be changed and modified at any time by a vote of the people. There are now 237 Home Rule Charter Cities in the State, of which 153 now have the Council-Manager form of Government.
CITY TREASURER: Elected by the people. Act sets no standards or qualifications for City Treasurer. Anyone can run and become elected.	CITY TREASURER: Position of primary responsibility. Appointed by Council to obtain most qualified person. Works closely with Council and City Manager.
CITY CLERK: Elected by the people. Answers to Mayor and Council.	CITY CLERK: Elected by the people. Answers to Council and City Manager.
APPOINTED OFFICERS: City Attorney, City Assessor, Fire and Police Chief, appointed by Mayor.	APPOINTED OFFICERS: City Attorney, City Assessor, Fire and Police Chief, appointed by six elected Council members.
UTILITIES: 4th Class City Act does not contain any of the requirements set forth in the proposed charter.	UTILITIES: All utilities must be independent and self-supporting. Each utility must have a reserve fund for emergencies. Prohibits transfers from a utility surplus to the general fund. No more free utilities, all services must be accounted and paid for.
NOMINATION FOR COUNCIL AND MAYOR: Candidate files petition with required number of signatures to get an Ballot. Alderman elected by their Ward only.	NOMINATION FOR COUNCIL AND MAYOR: Same
ELECTIONS: Primary in February, and General Election in April each year. Generally require a primary election, and must have a General election even though there is only one candidate for each office on the Ballot. Very expensive election process.	ELECTIONS: Primary in August, General Election in November. No primary necessary unless more than two candidates run for an office. Places focus on General election in November. Election dates tie in with State and Federal election dates, and thus saves considerable time and expense. Possibility of only one election a year, instead of possibility of 4 elections per year.
PLANNING COMMISSION: No such provision.	PLANNING COMMISSION: Require formation of a Planning Commission to evaluate regularly city planning and development.
INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM: No such provision.	INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM: Gives voters the right to compel Council to pass desired ordinances, and further gives voters the right to compel removal of undesired ordinances.
BUDGET: No such provision.	BUDGET: Requires City Manager to compile and present annually a five year capital budget so as to anticipate needs and future planning.

Home Rule looks like a winner

Clang. Here we are at ringside in the third round of the title bout for the champion charter of the City of Charlevoix.

In one corner, weighing in at a cumbersome, archaic poundage is the heavyweight champion, the Fourth Class Cities Act. In the opposite corner is the challenger, the Home Rule Charter.

The two charters are approaching each other in the center of the ring now. It's been a tough two first rounds for the challenger, the Home Rule Charter. The champion, the Fourth Class Cities Act, has taken both rounds by slim margins determined by a vote of the judges.

But the Home Rule Act is coming back in this round. He appears to be completely revitalized. In fact, there's a whole new look to him in this round. Evidently his managers have changed his battle stance.

Here's one of the Home Rule Act's managers now. He's a member of the Charlevoix Charter Commission. Perhaps he can briefly outline the fighter's new approach in this round.

Excuse me, sir, what is the biggest difference in the challenger's approach to the third round?

Well, I would say that the biggest difference is in the theme. Under the Home Rule Act's new look, city council is firmly in control. These six elected representatives representing each ward will run the city. They have the ultimate authority and the ultimate responsibility for what happens in the city.

But the city manager will follow and carry out the policies and directions set by the council. He will run the city like a president runs a corporation.

Also under the Home Rule Charter's new look, voters will sign nominating petitions and vote for their ward's aldermen the same as under the Fourth Class Cities Act. At large voting and ward conventions are out.

Voters will nominate and elect the mayor and city clerk the same as at the present. City conventions are out. The treasurer will be appointed, however. The treasurer's position is one of primary responsibility and a person with a strong financial background is needed in the position. Making the position appointive gives the council a chance to get the best qualified person in the office.

The council will also appoint the city manager, city attorney, city assessor, police chief and fire chief. Presently the mayor does all of the appointing.

The new charter also provides for nonpartisan, nonpolitical form of government. No primary election will be necessary unless more than two candidates run for office.

Also the election dates have been changed to coincide with the federal and state elections. This will cutdown on the number of elections that will be held thus holding down the cost. It is possible that only one election will be held a year instead of the possible four elections a year under the new system.

We think we've got a winner this time and a new champion charter. The challenger updates the city and provides for a more efficiently run city government. We'll all be winners if the proposed new charter wins.

...Speaking Her Mind

Planning and zoning. They're simple words, but the ideas behind them seem to cause a heap of misunderstanding.

Lately I've been urging through various editorials that Charlevoix residents become more aware of zoning in the city. This community is undergoing many changes including a proposed new zoning ordinance and proposals for both residential and commercial developments.

But zoning ordinances aren't your typical light reading and actually can be difficult to understand without a basic knowledge of zoning and planning principles.

Some people feel like they're at a bingo game when they discuss zoning districts and what's R-1 or C-2 and what isn't. Others feel that zoning ordinances and land use plans that dictate which districts property fall into, go against basic American freedoms.

But that's not the idea behind planning and zoning at all, according to John Hess, Charlevoix County planner. A zoning ordinance is designed to protect people's basic rights to live in an area without having it change drastically from what they thought it should be, Hess says.

A zoning ordinance determines where one person's right on a piece of property stop and the next person's on the next piece start. And that question is where most of the litigation stems from, too.

The county planner explained that the original concept behind planning and zoning legislation was for people to take a look at their community and plan the way they would like to see it grow and develop. Once those plans have been determined, then the zoning ordinance is supposed to be written as a tool to use in the planning process.

Zoning and planning do not eliminate growth and development they simply provide for orderly growth that benefits the community and its residents.

But it is as important for communities to have a plan as it is for them to have zoning, Hess explained. With a land use plan, growth can be directed and zoning can be used as a tool to help communities grow in a manner pleasing to everyone.

And Charlevoix is in a good position to develop its land use plans and zoning ordinances to the fullest, the planner said.

Because the community is a

Clockwise

When the coal strike started last December, I thought it would last a couple of weeks before there would be a meeting of minds among reasonable men and the miners would return to the pits. Oh, we'd pay a little more for coal, to be sure, but the increase would be miniscule in a country that has lived through periods of double digit inflation.

Of course, I was wrong. After a long winter of bargaining, the miners three weeks ago turned down a highly inflationary contract negotiated by their leaders. Then Jimmy Carter entered the picture to test his image as a domestic strong-man. He invited the negotiators to the White House and told them to knuckle down.

Responses on both sides sounded strangely like "Yes, Boss." For a minute I thought Arnold Miller, president of the United Mine Workers, was going to break into a soft-shoe routine.

But bargaining under pressure on Jimmy Carter's doorstep has its drawbacks, as we learned over the weekend when the miners turned down the second draft of the contract by a vote of two to one. It wasn't very realistic to Carter to expect the negotiators to come up with an acceptable agreement under the glare of White House publicity. It is a very bad document and should have been rejected.

For example, one section takes away company financed medical care – something the miners and their families have learned to depend upon – and replaces it with a type of medical insurance with a $700 deductable clause. In other words, the miners will have to come up with $700 of their own funds before their insurance takes over. If there's one thing you don't do in negotiating a labor contract it is to take away benefits previously granted. It doesn't look good.

In the wage department, the contract is said to be equitable, bringing miners into line with wages paid in the auto industry and the steel industry. But it puts the miners so far ahead of nonunionized segments of the economy that comparisons are painful

On Monday, Carter re-entered the picture by invoking the Taft-Hartly Act, a move which is designed to put the miners back to work without a contract. However, the feeling at this point is that the mines will refuse to obey any court injunction which puts them back in the pits without a labor contract in their hip pockets. They have never worked without a contract, and apparently they don't intend to start.

What happens next is anybody's guess. Carter could seize the mines and send in troops with picks and shovels. But that's a very unlikely move, since soldiers don't know any more about mining coal than you or I.

He could urge the miners and the mine owners to come together company by company to hammer out their agreements, effectively reducing the power of the UMW.

Or he could sit back and let the process of collective bargaining resume at its own pace.

Only one thing is sure: The contract, when it is finally signed, will affect each and everyone of us where it hurts the most: the pocketbook. Power rates will rise as will the price of virtually every commodity from automobiles to roller skates. If coal is used in its manufacture, it will cost more.

Unfortunately, prospects for an early settlement are not good since incentives are lacking. Although coal miners are missing their weekly paychecks, they and their fgamilies are not going hungry, thanks to federally subsidized food stamps.

And there is little doubt that mining communities are going the limit to support the strikers because of the pot of gold waiting behind the storm clouds.

There may be an easy solution to the strike, but I don't know what it is. Neither does Carter.

I just read a pretty shocking figure.

A survey was taken revealing that at the end of the year, 48 percent of the American people were $500 in debt.

Have you any idea what that means? It means 52 percent of you out there just aren't trying.

Lord knows, I've tried to do my share. I've overextended ourselves, lived beyond our means, and at one time suffered credit card burns over three-quarters of my hands.

Some people sit around and do absolutely nothing for the national economy. My friend, Mayva, is one of them. She and I will start early in the morning to shop.

By noon, I will have made three trips to the car and still have a shopping bag so laden that it is severing the fingers from my right hand.

Maeva will have purchased a 15-cent belt for her sweeper and two potholders that are seconds.

"You make me sick," I told her the other day. "You and your tight fists."

"I don't see anything I need," she said.

"You call yourself an American? What's that got to do with anything? Do you honestly think I enjoy dedicating my life to unpaid balances and second notices? This country was built on the premise that 100 percent of its people would live above their means. There are only 48 percent of us living up to our bargain. How does that make you feel, Mayva, to be a part of that vast majority who doesn't care?"

"Something is wrong here. Tell me again how by saving money, I'm letting my country down."

"Look, Mayva, when our forefathers came to this country they were bullish on poverty. They had to spend money to lose it, take it out of their socks and breathe life into our economy. If God had wanted us to save money He would have sent floods to EOM sales. Our whole system is based on supply and demand. We supply the bodies for Halston dresses and our creditors demand payment for them. Do you smell something, Mayva?"

She sniffed. "Not really."

"It's a sale. I smell a sale, Mayva. I do believe it's a half price. Here, give me your hand and I'll slide your charge card into it. Pick up the first thing you see and repeat after me, 'Charge it!'"

"Are you sure this is good for my country?"

"Mayva, can 48 percent of the American people be wrong?"

The truth about Lum

Zolton A. Ferency, the mad Hungarian who is my favorite candidate for any office, recently sent me a note containing this paragraph:

"On Sunday, at Ferris State College, a young student was waiting tables, and I asked her where she was from. She said she was from Lapeer, but that I probably wouldn't know where that was. I said, 'Sure I do, it's not far from Lum.' Nearly floored her."

Ah, Lum. Ah, Zolton. In my twisted mind, the two seems to go together.

Ferency is a Democratic candidate to replace Gov. Milliken, which would be similar to replacing tapioca pudding with pepperoni pizza. In the playground of my mind, I envision a great TV commercial used by Coleman Young in his overkill race for mayor of Detroit last fall.

Mayor Young stood on the roof of a Renaissance Center tower, touching clouds, offering himself to the city below. He was filmed from a helicopter and the effect was reminiscent of Moses on the maountain.

Ferency could stand on the roof of the Lum Sheraton. There would be no trouble hiring a plane for the cameraman, as Lum International Airport is just a few miles away, at the last subway stop.

Lum is an appropriate setting for a Ferency commercial because he owns property there. Lum is in Lapeer County, where I used to edit the weekly newspaper, and the only time I talked to Ferency was one day, several years ago, when he stopped to thank me for increasing the value of his land. I think he was running for governor then, too. He usually is.

But I would associate Ferency with Lum even if he didn't own a piece of it. That's because Lum is mostly my fantasy. And only in a fantasy could Zolton Ferency be elected governor.

Actually, there is no Lum Sheraton. There is no Lum International Airport and no Lum subway. Lum doesn't even have a stoplight. There's no post office and the general store has been closed for years. It's several miles to the nearest highway and the easiest way to get to Lum is to be born there.

There. That's the first time I've written the truth about Lum in 20 years. I don't feel any better for coming clean. In fact, I feel like a traitor to my fantasy.

It's not easy to explain why I first started writing lies about Lum. I guess it began when the manager of the Lapeer theater told me he was taking a vacation but couldn't afford to go anywhere. So I put in the newspaper that he and his family were vacationing in Lum. And many readers subsequently asked the editor why in hell anyone would vacation in tiny Lum where the chief tourist attraction was watching a John Deere sign peel.

So I began to write columns aimed at improving Lum's image. I wrote that people visiting Lum for the first time in years would probably be surprised by the new airport and the Holiday Inn and the high-rise apartments. I said the great growth was the result of federal loans and an increase in the price of the town's leading export – lettuce.

Lapeer County people knew I was kidding and went along with the gag. They even co-operated by sending the newspaper items about debutante balls in the township hall, and by wearing bumper stickers saying "Fly Lum International."

But some of the nonsense I wrote was circulated beyond Lapeer County. People began driving from Detroit to eat in restaurants that didn't exist. A Saginaw mother tried to book her daughter's wedding reception in the Lum Hilton. A travel bureau was berated by a Florida man who didn't understand why they couldn't find him an airline that flew into Lum International. And so on.

That's how I increased the value of Ferency's property, if he's ever able to sell it through the mail.

I wish Ferency really could campaign for governor from atop the Lum Sheraton. I wish he had a chance to be elected. But Zolton is a socialist who offends the UAW. He favors affirmative action, decriminalization of marijuana, free heroin for addicts, easy abortions for poor women, and all sorts of sensible things like that. He is a chronic dissenter who usually makes sense.

Michigan isn't ready for such a sensible man in the governor's office, and that's too bad. But I just learned that the Lum Town Council plans to establish an embassy in Budapest.

Who else but Zolton Ferency should be Lum's ambassador to Hungary?

Meet Charlevoix

... Joe Thomure

Joe Thomure is one of the busiest students at Charlevoix High School. A senior, Joe is also president of the Student Council and along with Wendy Wieland, Student Council vice president, has been instrumental in bringing about changes and improvements in student activities.

This week the Charlevoix Courier talks with Joe about his views on Student Council, the school system and the community.

COURIER: What is the purpose of Student Council?

THOMURE: I think our purpose is to serve the students and to give them what they want.

COURIER: How do you know what the students want?

THOMURE: The council works to keep up the communications between the students, the faculty and the administration. We discuss a lot of things with the other students and we get a lot of ideas from them as well as the teachers and the administration too.

COURIER: How do you know when you're doing a good job?

THOMURE: You can tell by what's going on in the hallway or what's happeneing at lunch as far as what the kids want and how they feel about things.

COURIER: You and Wendy have brought about some changes this year in student activities like fall and winter homecomings, how have they been received?

THOMURE: When Wendy and I campaigned last year we said that we were going to make some changes and the students must have wanted them because we got elected. We had heard complaints in the halls and we got some ideas from them and some ideas on our own about changes to make. We threw them out to the crowd and went from there.

COURIER: What are some of the changes that you've made this year?

THOMURE: We changed the fall and winter homecoming activities so that they involve more students and didn't depend as much on the community. In fall homecoming we got rid of the snake dance so that we wouldn't be holding up traffic and because people got hurt. We also held a student council exchange with Traverse City High School and we're working on one with Petoskey. Our student council participated in the Michigan-Huron Shores League council exchange at Boyne City, too.

COURIER: How is the students' relationship with the community?

THOMURE: I think we get great cooperation from the community. We get all the support we need from local merchants, they're always there to help us like with car washes and other things that we need. I think that once they see that we're willing to help ourselves they're a little more willing to help us.

COURIER: Do the high school students do anything for the community?

THOMURE: Yes, we try to do something for the community every year. We work on the Cancer Society drive and for the March of Dimes. We also work with the bloodmobile. And when there were plans for expanding the high school we worked to get that passed by giving citizens tours of the high school and explaining about the needs of the school. (The expansion proposal failed).

COURIER: How did you get involved in student government?

THOMURE: I guess it started back in the eighth grade when I first got involved in raising money for a class trip at the middle school. Students here know everybody, but there's very little they can do with everybody at the same time. Working together through the class or student council is one way you can be together with a lot of the kids and I like that.

COURIER: What offices have you held?

THOMURE: I've been a member of student council since my sophomore year. I was a council member and chairman of the government committee. I was also president of the sophomore class and Wendy was vice president.

COURIER: If you could change anything at the high school what would you change?

THOMURE: We need a bigger library and cafeteria and a little more classroom space. It's hard to learn in an environment that is crowded.

COURIER: What are some of the major concerns facing high school students today?

THOMURE: I think the cost of college is one thing students are concerned about. It's really expensive and it's hard to get grants and things to help meet those costs.

COURIER: Do you plan to go to college?

THOMURE: Yes, I want to go to college. I would like to study law and attend the University of Notre Dame Law School.

COURIER: When you have some free time from student council activities, what do you like to do?

THOMURE: I enjoy cross country skiing or just walking. You can do a lot of thinking when you're walking or skiing. I also enjoy driving and looking at the scenery. And I like to hunt and fish. But I didn't get much in this fall, I was too busy with student council.

COURIER: Are you a native of Charlevoix?

THOMURE: No, my family moved here from St. Louis, Mo., in 1969. We came here as fudgies one summer to visit my aunt who had a cottage and I never left. We decided to move here permanently. We just really liked the area.

Joe Thomure

...and Wendy Wieland

If you blink, you'll miss her.

Wendy Wieland is one of the most on the move people at Charlevoix High School. Between being vice president of the Student Council and attending classes at the high school and North Central Michigan College, Wendy is a busy person.

This week the Charlevoix Courier talks with her about her team work with Joe Thomure on Student Council activities, her classes and her views.

COURIER: How does Student Council work?

WIELAND: Student Council is a liason group between the administration, faculty and the students. We regulate all the student activities and the scheduling of them. We also work to build relationships between schools. We hold monthly meetings to take all of these actions.

COURIER: How do you keep the students informed of what you are doing?

WIELAND: The students have elected representatives who keep them informed and we post our minutes and publish them in the Flash, the student newspaper. We do feel we need to improve communications and we're working on a new program.

COURIER: What is that?

WIELAND: We would like to have a student council member get up before every class in the school for about 15 minutes and just explain what we've been doing and what we plan to do. It's a target we want to hit before school is over.

COURIER: Is Student Council necessary?

WIELAND: I think we're necessary. I would hate to see a school run without one. With the individual class officers you have a structure set up to make money, but that's about it. Student Council seems to be ever there. It's more government oriented and it provides students with a voice for their opinions and a way to change within the system that the class structure doesn't provide.

COURIER: If you could change anything at the high school, what would you change?

WIELAND: I would change the building. It really is overcrowded. And some of the classrooms are not designed for the classes that are taught in them.

COURIER: Are there any other things that you would change?

WIELAND: I guess I would like to see more cooperation between different parts of the school. I would like to see a better rapport between the students and the teachers.

COURIER: Is Student Council doing anything to change this?

WIELAND: We want to set up a faculty tea where students and teachers would get together and talk. I think it might help break down some of the traditional teacher-student barriers.

COURIER: It used to be that Vietnam was a major concern among high school students. Is there anything that concerns students today?

WIELAND: I'm worried about students' lack of concern. There aren't the far reaching problems today that there were and students seem to be more wrapped up in their own world than with the community. There are so many more options for students, so many more organizations to get involved in. And the organizations are really good, some of my best learning experiences have been in these organizations, but you can carry it too far. The world is constantly changing around you and if you don't stop it from changing for the worst, then you helped it.

COURIER: How did you get involved with Student Council?

WIELAND: Joe (Thomure) talked me into it. I was dropping out of a lot of my activities this year so that I could be a student but Joe asked me to run with him and I did. I was also freshman student council rep, sophomore class vice president and junior class treasurer.

COURIER: What classes are you taking?

WIELAND: At the high school I am taking government and advanced biology and a teacher's aide class. At the college I'm taking English composition and cultural anthropology.

COURIER: What do you plan to do after you graduate?

WIELAND: I would like to attend Albion College and study either sociology or psychology.

Dietitian plans, cooks up a storm

When Ofelia Bidart plans menus she plans two months in advance.

And, as if that isn't complicated enough, she plans five alternative menus for three meals every day, plus she keeps other options waiting in the wings, just to please her customers.

Ms. Bidart's menu planning is not for a restaurant – nothing that simple.

She is Charlevoix Area Hospitals' dietician.

"When I plan I must think of diet, variety, color, texture, what is available, what's nutritional and what people will like," she explains matter of factly.

Ms. Bidart has been supervising the dietary department at Charlevoix Area Hospital for four years, overseeing the work of 17 employees, including two cooks and a relief cook, a salad worker, a morning and and afternoon supervisor, and several other people.

The job of menu writing, for example, is performed by Elinor Curtis, "My right hand," Ms. Bidart explains.

Ms. Bidart approaches her work with enthusiasm and great concern for her customers – patients.

"I visit every patient to see if they have any special likes or dislikes," she says. "I spend the most time with patients who are on special diets. I inform them what they can eat and why.

"When they go home, I give them instruction sheets for their diets," she continues.

Her concern doesn't end there.

"Many come back for follow-up meetings with me," she states. "For instance, I see several diabetics weekly, weigh them and check how they are doing. I talk with their doctors if they are gaining too much weight or have other problems."

Different color menus are the key to the five basic diets the hospital must offer: regular, soft-bland, low sodium, low cholesterol-low fat, and a calorie counter or diabetic diet.

Also there is a full liquid diet and a geriatric diet.

"I do the childrens' menu on a day-to-day basis. I check with mothers to see what they like to eat at home," Ms. Bidart says.

A native of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Ms. Bidart received her training to become a Registered Dietician in both Argentina and the United States.

"People think we are just graduate cooks, but they are wrong," she laughs. "We study bio-chemistry, the composition of food and so on. Our schooling is comparable with the first three years of medical school."

She attended the University of Cordoba, in Cordoba, Argentina, and served her internship there.

When she moved to the United States, Ms. Bidart worked at Grace Hospital in Detroit, for three years, simultaneously studying at Wayne State University.

And today, she reports, she continues to study. "I try to spend an hour a day reading professional journals."

The medical staff has come to realize her talents and often refers out-patients to her.

"I do this as a public relations gesture for the hospital," she explains.

"If a doctor puts a patient on a special diet he can send the patient to me and I will work with the patient on his diet."

She also teaches nutrition in the prenatal classes offered by Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"I talk to expectant mothers about the basics they need in their diet – meat or meat substitutes, milk and milk products, vegetables and fruit and bread and cereals.

"I explain why alcohol is bad. And smoking too.

"For those who have weight problems, I try to help."

It is a well-known secret at the hospital, that staff members come to Ms. Bidart for dietary advice, particularly as a special occasion approaches or as spring draws near.

One of Ms. Bidart's major problems is meeting the dietary needs of her patients, presenting attractive meals and staying within a budget.

"We buy our meat from Detroit and Grand Rapids, and we are careful, of course, about what we buy. We buy either frozen vegetables or local produce during the season. And we do all our own baking, except for bread," she adds.

The menu at the hospital repeats itself every three weeks, so the vast majority of patients don't see the same thing twice.

Typical entres include chicken Tahitian, spareribs, deviled pork chops, spinach-cheese casseroles, stuffed peppers, and, once every three weeks, steak.

"And the dietician emphasizes, "If a patient simply doesn't like anything on the menu, we try to make something he will like."

OFELIA BIDART, dietician at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, discusses a menu plan with Dolly Coen, a cook. Ms. Bidart plans and cooks up a storm for patients at the hospital.

Here's what's good, bad about fiber in the diet

There's been a lot of talk lately about the importance of fiber in the diet – so much so that you probably figure it's good for something, but you're not sure what.

To help you sort out what's good about fiber, and why too much fiber isn't so good, the Food and Drug Administration has a free reprint from its magazine, FDA Consumer. For your copy of Grandma Called It Roughage, just send a post-card to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 658F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Recently, interest has developed in a theory that eating high fiber foods such as bran, whole grains, and certain fruits and vegetables, will prevent a variety of diseases including cancer of the colon, hemorrhoids, diverticular disease, appendicitis, hiatus hernia, varicose veins, atherosclerosis, and one type of heart disease.

This is the theory of a number of British physicians who have observed that these diseases are virtually unknown among Africans living in rural villages, but they do occur in Africans who move to urban areas and eat the typical low fiber, high fat, processed diet of Western man.

Others have raised the question whether it's the diet change that causes the diseases, or other factors, such as change in lifestyle.

No matter what theory you accept, you may be surprised how much fiber you may already be eating. For almost a decade, cellulose made from wood pulp or cotton has been added to dozens of foods. It's used in low calorie salad dressings to keep ingredients from separating, ice cream to keep crystals from forming, diet drinks to add thickness, and now it's even in bread. It's tasteless, odorless, and doesn't change the color, flavor, or aroma of food, so it goes virtually unnoticed.

If your diet is low in fiber, the Food and Drug Administration recommends eating more whole grain breads, cereals, and fresh fruits and vegetables. These contain dietary fiber that occurs naturally in food.

Scientists have not yet determined how much fiber people need, so eat high fiber foods in moderation. It takes time for your digestive system to adapt, and different sources may have different effects. For example, bran can have a helpful laxative effect. But bran eaten without liquid can be harmful because it can clog the digestive system.

Eating a high fiber diet can have some distressing side effects, such as a feeling of being "stuffed" or "bloated." And, large amounts of fiber can impair the body's ability to absorb certain important minerals such as iron, copper, and calcium.

Nutrition experts point out that fiber is just one part of a properly balanced diet and that simply adding fiber to a poor diet will probably cause more problems that it solves.

When you order a copy of Grandma Called It Roughage (free), you'll also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. It lists more than 200 selected free or low-cost publications from the Federal government. The Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

The Leaning Tree

We are becoming more aware of good eating habits and their effect on our health. There also is an abundance of misinformation and false advertisements concerning nutrition. Unfortunately those people most in need of good food are the ones likely to fall for harmful claims. Newsweek magazine estimated Americans spend $15 billion a year on health foods, vitamin and mineral supplements, books promoting fad diets, and other gimmicks. The weight control business alone may gobble up $10 billion of that $15 billion figures.

Nutrition nonsense not only costs money but it also robs health. In a recent congressional hearing, Dr. George Briggs, a medical doctor at the University of California, estimated that $30 billion of $75 billion of America's total medical bill could be traced to poor nutrition; and he attributes most of this poor nutrition to misinformation.

We need to be aware off food fallacies and how they can waste our money and ruin our health. We can get all the nutrients we need by eating a varied diet of foods from the four food groups that include fruits and vegetables, breads and cereals, milk and milk products, and protein foods from the meat group.

Call the Cooperative Extension Service Office to find out about the Food or Life Nutrition series being offered. Antrim County 533-8424, Charlevoix County 582-6232 or Kalkaska County 258-8643 Ext. 21 or 22.

VFW Auxiliary takes stand

The Charlevoix V.F.W. Auxiliary went on record at a recent meeting as objecting to House Bill 5280 which has been introduced in the Michigan Legislature and is asking residents of the area to write to State Senators and Representaatives to protest the bill. According to the president, Mrs. Jack Warner, the bill opposes the teaching of loyalty, patriotism, peace and human rights in the schools.

At the same meeting, plans were made for a social meeting to be held at the post home at 8 p.m. March 16, to which the members of the American Legion Auxiliary are invited; for a spring luncheon to be sponsored by the two auxiliaries for the benefit of the Cancer Fund and for the monthly V.F.W. and auxiliary potluck which has been postponed from March 25 until Saturday, April 1, because of the Easter holiday. The latter event is for members of both organizations, their families and prospective members. Members are asked to bring their table service and a dish to pass. Rolls, coffee and kool-aid will be furnished.

March of Dimes purchases new equipment for clinics

Charlevoix County residents will soon be benefitting from some new health care equipment.

The Charlevoix County March of Dimes has decided to purchase needed equipment for the Charlevoix Area Hospital, East Jordan Health Center and the Beaver Island Clinic, Kay Chase, chairman of the group said.

For the Charlevoix Area Hospital, the March of Dimes will be purchasing an infant radiant heater for the nursery and a doppler stethoscope. The stethoscope will be used to monitor a second heartbeat during delivery.

The group has also donated $1,250 toward the purchase of equipment for use in treating newborn babies and pregnant women. The health center committee is determining what equipment is needed.

The March of Dimes is also purchasing a respirator for the Beaver Island Clinic.

In addition a filmstrip entitled, "Especially for You" which is about the development of human beings and a movie on alcohol and its effects on the unborn child have been purchased for use by the health department in its educational programs.

Small scholarships will also be set up for women attending the prenatal care classes at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The scholarships will help defray the cost of the program for women in financial need.

Other members of the March of Dimes committee are: Penny Schroder, case worker, Linda Wojan, publicity chairman, Roger Rozema, treasurer and Annie Georgi, coffee day chairman.

Smallpox disease virtually wiped out

That dread killer disease, smallpox, has been virtually eliminated from existence, according to officials at the District Health Department No. 3 in Charlevoix County.

Sometime this month, the remaining smallpox vaccine supplies at the health department will be used up or will have an expired shelf life and will be discarded. Because the disease no longer exists in this part of the world, the health department will not be receiving any more vaccine supplies for free distribution from the state department of public health.

This fact marks an important milestone for the public health disease control efforts of the District 3 department along with counterpart agencies throughout the world, Gerald Chase, action health officer, explained. With the exception of the frontier area between Ethiopia and Smoalia, all areas of the world have been certified as smallpox free by the World Health Organization.

A review of early records in the local health department shows that even less than 40 years ago, smallpox was still present in this part of the Northern Michigan area at an epidemic level. As late as 1947, cases were still reported in this area.

Chase cautioned that travelers to certain foreign countries may still be required to show proof of vaccination before entering that country. Individuals needing such proof should consult their own physicians regarding the wisdom of obtaining such a vaccination. Vaccine supplies will continue to be available from private sources.

Museum publication outlines Charlevoix archealogical dig

Charlevoix is the subject of a new educational bulletin published by Michigan State Univesrity museu.

"Excavations at Charlevoix," the 20-page bulletin written by Margaret B. Holman, describes the site at the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix where construction of the LaCroft condominium was delayed in 1972 to allow recovery of artifacts from early Indian settlements.

Artifacts recovered in Charlevoix included stone cutting and grinding tools, a cold-worked copper fishhook, net sinkers and fragments of pottery.

Based on the artifacts found, it was estimated that Indians occupied the site around 1500 B.C. These Indian bands moved their camps from time to time to take advantage of seasonally available food resources. It was estimated that middle woodland villagers occupied the area around 600 A.D.

The 18thCentury journals of traders and missionaries indicated that Indians lived along the shores of the Great Lakes in large villages where they could catch sucker fish in the spring, sturgeon in the summer and whitefish in the fall in addition to hunting and gathering wild plant foods.

Dr. Holman prepared the final report as part of her doctoral dissertation at MSU. She describes in detail the procedures for field work in archeology in which measured sections are carefully excavated for the retrieval of eveidnce of early cultures.

To obtain a copy of the bulletin send 95 cents to Publications of the Museum, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich., 48824.

Garden tips from local garden club

The avocado is not only a delicious fruit, but it also provides the seed for an easy to grow, exotic houseplant.

After you've eaten away all the fruit around the pit, place the large end of the seed in a glass supported by toothpicks. Once a root starts, pot the seed in equal parts of brown peat, sand and garden loam.

In the spring, cut back the stem about half way and fertilize the soil. Soon your avocado will branch into a supple green tree.

Right now, just before spring, it's time for revitalizing your houseplants. This can be done simply by cutting back dead limbs and adding new soil.

Tropical plants need one-quarter brown peat, one-quarter sand and one-half part of rich black soil. Sometimes a light mixutre of fertilizer will help.

When repotting, be sure your soil is room temperature, never use frozen or cold soil. Water as usual.

4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICE

"You should be a 4-H leader"; "Have you ever thought of leading a 4-H club?"; "You would make a great 4-H leader."

In the past two years, I've made many such comments to different people throughout the county. Some agree, and become club leaders. Some are unable to fit club meetings into their schedules. But a clear majority are hesitant to enter 4-H because they question their knowledge of a given project area.

If you feel this way about your knowledge of 4-H projects, read on, and learn about the leader training opportunities that 4-H has to offer.

The State 4-H Office, at Michigan State University, offers year round leader training, in many different subject areas, to all active and prospective 4-H leaders. And while some training sessions take place in the Gaylord area, most are held at Kettunen Center, south of Cadillac, near the Village of Tustin. The beautiful buildings and grounds of Kettunen Center are owned and operated by the Michigan 4-H Foundation. The foundation receives annual donations from many businesses throughout the state to help maintain this facility. Charlevoix County has its share of support, as firms such as Top D'Michigan Rural Electric, Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, and the Charlevoix Coop have made donations to the Michigan 4-H Foundation.

Not only do organizations contribute to the upkeep of Kettunen Center, but private donors also sponsor the individual weekend training sessions. This allows 4-H leaders to receive training, meals, and lodging for only $6.00 per person. And being only 1½ hours from Charlevoix County, it is within easy driving distance of most Northern counties.

County humane society elects new officers during meeting

The Charlevoix County Humane Society elected new officers at its meeting last week.

Serving as president of the organization will be Essie Ross of East Jordan while Jeanine Kenney of Ellsworth will serve as second in command.

Toni Jeffrey of East Jordan was elected secretary and Dick Wheeler of East Jordan will serve as treasurer and as the liaison officer between the humane society and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Mrs. Ross also set up her committees for the coming year. Dian Haggard will serve as chairman of the membership committee and Linda Snyder and D'Ann Rothenberger will be co-chairmen of the membership committee.

Serving as CETA and kennel supervisor will be Bill Miller and Donna Wojan and Mary Haggard will be in charge of the dog show and obedience classes.

David Norton, DVM, and Robert McGarva, DVM, will serve as advisors for the humane society and Bernice Smith was reappointed shelter manager.

The humane society has also expanded its shelter hours to 1-6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone interested in adopting a pet should visit the shelter behind the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department offices at that time.

The next meeting of the humane society will be held March 8 at Courter's Inc., in Boyne City.

FAITH HONORS THE WISDOM AND EXPERIENCE OF AGE

In our current misguided era where young is beautiful, the older segment of our population is largely relagated to the background of our society. There are many factors to blame for this tragic situation, including its wide range of acceptance which prematurely condemns the physically and mentally sound along with the infirm, and thereby attaches the stigma of outworn usefulness to all. When this is combined with the natural self-importance of today's youth, little respect or companionship exists between children and their grandparents, to the detriment of both. Your Church will teach you to appreciate the wisdom of the old, referred to throughout the Bible. Honor your grandparents and listen to them. You may even find them fascinating, if you give them a chance.

Drugstore with a difference opening

A drugstore with a difference will be opening its doors this week in the Captain's Corners shopping center on M-66.

Crown Drug, a 5,000 square foot full service drugstore, will open for business today (Wednesday), according to owners Leah and Jack Urben.

The new drugstore will offer more than prescription drugs to its customers, according to the husband and wife team. It will also offer health and beauty aids at discount prices, a complete school supply section, a wide selection of greeting cards and a complete line of top name cosmetics and fragrances.

In addition, the drugstore will carry a few food items and a dairy section with milk, eggs, ice cream and cold pop as well as seasonal items such as Easter baskets in the spring time and ice coolers in the summer.

"We are offering personalized service and fair discount prices to the people in the town and the county," Jack explained. "We want to be a full service store for the people in this area."

Because of the size of the store, the Urbens are able to offer a wide variety of many types of products.

"We've tried to expand on product lines that aren't sold elsewhere in the community and we've brought in many new products, too," Leah explained.

"But if we don't have something, we'll be glad to special order it for customers. We're new here and we want to know what people want."

The Urbens have tried to make their store a bright, comfortable place to shop. The walls are decorated with brightly colored graphics and signs which indicate where the various departments are.

The husband and wife team bring plenty of experience with them to Charlevoix as well as new ideas about drugstore operation. Both Jack and Leah are registered pharmacists and graduates of the University of Michigan. And both have spent several years working as managers of chain drugstores in the Ann Arbor area.

The Urbens have been looking all over the north country for a community to locate their first business in.

"We chose this area because we enjoy the recreational facilities and because we feel we can provide a service here," Leah explained.

Although the couple is young, Jack is 31 and Leah is 26, they felt it was time to try their hand at running their own business.

"If you don't do it now you never will," Leah said. "And there's a lot of satisfaction in owning your own business.

"We both have very set ideas and disciplined ways of doing things and we feel that we're at a point where we can only work for ourselves. We enjoy being able to take care of things and making sure things are done the way they should be done. You can only do that with your own business."

The Urbens said they are looking forward to meeting the members of the community and they invite everyone to come and see their exciting, beautiful new store.

The store will be open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays. The store will only be closed four days a year, Easter, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years, but the couple said they would be glad to fill emergency prescriptions on those holidays.

LEAH AND JACK URBEN will be opening up Crown Drugstora in Captain's Corners shopping center this week. They offer drugstore products with a now twist and they invite Charlovoix area residonts to come out and see them.

Five Charlevoix County students named to NMU dean's list

Five Charlevoix County students have been named to the Dean's List at Northern Michigan University.

Heidi Hansen of Charlevoix, Laurie Burry and Carole Cummins of East Jordan and Robin Askins and Karin Fitzpatrick of Boyne City were all named to the list for maintaining a 3.25 grade point average or better while carrying 12 credit hours or more.

The five area students were among 1,483 students on the Dean's List for fall semester.

NOW THAT SPRING is approaching many peopla begin to think of the time when the yachts and sailboats will begin to arrive here. It's been several years since this palatial yacht, owned by Logan G. Thomson of Cincinnati, Ohio, has been on Round Lake however. The yacht, named Sylvia for the wife of the owner, was built for Thomson by the Bath Iron Works Corporation of Bath, Me. She was 154 feet at the water line and 191 feet over all, powered by two 425 diesel engines and mado out of completely steel construction. Charlevoix was her home port and she had her own dock near the Thomson summer home on Round Lake. (Photo provided by the Charlevoix Historical Society)

Making maple syrup as easy as..

STAN BORIS of Boyne City inserts the taps into a maple tree to begin the collection of maple syrup. People can make maple syrup from their own trees, but it takes a lot of sap.

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

When steam begins to rise on the roads and fog hangs in the valleys as the sun warms the frozen north, maple syrup time returns.

Many Charlevoix County citizens make their own syrup, in quantities varying from 2,000 gallons at the Danly Farm, on the north side of the lake, to as little as a quart, when one downtown resident (who wishes to remain anonymous) boiled down a Kiwanian bucket of sap that had been honging in front of his house, overflowing for several days.

The Kiwanians, tapping city maples, last year produced 400 gallons of syrup – a recent record for the organization.

For the edificiation of those do-it-yourselfers who wish to give it a try, the following is a recipe for approximately one gallon of syrup – increase it as your stamina allows.

Begin with at least three sugar maples or black maples, approximately 40 years old or older, and at least 10 inches in diameter.

Weather, a vital ingredient, should have temperatures below freezing at night and, at least, 40 degrees F during the day.

Ed Shanahan, who directs the Kiwanis project says he decides when to tap by listening to the crows: "When you hear crows beginning to discuss the pros and cons of the situation you'd better get on the stick."

Drill a three inch hole, about one-half inch wide, into each tree (more than one tap may be in each tree, experts say – up to three taps in a tree 18 inches in diamtere or larger).

Insert into each tap, a copper spigot – "spile" – no deeper than three-eights of an inch, to allow the sap to flow freely.

Securely attach a bucket, preferable covered, to the spiles. Or if gathering a lot use a plastic tubing running downhill from several trees to a central collection point.

Empty the collected sap daily or, at a minimum, every other day. Pour it into a stainless steel, English tin, cast iron or copper pot. Do not use galvanized steel, it creates a flavor.

The next step is boiling down. Experts agree boiling down should not be done in your home. Horror tales of the sticky steam causing wallpaper to sliently slip off walls is fair warning.

Thus, either borrow a sugar shack or build a small fire, surrounded by concrete blocks. Hang your boiling pot over the fire ond go to it. As the sap evaporates add more. Once the gooey stuff at the bottom of the pot reaches 219 degrees F. you are getting maple syrup. One gallon of syrup requires between 40 and 50 gallons of raw sap.

The tapping process to produce one gallon takes about six weeks and the boiling must go on simultaneously and almost constantly. Sap should be boiled down quickly, pros say, for the best results.

Most of the above information comes from Terry Healey, resident manager of the Danly Farm who taps about 6,500 trees annually to produce 2,000 gallons.

Needless to say, Healey does not boil his sap down over an open out-door fire. Like most large producers, Healey uses evaporators and the sap flows constantly in one end while syrup comes out the other end of the table-like device.

Healey gets 8 gallons an hour from 350 gallons of sap. The sap at the Danly Farm is collected in both buckets and plastic tubing connected to a vacuum pump, and a central holding tank.

As for costs, the Kiwanians report that hanging 1,300 buckets last year produced just under 400 gallons, selling for about $4,000. The costs in fuel oil and other expenses were about $1,000, time and original bucket costs not included.

Michigan is the third leading producer of maple syrup in the United State today, with an annual output of 100,000 gallons, according to Professor Mal Koelling in the Department of Forestry at Michigan State University.

Koelling says Vermont and New York are the leaders with about 350,000 gallons a year.

About 500 to 700 commercial maple syrup producers are scattered across Michigan, Koelling reports.

Tapping around Charlevoix County is just getting under way. The Healey's began last week and Ivan Parsons plans to begin his tapping across the lake, next weekend, after his major preoccupation this time of year – doing the taxes for Eveline, South Arm, Norwood and Wilson townships – is completed.

LINES AND LINES of plastic tubing run from tree to tree carrying the sap to the place where it is boiled down to make syrup. Many farms in the Charlevoix area have a sugar bush.

Three tasty recipes made with maple syrup

Once you've made your maple syrup, why don't you try it in one of these recipes. The recipes come from a special cookbook of recipes from this state called "Michigan Cooking…and other things" by Carole Eberly. Mrs. Eberly was formerly employed by the Charlevoix Courier.

Maple Syrup Candles

2 c. powdered sugar
1 c. maple syrup
½ c. evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. lemon extract
1 c. walnuts, chopped.

Boil sugar, syrup and milk in heavy saucepan without stirring until mixture reaches 240 degrees. Remove from heat and beat with a wooden spoon until smooth. Add vanilla and lemon extract. Beat again until well blended. Stir in nuts. Drop by spoonfuls onto waxed paper and let stand one hour. Makes 24 pieces.

Maple Bavarian

1¼ tsp. unflavored gelatin
1/3 c. cold water
1 c. hot maple syrup
1 c. whipped cream

Put gelatin in water and let stand five minutes. Pour syrup into gelatin and stir well. Chill until thickened. Fold in cream and chill until set. Serves four.

Maple Baked Carrots

8 large carrots
2 tbsp. maple syrup
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tbsp. butter

Cut carrots in two-inch pieces. Cook, covered, 15 minutes. Drain. Place in greased baking dish. Pour syrup and sugar on top. Dot with butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Stir once or twice. Serves four.

TERRY HEALEY reaches toward the vacuum pump on the sap house. The pump creates the suction that carries the sap from the sugar bush into the sap house. Gone are the days of hand carrying buckets of sap.

Telephone company seeks advice on directory assistance charges

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will be seeking advice from its customers on how to solve the problem of soaring directory assistance costs.

In a special program that will include open public forums and meetings with consumer organizations and other community groups, telephone customers will be asked to air their opinions.

According to telephone company officials, the cost of directory assistance has spiraled upward from $4 million in 1960 to last year's $27 million and the company predicts the expense will more than double to $55 million in the next five years.

Last year the directory assistance program cost telephone customers $8.40 apiece no matter how much or how little they used it.

The telephone company officials are proposing two methods of dealing with the directory assistance costs. One is to retain the present method of spreading the cost among all customers and the other is to establish a charge based on usage.

The second approach would result in lower monthly bills for most customers. In the 21 other states that have adopted the system, 9 out of 10 customers are saving money as a result.

Wharf Side Market

It's all over, but they'll be back next year

By BILL MERCER

It's all over.

The 1977-78 Charlevoix High School basketball season is history. The Rayders finished the year with a 12-10 record overall and a 8-6 standing in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

The end of the road came in the team's "Second season" as the Rayders were unable to complete a three-win hat trick over the Rogers City Hurons in District Tournament play in Charlevoix. Twice during the regular season the Rayders had come out on top in close league encounters and they were responsible for two of the Hurons five losses.

Coach Dave Moyer's team advanced to the district finals against the Hurons by bombing East Jordan 94-47 and by surviving the onslaught of the Boyne City Ramblers, 52-47. This action followed an end-of-regulation play, four-game winning streak, so it looked as if the Rayders had peaked for March Madness.

The Hurons ended that six-game streak with a 61-50 victory for the district trophy.

East Jordan

To recap briefly, Charlevoix's effort against East Jordan was deadly. Thirteen Rayders scored against the Red Devils, with junior Bob Plumm leading the pack with 17 markers. Good ball handling by Plumm and Pat Schmidt opened the way for the teammates to score almost at will.

Following Plumm, came Joe Left with 11 points, Schmidt and Kip Cinnamon with 10, Jim Elzinga, 9, Gil Noirot, 8, and Neil Dziedzic and Todd Williams with 7. Steve Schuch, Jim Alger and Doug Buday also helped out with four points apiece.

Boyne City

The next match-up brought Boyne City to town. During the regular season, the teams had split their two decisions. The final meeting of the two teams was a grueling grudge match for county supremacy.

Little is really known of that something that all high school coaches know as "senior effort" but a better example could not be found than the performance against Boyne City by Charlevoix's jumping jack senior Neil Dziedzic. From the opening tip off to the game winning steal and stuff and finally to Dziedzic holding the ball and one finger aloft at the final buzzer, few will forget the senior's intensity and desire to win.

But it took more than Dziedzic to defeat the tough and tenacious Ramblers. Coach Russ Harvey had prepared his squad well and it was a dog fight from the beginning. When the dust cleared, both teams walked away with heod high from participating in an admirable contest.

Only five Charlevoix players scored with Dziedzic and Schmidt each contributing 15 points. Steve Schuch got loose for 10 followed by Plumm with 7 and Left with 5. Moyer went to Alger, Cinnamon, Elzinga and Kevin Kratt for help during the game but none of these players scored.

With this victory, Charlevoix won the title of county champion (although they did not play Boyne Falls). Next came the cross-state rivals for the district crown.

Rogers City

The great diety of basketball, Netus Swishus, deserted the Rayders on the night of the finals, as the home squad could find no way to get the ball through the hoop. Early season problems returned to the floor and Charlevoix helped Rogers City take the tournament by committing–turnovers ond 28 personal fouls. Sharp shooting by Curt Vogelheim, 22 points, John Blau, 13 points, Mark Pilarski, 10 points, and Neil Grulke, 8 points, also contributed to the Huron victory.

Rogers City put the clamps on super-shooter Schmidt by employing a triangle-two defense which kept the junior running the entire evening. Only six points were allowed Schmidt during the contest, well below his regular season average.

But one man does not make a team and the rest of Charlevoix's players could not find the basket, either. A six point third quarter, matched by 13 for Rogers City spelled the final doom for the Rayders.

Rogers City scored 10 unanswered points at the end of the third quarter and beginning of the final period to put the game out of reach. When the Hurons began a stall at the middle of the fourth quarter, the home team could not get enough possessions to erase the deficit.

When it was all over, Charlevoix's high point man was Left with 14, followed by Schuch with 12, Dziedzic, 10, Schmidt, 6, and Plumm and Cinnamon with 4. Both Dziedzic and Left fouled out in the closing moments of the contest.

So ends this years basketball season for Charlevoix. But memories remain, as well as hopes for next year. Gone will be tall talented Left, super leaper Dziedzic, co-captain Elzinga, determined Alger, big bruising Cinnamon and getting better every game, Schuch, but the rest will be back for another try.

In A League action

Townhouse upsets Swansons

Townhouse upset league leading Swansons K & D 59-55 in Charlevoix Recreation Department A League action last week.

Townhouse took the lead in the first quarter 16-13, but Swansons came back in the second quarter to take over 31-26. During the third quarter the two teams tied the score at 43 and then Townhouse surged ahead to win the game.

High pointmen for the Townhouse were Steve Dunkelberg, 15 points, Spook Coleman, and Doug Wickson both had 10. For Swansons, Bruce Meggison had 19 points and Mike Ridley had 20.

In the second game of the evening, Kadens defeated Bobs Sunoco, 77-61. The first quarter opened with a close score of 18-17 in Kadens favor. The lead increased a point to 37-35 by halftime and by the third quarter, Kadens had the game locked up at 56-42.

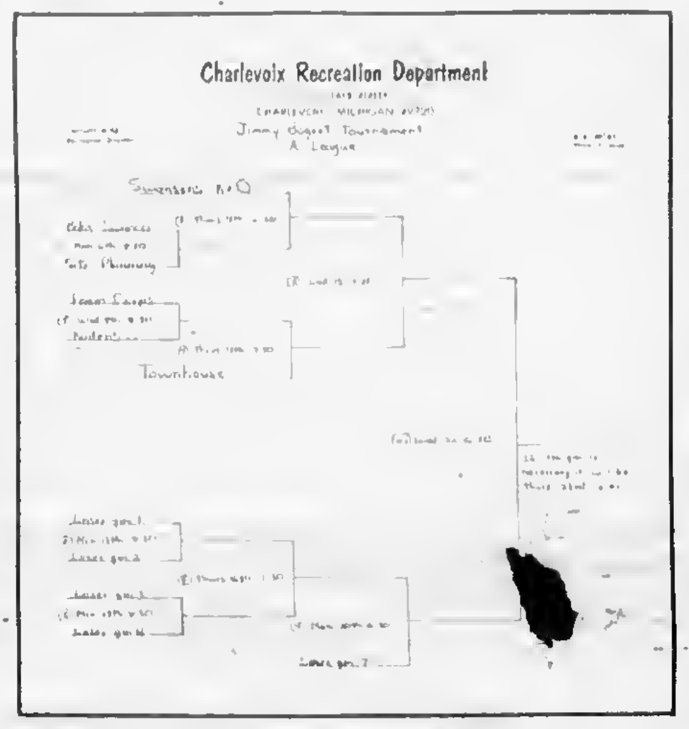
Top scorers for Kadens were Chuck Stanek with 30 points, Al Looze with 21 and Tom Beyers with 12.

For Bobs Sunoco, Chuck Pelham had 20 points and Jim Danbert had 17.

Site Planning buried Foam Corps 84-64. Site Planning took control of the game in the first quarter and never gave it up. The first quarter was 16-8 in the first period, 39-27 at the half and 61-43 at the end of the third quarter.

Top scorers for Site Planning were Tim Carey with 30 points, Dennis Dominie with 20 points, and Mike Bade and Paul Osterberg with 14 points a piece.

For Foam Corps, Dale Boss had 15 points, Steve Michaels, 14, and Gary Novotny, 11.



Wojan Aluminum rolls right by Tri-City Asphalt

Wojan Aluminum rolled by Tri-City Asphalt 37-33 during Charlevoix Recreation Department B League action.

Tri-City opened the game with a first period lead of 16-10. But Wojan came back to take control by halftime with a score of 20-18. Wojan held on in the third period to expand its lead to 28-22.

High point men for Wojan were Don Ward, 12 points, and Larry Emerick with 11 points.

For Tri-City, Dave Norton had 8 points.

County State Bank defeated Alray Cottages 56-48. Country State Bank opened the game with a 15-9 lead and expanded it to 26-17 at the half. By the third period the County State Bank was well in control with a score of 51-32.

Top scorer for County State Bank was Steve Martinus with 14 points. On the Alray Cottages side, Dave Martinchek had 14 points, Scott Blanchard, 13 points and Tom Left, 10 points.

First State Bank defeated Medusa in a close game 49-45.

The two teams came out of the first period at an even score of 10 points a piece and Medusa took the lead 24-22 at half time. The team held on to the lead in the third period at 35-34 and then lost it to First State Bank in the final quarter of play.

For First State Bank, Doug Winnell had 20 points and Jim Gels had 18.

For Medusa, Bob Holtzman dunked in 18 points.

IF YOU'VE GOT WHAT IT TAKES...TAKE IT TO MOTOROLA

If you have drive and ambition, there's an outstanding opportunity for you in one of the country's fastest growing industries. After a training period, you will become a radio communications representative at Motorola, working within a sales team. Here, you will be dealing directly with fleet operators, general contractors and other communications oriented companies. In as little as 12 months, you could move up to Zone Manager. From there, you'll have every chance to move up within the Motorola organization.
In addition to a good starting salary, we offer a car and expenses, bonus and profit sharing plans and other benefits. Respond by sending resume to:

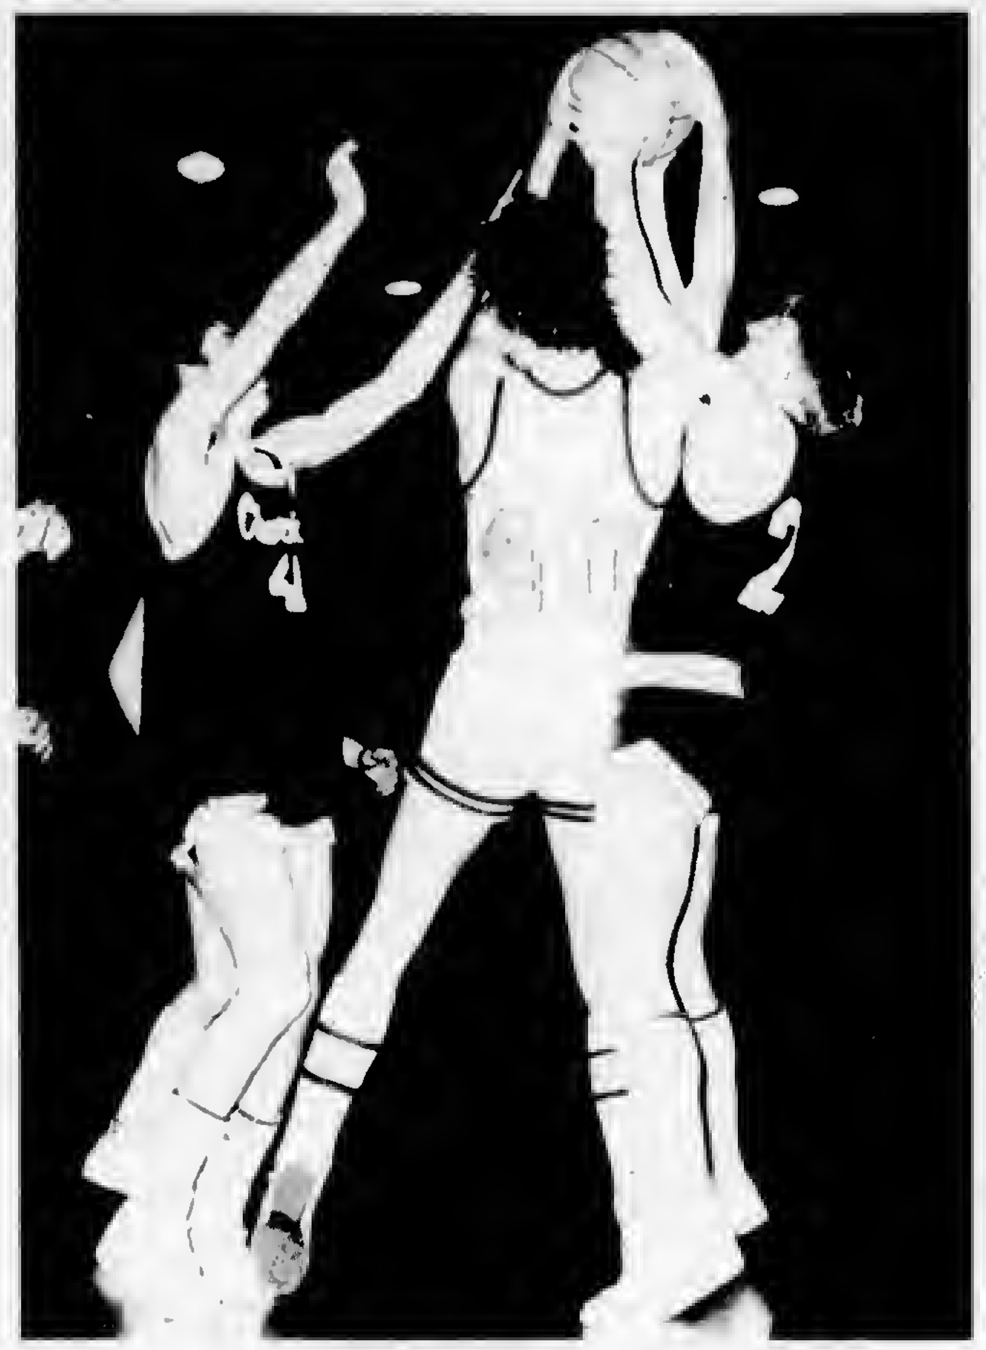
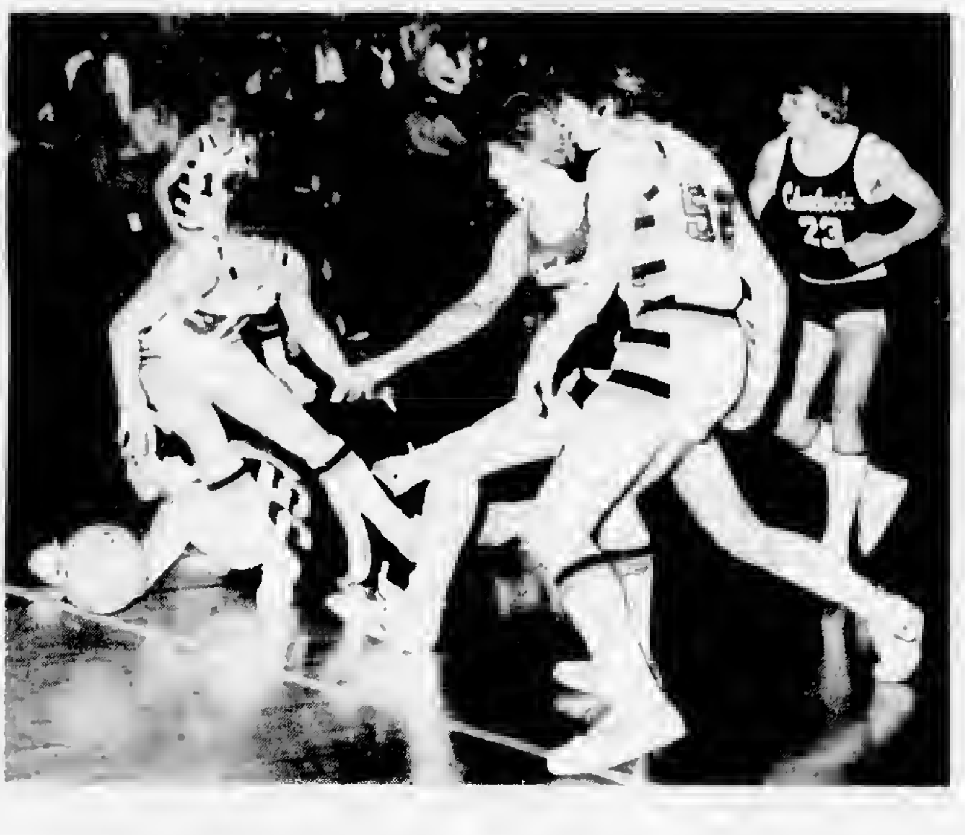
THE RAYDERS TRIED some double teaming of its own Saturday night against the Rogers City Hurons. Here Neil Dziedzic (31) and Steve Schuch (45) try to grab a rebound from Dave Idalski. The Rayders lost the final game in the tourney 61-50.

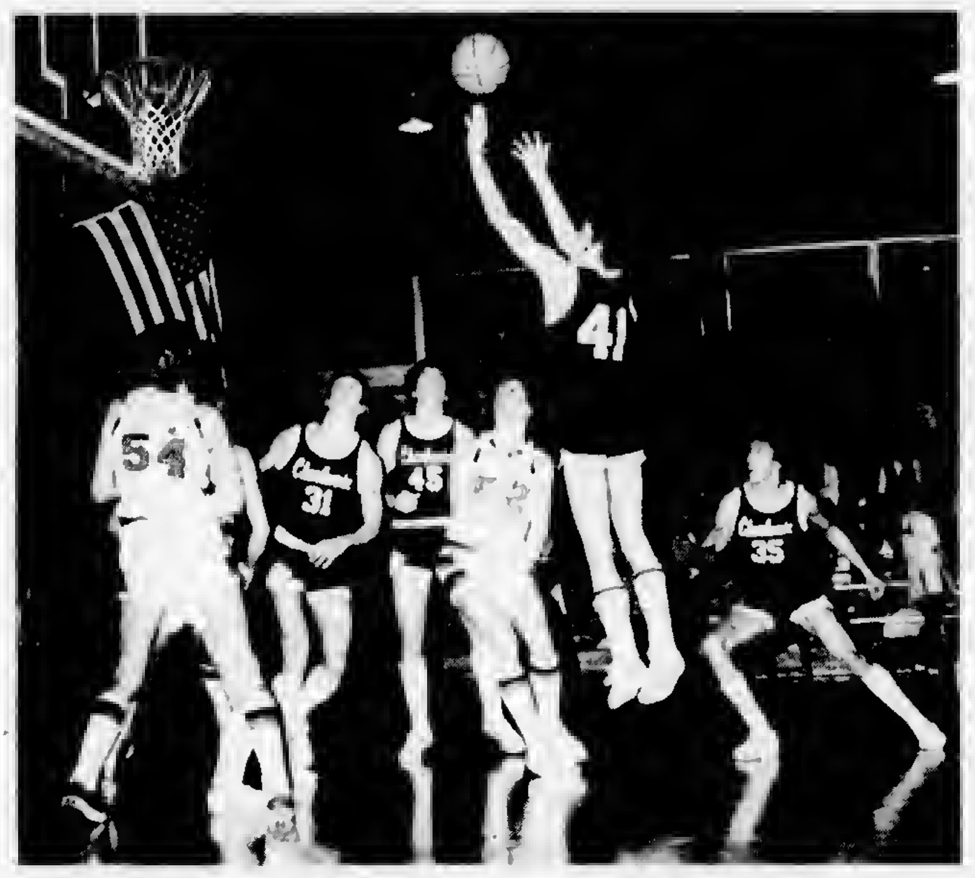


BOB PLUMM and Jim Alger tie up this ball with Dan Klann of Rogers City. The Rayders tried to come from behind as they have so often this year, but they couldn't pull it off. Rogers City won 61-50.

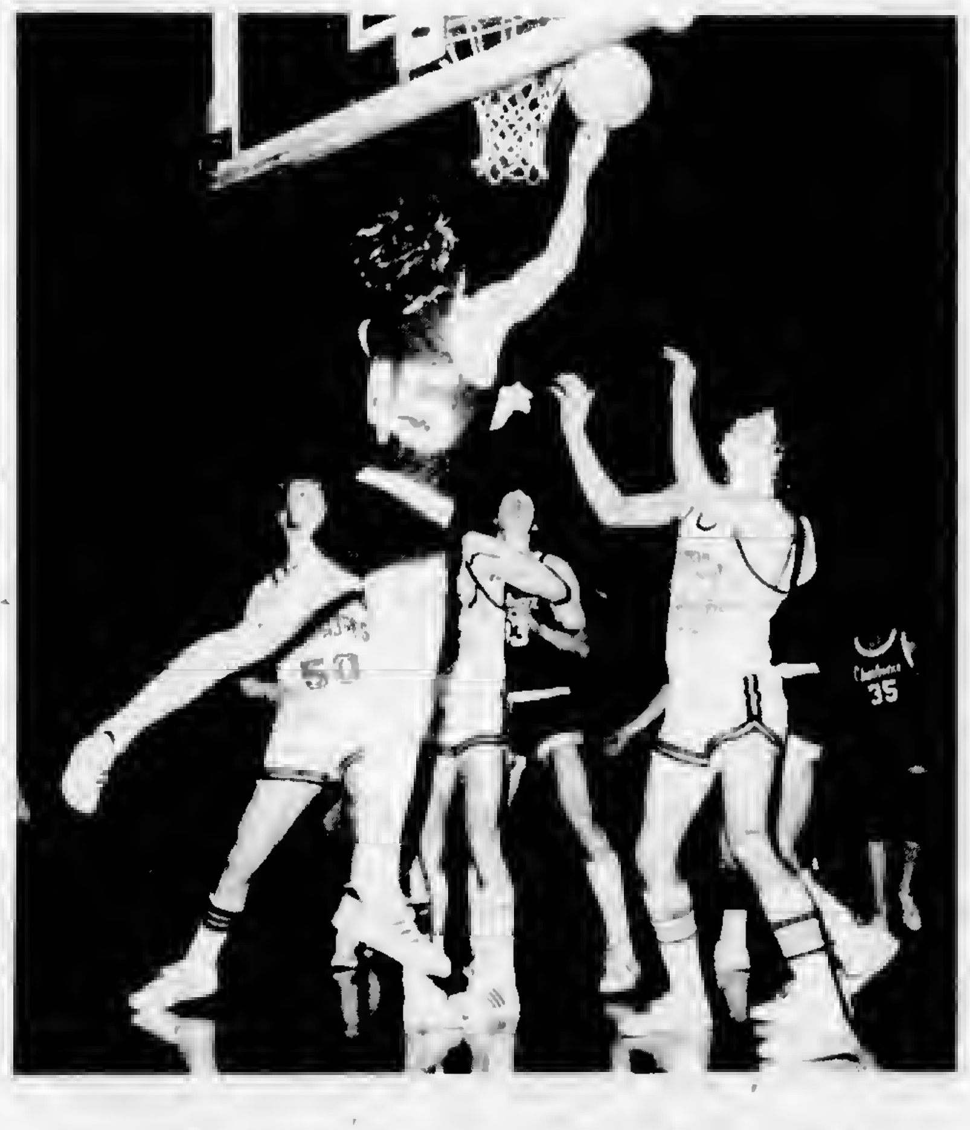
District Tournament Highlights



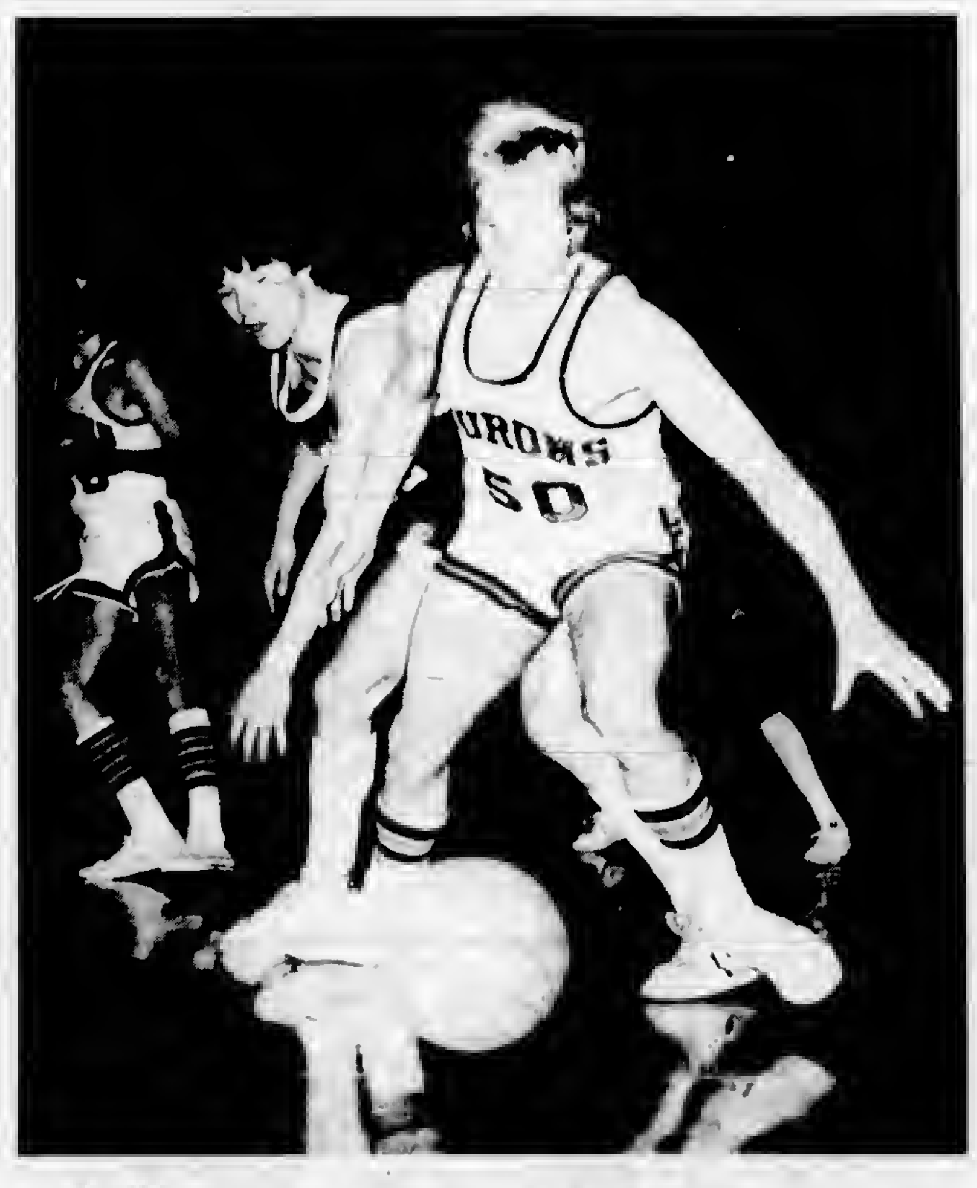
KIP CINNAMON DIVES for this ball during the Charlevoix-East Jordan game as his teammates Bob Drost and Jim Alger rush in to help him. The Rayders handily defeated the Red Devils 94-47.



IT WAS BOB PLUMM up for the shot during the Rayder's first game of the district tournament. Plumm's shot was good, but his teammates Neil Dziedzic (31), Steve Schuch (45) and Pat Schmidt (35) were looking for the rebound anyway.



STEVE SCHUCH surprised the Rogers City Hurons Saturday night as he accumulated 12 points. The Hurons effectively cut off high point man Pat Schmidt from scoring, but they forgot about Schuch. Rogers City took the game 61-50.



ROGERS CITY'S Curt Vogelheim played a terrific game Saturday night to move his team to its first victory over the Charlevoix Rayders. Here Joe Left and Vogelheim scramble for the ball.

Obituary

Walker A. Miles

Funeral services for a former resident, Walker A. Miles, 77, who died unexpectedly at his South Bend, Ind., home on Friday, were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Mrs. Ida Welsheimer of the Christian Science Society was the reader at the service. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Born in Germantown, Ohio, May 3, 1900, Mr. Miles came to Charlevoix as a child. He was associated with the U.S. Post Office Department from 1937 until his retirement in 1965 as a postal carrier in the business district and the city's north side. He was a member of the Christian Science Society.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mrs. Agnes McFallon whom he married at South Bend, Ind., on March 5, 1978; a son, Bard A., of Lansing; three daughters, Mrs. Roger (Suzanne) Sweet of Battle Creek, Mrs. Clara Barker of Holt and Mrs. George (Sylvia) Smith of Charlevoix; 12 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. John Workman of Ovid and Mrs. Lucille Cutler of Fenton and four brothers, Clair of St. Clair Shores, Robert, Lyle and Keith, all of Charlevoix.

Edna Beattie

News of the death of a former local resident, Mrs. Frederick (Edna) Beattie, Sr., 82, of Farmington on Monday has been received here.

Funeral services will be held there Wednesday. Interment will be in a Farmington Cemetery.

The former Edna Ward was born in Charlevoix March 24, 1895, the daughter of John and Anna (Meggison) Ward. She was a graduate of Alma College and taught Math in the Detroit School System until her retirement. Mr. Beattie preceded her in death.

She is survived by a son, Frederick Beattie, Jr., and a daughter, Miss Ann Beattie, of Farmington and three grandchildren.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor her memory contribute in her name to the Charlevoix Historical Society.

George H. Richardson

Funeral services for George H. Richardson, 62, former local resident who died unexpectedly at his home in Grand Rapids Thursday, were held Monday at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. Interment was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Born in Petoskey Oct. 2, 1915, Mr. Richardson grew up in Charlevoix and was graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1933. He resided here and later lived in Grand Rapids following his marriage to the former Mary Gengle.

Besides his wife, he is survived by twin children, Charles and Cathy, students at Marquette University in Milwaukee and a sister, Mrs. Richard (Lucina) Bergmann of Charlevoix.

Grace E. Gallagher

ST. JAMES, Beaver Island - Miss Grace Ellen Gallagher, 80, a native of Beaver Island, died Feb. 28 at Green Bay, Wis., where she had lived since her retirement.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix Friday evening. Interment will be in Holy Cross cemetery.

Miss Gallagher had lived in Chicago for many years where she was employed as a secretary.

Survivors include two sisters, Sister Lenure Gallagher, O.P., of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Nell (Mayme) Gallagher of Green Bay, Wis., with whom she had lived in recent years.

desireable area to live and work we can select what type of growth we want. What we have to work on is where we want it.

Hess suggested that interested people get a hold of the book, "Principles and Practice of Urban Planning," and read the chapter on zoning. He also suggested that people read William McTaggart's "Michigan Township Planning and Zoning."

McTaggart is a resident of the Boyne City area. The author said that the only way people can get his book is through the Michigan Township Association (MTA). The association also has pamphlets on zoning for interested people as does the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service.

Once you've read up on zoning and planning, if you're really interested in it, why don't you inform your alderman that you're interested in being a member of the planning commission. The city needs some concerned citizens willing to devote their time and energy to the orderly development of its growth.

Sen. Davis discusses candidacy

Jobs and the economy, solving the special problems of the people in the 11th Congressional District and bringing more federal dollars into the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula will be the top priorities of Bob Davis, who is seeking the Republican nomination to the 11th Congressional seat, if he is elected.

Davis also plans to work to protect and expand the mining and forest industries in the Congressional district if he is elected to the seat.

Davis, who is currently finishing his second term as a state senator, made the remarks while he was in Charlevoix Friday. The candidate spent last week campaigning throughout the 11th Congressional District as he formerly announced that he would be seeking the seat currently held by Phillp Ruppe.

Ruppe has decided not to seek re-election.

"I think my main priority will be to stop the negative things that are happening to the district such as Seafarer and the proposed nuclear dumping site planned for near Alpena," Davis said. "Then I will try to bring about some positive changes."

The candidate said he feels he has a distinct advantage over other Republican and Democratic cadndiates for the seat because of his 12 years in public office. He has served four years as a state representative and 8 years as a senator.

"I know how government works and I feel I have good credentials that will get me appointed to some worthwhile committees if I am elected to Congress," Davis said. "I think I will be able to get many things accomplished for this district."

Bob Davis

Brown plans announcement next week on campaign

Rod Brown, administrative assistant to Sen. Bob Davis, R-Gaylord, will be making an announcement within the next week concerning his candidacy for Sen. Davis' state senate seat.

Brown indicated he would have an announcement about his plans when he was in the Charlevoix area Friday for a hearing on a house bill dealing with teacher licensing.

Brown, a Northern Michigan native, has been Davis' aide for the past eight years. It is speculated that he will seek Davis' seat. Davis is running for the Republican nomination for the 11th Congressional district seat which is currently held by U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe.

Only one candidate has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for Davis' seat. That candidate is Bobert Wise of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix band slates concert for next Monday

The Charlevoix High School Music Department will present its annual Spring Concert at the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Appearing in concert will be the High School Concert and Symphony bands directed by Gary Stutzman and the High School Choir under the direction of Steven Stargardt.

The bands will present the selections played during the recent District II Band Festival at Petoskey in which both groups received top ratings.

The Concert band composed of 62 underclassmen will play "Wings of Army", King; "Fantasy for Band," Erickson, and "Pageantry Overture", Edmundson.

The Symphony band of 92 pieces which received four straight I's will present "Marcho Poco," Moore; "Folk Soag Suite," Wdliams, and "Impertrix", Reed.

The choir will present three selectians including "Hallelujah, Amen", Handel; "Listen to the Lambs", Letts, and "I Feel Love" arranged by Pete Hyde.

The high school jazz band will also make a brief appearance according to Mr. Stutzman.

The public is invited to attend the concert that is planned to usher in the Spring season.

Forensics team takes second place in Gaylord meet

By LAURA GLASS

The Charlevoix High School Forensics Team, coached by Connie Ford, placed second in the Gaylord Alpine Invitational Saturday.

The multiple group reading, "Pardon Me, Is this Planet Taken?" walked off with first place honors for the second week in a row. Members of the group are Craig Boss, Steve Hufford, John Grooters, Geoff Nelson and Bruce Avery.

Many individuals took top honors, too. Placing first in radio broadcasting was Pam Sutherland and Laura Glass took a first place in the humorous interpretive reading. Sue Miller gathered up a second place in oratory while Ann Marie Watson placed third in extemporaneous speaking and Kristi Mathews placed third in serious interpretive reading.

Reibel plans to refinance Castle Farms

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

A series of rock concerts is expected to roll at Castle Farms again this summer.

Arthur Reibel has disclosed that he is arranging a refinancing loan through the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) in Detroit on his Castle Farms projects.

Reibel, former judge of the Charlevoix County 90th District Court, said the refinancing will enable him to put Castle Farms Music Theatre back into operation this summer.

Reibel said he plans to open the music theater Fourth of July weekend and that he is negotiating with Bob Seeger to be the opening attraction. He has already booked the Statler Brothers, a top country group, for August 19.

He said he plans performances every Saturday night in July and August including four large concerts for which tickets will cost $8 per person and four small concerts with admission prices of $5 per head.

Reibel also revealed that he will be opening a new tavern with a 36-foot bar and live entertainment and dancing in the old horse barn at Castle Farms.

The Castle Farms owner said "the deal is not closed yet," but that he has a letter of commitment from the Detroit SBA office and a direct loan authorization from the SBA in Washington D.C.

Reibel said the refinancing will pay off all obligations on Castle Farms and that in return for the loan he will drop a suit he filed against SBA and a number of unnamed people after the SBA foreclosed on Castle Farms in December 1974.

Reibel has obtained a court order enjoining the SBA from taking over the Castle Farms property.

Both matters have been pending before Circuit Court Judge William Brown in Traverse City ever since. Last week Judge Brown's assignment clerk informed a reporter that "if he (Reibel) is dropping his suit, he hasn't informed this office yet."

James Miller, a loan officer in the Detroit SBA office, said in a telephone interview that Reibel's "loan request has been approved subject to certain conditions."

When asked what the conditions were, Miller transferred the call to Larry Pazol, chief counsel for the office.

One of Pazol's assistants then explained that information about the conditions was private and excluded under the Freedom of Information Act unless Reibel wrote a letter authorizing its release. Reibel declined to write the letter.

Last summer, the Castle Farms owner signed a long term lease with the Detroit-based Nederlander Corporation, owners of Pine Knob and other entertainment enterprises around the nation. The lease permitted a subsidiary, Ned North Inc., to use Castle Farms facilities for the staging of a summer series of rock concerts by big name groups.

Notable among last summer's performances were those by the group Chicago, Jackson Browne, and the Beach Boys, which drew crowds estimated at more than 8,000.

But there were some cancellations of other shows which together with other disagreements led to a rift between Reibel and Nederlander.

Reibel said he has bought Nederlander out and is doing his own booking and producing this summer.

Robert Nederlander, who was reached after three days of phone calls, said he would have no comment to make on the situation for three weeks.

Dogs Plague Hurlbut

There is a part of Hurlbut St. that is plagued with packs of dogs that are running loose every morning and late afternoon and evening and one of the neighbors just called the dog catcher whose reply was that if she would catch the dog he would come and pick it up. I think, in light of the recent increase in our taxes, that we could at least deserve to have a dog catcher that will catch the dogs, that we should not be required to do that. These dogs represent a danger to the children walking to school and to older people walking along the street. All the dogcatcher has to do is come along Hurlbut St. between 7 and 8 in the morning and he can find packs od dogs running loose. I wonder if someone con see if this is taken care of?

Thanks to Ray Wood

Many thanks to Councilman Ray Wood for recognizing the safety problem of the snow along Petoskey Rd. His efforts in having the snow removed so that the children walking to school would not be forced to walk in the street is greatly appreciated. Let's hope that this will be a permanent policy on both sides of the road in future winters. Tom Duke.

More Tax Complaints

Our total tax for the year 1977 was $1,133, based on an assessed value of $23,000. Our school tax amounted to $790, or approximately 70 percent of the total. The proposed assessed value that the city proposes to put in effect has now increased our assessed value to $29,000 or approximately 39 perscent. Using the 1977 miliage rate for our 1978 taxes, our total tax would amount to approximately $1,400, of which $980 would be the school tax. The School Board now wants the taxpayers to approve a bond issue of $3.2 million dollars. If there was ever any doubt as to whether or not the taxpayers would approve this bond issue the question has been settled by our city assessor. Thank you.

Protest Electricity Waste

I don't have a letter, I just want to protest against the waste of electricity at the condo at the corner of Dixon and Michigan Ave. The governor and the mayor are asking all of us to cut down on our electricity. We are turning down our thermostat and leaving our lights off and that place has about 100 lights blazing all night long, which we don't think is necessary. That's all I have to say.

Irritated Taxpayer

When I go down in front of the board of review next week, I'll be an irrated taxpayer.

Taxes Up 310 Percent In 33 Years

In 1945 my taxes on my property was $14. Today, the taxes on this same piece of property is $435, or better than an increase of 310 percent. I'm wondering about the people that work in the equalization dept., if their taxes have gone up the same 310 percent in the same length of time.

Pizza Pie Comments

We have been extremely satisfied with the quality education our children are receiving at the Charlevoix Elementary School. However, since our child does not participate in the program for academically talented children, we felt that she, too, should enjoy the experience of learning to make a pizza! So -- at no additional cost to the taxpayers -- this child (with our help) made a pizza, reading and following directions very precisely. She gauged her time so that while the pizza was baking she could set the table in an attractive fashion! She served the pizzoo -- which she had cut into equal portions (thus using her recently acquired knowledge of fractions!) After the whole family had enjoyed the pizza, she proceeded to clear the table, do the dishes, and clean up the kitchen!

At this point, we suggested that she write a little "report" about her learning experience. Using her best penmanship and trying to use what she had learned in language arts -- proper punctuation, captialization, correct paragraph placement, spelling, etc. -- she wrote her report.

All in all, we felt we had given our child a well rounded learning experience! Now, we propose that all the activities of the academically talented children be published in the paper so that we parents, whose children are not so talented, can afford them similar learning experiences (at our own expense, of course!)

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Program for the Academically Talented students at Charlevoix Elementary School operates at no additional expense to the taxpayers. The school and the program's teacher Barabara Christensen are currently applying for federal and state funds available for such programs so that it can be expanded, again at no additional expense to the taxpayers.

Fifty protest property valuations

About 50 property assessment complaints were filed with the City of Charlevoix Board of Review Monday.

Mayor Edward Hansen estimated that 50 people had informed the board of review that they intended to protest their 1978 property valuation with many of the complaints coming in by letter.

Mayor Hansen said the complaints represented quite an increase over last year.

"We didn't have any complaints to speak of last year," the mayor said.

City taxpayers have been in a general uproar since the notices of assessment changes were sent out a week ago. Many property owners claimed their assessments had increased upwards of 30 percent.

Mayor Hansen explained that the assessment figures for most property owners had not been changed since 1974.

"Except for new construction, remodeling or a recent sale, the figures on the tax bills represented 1974 assessments," the mayor explained.

So when people compared their 1977 assessment with their new 1978 assessment, it appeared that their valuation had skyrocketed.

But the increase actually represents one that has occurred over a five-year period, not a one-year period, the mayor said.

The assessed valuation of property in the city stayed the same in 1974 and 1975. However, property values increased in 1976, but the city did not increase the assessment figures. Instead a factor of 1.06 or 6 percent was applied to bring the valuation up to 50 percent of true cash value as is required by law.

The property values again climbed in 1977, but once again the assessments were not changed. So an even higher factor of 1.15 of 15 percent was levied against property valuations, the mayor said.

This year the new city assessor, Bob Potter, has tried to bring the assessment figures into line at 50 percent of true cash value, so that a factor won't need to be applied to the valuations.

"We really didn't have that many people complaining," the mayor said. "Most people understand their assessments and why they went up."

Longtime businessman, resident, John E. Boss dies here Sunday

Longtime businessman and Charlevoix resident John E. Boss died Sunday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Mr. Boss, 71, died after a long bout with cancer.

The avid sports fan and ardent supporter of the Charlevoix Rayder teams, was born in Barnard March 21, 1906, and always resided in the Charlevoix area.

Perhaps best known as the manager of Maxbauer Dairy, Mr. Boss got involved in the dairy business in Charlevoix in 1929. In 1932 he left to become tho manager of Northern Creamery Co. in Mackinaw City returning to Charlevoix with the company in 1934.

In 1939, Mr. Boss became the manager of Maxbauer's, a position he held until his retirment in 1973.

Mr. Boss was a member of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix and had served in the offices of elder and deacon of the church board. He was also a member of the Farm Bureau.

Survivors include his wife, a daughter, Mrs. James (Marlene) Terry of Stratford, Tex.; three sons, Dean of Spring Arbor, and Dale and Dwight of Charlevoix; 15 grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

Other survivors include three brothers, Jake of Southfield; Oscar of Brighton; and Lawrence of Charlevoix; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Smith of Birmingham, and Mrs. John (Edna) Essenberg of Atwood; his step-mother, Mrs. Ed Boss, of Charlevoix; a step-brother, William Merrow of Grand Rapids; and two step-sisters, Mrs. Harold (Mary) Boss of Charlevoix, and Mrs. George (Effie) Kuipers of Grand Rapids.

Funeral services will be held at the Community Reformed Church at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Mr. Boss's son-in-law, the Rev. James Terry of Stratford, Tex., and the Rev. Larry Grooters, pastor of the church, will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Winchester Funeral Home from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor his memory may do so by contributing to the memorial fund of the Community Reformed Church or the charity of their choice.

Claire Martin dies unexpectedly

Charlevoix businessman and board of education member, Claire C. Martin, died unexpectedly Saturday morning.

Mr. Martin, who owned and operated Art's Dry Cleaners, was found ill at his business and taken to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he died.

Mr. Martin has been associated with the dry cleaning business for many years, first as an employee at the Charlevoix Dry Cleaners and later as owner of Art's. He had been a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education for four years and was treasurer of the board at the time of his death.

He was closely associated with the track and field program at the Charlevoix High School and had assisted with the girls track program.

Born in Charlevoix, Feb. 11, 1924, Mr. Martin was graduated from Charlevoix High School and was a veteran of World War II serving in Europe with the U.S. Army.

On Dec. 23, 1977, he was married to the former Marry VanDamme.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Claire T. (C.T.), a student at Florida State University, and Kevin L., a student at Michigan Technological University; four step-children, Roy, a student at the University of Michigan, Dennis, James and Kathleen, a student at Michigan State University; four brothers, James J., Phil G., and Patrick R. of Charlevoix, and Frank H. of Newport, R.I.; five sisters, Mrs. Watson Gregory of Petoskey and Mrs. Rex Supernaw, Mrs. Lloyd Cummings, Mrs. Benjamin S. Gill and Frances A Martin of Charlevoix, and a half sister, Mrs. Larry Swensnn, also of Charlevoix.

Funeral services for Mr. Martin were held Tuesday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Austin Regier of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor his memory contribute in his name to a memorial fund to be used for the track program at the Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix County war vets to receive insurance dividends

There is some good news out of Washington for Charlevoix County's war veterans. According to a government announcement, they will be sharing in the months ahead in a payout of $445.6 million.

The money will go to those veterans of World War I, World War II and the Korean War who have maintained their G.I. insurance in force. It represents dividends that they accrued on their policies.

A breakdown shows that government checks totaling approximately $33,800 will be paid to some 310 former servicemen in the local area.

Not included are Vietnam veterans. They are covered by Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI), a term policy that does not pay dividends. They receive other compensating benefits.

The announcement, by the Veterans Administration, notes that the $445.6 million is the largest dividend it has ever declared. The previous high was $403.4 million.

The increase, it is explained, is chiefly due to higher interest rates that have been earned by the insurance funds in the last year or two.

Most of the Charlevoix County recipients are holders of National Service Life Insurance (NSLI), issued to those who saw service in the second World War.

The rest will go to World War I vets who are covered by U.S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) and to Korean vets who have Veterans Special Life Insurance (VSLI).

The 310 local residents who are on the receiving end represent only a fraction, 20 percent, of the 1,550 World War and Korean vets in the area.

What they will receive will vary in amount, depending upon their age and the size and type of their policies.

For World War I vets the coverage will be $224. For those who were in World War II, $117, and for Korean vets, $29.

Their checks will reach them automatically on the anniversary dates of their policies. No application for them is necessary, the VA states.

March of Dimes

ANNIE GEORGI, chairman of the Coffea Day activities for the Charlavoix County March of Dimes, thanks Dave Juilleret for his contribution. Juilleret raised $115 of the total $150 made through Coffee Days. Mrs. Georgi also presented plaques to the Weathervane Inn and Dockside Pharmacy.

Sonnenberg completes training

Marine Private David J. Sonnenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Sonnenberg of 600 Mercer, Charlevoix, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Marine Corps in October 1977.

Mock marriages show students what the real thing is like

What does marriage hold for those who enter into it? What is it like to work with a spouse and to raise a child?

Charlevoix High School seniors got some answers to these questions last week in their Behavioral Science class as they studied a unit on marriage and family relations. But they got their answers in an unconventional way.

To make the unit a little more real for her students, teacher Kris Schaperkotter decided to "marry off" her students for the week and to give them a child to take care of, too.

The "child" was a raw egg that the student couples were supposed to take care of and keep with them at all times.

"I tried to create a situation that would get the kids to think about what goes into being a parent," Mrs. Schaperkotter explained. "I used an egg because it is fragile like a child and needs special care."

Mrs. Schaperkotter said she got the idea for the project from an article in a downstate newspaper and she decided to try it with the 60 students in her two Behavioral Science classes.

"All of the students in the classes are seniors and are beginning to think about getting married," the teacher pointed out. "So I thought this unit would be interesting and relevant to them."

The students were allowed to pick their own "spouses," the teacher said. Some of them paired off with other classmates and some paired off with girlfriends or boyfriends who weren't in the class. The students went through wedding ceremonies, filled out marriage certificates and birth certificates and began taking care of their eggs.

Along with the egg came some tokens which the students could use as babysitting money.

"I didn't give everybody the same amount of tokens because that's the way it is in real life," Mrs. Schaperkotter said. "Some couples had more and some had less."

The teacher also handed out lists of questions that she wanted the couples to work out the answers to as a married couple would.

"They were asked to discuss things like discipline, who's going to handle the money and household duties and how do you instill values in children," Mrs. Schaperkotter said. "The students also talked with the high school counselor about how they can tell when they're ready to get married and when they're ready to have children."

Some interesting things and some crazy things took place during the week as the students carried their egg children through their various classes and home each night.

"Oh, we've had some eggnappings and some other things happen," Mrs. Schaperkotter said. "It's been a little difficult to keep the project in a serious vein.

"But if it made them think, then I feel the project was worth it."

And according to two of the students participating in the class, the project did make them think.

"It was interesting to feel the responsibility of taking care of a fragile delicate thing like a baby," Neil Dziedzic, one of the students, said.

"We learned quite a bit about what it takes to raise a kid and that an awful lot of marriage is devoted to taking care of a child. Also we saw what it takes in the proper upbringing of a child.

"It takes quite a lot."

Tammy Wasoski said that she probably didn't take the project as seriously as she should have.

"I didn't get a babysitter every time I should have," she confessed. "Sometimes I would just put the egg in the refrigerator.

"But I realized that I should have had a babysitter and what it takes to raise a child. I think I'll wait quite a while before getting married or having children."

Miss Wasoski said there were several eggnappings during the week and that complaints were filed about neglectful parents who left their eggs in places where they could be kidnapped. And many of the eggs were broken by students outside the class with students in the class ready to start murder trial proceedings.

"A lot of crazy things went on, but even with that it made you realize that if you were a neglectful parent, and you did go off and leave your child, it probably could get kidnapped," she said.

"I know now that I wouldn't want to have a child until I was darn ready to have it," she said.

"You realize you shouldn't have children until you're ready to settle down and devote all your time to it," Dziedzic added.

TAMMY WASOSKI and Neil Dziedzic both participated in mock marriages last week as a part of their Behavioral Science class at the Charlevoix High School last week. Miss Wasoski is holding the "egg child" she and Pat Klooster had to take care of during the week

Roy Hayes plans to open private practice, resign seat

The impending resignation of Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Roy C. [illegible]es caused quite a stir at [illegible] county board of com[illegible]ssioners meeting last week.

"[illegible]I am going to be leaving," [illegible]es confirmed in a [illegible]phone interview after the [illegible]mmissioners discussed [illegible]nors they had heard with [illegible]ge David Fershee during [illegible]r Wednesday meeting.

[illegible]But I haven't resigned yet [illegible] I will remain as [illegible]secutor until a qualified, [illegible]rested applicant is found. [illegible]t that means time-wise, I [illegible]'t know."

[illegible]ayes said he would be [illegible]ving his position as county [illegible]secutor to open a private [illegible]ctice.

[illegible]'ve spent 10 years in [illegible]ernment service and I've [illegible]yed it. It's been very [illegible]thwhile," Hayes ex[illegible]ned. "But I feel I have [illegible]n as much as I can give [illegible] now it is time for a [illegible]nge.

[illegible]'m looking forward to the [illegible]llenge of private prac[illegible]"

[illegible]e prosecutor said he [illegible]yed working with the [illegible]r law enforcement of[illegible]ls in the county and that [illegible]lieves there is a unique [illegible]t of cooperation between the police and sheriff and other officials in the county.

"I think the officials make a good team and that they have accomplished a lot together," he said.

County Commissioner Lee Moerland was concerned that the board had not been advised that Hayes was leaving and had not been asked to be a part of a selection committee.

"Other people are calling me and asking me what's going on and I don't know a thing about it," Moerland said.

"We're the people that pay for the position and we don't know anything. Also I think we should be involved in the selection of a new prosecutor. We should have some say about who it is."

The commissioners adopted a resolution recommending that applicants for the prosecuting attorney's position be obtained from as broad a base as possible, that a delegate from the county commission be on the screening committee and that Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner review the position and make recommendations for improvement and change.

When Judge Breighner was contacted by the Charlevoix Courier, he said that he probably would appoint a county commission member to the screening committee.

"We did that before when they were looking for a prosecutor and it seemed to work quite well," the judge said.

"The statute provides that I appoint the replacement and that I don't need any approval," he pointed out. "In the past I have always tried to work with the commissioners and I think I will continue to do that."

Breighner said no appointments had been made to the committee because he hadn't received any official notice that Hayes would be resigning.

TUGBOATS USED TO BE quite a common sight on Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. The top picture shows the government tug "General Williams" in the upper channel in 1891 and the bottom picture shows the tug "J.V. Taylor" in the lower channel. Residents and visitors to Charlevoix got a treat last year as a new tug showed up on Lake Charlevoix. The tug "Resolute" built by Cliff Riddick and two friends hit the open waters at the end of the summer. (Photos Courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society)

Charlevoix residents need to conserve

It looks like the coal miners will not be going back to work in the near future. That means that coal supplies will continue to dwindle in the Midwest and that electrical power shortages may become a reality.

Mayor Edward Hansen said last week that Consumers Power Company, which supplies the city with electrical power, has already contacted him to discuss possible power blackouts and power rotation in the city.

Mayor Hansen said the power company would begin its power cutbacks once it reaches a 30 day supply of coal reserves. The mayor said the company had about a 45-day supply last week.

The mayor also said the city electrical crews were looking into hooking up the old diesel engine generator to help send out power to Charlevoix area residents during the blackouts ordered by Consumers or in case the situation gets very bleak and miners refuse to go back to work for an even longer period than the coal reserves will last.

But there are other things that can be done by individuals and businesses to help stave off the blackouts. Individuals and businesses can help conserve energy.

Some people have already begun conservation efforts and they have been successful. Daily we have heard or read reports in the news media that dwindling supplies have been stretched a little further because of conservation efforts.

All the conservation effort takes is the desire to cut back on energy use and the willingness to spend a little time rethinking some old habits.

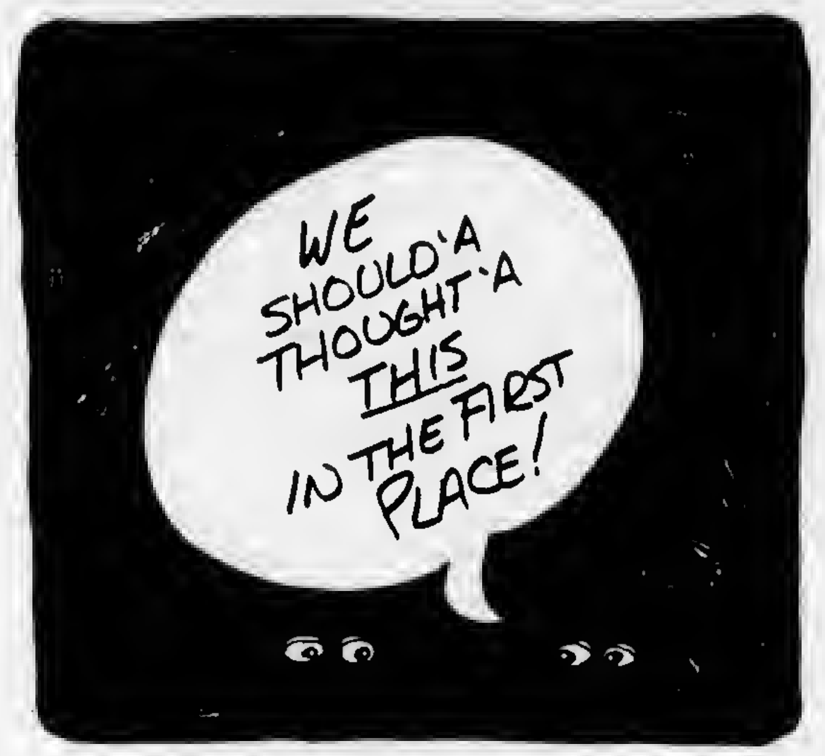
Turn off decorative lights whenever possible and use the lowest wattage setting in three-way lamps when general room lighting is needed. Use higher wattages only when brighter light is needed for studying or other close work. In rooms with overhead fixtures, consider reducing the wattage of the bulbs. Turn off overhead lights if a reading lamp is being used.

Turn off incandescent bulbs whenever leaving a room or quitting task that requires their light. Turn off fluorescent lights only when not using them for more than 15 minutes. Frequent turning on and off shortens the life of the bulb.

Turn on the radio instead of the television if what you want is background noise rather than something to watch. And use the black and white television in place of the color set. The newer solid state models use less electricity than the older tube-type sets. Instant-on sets should be unplugged because they pull electricity to keep warmed up even when they're not fully on.

If the choice comes down to turning up the heat in the bedroom or flipping on the electric blanket, the blanket is the better deal. Even better is simply adding another conventional blanket, quilt or comforter, or wearing another layer of clothing to bed.

The list of energy saving suggestions could go on and on and is only limited by the imagination. But it is important for Charlevoix residents to think conservative now, rather then to wish they had conserved later.



WE SHOULD'A THOUGHT'A THIS IN THE FIRST PLACE!

A question I hear frequently is: "Do you do anything in the Free Press except write a dumb column?" Lately, the answer has been yes. I also answer the phone for Susan Watson and Paul Magnusson, the 2 reporters who are doing a super job of exposing the abuse of patients at the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Their desks are near mine, and they need help fielding the tremendous response from readers who have horror stories of their own to add to those uncovered by Susan and Paul. There appears to be no end to the damning evidence that our society has a long, long way to go before it can be called civilized.

It seems like old times to be hearing complaints about attendants hitting or neglecting retarded youngsters. For 25 years I worked at the newspaper in Lapeer, just a few blocks from the Lapeer State Home, now called the Oakdale Regional Center for Developmental Disabilities. It was a rare week that I didn't hear at least one beef concerning the treatment of "the kids at the Home."

I find that I still balk at a euphemism decreed by some state bureaucrat many years ago. He ruled that people confined in state institutions should thereafter be called residents instead of patients. But I continued to call them patients in the newspaper, much to the annoyance of some State Home officials.

My explanation was that I didn't want to confuse readers. At that time, many Home employees lived in houses and apartments on the Home grounds. They had always been called Home residents to distinguish them from the Home patients who also lived there. I considered it confusing for people committed to an institution to be called the same thing as many of the institution employees.

At times, it was also unfair. For instance, the Home once had a high-level administrator whose teenage son was a part-time burglar. The family lived on the Home grounds and had no other address than "Home resident." So that's how the son was labeled whenever the newspaper reported his latest skirmish with the law.

If the newspaper described everyone living at the Home as residents, readers might get the impression that one of the retarded kids was a thief. In the interest of fair and responsible journalism, I refused to expose Home patients to the risk of being mistaken for Home employees.

Besides, a patient might have sued the newspaper for libel.

Today there are only a few Home employees still living on the grounds in Lapeer, so I suppose it is more acceptable to say the retarded patients are residents. And I wouldn't argue with those patients or their families who prefer "resident" as a less degrading description.

But I still cling to "patient," and for a less facetious reason than to spare a retarded boy from the humiliation of being mistaken for the attendant paid to guard him.

There is hope in being a patient. Hospitals and doctors treat patients in an effort to improve their conditions. Things could get better.

But to be a resident of a mental health institution seems the same as being an inmate in a prison with a life sentence. Custodial care only. Punishment rather than therapy. All ye who enter, give up.

This is mere semantics, I know. Abuse exists in state mental health facilities, no matter what you call the people being abused. It has always been there, and I'm skeptical about it being eliminated permanently. I've seen too many politicians forget too many promises as soon as the spotlight is shining somewhere else.

But a few weeks ago, an Oakdale attendant filed criminal charges against an 18-year-old patient for socking him in the face. The attendant's union is supporting him strongly. In a letter to the local editor, one Oakdale employee defended the hitting of patients by asking:

"Would a member of the public bring one of these residents into their home and have that resident break things, beat on their family, throw feces at them, soil or wet themselves and not try to discipline them?"

The stupidity of this argument can be illustrated by asking 2 questions: At Detroit General Hospital, should an attendant hit a patient for soiling the sheets? If a crazed patient socks his nurse, should she sock him back?

People are committed to mental health institutions because they need care they can't receive at home. They should be treated as patients in the hope that some day they'll move on to become residents somewhere else.

Clockwise

Man is a creature geared to relativity.

If the temperature suddenly plunged to 40 degrees on a July day, we would all rush indoors and bundle up next to the fire.

When the temperature hits 40 in March, however, just the opposite is true. We abandon our hearths for outdoor pursuits, all of which become play under the warm spring sun.

There was ample evidence of this phenomenon in Charlevoix over the weekend.

Our January snowbanks are slowly starting to recede, although they still lap front porches in many neighborhoods. Drifts and banks with a southern exposure are going first, baring familiar yet strangely alien terrain in their wake. What used to be lawn along the curb now has a coarse, moon-like texture. That's the sand and gravel that was applied and then plowed, applied and then plowed all winter long.

Look! There's the garden hose and the leaf rake, right where I left them!

Surprisingly, there is very little moisture in this winter's snow. It evaporates without leaving so much as a damp spot. Such a dry run-off is very strange to downstaters who always associate axle-deep mud with the spring thaw.

ONE OF THE nicest additions to Charlevoix-The-Beautiful is the new carillon at the First Congregational Church which plays mini-concerts every afternoon at 5 p.m.

With the leaves gone, the sound of the bells carries easily throughout the valley and up and north and south hills.

The music of the carillon provides a soothing tonic to ears assailed throughout the day with the raucus din of rock 'n' roll, the hum and whirr of business machines, the clatter of typewriters, the jangle of telephones or the roar of traffic.

How nice to hear pleasant sounds for a change!

WITHOUT a great deal of fanfare, the Captain's Corner on M-66 is slowly becoming a full fledged shopping center.

First came Glen's Market several weeks ago. Then Crown Drug Store opened last week. And although no date has been set, it appears the Ben Franklin Store will be in business before long. Some of the shelves are already stocked.

The Clocks made a quick tour of the Captain's Corner Sunday morning and were surprised to find workers on the job in most of the smaller shops, even though the names of the proprietors have not been revealed.

The question remains: How big a bite will the new shopping center take from Charlevoix's downtown businesses?

And the answer lies with service and pricing. If they remain competitive at both locations, Charlevoix could enjoy a substantially greater share of Northern Michigan's total retail business.

ELSEWHERE in today's Charlevoix Courier you will find a copy of the third revision of the proposed city charter which residents will vote on April 3.

Members of the Charter Commission feel they have answered most of your objections. The mayor will be elected by the people. Aldermen will be nominated and elected by ward. And final authority for the appointment and removal of department heads rests with the council, not the city manager.

The proposed charter sets up the basic machinery for sound government as the city approaches the 21st Century. It will not answer all of our problems, but it takes a giant step toward a more equitable financing of city services.

Read it carefully. And then remember to vote April 3.

Township trustee seeks tax relief

EDITOR'S NOTE: Charlevoix Township Trustee Don Smith has sent the following proposals for property tax reform to several legislators. Smith contends the only way to improve the property tax situation in Northern Michigan is to reform the system, not to work within it. He suggests that any other property tax payers who are concerned about the situation write to the following legislators: Sen. Patrick McCullough, Sen. John Welborn, Sen. Harry DeMaso, Sen. Gary Corbin and Sen. Harold Scott, Senate finance Committee, Michigan State Senate, Capitol Building, Lansing, Mich., 48913; Sen. Robert Davis, Michigan State Senate, Capitol Building; Rod Brown, candidate 37th District, Office of Sen. Robert Davis, Capitol Building; Bob Wise, candidate 37th District, Route 3, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720; Rep. George Montgomery, chairman, House Taxation Committee, House of Representatives, Capitol Building, Rep. Bobby Crim, Speaker of the House, Capitol Building, Rep. Ralph Ostling, Capitol Building; Rod Moore, House Taxation Committee Staff, Capitol Building; and Rep. Tom Brown, Rep. Claude Trim and Rep. Harry Gast, members of the Subcommittee on Property Taxation, Capitol Building.

Dear Senator McCollough:

Taxpayers in Michigan and especially in our Northern area are in a desperate situation regarding property taxes. Michigan is ripe for a taxpayer revolt if the state legislature does not enact some tax relief.

Property taxes have increased far greater than our ability to pay them in our area. Sure, we property owners are worth more money real estate wise, but that does little good if we can't afford to live in our own homes because of escalating property taxes. Granted, the state does offer some property tax relief with the 60 percent credit for excess property taxes over 3.5 percent of our adjusted gross income, but this figure is no longer acceptable. The credit should be raised to 80 percent or the 3.5 percent should be lowered to 3 percent.

All things considered, if the present trend continues, our children won't be able to own homes in this area. We are pricing and taxing them completely our of this American dream. U.S. News and World Reports projects that the average new house valued at $55,000 now will cost $89,000 in 1983. Where are our children going to earn the kind of money to pay a mortgage and taxes on their future homes? Every month more and more young people are excluded from the ranks of future homeownership.

Inflation and aggressive real estate operations ae putting so much pressure on Northern Michigan taxpayers that the anti-tax dam is about to burst. Our area has been promoted heavily to downstate real estate investors. Just recently one area realtor distributed 80,000 real estate brochures at the Detroit Outdoorman Sports and Travel Show. The result has been that much of our marketbale real estate is sold to people with plenty of investment money because they have better paying jobs and they live in an area where the cost of living is much lower than in Northern Michigan. Local assessors use these inflated purchase prices to tell us what our homes are now worth. This new value would be great if we built or purchased our homes as an investment, but we didn't! WE BOUGHT THEM TO LIVE IN!!! We don't want to give them up because of oppressive property taxes.

When a real estate broker claims that he's made a killing and avoided income taxes thanks to the capital gains exemption, he's really helped himself at the expense of the average homeowner. Every time those land transactions are recorded at the Register of Deeds office, ammunition is given to the tax assessor to raise tax assessments. Tax reform needs to include a provision that eliminstes the capital gain exemption for homes or land sold within 10 years from the date of purchase. One exception might be 5 years if the home is a primary residence. Another tax reform would be to allow a 10 percent tax credit based on property taxes paid on your home with a maximum limit of $200.

We need tax relief! If the choice comes down to between lower taxes and more government services, we want the lower taxes. I do feel that with decent property tax reform we would be better off with a local property tax instead of an income tax to support our schools.

We are pleading with you to take action. The word around Northern Michigan is that property tax reform is too hot an issue for the legislature to tackle in an election year. Everyone seems to be worrying about who's going to get credit for it. If you're afraid to take a stand at this time, say so—but if you feel any sympathy toward taxpayers, WOULD YOU PLEASE DO SOMETHING!

Tims is running out and so is our money—not to mention our patience. I would appreciate a response to my proposals.

Sincerely yours,
Don Smith

...Speaking Her Mind

A weekly newspaper staff consists of many unsung heroes. These heroes are the people who put in long hours covering various events in the community to keep the paper's readers informed of what is going on.

One of the unsung heroes on the Charlevoix Courier staff is Bill Mercer. Bill covered Charlevoix High School Rayder football and basketball this year for the Courier. He spent many long nights running up and down the sidelines in the cold during football season and sitting in the bleechers among cheering and jeering fans during basketball season.

Although many people are acquainted with Bill as a sports writer, most people know him as a salesman for John Buick Realty in Boyne City or as the former planner for Charlevoix County.

Bill agreed to take on the sports writing in addition to his other job because he enjoys both football and basketball and also because he is proud of Charlevoix and its Rayders. He knows many of the team members and enjoys watching them strive toward victory.

We at the Courier think Bill's enthusiasm has shown through in his coverage of the Rayders and we have been proud to have him as a member of the staff during the last seven months. We hope that our readers have enjoyed his hard work, too, and that you will let him know about it.

Thanks, Bill, for a super season. We hope you, like the Rayders will be back next year.

All right, all right, I'll admit. I'm having a love affair. I love my little wierd green colored Volkswagon rabbit and I wouldn't trade that car for anything.

As with any brand new car owner, I am very aware of every dent and ding in the vehicle. So I was crushed when I dented the car in a 5 mile per hour accident last year.

Finally about two weeks ago, after several months of kidding, I got the car repaired. It looked just like new when it came out of the body shop and I was thrilled beyond words. I proudly showed everyone the repair job like a grandmother shows pictures of her grandchildren and I carefully motored through the city so as to avoid any more accidents.

So you can imagine the terror that swept through me recently when a strange man appeared in the Courier office looking for the owner of a little green car.

"That's me," I said wonderingly. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, I just smashed in the side of your car," he replied.

"You've got to be kidding," I yelled turning pale.

"I am," he said swiftly. "But do you think I could talk you into moving it?"

Much relieved, I ran downstairs to move the car. All I could think was of that old saying, pride goeth before a fall.

Fortunately my fall had been padded.

With all due respect to the long-range weather forecasters, I'm always interested in what the naturalists predict in regard to the weather.

This year, they hit it right on the button. They knew back in early December that this winter was going to be wet and rotten because: The elk and deer came down early from the high country.

Mud-dauber wasps were building their nest higher.

Skunk cabbages grew taller.

Woolly bear caterpillars had heavy coats.

Bears were fat.

Squirrels had ravenous appetites in the fall.

They should have asked housewives. They also have an inside track on how the winter is going to compare with previous ones. I knew it was going to be a bruiser because:

This is the year eight pairs of boots in our house didn't match one pair of feet. This phenomenon occurs only once in every 72 years and can only mean that blizzard conditions are on the way.

This is the year we cleaned out the freezer – leaving only three snowballs from 1971, five packages of squash which everyone hates, and 12 packages of chicken innards to be thrown away on garbage day . . someday.

This is the year we got the puppy, rationalizing that we could watch him when he started to twirl around in a circle, grab him and put him outside.

This is the year we didn't buy firewood, because we figured it was too expensive and besides, we rarely used the fireplace as it smoked up the bricks.

This is the year we put the sleds up in the attic – on the far side where there is no floor and you have to crawl through the insulation and put the rope in your teeth and slid it carefully along the beam before you fall through the floor.

Yep, no doubt about it. When your 72-year-old milkman got new teeth and began to look more like Robert Redford every day, we knew it was going to be a cold winter.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

There are few issues today that are more aggravating and frustrating to our citizens than taxes. With the thought of reaching as many people as possible, I am writing to you in the hope that you will publish a series of three letters on the subject of taxes and the resources open to the taxpayer who feels unduly and unfairly taxed.

Many property owners have noticed that their property taxes have increased drastically in recent years. If you think your property taxes are excessive, there is a course of action you can take to try to have them reduced. However, once you receive your tax notice it is too late. The appeal process deals with the assessment of your property, not with the tax.

If the assessment on your property has been changed this year you are supposed to be notified of the change. If you do not receive an assessment change notice, it is a good idea to check with the local assessor's office to see if your assessment has been changed.

If you feel your assessment is not correct, there is an established procedure by which you can appeal. The appeal process begins with your local board of review.

An appeal is your right to question the assessed value on which you are required to pay taxes. It is not a personal criticism of your local assessor, your township supervisor, or even the State Tax Commission, all of whom have the responsibility of establishing the value of your property.

There are three basic reasons on which you may base an appeal:

–UNEQUAL ASSESSMENT – If your farm or home is assessed more than other farms or homes of similar market value in your area, you have a legitimate basis for an appeal. Even if your property is assessed less than what you consider to be 50 percent of its value, it doesn't mean your assessment is fair or that you should not appeal. Regardless of whether your property is underassessed or overassessed, the constitutionally mandated objective is to achieve uniform assessments.

–OVERASSESSMENT – The law requires property to be assessed at 50 percent of its true cash value. If it is assessed at more than 50 percent, you have an excellent reason to appeal. The "true cash value" is not necessarily what your property would sell for, even excluding the transaction cost. For farms and other income property, the law requires that zoning, quality of soil, location, present economic income from the land and other items be taken into consideration in determination of true cash value.

State law (P.A. 293 of 1976) also exempts normal maintenance and minor remodeling up to $4,000 a year for three years from increased assessment.

–ERRORS – Mistakes in assessments and arithmetic errors are a common basis for appeal. For example, if your property has not been closely inspected, the value of your property may reflect a finished basement or a ceramic tile bathroom that you do not have. By checking the assessment card for your property located in the township or city office you can catch these types of errors.

If you find an error, call it to the attention of your assessor or supervisor immediately and it will usually be corrected. If it is not corrected, an appeal to the local board of review should remedy the problem.

Next week I will cover the appeal process.

Sincerely,
RALPH OSTLING
State Representative

Teacher Feature

...Marian Kohn

Marian Kohn

A love of reading prompted Marian Kohn to become an English teacher.

"I've always loved to read and that seemed to be the natural direction to go in when I went to college," Mrs. Kohn, who has taught at Charlevoix High School since 1955, explained.

"My father was very studious and he encouraged books at home. I've liked to read since then and I still do."

What does the English teacher read? When she's relaxing she prefers the mysteries of Agatha Christy, but she also enjoys the stimulous of William Falukner, one of her favortty authors. She also enjoys the poetry of Emily Dickinson and Robert Frost and non-fiction such as E.B. White's essays.

Mrs. Kohn tries to instill this love of reading in the students of her Academic English I (freshman English) and Academic English III (junior English) classes. The academic English classes are intended for high school students who plan to go to college.

At the junior level, the final English class required for graduation, students spend the first semester reading the works of American writers who have been awarded the Nobel Prize for literature. These authors included Ernest Hemingway, William Faulkner, John Steinbeck, Pearl Buck and Eugene O'Neill.

The second semester the students spend working on a major project which is writing a term paper. For the paper, students have to read four or five books, totaling about 1,500 pages, by an author of their choice. The selection of an author is approved by Mrs. Kohn.

Then the students write a paper on what they've read incorporating research they have gleaned from biographical materials and from criticism written by literary critics.

The second semester is ended with reading from selected American writers including poets.

This year the students have also received a limited grammar review in their English classes.

"I think the students felt they needed it," Mrs. Kohn said. "And their writing showed it, too."

The English teacher said she felt grammar had been placed in the background for quite a few years as far as English classes are concerned. Now there is renewed interest in grammar in English classes.

"The pendulum seems to swing from one side to the other about grammar," Mrs. Kohn observed. "I wish it would stay in the middle."

The teacher said that when she began teaching in 1955, approximately 80 percent of the classroom time was spent on grammar.

"But many people are less interested in grammar than in reading and the other activities that can take place in an English class," she said.

"There was a period in the late '60s and early '70s where we heard the cry for relevancy. And grammar seemed less relevant than reading about current things that were happening and the things that television popularized.

"And schools felt pressure to provide entertainment as opposed to instruction in the classroom. So less attention was paid to grammar."

Mrs. Kohn believes that students should study both language and literature and that they can benefit from the study of both things.

She noted that the older students who are facing college seem to be anxious to be prepared in the grammar area while the younger students aren't as interested in it. Parents also seem happy about the expanded study of grammar their children are receiving.

Although Mrs. Kohn loves to read, she doesn't do any writing of her own.

"I wish I could write, but I just don't have a flair for it," she confessed.

However, she did spend many hours proof reading the wroks her late husband, Harold Kohn, produced and she also would discuss his ideas with him before he wrote them down.

Mrs. Kohn does hope to put together some new volumes of her husband's works from collections of poems and stories that are unpublished.

Mrs. Kohn received her bachelor's degree from North Central College in Illinois. She graduated from the school the same year another Charlevoix teacher, Lucy Martin, did. In fact, they lived down the hall from each other in the dormitory and Dr. and Mrs. Martin and Dr. and Mrs. Kohn often double dated when they were in college.

"I hadn't seen Lucy in 14 years when I recognized her at a Community Concert in Petoskey one evening," Mrs. Kohn recalled. "They were living in Cheboygan at that time and we had just moved to Charlevoix."

Mrs. Kohn said she has seen some changes during the 23 years that she taught English in the seventh through eleventh grades, but she doesn't think the students have changed that much.

"There have always been excellent students and there have always been some that were not so self motivated," she explained. "I do think there has been an attitude change toward the authority of the school. There is much more challenge to it now."

And Mrs. Kohn believes that television has had some affect on her students, too.

"I'm sure there are some people who do a lot less reading than they would because of television," she said. "But I don't think that's been the main effect of television.

"I think it has factured our capability to pay attention for long periods of time. It is so easy to tune out television shows that we are not interested in and I think that carries over into our conversations and to the classroom.

"We have lost some of our ability to really listen unless we are intensely interested in something."

Spring vacation opens March 24 for Charlevoix students

Spring is just around the corner and that means spring vacation is coming up.

For students in the Charlevoix Public Schools, vacation will begin on the afternoon of March 24, Good Friday, and last until March 31.

St. Mary's Catholic School, Boyne Falls Public Schools, Ellsworth Community Schools and Ellsworth Ebenezer Christian will also follow this vacation schedule.

The Beaver Island Community Schools vacation will begin on the afternoon of March 23 and last through March 27.

East Jordan, Boyne City and Central Lake public schools will have vacation beginning March 24 and lasting through March 31. The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District offices will also be closed on those dates.

Co-op nursery school begins registration for 1978-79 classes

Registration is now being taken by the Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery School for the 1978-79 school year.

A child must be three years old by Sept. 1 and reside in the Charlevoix School District to be eligible for the nursery school program. Parents also take part in the nursery school program by working in the classroom and on committees. They must also attend parent meetings.

Enrollment is limited and parents are urged to register their children early. Registration forms are available at the nursery school room located in the elementary school building. Anyone interested in the school can get more information by contacting Ethel Grunch, membership chairman at 547-2784, or Sandy Puhl, president, at 547-9084.

Deadline for registrations is May 1.

Charlevoix library expands hours

The hours of the Charlevoix Public Library have been expanded.

The Library Committee of the Charlevoix Public School system has recommended that the hours be expanded to 1 to 8 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 1 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays, 1 to 5 p.m. on Fridays and 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

The committee changed the hours to allow students and other residents of the school system additional time to utilize the library.

District Court operating in black

The Charlevoix County District Court is operating in the black for the first time in the last five years.

District Court Judge David Fershee presented a year-end report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during their meeting Wednesday showing the court made $6,801 in 1977.

Previously the district court has operated in the red showing a deficit of $16,333 in 1976; $23,171 in 1975 when Judge Fershee took over in the middle of the year; $32,316 in 1974 and $15,184 in 1973.

Fershee said the district court has been able to recover its deficit through a revision in the fine and costs schedule and throuth an increase in funding from the county commissioners.

"I feel the court should pay for itself, so I have reversed the fines and costs schedule," Judge Fershee explained. During sentencing about one-quarter of the charges levied goes for fines and the rest goes for costs. Fershee has been criticized for doing this because it cuts into the revenue that libraries in the county have been receiving.

"I think it's more important for the court to pay for itself first," Fershee said explaining his decision. "But the amount of the fines has increased, too, so the libraries aren't suffering. They should be receiving about the same amount of money as they always have."

The judge pointed out that the district court also recovers the costs of the court appointed attorneys and restitution for the victims of a crime through sentencing.

In 1977, a total of $2,113.14 was collected as restitution in Charlevoix County. A total of $841.42 was collected to pay for court appointed attorneys.

Fershee also gave the commissioners additional good news contained in a report from the Supreme Court Administrators Office. The State Supreme Court administrator has recently completed a review of the operations of the 90th District Court.

"The 90th District Court appears to be undoubtedly and by far the most efficient and effectively administered court thus far examined," the administrator wrote in the summary of his report.

The commissioners adopted a resolution commending Fershee for his work in the district court in light of the report.

In an additional report, Judge Fershee discussed the operation of the district court probation department, headed by Jennifer L. Brindel, chief probation officer.

Last year the probation department performed 189 presentence investigations for Charlevoix County involving interviewing the defendant and the plaintiff, checking the criminal record of the defendent, obtaining pertinent information on the background of the client, and interviewing the arresting officer.

The investigation is then compiled into a report to the district judge with the probation officer's recommendations for sentencing.

Water quality plan discussed at meet

Charlevoix County waters are pretty clean, but plans should be made to keep them that way, the county board of commissioners learned at their meeting last week.

Chuck Grant of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, presented the proposed Water Quality Program for the 10-county area to the commissioners Wednesday.

The program is an answer to a decree by the federal government that all waters in the nation shall be swimable and fishable.

"We're fortunate in this area to be able to plan to prevent the problems of pollution instead of being like some communities where they have to plan how to improve their waters," Grant told the commissioners.

The plan that Grant and members of the Clean Water Citizens Advisory Committee have prepared outlines the basic causes of potential pollution in the area such as impacts on water quality due to accelerated growth, growth on inland lakes and the need for management of them, agriculture runoff, industrial and municipal discharges and storm water run off.

The committee members, which included Larry Levengood of Charlevoix County District 3 Health Department, Bill Mercer, former Charlevoix County planner, and Bill Korthase, county road commission member, felt that there were many agencies in the region that could and should deal with the regulation of potential pollution. The committee suggested that these agencies such as the soil conservation districts, the drain commissioners, the health departments and the soil erosion agencies continue to deal with these things.

However, the committee felt it was important that responsibilities be better outlined so that the agencies will know who is responsible for monitoring or regulating various activities.

"It's kind of like putting your ducks in order," Grant explained. "Many agencies know what the problem is but they don't know who has the authority or the funds to deal with it."

Commissioner Bob Davis questioned whether the region will be able to tell the various state agencies what to do, but Grant seemed confident that if the proposed water quality plan was approved that it would have.

The proposed plan was referred to the planning commission for review.

Four county students win degrees

Four Charlevoix County students were recently awarded degrees during commencement exercises at Michigan State University.

Timothy Moerlund of Charlevoix, and Susan Adgate, Deborah Neidhamer and Thomas Neidhamer all of Boyne City received the degrees during the March 11 ceremony.

Moerland received a bachelor of science degree in biological science while Ms. Adgate received a BS in physical education. Ms. Neidhamer a BS in home economics ecuation and Neidhamer a BS in industrial arts.

Two students earn degrees from Western

Two Charlevoix County students recently received degrees from Western Michigan University.

Cheryl Larue Kenney completed work on her master of arts degree and William Dennis Upton competed his EDS, specialist in education degree.

Middle school plans band, choir concert for next Tuesday

The Charlevoix Middle School Music Department will present its annual late winter concert at the Middle School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 21.

The young middle school instrumentalists and vocalists, where the musical training in the school begins, have been working several months in preparation for the concert Mr. Stutzman said. Featured in the concert will be the beginner's band which is making great progress even though the students have been playing for only five months.

Appearing in the concert other than the beginner's or sixth grade band will be the seventh and eighth grade bands directed by Mr. Stutzman, the seventh and eighth grade chorus and the eighth grade jazz band directed by Steven Stargardt. In fact, the appearance of the jazz band, which has reached a high level of efficiency, will highlight the concert.

The Charlevoix public schools and the students and their directors are issuing a cordial invitation to the public to attend the concert to see the progress of the students.

County prepared for emergencies

Sometimes Alice Tunison's office looks like a disaster area.

And it should. Mrs. Tunison is the director of the Charlevoix County Emergency Services Office. It is through her office that disaster relief and emergency services are coordinated and it is through her office that emergency funding for designated disaster areas is received from the federal and state governments.

Following the recent "Blizzard of '78", Mrs. Tunison was involved with the Charlevoix County Road Commission request for emeregency help in clearing county roads and she also had to file reports for all the governmental units in the county in an attempt to get funding to pay for the emergency blizzard clean-up.

"This is the first time that the county has ever been involved in seeking disaster relief funding," Mrs. Tunison, an 18-year veteran in the emergency services office, explained.

"Our county is pretty self-sufficient and we've never felt the need to apply for these funds before," she said.

When Mrs. Tunison isn't busy working out disasters, she has many other projects that she devotes her time to as emergency services director. One of the main responsibilities of her office is to prepare an "all-risk" plan which outlines how the county will operate in case of a natural or nuclear disaster.

The plan shows what each department or political unit within the county would be responsible for if a disaster hit the area. Mrs. Tunison discusses these responsibilities with such groups as the Department of Social Services, the District 3 Health Department, the various police and fire departments and the ambulance units.

GOV. WILLIAM G. MILLIKEN designated March 5-11, 1978, at Michigan Tornado Safety Week. Witnessing the signing are (left to right) Rep. David Hollister of Lansing; Dr. Armen Shekerzian, member, Michigan Emergency Preparedness Advisory Council (MEPAC); Fritz Bennetts, director of public relations, Oldsmobile Div. General Motors, MEPAC; Alice Tunison, Charlevoix County Emergency Services Coordinator, member of MEPAC; and Captain Dennis Payne, Deputy Director of Emergency Services, Michigan State Police. Payne and Rep. Hollister were co-chairpersons of a statewide program to promote tornado safety.

"It is important to have this plan because the county will not qualify for federal funding during an emergency or a disaster if the plan has not been written and if it is not complete," the emergency services director explained.

Mrs. Tunison said there is a fine line between declaring an area an emergency or a disaster area. And the emergency services directors have to be careful when applying for funds for the clean-up following an emergency or a disaster, too.

"If you say emergency when you mean disaster, you've had your disaster," she joked.

The emergency services director said the federal government has begun to provide more funds for relief during natural disasters.

"It used to be that the federal government would only recognize nuclear disasters," she said. "But there have been so many natural disasters in the past few years, that the government has started to recognize the need for help there, too.

"They feel that the practice people get from dealing with natural disasters will better prepare them for dealing with a nuclear disaster if one should arise."

In addition to preparing the all-risk plan, Mrs. Tunison inspects schools and public buildings and determines where the tornado shelters should be located.

"I think it's amazing that we build schools and other governmental buildings without consideration of a shelter area, but we do," she said. "This is worrisome to all emergency services directors.

"The tornado shelter is very poor in this area."

Mrs. Tunison is also concerned about the lack of a county-wide alert system that could inform people of a pending disaster.

"There is no way to notify all of the people in the county or to alert them to a disaster," she said. "We're so spread out and we don't have an alarm system that can be used to alert everyone."

Mrs. Tunison believes it is important for the state and federal governments to spend more money on trying to protect people while they are in their homes.

"We spend about 50 cents a year per person on alarm systems and educational materials that help protect people while they are in their homes and we spend a lot more than that for defense of the country," she pointed out. "That seems a little lop-sided."

Mrs. Tunison would like to initiate several first aid courses for interested people in the county and she would like to set up classes for people who would like to become trained as radiologic monitors.

"I think we could set up a volunteer force in the county of people who are concerned about nuclear power plant discharges and any other nuclear discharges in the atmosphere," she explained. "These people would take a class from trained people who would come in and explain how to use the instruments."

The first half of the course is self-taught through a textbook and the second half would involve training in how to use the monitoring instruments.

The Charlevoix County emergency services director would also like to get more programs going in the

INVEST IN HEALTH

Everywhere you look these days you are told to invest in something. You have one of the greatest assets within you, health. Few of us think of our health until it is in jeopardy.

Often times your body warns you far ahead with warning signals. If you were to heed these signals, aches and pains, and take them more seriously it could save many hours of pain and suffering later.

Dr. Jeffrey Ricks

Chiropractic stresses natural health by allowing the body to take care of itself without the aid of drugs and surgery. Chiropractic is based on the principle that nerves control all body functions and that the body was made to be healthy all it's life.

A simple checkup by a Chiropractor could be the answer to your health problems and a wise investment in your future. Remember that old adage "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Don't ignore the warning signals your body puts out, listen to your body, get a Chiropractic checkup. It's much easier to correct a new simple problem than an old lingering one. Stay healthy all your life, get a Chiropractic checkup today.

Ivan Parsons -- one-man band

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

"Do you want to cuddle. Or do you want to polka?" the musician queried the audience seated before him at tables and along the bar at Chester's in Ironton.

A voice pierced the silence.

"Play us a fast one, Ike. Beaver Island style."

In seconds the dance floor was crowded. Fancy foot stompin' added to the bass rhythms of the band.

"The band" was Ivan "Ike" Parsons, his guitar, harmonica, peddle bass, and electronic drummer – a one-man band that sings, plays and whistles.

Between songs the crowd teased him about a recent trip.

"Why'd you come home, Ike? Can't stand the heat?"

"You know, I missed my tractor so much I went looking to see if one of them Hawaiian farmers had one I could sit on for awhile," was Ike's response.

A curious exchange to take place at the edge of the frozen South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The banter was all admiration from the audience. The sound of Ike's voice indicated he still couldn't believe it all happened.

Ivan Parsons, Supervisor of Eveline Township, Certified Tax Assessor for Eveline, Wilson, South Arm, and Norwood townships, a Director of Michigan Maple Association and producer of about 500 gallons of maple syrup annually, respected garden and beef farmer, church trustee, Lion's Club vice president, and one-man band, has just returned from 10 days in Hawaii as guest of United Airlines.

Later this man-for-all seasons explained:

"I got a phone call from Vagabond Travel in Zephyrhills, Fla. 'Would you like to go to Hawaii and play for a group?'

"The only expenses I would have was Rhea, my wife's, ticket."

February 1 through 20 Ivan Parsons' one-man band played polkas and country-western music in Hawaii for a group of 84 members of Rural Electric Cooperatives, mostly from Florida and Michigan.

Ike's wife, Rhea laughs recalling her doubts. "How a Michigander playing polka music would go over in Hawaii?

"He played at a luau with a Hawaiian band backing him up," she continues, laughing as the recent memory becomes vivid.

"It just slayed me when he started playing polkas and they loved it.

"Even the hula girls in their grass skirts jumped up and tried to polka. They really were jumping up and down," Rhea laughs again.

Ike adds, "You know those big women with their tiny little ukeleles tucked under their chins were even trying to dance on the band stand."

IVAN PARSONS does it all as a one-man band. Parsons recently returned from a tour of Hawaii where he entertained a convention of electric cooperative members.

So for 10 days the conventioneers from Florida and Michigan mixed their own style of music with Hawaiian, as Ike traveled with them from Oahu to Maui and the big island of Hawaii. And it appears the Hawaiians enjoyed the show as well.

"Now we're talking about next year with a group who wants me to consider a Caribbean cruise," Ike says. "It isn't firm yet, but we are seriously thinking about it."

Ivan Parsons first picked up the guitar in 1969 when Phil Myner of Ironton brought his to a barbeque at the Parsons house one summer night.

"He left a broken guitar behind and since I'm a carpenter putting it back together was no problem," Ike recalls.

His first experience with a guitar led to a performance in 1970 playing his harmonica with a local band. By 1971 Ike was taking his guitar and harmonica on regular gigs with a band at the Gold Nugget in Ellsworth, where he still performs solo on Saturday nights.

But Ike isn't quite as new to music as it might seem. He performed with the Charlevoix High School Band playing the trombone, under the direction of Clarence Odmark, in the late '50s.

"He was my fundamental inspiration. He made kids love music," Ike remembers.

"I played trombone and sometimes I made my own improvisations. He used that trait and once put me out on the floor alone, and the band played behind me. But he was strict when it came to the state band festivals," Ike is quick to clarify any impression that he improvised under serious conditions.

WHEN IVAN PARSONS isn't performing, he's busy with his other jobs such as being Eveline Township supervisor and assessor

Ivan Parsons is very serious about his music, not only practicing constantly and adding to his repertoire, but also in his commitment to what he plays and where. He writes a good portion of his material.

"I don't allow any vulgarity. I don't like it and it is not necessary," he admonished.

"You know, so much entertainment seems good and then a show is ruined with off-color talk.

"There's a lot of room for good entertainment. A good clean show can be put together and people will enjoy it.

"I play for schools. I go to Grandview, Meadowbrook, and Beverly Manor during Christmas. I visit every patient," he continues trying to give a picture of the broad appeal he wants his music to have.

"I like the places I play because they are places a single woman can come and not have to worry. 'I quit one place because it got rough. I won't play for a rough crowd," he emphasizes.

That night in Chesters, the atmosphere was of a neighborhood bar-restaurant, except the "neighborhood" covers several hundred square miles.

Families with children were eating. Fathers were teaching their daughters to polka. The atmosphere was relaxed. Most people seemed to know one another and Ike.

Ike plays to his audience, choosing tunes they know and arrangements that encourage their participation, as if dancing was an important part of his show.

He has caught the ears of many people passing through. He receives many calls for private parties, taking him to the Capital Park in Lansing, at Frankenmuth, "all over Northern Michigan," he explains.

"Generally it is because someone's heard me. I've done several hundred of those parties over the past few years.

"Rhea makes all my uniforms," Ike explains, pointing to pictures in a scrap book from his various parties. His "uniforms" are western style shirts and pants, brightly decorated with insets of colored flares on his pants

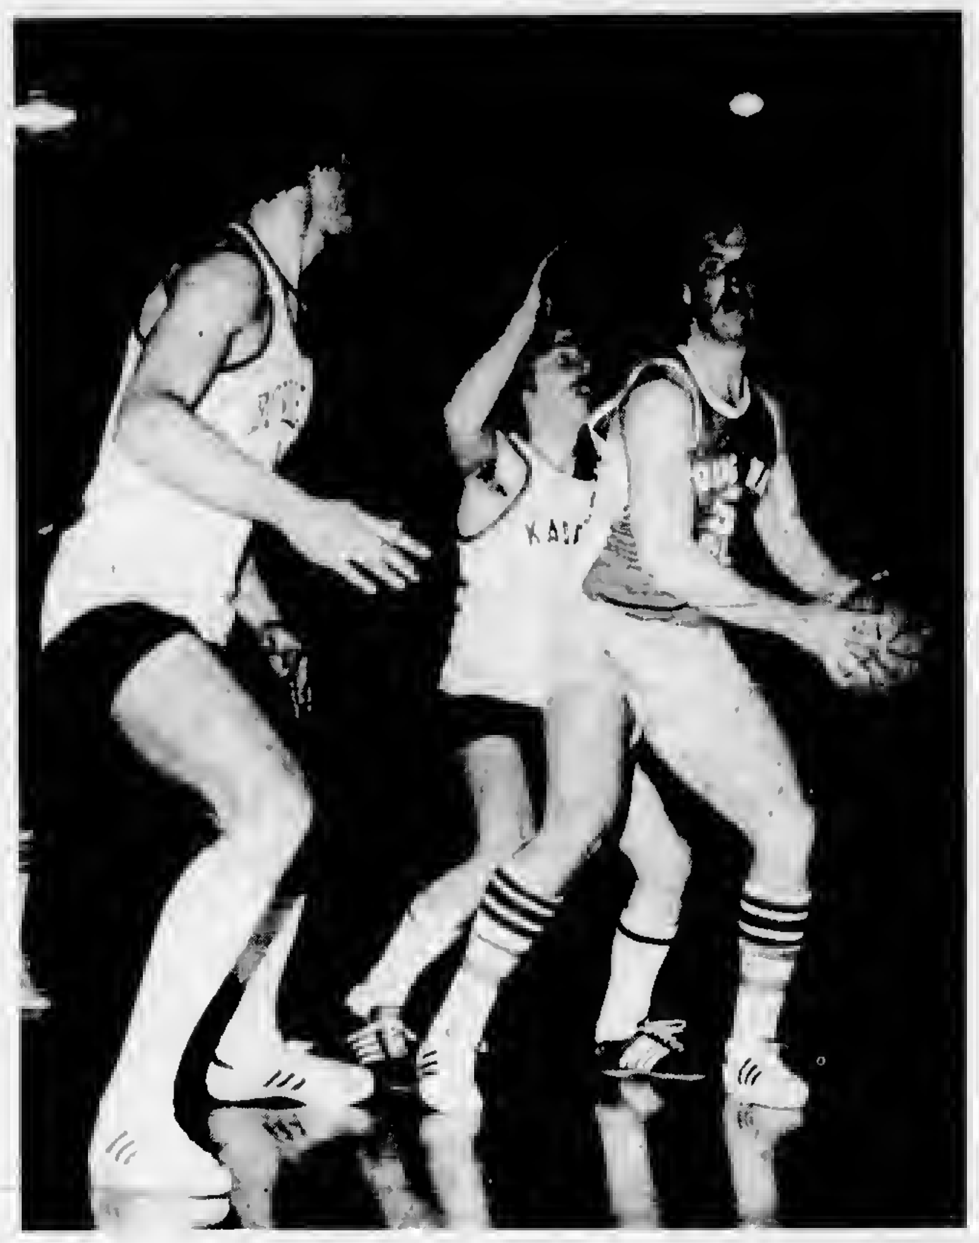
RANDY HOLECHECK of the Foam Corps scoops down a rebound during Jimmy Bogart Tournament action last week. Holecheck had 13 points for his team.

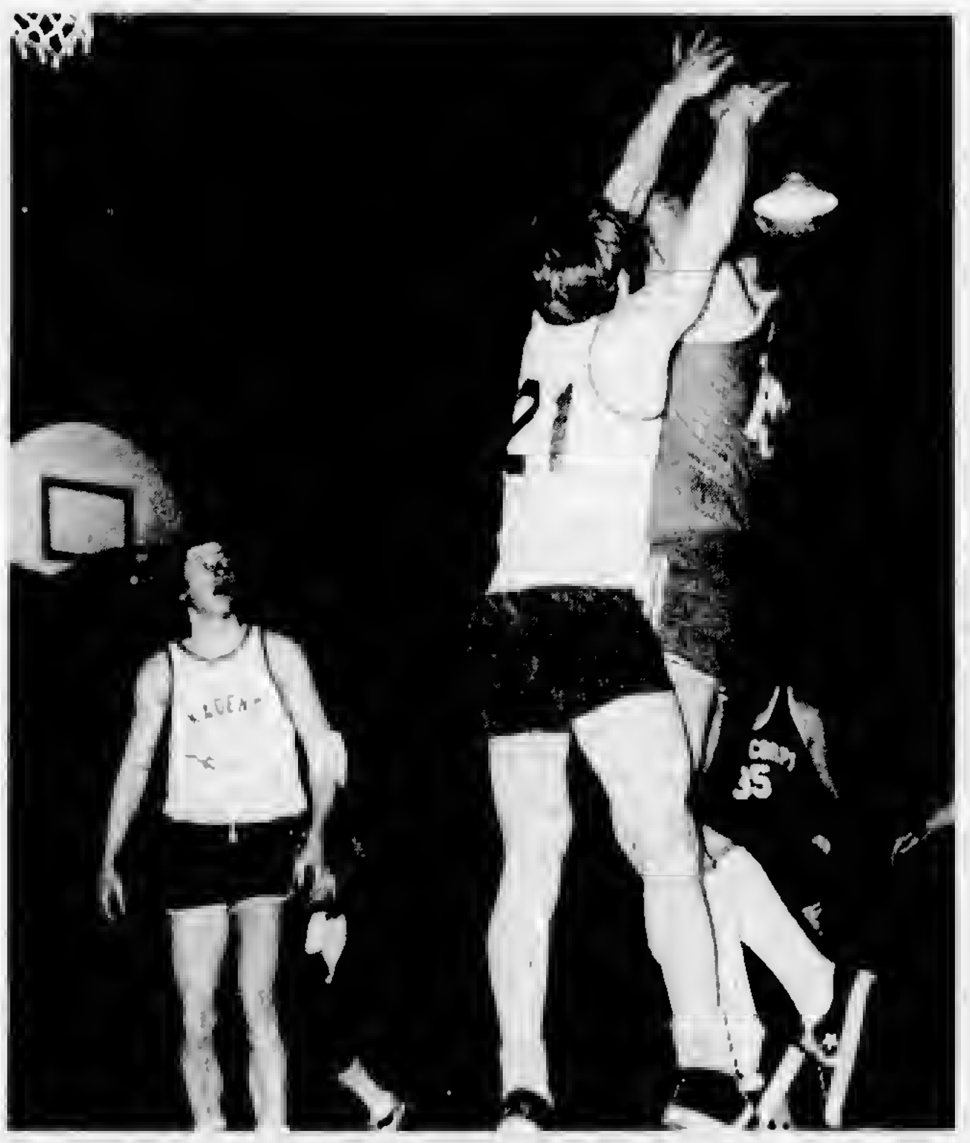


STEVE MICHAELS (5) of Foam Corps looks for a teammate during this play against Kadens. Kadens was hot and won the game 73-46.

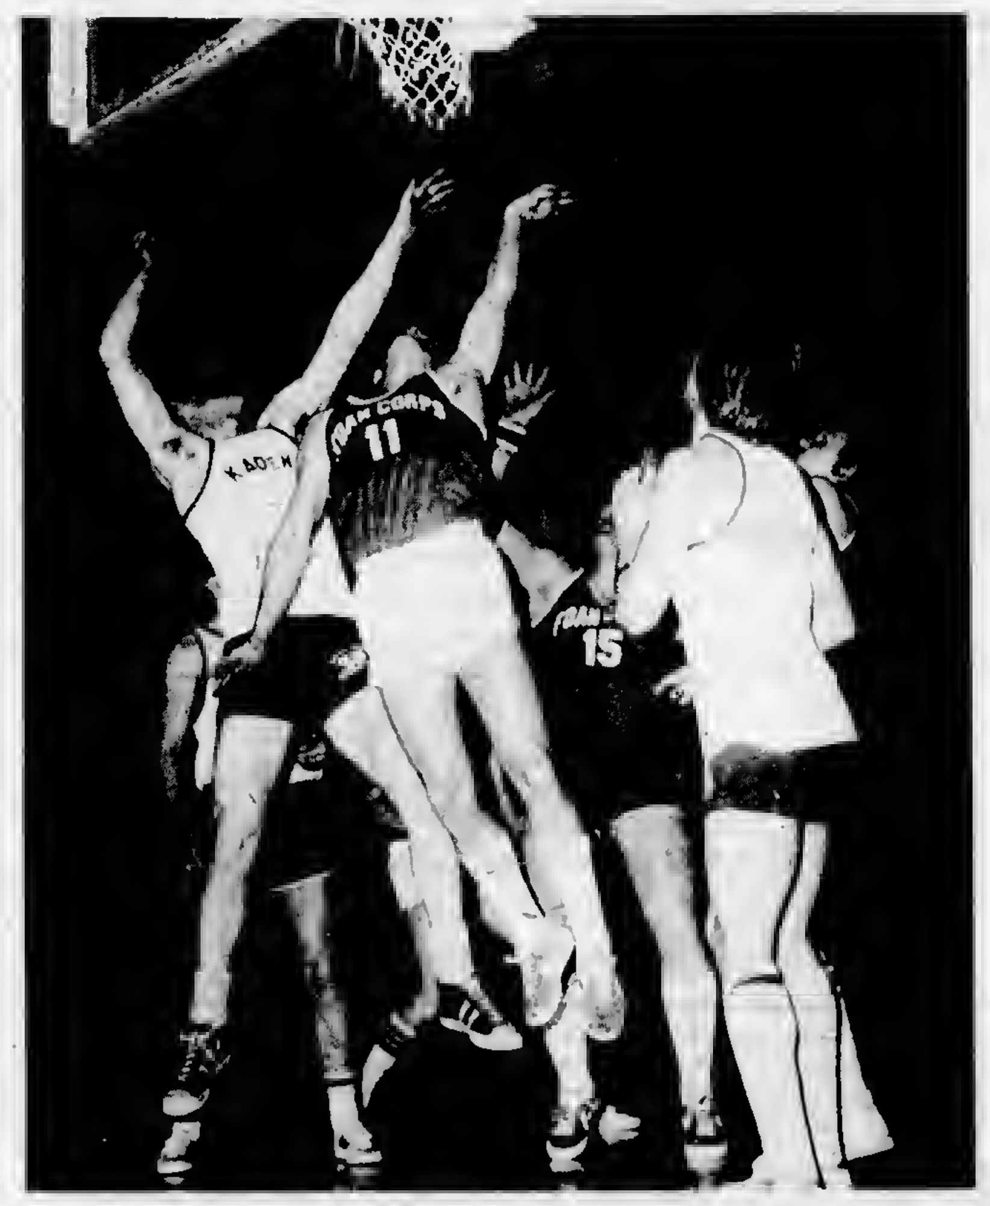
Tourney fever hits leagues

MIKE STREETER of the Foam Corps rushes in behind a Kaden's player during the first game of the A League Jimmy Bogart Tournament last week. Kadens took the game 73-46 and went on to win a second game later in the week against Townhouse.

CHUCK STANEK of Kaden's moves in to help his team mate Tim VanAlstein as Foam Corps players try to tie him up. Stanek had 11 points during the game.



THIS ATTEMPT to block a Foam Corps' player's shot by Chuck Stanek (21) of Kadens, ended in a foul for the player. Kadens took the game however, 73-46 and went on to win a second game against Townhouse.



IT WAS A mad scramble for the ball as Gary Novotny (11) of Foam Corps and Randy Holecheck (15) of Foam Corps, try to grab the rebound from Kadens players.

Middle school wrestling team takes third at Grayling tourney

The Charlevoix Middle School wrestling team walked away from the Grayling Middle School Wrestling Tournament with a third place trophy Saturday.

This is the second year in a row that the middle school wrestlers have taken a third place in the tournament. Coach Norm Probert said he was especially pleased with the Rayders showing against the five other teams because the students only had one week of formal practice before the meet. Probert was tied up with the state finals for the high school varsity team.

Charlevoix had one champion in each of the divisions for the middle school wrestlers. Kevin Morrison was the 73 pound champion in the seventh and eighth grade division and Wayne Bergman won the 136 pound crown in the elementary division.

Second place winners were Pat Curtis, 66 pounds; Wayne Sharrow, 73 pounds, Matt Landon, 80 pounds; Greg Umlor, 129 pounds; and Chuck Klooster, 87 pound class.

Taking third place ribbons were: Gregg Dixon, 122 pounds; Robert Charbeneau, 73 pounds, Keith Potter, 95 pounds; Chuck Weisler, 108 pounds; Steve Young, 101 pounds; Gregg Whitley, 115 pounds; and Mike Loper, 145 pounds.

In fourth place were: Dan Kelly, 66 pounds; Jeff Zednicek, 90 pounds; Tony Stainbrook, 80 pounds; Rick Bartz, 94 pounds; Alan Bergmann, 122 pounds.

Others participating in the tournament were: Jim Zeltler, Bill Ranger, Dave Milligan, Tim Young, Brian Yats, Ed Sarasin, Scott Louiselle, Leo Kleiber, Tom Key, Patt Kerr and Lyle Kleiber.

Assisting Coach Probert with the team were Terry Drew and Butch Klooster.

Kadens takes two victories in first week of A League tournament action

Kaden's downed the Foam Corps 73-46 in Charlevoix Recreation Department A League Jimmy Bogart Tournament action last week.

Kadens led all the way taking the first period by a 19-8 score and jumping the score to 38-26 at halftime. By the third period the score was 49-34.

For Kaden's Al Looze hit 23 points, Jim VanAlstine 16, Tom Beyer 12 and Chuck Stanek and Tony Williams each posted 11 points.

For Foam Corps, Randy Holecheck and Ralph Muma had 13 points each.

In other action last week, league-leading Swansons lost to Site Planning 74-62. Site Planning opened the first period of play with a 16-13 lead which jumped to 38-33 at the half. By the third period the score had increased to 60-47 in favor of Site Planning.

High point men for Site Planning were: Paul Osterberg, 22 points, Dennis Dominic, 21, and Tim Carey, 16.

For Swansons, Bruce Meggison had 19 points, Casey Culbertson had 14 points, Kevin Swanson, 11, and Dave Swanson, 10.

In its second game of the week, Kadens defeated Townhouse 61-55.

Kadens started out with a slim 16-15 lead in the first period and held on to it for a 32-31 half time score. The two teams were tied up 42-42 at the third period and then Kadens surged ahead to take the win.

Tom Beyers lead Kadens scoring attack with 29 points while Al Looze tipped in 12 points and Chuck Stanek, 10.

For Townhouse, Steve Dunkelberg had 14 points.

Tri-City Asphalt continues to be a winner in B League tournament play

Tri-City Asphalt continued to hold onto its league-leading position by defeating County State Bank 55-44 during Charlevoix Recreation Department B League play in the Jimmy Bogart Tournament last week.

The winners trailed in the first period 12-11 but took over 24-22 by the half time and increased the score to 39-36 in the third period.

Leroy Buchanan and Dave Norton hit 16 points each for Tri-City and Butch Klooster added 13 points.

For County State Bank, Larry Skippergosh hit 17 points and Steve Martinus had 10.

First State Bank whipped Wojan Aluminum 74-48. First State lead all the way with 15-14 lead in the first period, 43-25 at the half and 47-38 in the third period.

Joe Beaudoin hit 20 points for First State Bank and Stan Martin had 19 points for Wojan.

In other B League Action, Alray Cottages defeated Medusa 61-33.

Alray took a definite lead in the first period 17-7 and held on to it throughout the game with a 29-13 half time score and a 41-21 third period tally.

Vince Left had 26 points for Alray and Jim Marsh had 14.

For Medusa Tom Morrison tipped in 13 points.

Middle school sponsors tournament Saturday here

The Charlevoix' Middle School will sponsor its first middle school invitational wrestling tournament Saturday.

Starting time for the meet is noon in the high school gym.

Approximately 40 schools from Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula will be competing in the meet.

The meet is being co-sponsored by the Community Youth Activities program under the direction of Gary Hice.

Weigh-in for the middle school wrestlers will begin at 9 a.m.

All interested people are invited to attend the meet.

Gary Probert finishes well in Ferris State wrestling

The Ferris State College wrestling team finished its wrestling season with a fifth place in the Great Lakes Conference and a 4-7 overall record.

Helping the team to its victories was 177-pound wrestler Gary Probert of Charlevoix. Probert, a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, recorded seven wins in 12 outings, which included two pins.

Probert was one of the top wrestlers at Charlevoix High School.

Learn about car symptoms from consumer booklet

You're already late for that important appointment, and your car won't start. And, you may not be able to fix it yourself. Kicking your car won't solve the problem. But learning about regular car care just might do the trick for next time.

A booklet from the General Services Administration tells you all about car symptoms to watch for, what they mean, and how to talk with your mechanic. It's called Car Care and Service and it's available for 35 cents from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 002F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Skipping routine care or skimping on car adjustments can ruin your engine. So can missing or ignoring symptoms of a sick car. It can make you feel infinitely more secure to know the difference between carburetor trouble and a problem with your engine valves. If you're one of the many car owners who are confused about the diagnosing car symptoms, don't worry! It's not so hard to learn enough fundamentals to sound somewhat mechanical with your car service technician.

The booklet tells you, for example, what preventive service signals to watch out for. A whine in your car when you drive may indicate a problem with your transmission fluid. If your engine is making a clattering or pinging sound, it could mean valve trouble, or you might just need your timing system adjusted.

The booklet talks about various working parts and systems of your car, including carburetors, emission control devices, engine values, the electrical charging system, the ignition system, and the timing system.

James Borths finishes Navy recruit training

Navy Seaman Recruit James T. Borths, son of Angeline Borths of 1002 May St., Charlevoix, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

A graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in July 1977.

Senior citizens should watch action on Older Americans bill

Senior citizens who are taking part in the food and fellowship nutrition programs or in one of the many other programs available to them should keep an eye on what is happening in the U.S. Congress with the Older Americans Act, Edward Schnell of Good Hart, advises.

Schnell, chairman of the Michigan Senior Advocates Council, has been reviewing the Older American Act. The act, which provides most of the money in the state for nutrition programs and area agencies on aging grants for local senior services, expires Sept. 30, 1978, and has to be reauthorized by Congress.

Hearings are now being held by the Subcommittee on Aging of the Senate Human Resources Committee, chaired by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo. Several changes have been proposed and Schnell urges senior citizens to write their senators and congressmen about their needs and how the programs meet or don't meet them.

In Charlevoix County, nutrition sites are located at the Boyne City American Legion Hall; Boyne Falls School cafeteria, Charlevoix High School Cafeteria and at the Senior Citizen Center in East Jordan.

These centers plus home delivery of meals are sponsored through funding for the Older Americans Act.

All people 60 years of age and older and their spouses are invited and encouraged to participate in the nutrition program. For more information, call 533-8664, extension 47, and ask for Lucille Kayner, program director for the nutrition program for Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Wolgamotts celebrate 25th anniversary

A 25th wedding anniversary celebration was held recently for Barbara and Gordon Wolgamott.

The celebration was given by the Wolgamott's children, Dave and Debbie Kimble, Della Wolgamott, Gordon Wolgamott and Bryan and Sheri VanLoo at the Community Church of God.

The celebration was highlighted by a special program performed by friends and relatives with Dale and Marilyn Boss serving as master of ceremonies. A special song was presented by Des and Jeanne Milligen, and by Dave and Debbie Kimble and Della Wolgamott and skits were presented by Gordy Wolgamott and Dave Kimble and Debbie Kimble, Della Wolgamott and Sheila Essenburg. Frances Boss played the piano in accompaniment.

Helping in the kitchen were Carolyn Wolgamott, Shirley Wolgamott, Wanda Wolgamott, Pat Wolgamott, Nan Loper, Bonnie Elzinga, Joan Balch and Anneke Dhaseleer.

Consumer catalog represents one of the first signs of spring

Have you found yourself thinking: "Boots! How can one family accumulate 17 mismatched galoshes? And if I see one more soggy mitten . . . Come on trees, where are your leaves? I'd sure love to dig in the garden, but it would take a pick-ax. Won't there ever be any sings of spring?"

Well, there is at least one sign of spring. It's the Spring edition of the Consumer Information Catalog published by the Consumer Information Center of the Genral Services Administration. The free Catalog lists more than 200 federal consumer publications you can send for on everything from growing tomatoes to mixing your car. And over half of the booklets are free. For your copy of the Consumer Information Catalog, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. CAT, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Now that you're thinking about spring, how about ordering some booklets on gardening? The Catalog lists Growing Tomtoes in the Home Garden (074F, 50c), Growing Vegetables in Containers (669F, Free), Herbs (670F, Free), Growing Flowering Perennials (073F, 50c), and Roses for the Home (093F, 35c). And even now there are some things you could be doing for Spring Lawn Care (674F, Free).

Is your car ready for spring? The Backyard Mechanic (001F, $1.25) gives step-by-step instructions for inspecting and maintaining your car. And Self-Servic Gas Up and Go (086F, 60c) will help you give your car tender loving care even when you pump the gas yourslef.

Maybe you want to do something for your house this spring? Fixing Up Your Home (666F, Free) has information on how to get a loan and what you should know about choosing a contractor. Paint and Painting (066F, 85c) tells you how to do the job yourself. And you can even learn Sixty-Five Ways to Save Natural Gas (595F, Free).

Is Junior getting toward school age? When a Child Begins School (520F, Free) will help both of you prepare for that big day. And if Junior is a bit older, Employment and Training Programs for Youth, (536F, Free) has some suggestions that will help her or him on the road to independence.

Even if winter still has its teeth into you, don't despair, The Common Cold: Relief but No Cure (579F, Free) tells which ingredients in over-the-counter cough, cold, allergy and asthma remedies work. Or how about Painkillers: Their Uses and Dangers (663F, Free). Or Prescription Drugs (690F, Free) if you are really sick.

You can get the Consumer Information Catalog (free) and the publications, at the prices mentioned, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. CAT, Pueblo, Colorado 81009. Bulk quantities of the Catalog are available to educators and consumer groupps.

Work day never boring for school nurse Jerri Brady

Her day might begin with a runny nose or a sprained finger or teaching a class about first aid and camping.

But however it begins, Jerri Brady knows the day won't be boring. Mrs. Brady is the school nurse for the Charlevoix Public School System and her jobs keeps her jumping.

One of Mrs. Brady's major concerns is with the immunization records of the students in the school district. And with kindergarten round up coming up April 11 and 12, she had been getting out the immunization record forms.

"The state has a law that says children must have a minimum of four diphtheria and tetanus shots, measles, rubella shots and four oral polio applications," she explained.

"In Detroit they have such a problem getting the kids immunized that they have to tell the kids they can't come to school if they don't have their shots," Mrs. Brady said. "We don't have that problem here. Most of our parents are very good about getting their kids shots."

Mrs. Brady said she usually catches children right in kindergarten and gets their records straightened out with no problem. Sometimes students who transfer into the system have a problem with their immunization records, however.

"Most states are as strict about immunizations as we are," the registered nurse said. "But some aren't and those kids have to get immunized when they come here to go to school."

Mrs. Brady said the reasoning behind the required immunizations is that the vaccine is available to prevent the epidemic spread of various diseases and they should be used in the schools to prevent epidemics.

In addition to setting up immunization records for kindergarteners and other new students, she also has a vision and hearing screening during the kindergarten round up.

"I have technicians from the public health department come in and test all of the children's vision and hearing before they begin school," Mrs. Brady said. "It really should be done before a child starts school."

If the children have a problem, the parents are given a referral card and asked to take their children to a doctor to have them tested more thoroughly.

But, Mrs. Brady doesn't spend all of her time keeping up immunization records at the Charlevoix elementary, middle and high schools and St. Mary's School. She also does some nursing. She makes the decision to send a child home sick from school or to the hospital for treatment of broken bones.

"At the middle school, the big thing is deciding whether the students have sprained or broken fingers from playing basketball," Mrs. Brady joked. "Boys and girls both seem to get their fingers jammed and I have to decide how serious it is."

The nurse said sometimes she has to make judgment calls about a child's health. She explained that often if children don't like school they will say they are sick and get sent down to the nurse's office to be sent home.

"If a child has a fever, I definitely send him or her home," the school nurse said. "But if it doesn't look like they are really sick, I just have them lie down on my couch and soon they are back in class."

Mrs. Brady said the students have been pretty healthy this year. There have been a few cases of mumps in the elementary school and of course everyone has had the flu.

"The number of kids out with the flu at the elementary school and middle school is about normal for this time of year," the school nurse said. "There are a few more out at the high school.

"The flu struck here during the Christmas holiday. We had a lot of people sick then. But they weren't in school infecting each other and that prevented it from really spreading when the kids are contaminated in large masses."

Mrs. Brady, who also worked as the school nurse for Holy Cross Lutheran School in Detroit, also works with teachers in presenting health

JERRI BRADY finds that her job as the nurse for the Charlevoix Public Schools is never boring. She checks everything from immunization records to broken fingers.

CHUCK KITELEY, a Charlevoix area farmer, was named Farmer of the Week earlier this month by the Michigan Farm Radio Network and the Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

Chuck Kiteley named Farm Bureau Farmer of the Week

A Charlevoix farmer was named Farmer of the Week recently.

Charles Kiteley of Route 2, received the award in recognition of his contributions to Michigan agriculture. The weekly award, which honors farmers in Michigan, is sponsored by the Michigan Farm Radio Network and Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

Kiteley, 42, has been a dairy farmer for 24 years. He currently farms, in partnership with his son, Chuck, 900 acres and raises 425 head of cattle including 145 milking cows. He also farms 400 acres of corn and 400 acres of hay.

The dairy farmer currently serves as chairman of the Soil Conservation District for Charlevoix County, is a member of the Marion Township Board of Review, a member of the board of directors of the Charlevoix Co-op, a member of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau and a member of the Michigan Farm Bureau Dairy Committee.

He is a former 4-H leader.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

MARCH 6, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the February 20, 1978 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council recessed to the Board of Appeals to continue discussion of two separate variance requests presented to the Board on February 20, 1978.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all Council members present.

June Cross, of the Charlevoix Woman's Club, appeared before Council and introduced Mr. Keith Martell of the Recreation Control and Development program. Mr. Martell outlined the proposed plan for erosion control measures at Lake Michigan Park, and discussed various facets of the program with Council. He also stated that the total cost of the project would be $37,332 with 75 percent of the $28,332 construction cost and $6,000 of the $9,000 administrative, design and technical costs to be paid by RC&D and the balance paid by the City.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Erber and supported by Alderman Wallace.

Resolution 78-3-1

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the City of Charlevoix to accept the 1978 Revised Zoning Ordinance and accompanying map, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Charlevoix does hereby adopt Ordinance 369, an Ordinance to amend Ordinance 203, City of Charlevoix, thereby repealing all of that Ordinance and replacing same with the following, available in Council Minutes Book.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wood to accept Mayor Hansen's appointment of John Mol of 706 Mercer to the Board of Review to replace Robert Barnum, who is absent from the City. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Morris to allow Jim Whitley to draw $360 from Petty Cash to allow him and an associate to attend an electrical convention in March, 1978. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Aldermen Wood and supported by Alderman Wallace.

Resolution 78-3-2

WHEREAS, Section 13 (e) of Act 51, Public Acts of 1951 provides that each incorporated city and village to which funds are returned under the provisions of this section, that "the responsibility for all street improvement, maintenance and traffic operation work shall be coordinated by a single administrator to be designated by the governing body who shall be responsible for and shall represent the municipality in all transactions with the State Highway Commission pursuant to the provision of this Act",

THEREFORE, be it resolved, that this Honorable Body designate Judy Przybylski as the single (Street) administrator for the City or Village of Charlevoix in all transactions with the State Highway Commission as provided in Section 13 of the Act.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Morris and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City enter into a contract with Dwight Boss, Recreation Director, for a two year period commencing April 1, 1978 at a rate of $6,000 per year. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $89,495.80 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wallace that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

City Clerk

BOARD OF APPEALS
MARCH 6, 1978

The Board of Appeals convened with Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm present. Absent: None.

Mayor Hansen read a letter from Mr. Avern Cohn, a resident of the Sand Castle Condominium, objecting to the variances requested by Ralph Bergsma, which would allow him to construct an eighteen unit condominium to be located on Lots 1, 2, and 3, Block 17, Original Plat of the City of Charlevoix, and to be known as Captain's Watch. Mr. Cohn was represented at the meeting by Michael Gibbons, Attorney, who stated that a case of practical difficulty or unnecessary hardship had not been established by Mr. Bergama as is necessary for the granting of a variance. Mr. Clare Imahoff, also a resident of the Sand Castle, stated that he had not been notified of the variance requests, nor had Mr. Cohn, and that under the R-4 zoning laws, several variances would be required in addition to those requested by Mr. Bergsma for the project. Mr. Imahoff also stated that, should the variances be granted, it is his belief that the surrounding property values would be lowered. Several other members of the General Public present stated their opinions regarding the proposed project.

Moved by Alderman Erber and supported by Alderman Wood that the request of Ralph Bergsma for a variance of the R-4 zoning restrictions on property at 207 Park Avenue, variance allowing the proposed structure to be within 12 feet of the side boundaries to the east and west, to vary the parking requirement from 45 to 41 spaces, and to allow 18 enclosed garage units, be granted. Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: None. Nays: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, and Plumm. Abstaining: Alderman Morris. Absent: None.

Ron Steffes appeared before the Board of Appeals on behalf of a variance requested by H. Jack Begrow for construction of an 8 unit condominium to be located on Lots 6-13, Block 19, Newman's Addition to the City of Charlevoix. After introducing Clark Matthews, owner of the property and H. Jack Begrow, architect of the project, Mr. Steffes stated that the main objection to the project seemed to be the height of the buildings and he presented a photograph of the site taken from 4 feet above ground on top of the hill facing the property with the outline of the proposed buildings superimposed on the picture. He stated that the photograph indicated that residents along the bluff on Belvedere Avenue would have a better view of Round Lake with the site developed as proposed than by having a building with a continuous 35 foot roof line as would be allowable under the present zoning. Several members of the General Public present voiced their opinions regarding the proposed variance requests with the height and density requirements being the areas of most concern.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Aldermon Morris that the request for a variance presented by H. Jack Begrow on behalf of Clark Matthews to penetrate the height variance with 7 foot peaks, measured from the lake side, reduce the east side yard set-back to 35' 8" from the lot line and to reduce the front yard setback to 28' from the lot line at 107 Belvedere Avenue be denied, as unnecessary hardship or practical difficulty has not been proven. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Erber, Wallace, Morris, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned to the regular Council meeting.

City Clerk

You can get too many vitamins, experts say

If one multivitamin a day is good, will two be better? The answer from the Food and Drug Administration is that more than 4,000 cases of vitamin poisonings are reported each year, so you can get too much of a good thing.

"Myths About Vitamins," a pamphlet from the Food and Drug Administration, tells all about the miraculous tells all about the miraculous claims and testimonials for vitamins, everything from boosting a lagging sex life to warding off heart disease. And it contains a handy guide to the best food sources of vitamins, as well as a chart of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances. You can get your free copy by writing the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 562 F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The myths that vitamin supplements can cure just about anything, and make us happier and healthier, too, have been around so long that they're difficult to distinguish from fact.

For instance, many people will tell you that vitamins provide extra energy. False. Although some of the B vitamins do help in the conversion of food to usable energy, they provide nothing of value in amounts greater than the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance. (U.S. RDA).

Others will go further and tell you that modern farming methods have depleted the soil so that food itself no longer contains adequate nutrients. This is untrue. More is known today about the nutrient content of food than ever before. And more is done, through modern farm practices, to protect and enrich the soil. Crop rotation, soil tests, and routine enrichment of soil weren't even known about in the good old days.

Another common myth is that "back to nature" natural vitamins are better than the synthetic kind. Not so. And nature can be expensive, like paying up to $5.00 for 100 tablets of vitamin C from "pure rose hips", when the same amount of pure ascorbic acid can be bought for under $1.00.

Actually each vitamin has a particular molecular structure that remains the same whether it's synthesized in the lab or extracted from an animal or plant. The body can't distinguish how the vitamin was made; only the pocket -book knows for sure.

Getting enough vitamins boils down to some basic rules about eating. Of course the body needs nutrients, but it also needs the bulk and textures of real food. It is simply a myth that a well-balanced diet cannot provide adequate nutrients. Foods can provide most Americans with adequate nutrients, and consumers should not expect any major physical benefits from multi-vitamin pills.

"Myths About Vitamins" (free) is just one of more than 200 publications of consumer interest listed in the Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly, by the Consumer Information Center of the General Service Administration, it's available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

OUR FINEST LAWS HAD THEIR ORIGIN IN THE BIBLE

From the dawn of civilization, mankind has always managed to devise some system of laws designed to protect the citizens from each other. However, no one has ever surpassed the principles upon which the rules of conduct presented throughout the Bible were based: love, respect for the rights of others, morality and the right combination of justice and forgiveness. The laws by which we as a free nation live today are but adaptations of these age-old principles which need no improvement. At the Church of your choice you will learn that good citizens should obey the laws of the land, because in our free society they do not conflict in any way with the laws of God which are explained in such great detail throughout the Scriptures.

Three students on dean's list at Western

Three Charlevoix students were among the 1,600 students included on the fall semester Dean's list at Western Michigan University.

Marjorie J. Carey, Kyle R. Ditlow and Judy Marie Gould all received a 3.5 grade point for the semester while carrying 14 or more credit hours.

New law allows expanded earnings for senior citizens

The new Social Security amendments will provide an extra increase in the earnings limitation for workers age 65 and over.

Under the amendments signed into law by President Jimmy Carter in December, 1977, 65 year old and older social security beneficiaries will be able to earn $4,000 in 1978 without any reduction in their Social Security checks. The limitation for beneficiaries under age 65 will be increased from $3,000 to $3,240 in 1978.

Once a social security beneficiary exceeds the earnings limit, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $2 in earnings.

Beneficiaries who earned more than $3,000 in 1977 and received one or more monthly Social Security checks must file an annual report with the organization by April 15. The report is used to determine if beneficiaries were paid the correct amount of benefits for 1977.

The report will also be used to adjust monthly 1978 benefit payments according to estimated earnings. Beneficiaries who fail to file a report on time may incur a pennity in the amount of one month's check. Beneficiaries over age 72 are not required to file a report because there is no limit on earnings for people age 72 and older.

For more information - contact the Petoskey Social Security office in person or by phone. The office is located at 911 Spring St. across from K-Mart. The phone number is 347-8727.

county's schools.

"I have a course of study available for both the elementary and the junior and senior high schools," she said. "It discusses survival in an emergency situation and involves the teaching of some first aid. I think it could be very valuable to children growing up in this area."

Mrs. Tunison also works closely with the sheriff's department and the other police departments in the county in picking up jeeps and other vehicles and office equipment through the surplus and excess property programs of the federal government.

She has helped bring several vehicles to the county including the emergency evacuation plane on Beaver Island.

Mrs. Tunison said she enjoys her job and she believes there is much that can be accomplished for the county through the emergency services office.

"My work on the all-risk plan and other things is like housework," she laughed. "You just get it all done and then it's outdated and needs to be done again."

Frank Ellis promoted to airman fc

The U.S. Air Force has promoted Frank W. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Germain of 312 Antrim St., Charlevoix, Mich., to the rank of airman first class.

Airman Ellis is serving at Homestead AFB, Fla., as a carpenter.

The airman is a 1975 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

His wife, Debbie, is the daughter of Mrs. Shirley Holiday, Rochester Mich.

education classes to students.

"If teachers have special requests, then I go into the classroom and talk to the kids," the nurse, who is in her second year with the Charlevoix School System, explained.

"Ohterwise, I don't do any teaching."

This year she has spoken to one class about first aid and camping and last year she spoke to a home economics class about first aid and baby sitting. She also works with the American Cancer Society in showing films about smoking to students.

And Mrs. Brady can be counted on to mother the children in many other ways, too.

For instance, in her office at the elementory school, Mrs. Brady keeps boxes and boxes of spare clothes so that if children get cold out on the playground they will have something warm to change into.

"Otherwise they would get colds," she said pointing out the health advantages of the spare clothes.

The children wear the clothes home and then bring them back the next day after they've had a chance to change into their own.

"I have a lot of friends who have children and they have all these spare clothes they don't know what to do with. I just take them to school."

From scraped knees to health education, Mra. Brady does it all.

"I'll say one thing about it, it certainly doesn't get boring!" she said.

Obituary

Suzanne Curtis

Funeral services for Suzanne Ju Curtis, 17, who died late Saturday shortly after being admitted to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, will be held at the Bethany Lutheran Church at 4 p.m. Tuesday. The Rev. James Plackner will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Curtis, she had been in ill health for three years.

She was born in Oakland, Calif., May 9, 1960, and came to Charlevoix with her parents a year later to make her home. She was a junior at the Charlevoix High School and a member of Bethany Lutheran Church.

Besides her parents, she is survived by a brother, Russell L., 10; two sisters, Tracine L., 16, and Katherine L., 14, all at home; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Drake; her paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Reinhart and her maternal grandfather, Oliver DeYoung, all of Charlevoix.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Anthony Kosewicz

Funeral services for Anthony Kosewicz, 82, who died Saturday at his home in Eveline township, were held Tuesday at St. Mary's church. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Born in Poland Jan. 19, 1896, Mr. Kosewicz came to Carnegie, Pa., in 1910. On Jan. 15, 1920, he was married to the former Stella Wojan at Cross Village. They made their home in Garfield Heights, Ohio, until moving to their present home in 1966. He was employed at the Fisher Body Co. in Cleveland until his retirment in 1962. He was a member of St. Mary's church.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Andrew (Alice) Celaschi of Avon, Ohio, Mrs. Anthony (Wanda) Engler of Parma, Ohio, and Mrs. Charles (Gertrude) Wagner of Charlevoix; two sons, Alex and Norman of Garfield Heights; 11 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and a sister, Frances, in Poland.

Richard Selissen, Jr., a senior at Charlevoix High School, entered the U.S. Army's Delayed Entry Program on Feb. 11th at the Armed Forces Entrance and Examinining Station in Detroit, according to Staff Sergeant Ken Nelson, Charlevoix County's Army recruiter.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sellissen, Sr. of Charlevoix, the 17-year old student will go on active duty this September following his graduation. He has chosen Army training as a combat engineer.

GREG SEESE, president of Northwest REACT, demonstrates how one of the "Help" flags is attached to a car. The flags are being sold by the citizens band radio group.

Help on the way for motorists from REACT

Help is on the way for stranded motorists

Northwest REACT, a local group of citizens band (CB) radio owners, is selling special flags for motorists to use in the event that they get stranded.

The flags, a fluorescent orange color with the word "Help" lettered on them in black, are designed to be hooked on the outside of a car window.

"If people don't have a CB radio in their car, they can hung this flag in their windows when they need help and people passing by who do have radios can call in for assistance," Greg Seese, president of REACT, explained.

The flags are being distributed nationally by REACT groups and will be recognized by most people, Seese said.

Seese said the money REACT earns from the sale of the flags will be used in the various projects of the group. Recently REACT purchased CB radios and antennas for the Charlevoix Public School buses.

Flags may be purchased at the Texaco Service Station in Charlevoix and at the Radio Shack in Petoskey. All REACT members also have flags.

Artists North planning Publication of guide book

A documentary guidebook to the artists in the Northern Michigan area may soon be available to interested citizens.

Artists North, an artists cooperative in Northern Michigan, has received a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts as a start toward the compilation of a documentary guidebook to the past and the present professional artists of Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties.

The guidebook will involve both written and photographic essays about selected contemporary artists, their philosophies, struggles, joys and studio locations.

The book will also include the only historical information ever compiled listing earlier artists, craftsmen and photographers who worked or had a direct influence on the arts in this area.

The book will feature information about arts and crafts shows, museums and places recommended by area artists for supplies and foods.

Artists North must match the council for the arts grant in order to publish the guidebook. To meet this expense the group has launched a fundraising drive in the area. Donations may be sent to Artists North, 323 State St., Hurbor Springs, Mich., 49740.

The group is planning to publish the book by this summer.

Have you taken an inventory of your childs eating habits lately? Do they reflect a balanced diet?

A balanced diet every day is necessary for growth, maintenance of body tissues, energy needs, and regulatory functions. It is important for young children to establish good eating habits. Children's food habits develop as a reflection of their family environment. Parents should try to install an appropriate pattern within the child's diet, based on optimal nutrient intake. Children should be encouraged to eat a variety of foods as well as try new foods.

Eat a Balanced Diet Every Day provides the theme for National Nutrition Week, March 5-11. Start now to help make the rest of your childs life a healthy one by following a Daily Food Guide. Include 3 servings, 2 ounces each, of lean cooked meat, poultry or fish. As alternates 1 egg, ½ cup cooked dry beans or peas, or 2 tablespoons of peanut butter may replace ½ a serving of meat. A child under 9 years needs 2 to 3 cups of milk. Children 9 to 12 years need 3 cups and teenagers require 4 cups or more. These are 8 ounce servings. Alternatives include 1 inch cube of cheddar type cheese or ¾ cup cottage cheese, ice milk or ice cream to replace ½ cup of fluid milk. Include 4 or more servings from the fruit and vegetable group and 4 or more servings from the Bread and Cereal Group.

The Daily Food Guide should be considered in perspective to the total days intake, including both meals and snacks.

Judy Elzinga purchases Left's Restaurant here

If you have it together in your head, you can go into business for yourself no matter what your age is, the new owner of Left's Restaurant believes.

And she should know. The new owner, Judy Elzinga, has gone into business for herself at an age when most people are still wet behind the ears in the business world.

The 20-year-old Miss Elzinga, has owned and operated Left's since Jan. 23. She said she had been thinking about going into business for a year before she took the final step.

"At first a friend and I were going to go into business together, but it cost too much to do what we wanted to do," she explained. "But this (Left's) was small enough so that I could handle it alone."

Miss Elzinga is not new to the restaurant business. She has been working in restaurants since she was 15 yeas old. She started at the former A&W south of Charlevoix and ended up at the Big Boy in Petoskey with a stint as a maid in between.

"I tried maid work for a while, but I didn't like it, so I decided to go back to restaurants," she explained.

The 1976 graduate of Charlevoix High School said running her own business is similar to the work she did at the Big Boy.

"I did pretty much the same thing at the Big Boy except that I had to ask somebody every time I wanted to do something," she joked. "Now I can just do it."

And Miss Elzinga is planning some changes from Left's. Beginning March 27 she will extend the hours to 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"A lot of people have been after me to stay open a little later, so I thought I would try it," she said.

The dinner menu will include steak, chicken and shrimp as well as the special of the day and the usual menu items, Miss Elzinga said.

She also plans to offer a box lunch for area workers.

"They will have to place their order the night before and they can pick up the lunches in the morning," the restaurant owner said.

Miss Elzinga is the daughter of Lois Elzinga.

ARTICLE I
Establishment of City Government

Section 1.1 City Boundaries

The municipal corporation heretofore established and now existing and known as "The City of Charlevoix", shall continue as a municipal corporation under the same name, and the boundaries of the City existing when this Charter takes effect shall continue in force until changed in accordance with law.

Section 1.2 Ward Boundaries - Alteration Thereof

The City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, shall be divided into three (3) wards, with their several boundaries described as follows:

First Ward: All that territory embraced within the corporate limits of the City lying Northeasterly of the following described line: Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Lower Pine River Channel with Lake Michigan; thence Southeasterly along the center line of said lower channel to its intersection with Round Lake; thence Southeasterly to a point in the middle of Round Lake at the intersection of the Southerly extension of the center line of Nettleton Street with the Easterly extension of the center line of Clinton Street; thence Southeasterly to the intersection of the center line of Upper Pine River Channel (Southerly of Park Island) with Round Lake; thence Southeasterly along the center line of said upper channel to Lake Charlevoix.

Second Ward: Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Lower Pine River Channel and Lake Michigan; thence Southeasterly along the center line of said lower channel to its intersection with Round Lake; thence Southeasterly to a point in the middle of Round Lake at the intersection of the Southerly extension of the center line of Nettleton Street with the Easterly extension of the center line of Clinton Street; thence Westerly along the center line of Clinton Street and Easterly and Westerly extensions thereof to Lake Michigan; thence Northeasterly along the shore of Lake Michigan to the point of beginning. Also, all that territory embraced within the corporate limits of the City lying Southerly of the center line of Clinton Street and Westerly of the line common to Sections 26 and 27, and to Sections 34 and 35, all in Township 34 North, Range 8 West.

Third Ward: All that territory embraced within the corporate limits of the City lying Easterly of the line common to Sections 26 and 27, and to Sections 34 and 35, all in Township 34 North, Range 8 West, and Southerly of the following described line: Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Clinton Street with the line common to said Sections 26 and 27; thence Easterly along the center line of Clinton Street and Easterly extension thereof to a point in the middle of Round lake at the intersection of the Southerly extension of the center line of Nettleton Street with the Easterly extension of the center line of Upper Pine River Channel (Southerly of Park Island) with Round Lake; thence Southeasterly along the center line of said upper channel to Lake Charlevoix.

The City Council shall, by ordinance, when it deems necessary, or when required by law, alter the boundaries of the several wards of the City.

Section 1.3 Powers - General

The City has the comprehensive home rule power conferred upon it by the Michigan Constitution, subject only to the limitations on the exercise of that power contained in the Constitution and laws of this State or in this Charter. The City has all other powers which a City may possess under the Constitution and laws of this State.

Section 1.4 Powers - Scope of

The specific mention of particular powers in this Charter shall not be construed as limiting in any way the general powers of the City stated in this article.

Section 1.5 Powers - Intergovernmental

The City may exercise any of its powers or perform any of its functions and may participate in the financing thereof, jointly or in cooperation, by contract or otherwise, with any one or more municipal corporations, states or civil divisions or agencies thereof, or with the United States or any agency thereof.

Section 1.6 Public Welfare

The City, the City Council and the City Manager shall provide for the public peace and health, and for the safety of persons and property within the City.

ARTICLE II

Form of Government

Section 2.1 Council - Manager Plan

The form of government provided for in this Charter shall be that known as the "Council-Manager Plan". Except as otherwise provided by law or by this Charter, the Council shall have full authority to exercise all powers conferred upon the City.

Section 2.2 Council - Membership

The Council shall consist of six (6) members, two (2) elected from each of three (3) wards, on a non-partisan basis, by the electors of their respective wards.

Section 2.3 Council - Qualifications

Members of the Council shall be registered electors of that ward in the City of Charlevoix from which they are nominated and elected.

Section 2.4 Council - Terms

The Council members shall be elected for a term of two (2) years. The term of each Council member shall start on the first day of January following election, except as provided for in Article XIV, Section 14.3

Section 2.5 Council - Definition of Vacancy

The office of any Council member shall become vacant upon the occurrence of one or more of the following events:

a. Any reason specified by law as creating a vacancy.

b. The Council member's death.

c. The Council member's resignation, tendered to the Council at a regular meeting and accepted by the Council.

d. The Council member's termination of residency in the ward from which elected, or lack at any time during the term for which elected of any qualification for the office as prescribed by this Charter or by law.

e. The Council member's absence from five (5) consecutive regular meetings of the Council, or fifty percent (50 percent) of the regular meetings in any one (1) calendar year, unless the absences are excused and the reasons entered in the proceedings of the Council.

f. The conviction of the Council member of any felony in any court of any State of the United States, or in any Federal court.

Section 2.6 Council - Filling of Vacancies

When a vacancy occurs on the Council, the Council shall appoint another person from the ward in which the vacancy occurs to serve for the remainder of the vacant term. This appointment is to be completed within thirty (30) days of the time at which the vacancy occurs.

In the event that three (3) or more vacancies exist simultaneously on the Council, the Clerk shall call a Special Election to be held within sixty (60) days, and all vacancies shall be filled for the remaining portions of the vacant terms.

Section 2.7 Council - Judge of Qualifications

The Council shall be the judge of the continuing qualifications of its members, and of the grounds causing a vacancy in office. Decisions by the Council under this section shall be subject to review by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Section 2.8 Council - Oath - Filing thereof

Every elected and appointed Council member, before commencing official duties, shall take and subscribe to the following oath:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the constitutions of the United States of America and the State of Michigan and the Charter of the City of Charlevoix, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of this office on behalf of all the citizens of the City, to the best of my ability."

The Council member shall file the oath, duly certified by the official before whom it was taken, in the office of the City Clerk.

Section 2.9 Deputy Mayor - Election of

At the first (1st) meeting in January of each year, the Council shall elect one (1) of its members to serve as Deputy Mayor. The Deputy Mayor shall serve until the first (1st) day of January of the next year, or until a successor takes office.

Section 2.10 Mayor - Deputy Mayor - Duties

The Mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the City. He shall be President of the Council for all purposes, including those purposes required by civil or military law, and shall have such other duties as prescribed by this Charter. The Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council but have no vote therein, except in the case of a tie vote of the Council in which event the Mayor shall cast the deciding vote. The Mayor shall have no veto power. The Mayor shall authenticate by signature such instruments as the Council, this Charter, or the laws of the State or of the United States, may require. The Deputy Mayor shall act as Mayor during the absence or disability of the Mayor, or, if a vacancy occurs, shall become Mayor for the balance of the term.

Section 2.11 Council - Compensation

Each Council member, and the Mayor and Deputy Mayor and the City Clerk, shall receive as payment for service a sum as determined by the local Compensation Commission, which shall be established in accordance with Public Act 1972, No. 8, as amended. Such compensation shall be payable quarterly, and, except as otherwise provided in this Charter, shall constitute the only remuneration which may be paid for services performed by the Mayor, Deputy Mayor, or such officers for the discharge of any official duty for or on behalf of the City during a term of office.

Section 2.12 Council - Reimbursement

The City Council may reimburse a Council member, and/or the Mayor, for any reasonable expenses incurred on behalf of the City. Claims, supported by receipts, must be submitted to the Council.

Section 2.13 Council - Property

The Council members and other elected or appointed officials leaving office shall deliver to the Council within thirty (30) days all City property of every kind, name, and nature in their custody, which in any way pertains to their office.

Section 2.14 Elected Officials - Recall

Any elected officer provided for in this Charter may be recalled by the voters of the City in the manner prescribed by law.

Section 2.15 Council - Meetings - Minutes and Notices thereof

a. The first (1st) meeting of the Council shall be held for the purpose of organization at the usual place for holding meetings of the legislative body of the City, at eight (8:00) o'clock in the evening of the first (1st) Monday in January of each year, or the first (1st) day thereafter that is not a legal holiday, except as provided in Article XIV.

b. The regular meetings of the Council shall be held at least twice each month. These meetings shall be held at the City Hall unless otherwise provided for by ordinance.

c. Special meetings of the Council may be called by the City Clerk upon a request of the Mayor, or Deputy Mayor, or any three (3) Council members. The City Clerk shall notify all Council members of any special meetings and the business to be transacted at that meeting. This notice shall be given to all Council members in writing at least twelve (12) hours before the time of the special meeting. Notice shall be served personally or delivered to the residence of the Council member. However, any special meeting of the Council at which all members of the Council are present or have, in writing, waived the notice requirement of this sub-section and at which a quorum of the Council is present, shall be a legal meeting, so long as the other provisions of this section regarding public notice have been properly completed.

d. The City Clerk shall post a notice of the times established for regular scheduled meetings of the Council in a conspicuous public area of the City Hall at such times so as to comply with the laws of the State, and in no event fewer than three (3) days prior to the first (1st) regular scheduled meeting of the Council. The City Clerk also shall post a notice of all special meetings and their purposes in a conspicuous public area of the City Hall at such times so as to comply with the laws of the State, but in no event fewer than twelve (12) hours prior to the time of the meeting. No business shall be transacted at a special meeting of the Council except as set forth in the notice of the special meeting.

e. Four (4) Council members shall be a quorum for the holding of all meetings of the Council, but, in the absence of a quorum, two (2) Council members may adjourn any regular or special meeting to a later date. When reconvening an adjourned meeting, notice of the time and place of that meeting shall be given in the manner required of a special meeting, as set out in subsection d, except that in the case of an adjourned regular meeting no statement of the business to be transacted need be included in the notice.

f. The Council may adopt rules and by-laws for its procedures that are not inconsistent with this Charter or the laws of the State. The Council shall keep a journal of its proceedings, written in English.

g. The proceedings of the Council shall be published in a local newspaper of general circulation in the city within ten (10) days after each meeting of the Council. The publication of a synopsis of these proceedings, prepared by the City Clerk, showing the substance of each separate action of the Council, shall constitute compliance with the requirements of this provision.

h. All regular and special meetings of the Council and all records of the municipality shall be open to the public.

Section 2.16 Council – Powers and Limitations

a. Except where authorized by this Charter, no elected official shall hold any other office or City employment during the term for which elected.

b. Upon majority vote of the entire Council, the Council may require the City Manager to suspend or discharge any City official or employee whom the City Manager or his subordinates are empowered to appoint or hire. The Council may offer its opinions and freely discuss with the City Manager anything pertaining to the appointment, suspension, removal or disciplining of any such officials or employees.

c. The Council and its members shall deal solely through the City Manager with officials and employees subject to the direction and supervision of the City Manager. Neither the City Council nor its members, individually, shall give orders to any such officials or employees, either publicly or privately.

d. The Mayor, as President of the Council, may be delegated by the Council to convey to the City Manager its concerns or its orders with respect to the conduct of officials or employees subject to the direction and supervision of the City Manager, but otherwise the Mayor is bound by the same restrictions as apply to the Council and its members under sub-section c, immediately preceding.

e. All Council members, City officials and employees, when engaging in City business, shall be guided by the conflict of interest laws of the State.

f. The Council shall not have the power to sell, divide, lease, partition, plat, subdivide, or dispose of any City park or cemetery, or any part thereof, unless specifically approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general or special election, except as provided for in sub-section h of this section.

g. The Council shall not have the power to sell, divide, lease, partition, plat, subdivide, or dispose of any City owned interest in real property which lies within one-hundred (100) feet of the water's edge of Lake Michigan, Round Lake, or Lake Charlevoix, or the connecting waterways, unless specifically approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general or special election, except as provided for in sub-section h of this section. This sub-section does not apply to the normal operation of a cemetery.

h. The Council may, by a majority vote of the entire Council, when it deems it in the best public interest, lease for a period of not more than five (5) years those facilities used in connection with the operation of public parks and/or beaches, City owned docks with freight storage facilities, and buildings used in connection with the operation of the City owned airport. The Council has the power to sell lots and/or plots in any City owned cemetery.

Section 2.17 Council – Investigations

The City Council may make investigations into the affairs of the City and the conduct of any City department, office or agency, and for this purpose may subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, take testimony, and require the production of evidence. Any person who fails or refuses to obey a lawful order issued in the exercise of these powers by the Council shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punishable by a fine of not more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or both. The punitive powers herein stated shall not be exclusive and shall not prejudice the right to remove officers or discharge employees, and the Council shall have the power in the name of the City to institute injunctive proceedings, both to restrain and to enforce performance and observance of the law and ordinances.

Section 2.18 Council – Overall Control of Municipal Operations

The Council shall effect the development of, and the periodic updating of, such management guidelines as may be deemed appropriate for the proper exercise of its authority over and discharge of its responsibility for all municipal operations. Such management guidelines are to include – but are not to be limited to – organization charts with lines of authority and responsibility, job descriptions and qualifications, procedures, reporting, and personnel rules. These shall be sufficiently detailed to serve adequately as parameters for daily operations – but not so tightly drawn as to stifle initiative or impose inflexibility.

The Council may call upon the experience of city officials and employees, and of the City Manager, in developing and subsequently updating such guidelines.

The agenda for the first meeting in January of each year shall call for the setting of an early date for Council review of all such management guidelines, as a fitting introduction of new Council members to the inner workings of the City – for which they now share the ultimate responsibility.

ARTICLE III

Administration

Section 3.1 Administrative Officials

The administrative officials of the City shall be the City Manager, City Clerk, City Attorney, City Assessor, City Treasurer, Police Chief, and Fire Chief. The Council may create, combine, separate, or abolish administrative offices in any manner not inconsistent with law or this Charter, and shall prescribe the duties thereof, in order to insure the proper operation of the City government. No action of the City Council, however, shall abolish the office of the City Manager nor diminish any of the powers of that office as set forth in this Charter. Except as otherwise herein provided, the qualifications, duties and compensation of City officers shall be determined by the City Council.

Section 3.2 Administrative Officials - Appointment - Promotion - Compensation

All appointments, promotions, and compensation of administrative officials shall be made solely on evidence of merit and fitness.

Section 3.3 City Manager - Appointment

The City Manager shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The appointment shall be solely on the basis of executive and administrative qualifications. The Council shall fix his compensation. The City Manager, once appointed, if not already a resident of the City, shall become one within sixty (60) days and remain so throughout his appointment.

Section 3.4 City Manager - Removal

The City Council may remove the City Manager from office in accordance with the following procedure:

a. The council shall adopt by a majority vote of the entire Council a preliminary resolution stating the reasons for removal. The resolution may suspend the City Manager from duty for a period not to exceed forty-five (45) days. A copy of the resolution shall be delivered to the City Manager within five (5) days.

b. Within five (5) days after a copy of the resolution is delivered to the City Manager, the City Manager may file with the Council a written request for a public hearing. This hearing shall be held at a Council meeting not earlier than fifteen (15) days nor later than thirty (30) days after the request is filed. The City Manager shall receive at least ten (10) days notice of this hearing in writing. The City Manager may file with the Council a written reply not later than five (5) days before the hearing.

c. If the City Manager has not requested a public hearing, the Council may adopt a final resolution of removal, which may be made effective at once, by majority vote of the entire Council at any time after five (5) days from the date when a copy of the preliminary resolution was delivered to the City Manager. If the City Manager has requested a public hearing, the final resolution of removal may be adopted at any time after the hearing.

d. The City Manager shall continue to receive full compensation until the effective date of the final resolution of removal. The action of the Council in suspending or removing the City Manager in accordance with this Charter shall not be subject to review by any court.

Section 3.5 City Manager - Filling Vacancy

Upon the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of City Manager, or upon his suspension pursuant to Section 3.4, The Council, while it is attempting to fill the office, may appoint an Acting City Manager for a period not to exceed six (6) months, during which the Acting City Manager shall serve at the will of the Council and may be immediately removed without compliance with Section 3.4. Appointment and removal shall be effected by majority vote of the entire Council.

Section 3.6 City Manager - Temporary Absence

When the City Manager is absent from duty, or disabled, a qualified City administrative official shall be designated by the City Manager to exercise the powers and perform the duties of the City Manager during his absence or disability. The City Manager shall file with the City Clerk a list, by name and title, of three (3) qualified City administrative officials to exercise such powers and perform such duties. These City administrative officials shall be listed in the order by which each shall be designated to assume temporarily the City Manager's duties. During such absence or disability, the Council may revoke such designation at any time and appoint another City administrative official to serve until the City Manager shall return or disability shall cease.

Section 3.7 City Manager - Power and Duties

The City Manager shall be the chief administrative official of the City, and shall be responsible to the Council for the administration of all City affairs designated to his office by this Charter. The City Manager shall have the following powers and duties:

a. The City Manager shall appoint and, when deemed necessary for the good of the City, suspend or remove any City employee, except as otherwise provided by law, this Charter, or personnel rules. The City Manager may authorize any department head who is subject to the City Manager's direction and supervision to exercise these powers with respect to subordinates in that official's department, office, or agency.

b. The City Manager shall direct and supervise the administration of all departments, offices, and agencies of the City, except as otherwise provided by law or this Charter.

c. The City Manager shall attend all Council meetings except as prescribed by Section 3.6, and shall have the right to take part in discussion, but may not vote.

d. The City Manager shall see that all laws, provisions of this Charter, and acts of the Council, subject to enforcement by the City Manager, or by officials subject to direction and supervision by the City Manager, are faithfully executed.

e. The City Manager shall prepare and submit the Annual Operating Budget and Capital Program to the Council.

f. The City Manager shall submit to the Council and make available to the public a complete report on the finances and administrative activities of the City for the past year, on or before May 1st of each year.

g. The City Manager shall make such other reports as the Council may require concerning the operations of City departments, offices, and agencies.

h. The City Manager shall keep the Council fully advised as to the financial condition and future needs of the City, and make such recommendations to the Council concerning the affairs of the City as deemed desirable.

i. The City Manager shall perform such other duties as are specified by law, this Charter, or the Council.

Section 3.8 City Clerk - Election - Duties

The City Clerk shall be elected by a majority vote of the electors of the City at large for a one (1) year term. The City Clerk shall be Clerk of the Council and shall, with the Mayor, sign all ordinances. The City Clerk shall keep a permanent journal of all Council proceedings and ordinances. In addition, the City Clerk shall perform all other duties prescribed by law, this Charter, and the Council. The City Clerk may, with the approval of the City Council, appoint a Deputy City Clerk.

Section 3.9 City Attorney - Appointment - Duties

The City Attorney shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The City Attorney shall be the legal advisor for the City and for all City officials and departments in all matters relating to their official duties, and shall perform such other duties as the Council may require. The City Attorney may be removed by a majority vote of the entire Council.

Section 3.10 City Treasurer - Appointment - Duties

The City Treasurer shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The Treasurer shall assist the City Manager in the preparation of the Annual Operating Budget and the Capital Program. The Treasurer shall maintain a system of accounts in accordance with State law. The Treasurer shall be the chief financial officer of the City. The City Treasurer may be removed by a majority vote of the entire Council.

Section 3.11 City Assessor - Appointment - Duties

The City Assessor shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The City Assessor shall possess all powers vested in, and shall be charged with all duties imposed upon, assessing officers by law, this Charter, or the Council. The City Assessor may be removed by a majority vote of the entire Council.

Section 3.12 Police Chief - Appointment - Duties

The Police Chief shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The Police Chief shall supervise the Police Department in the enforcement of all applicable laws. The Police Chief may be removed by a majority vote of the entire Council.

Section 3.13 Fire Chief - Appointment - Duties

The Fire Chief shall be appointed by a majority vote of the entire Council for an indefinite term. The Fire Chief shall supervise all functions of the Fire Department. The Fire Chief may be removed by a majority vote of the entire Council.

ARTICLE IV

Registration, Nominations and Elections

Section 4.1 Electors

a. The City Clerk shall register qualified residents during regular business hours at the City Hall. The City Clerk may also register electors at places outside the Clerk's office from time to time to facilitate the registration of all qualified electors of the City.

b. The City Clerk shall process as rapidly as possible all information received relative to changes of address of electors in order to have the poll book complete and accurate at the times of the Primary and General elections.

c. Except as otherwise provided by this Charter, the Constitution and laws of the State of Michigan shall apply to the conduct of elections held under this Charter, and to the registration of electors in the City.

Section 4.2 General Election

A non-partisan general city election shall be held on the Tuesday immediately following the first Monday of November in every year.

Section 4.3 Primary Election

A primary election, if needed, shall be held on the Tuesday immediately following the first Monday in August, preceding every General Election in November.

Section 4.4 Nomination of Mayor and City Clerk

Registered electors seeking the office of Mayor or City Clerk shall file nominating petitions bearing the bona fide signatures of no fewer than twenty-five (25) nor more than forty (40) registered voters residing in the City at large. Such petitions shall be filed with the City Clerk's office no later than 4:00 P.M. in the afternoon of the first (1st) Tuesday after the first (1st) Monday in June.

Section 4.5 Nominations of Council Members

Registered electors seeking the office of Council Member in any ward shall file nominating petitions bearing the bona fide signatures of no fewer than twenty-five (25) nor more than forty (40) registered voters residing in that ward. Such petitions shall be filed with the City Clerk's office no later than 4:00 P.M. in the afternoon of the first (1st) Tuesday after the first (1st) Monday in June.

Section 4.6 Primary Elections, Number of Candidates.

a. If, for any office, there should be nominated more than twice the number of persons to be elected to that office, a primary election shall be held among the electors entitled to vote for that office under this Charter. The names of the two candidates receiving the most votes shall be placed on the ballot for that office in the General Election.

b. If, upon expiration of the time for filing petitions for any non-partisan primary election, there are nominated for any office no more than twice the number of persons to be elected to that office, the City Clerk shall certify to the proper board of election commissioners the names of such candidates whose petitions have been properly filed and such candidates shall be the nominees for such offices and shall be so certified. As to such offices there shall be no primary election and such offices shall be omitted from any primary election ballot.

Section 4.7 Election of Mayor and City Clerk

The Mayor and the City Clerk shall be elected at the annual General Election, each for a one (1) year term, by the balloting of the electors of the City at large. They shall take office at the first (1st) meeting of the City Council in January of the following year, except as provided in Article XIV, Section 14.3. The names of the nominees shall appear on the ballots and election materials of the Primary and of the General election without reference to ward residence.

Section 4.8 Election of Council Members

One (1) candidate from each ward shall be elected at the annual General Election for a two (2) year term on the City Council by the balloting of the electors of their respective wards. Their terms shall be as set forth in Article II, Section 2.4, except as provided in Article XIV, Section 14.3.

Section 4.9 Elections, Ties

In the event of a tie in any Primary or General election, the winner shall be determined by a procedure through the Board of Canvassers, as provided for by County officers by statute.

Section 4.10 Special Elections

Special elections may be called at any time for specific purposes by a majority resolution of the City Council. Special elections shall be conducted in accordance with State law. No more than two (2) special elections may be held within any twelve (12) month period.

ARTICLE V

Ordinances and Resolutions

Section 5.1 Legislative Power

The legislative power of the City is vested exclusively in the Council, except as otherwise provided by law.

Section 5.2 Legislation

a. All legislation of the City shall be by resolution or by ordinance.

b. Resolutions, in the form of motions, may be adopted by majority vote of the Council members present, except as otherwise provided by this Charter.

c. The power of the Council to act by resolution is limited to matters required or permitted by law or by this Charter, and to matters pertaining to the internal concerns of the City.

d. The Council shall act by majority vote of the entire Council when adopting an ordinance, when establishing a rule or regulation, when amending or repealing an ordinance previously adopted, or when required by law or by this Charter, except as provided in Section 5.4c.

Section 5.3 Ordinances -- Composition -- Hearings -- Publication

a. Every proposed ordinance shall be introduced in writing. The enacting clause shall be "The City of Charlevoix ordains......".

b. Following the introduction of any ordinance, the City Clerk shall publish a summary of the proposed ordinance in a local newspaper of general circulation in the City, together with a notice setting out the time and place for a public hearing on the proposed ordinance. The public hearing may not be held sooner than five (5) days after publication. Copies of the ordinance shall be distributed without charge at the office of the City Clerk.

c. After the public hearing, the Council may consider enacting the proposed ordinance. The enactment of an ordinance shall require the majority vote of the entire Council.

d. Except as otherwise provided by law or this Charter, each ordinance, including emergency ordinances, shall be published in full in a local newspaper of general circulation in the City at least one (1) time within ten (10) days after its adoption by the Council. The publication of an ordinance in full, as part of the published proceedings of the Council, however, shall not constitute publication of such ordinance as required herein; it must be separately and individually set forth.

e. Except as otherwise provided by law or this Charter, every ordinance shall become effective on the thirtieth (30th) day after enactment, or at any later date specified therein.

f. An ordinance which repeals or amends any existing ordinance or part of the City Code shall identify, by title and number, the ordinance, sections, or subsections to be repealed or amended, and shall clearly indicate the matter to be omitted and the new matter to be added, except in codifying, recodifying or continuing in code its municipal ordinances, in full or in part, as provided by statute.

g. Ordinances and codes may be enacted by reference to the extent and in the manner provided by general law.

Section 5.4 Ordinances -- Emergency

a. To meet a public emergency affecting life, health or property, one or more emergency ordinances may be enacted. However, an emergency ordinance may not levy taxes, or grant, renew or extend a franchise, or regulate the rate charged by any public utility for its service.

b. An emergency ordinance shall be introduced in the form and manner required for ordinances generally, except that it shall contain, after the enacting clause, a declaration stating that an emergency exists and describing the emergency in clear, specific terms.

c. An emergency ordinance may be enacted on the date of introduction and given immediate effect, by a majority vote of the Council members present at the time of the enactment.

d. Every emergency ordinance is automatically repealed on the sixty-first (61st) day after its enactment, unless re-enacted pursuant to Section 5.3.

Section 5.5 Ordinance – Penalty

An ordinance may provide a penalty for the violation of its provisions. The penalty shall not exceed the limits provided by law.

Section 5.6 Ordinance -- Effective Date

All ordinances shall be recorded in an index book marked "City Ordinances", and a record of each ordinance shall be authenticated by the signatures of the Mayor and City Clerk. Such record and authentication shall be done within thirty (30) days after the final passage of any ordinance. If any ordinance, other than an emergency ordinance, is not authenticated and recorded within thirty (30) days after final passage, the ordinance shall not take effect until seven (7) days after notice has been published in a local newspaper of general circulation in the City that the ordinance has been properly authenticated and recorded.

Section 5.7 Ordinance -- Codification

a. Within three (3) years after the effective date of this Charter, and at least every ten (10) years thereafter, the Council shall provide for the preparation of a general codification of all City ordinances having the effect of law.

b. The general codification shall be enacted by ordinance and shall be known as the "Charlevoix City Code". Copies of the Code shall be furnished to City officials, placed in libraries and public offices for free public reference, and made available for purchase by the public at a reasonable price to be fixed by the Council. Except as required by law, the enactment of this ordinance need not comply with the requirements of Section 5.3. After publication of the first Charlevoix City Code, new ordinances shall be printed annually in a form for integration with the City Code currently in effect.

ARTICLE VI

Initiative and Referendum

Section 6.1 General Authority

a. INITIATIVE. The registered voters of the City shall have the power to propose ordinances to the Council and, if the Council fails to adopt an ordinance so proposed without any change in substance, to adopt or reject it at a City election, provided that such power shall not extend to the budget or Capital Program, or to any ordinance relating to appropriation of money, levy of taxes, or salaries of city officials or employees.

b. REFERENDUM. The registered voters of the City shall have the power to require reconsideration by the Council of any adopted ordinance, and, if the Council fails to repeal an ordinance so reconsidered, to approve or reject it at a City election, provided that such power shall not extend to the budget or Capital Program, or to any emergency ordinance, or ordinance relating to the appropriation of money or the levy of taxes.

Section 6.2 Commencement of Proceedings

Any five (5) registered voters may commence initiative or referendum proceedings by filing with the City Clerk an affidavit stating they will constitute the petitioners' committee and be responsible for circulating the petition and filing it in the proper form, stating their names and addresses, and specifying the address to which all notices to the committee are to be sent, and setting out in full the proposed initiative ordinance or citing the ordinance sought to be reconsidered.

Promptly after the affidavit of the petitioners' committee is filed, the Clerk shall issue the appropriate petition blanks to the petitioners' committee.

Section 6.3 Petitions

a. Number of signatures. Initiative and referendum petitions must be signed by registered voters of the City equal in number to at least fifteen (15) percent of the total number of voters registered to vote in the last regular City election.

b. Form and Content. All papers of a petition shall be uniform in size and style and shall be assembled as one instrument for filing. Each signature shall be executed in ink or indelible pencil and shall be followed by the address of the person signing. Petitions shall contain or have attached thereto throughout their circulation the full text of the ordinance proposed or sought to be reconsidered.

c. Affidavit of Circulator. Each paper of a petition shall have attached to it when filed an affidavit executed by the circulator thereof stating that he or she personally circulated the paper, the number of signatures thereon, that all signatures were affixed in his or her presence, that the circulator believes them to be the genuine signatures of the persons whose names they purport to be, and that each signer had an opportunity before signing to read the full text of the ordinance proposed or sought to be reconsidered.

d. Time for Filing Referendum Petitions. Referendum petitions must be filed within thirty (30) days after adoption by the Council of the ordinance sought to be reconsidered.

Section 6.4 Procedure after Filing

a. Certificate of Clerk. Within twenty (20) days after the petition is filed, the City Clerk shall complete a certificate as to its sufficiency, specifying, if it is insufficient, the particulars wherein it is defective and shall promptly send a copy of the certificate to the petitioners' committee by certified mail. A petition certified insufficient for lack of the required number of valid signatures may be amended once, if the petitioners' committee files a notice of intention to amend it with the City Clerk within two (2) days after receiving the copy of the Clerk's certificate, excluding weekends and holidays, and files a supplementary petition upon additional papers within ten (10) days after receiving the copy of such certificate. Such supplementary petition shall comply with the requirements of subsections b and c of Section 6.3. Within five (5) days after it is filed, the City Clerk shall complete a certificate as to the sufficiency of the petition as amended and promptly send a copy of such certificate to the petitioner's committee by certified mail, as in the case of an original petition. If a petition or amended petition is certified sufficient, or if a petition or amended petition is certified insufficient and the petitioners' committee does not elect to amend or request Council review under subsection b of this Section within the time required, the Clerk shall promptly present the certificate to the Council and the certificate shall be a final determination as the sufficiency or insufficiency of the petitions.

b. Council Review. If a petition has been certified insufficient and the petitioners' committee does not file notice of intention to amend it or if an amended petition has been certified insufficient, the committee may, within two (2) days after receiving the copy of such certificate, excluding weekends and holidays, file a request that it be reviewed by the Council. The Council shall review the certificate at its next meeting following the filing of such request and approve or disapprove it. The Council's decision shall then be the final determination as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of the petition.

c. Court Review: New Petition. A Council determination as to the sufficiency of a petition shall be subject to court review. Council determination of insufficiency, even if sustained upon court review, shall not prejudice the filing of a new petition for the same purpose.

Section 6.5 Referendum Petitions - Suspension of Effect of Ordinance

When a referendum petition is filed with the City Clerk, the ordinance sought to be reconsidered shall be suspended from taking effect. Such suspension shall terminate when:

1. There is a final determination of insufficiency of the petition, or
2. The petitioners' committee withdraws the petition, or
3. The Council repeals the ordinance, or
4. Thirty (30) days have elapsed after a vote of the City on the ordinance.

Section 6.6 Action on Petitions

a. Action by Council. When an initiative or referendum petition has been finally determined sufficient, the Council shall promptly consider the proposed initiative ordinance in the manner provided in Article V or reconsider the referred ordinance by voting its repeal. If the Council fails to adopt a proposed initiative ordinance without any change in substance within sixty (60) days, or fails to repeal a referred ordinance within thirty (30) days after the date the petition was finally determined sufficient, it shall submit the proposed or referred ordinance to the voters of the City.

b. Submission to Voters. The vote of the City on a proposed or referred ordinance shall be held no sooner than sixty (60) days and no later than one (1) year from the date of the final Council vote thereon. If no regular City election is to be held within the period prescribed in this subsection, the Council may at its discretion provide for a special election at an earlier date within the prescribed period. Copies of the proposed or referred ordinance shall be made available at the polls.

Section 6.7 Results of Election

a. Initiative. If a majority of the registered electors voting on a proposed initiative ordinance vote in its favor, it shall be considered adopted upon certification of the election results and shall be treated in all respects in the same manner as ordinances of the same kind adopted by the Council. If conflicting ordinances are approved at the same election, the one receiving the greatest number of affirmative votes shall prevail, to the extent of such conflict.

b. Referendum. If a majority of the registered electors voting on a referred ordinance vote against it, it shall be considered repealed upon certification of the election results.

ARTICLE VII

General Finances

Section 7.1 Fiscal Year

The fiscal year and budget year for the City shall begin on April 1st and end on March 31st of each year. The City Council shall provide an annual appropriation of money for municipal purposes.

Section 7.2 Capital Budget

On or before September 1st of each year the City Manager shall submit to the Council a proposed Capital Budget for the next five (5) fiscal years. The Capital Budget shall state:

a. A clear summary of its contents.

b. A list of all major capital improvements proposed to be undertaken during the five (5) years ensuing, with appropriate supporting information as to the necessity for such improvements.

c. Cost estimates, methods of financing, and recommended tax schedules for each improvement.

d. Estimated annual costs of operating and maintaining the facilities to be constructed or acquired.

Section 7.3 Previous Capital Budgets

Previously adopted Capital Budgets may be revised and extended each year with regard to capital improvements still pending or in the process of construction or acquisition.

Section 7.4 Publication of Capital Budget

The Council shall publish in a newspaper of general circulation in the City a general summary of the Capital Budget and a notice stating:

a. The times and places where copies of the Capital Budget are available for inspection by the public, and

b. The time and place, not sooner than two (2) weeks after publication, for a public hearing on the Capital Budget.

Section 7.5 Adoption of Capital Budget

The Council shall adopt by resolution the Capital Budget, with or without amendments, after a public hearing on or before October 15th of each year.

Section 7.6 Operating Budget

On or before February 15th of each year, the City Manager shall submit to the Council a proposed Annual Operating Budget for the next fiscal year.

Section 7.7 Summary of Operating Budget

The proposed Annual Operating Budget shall provide a complete financing plan for the next fiscal year for all City funds and activities, including Capital expenditures, and, except as required by law or this Charter, shall be in such form as the City Manager deems desirable or the Council may require. The Proposed Annual Operating Budget shall begin with a clear summary of its contents, shall show in detail all estimated income, indicating the proposed property tax levy and all proposed expenditures, including debts for the next fiscal year, and shall be so arranged as to show comparative figures of estimated income and expenditures for the preceding fiscal year, and shall provide such other information as may be required by the Council.

Section 7.8 Public Hearing

Before the final adoption of the Annual Operating Budget, a public hearing shall be held, at which time the proposed Annual Operating Budget shall be presented. The time and place of the hearing shall be determined by the Council and notice of the hearing shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the City at least two (2) weeks before the hearing. At the hearing all interested persons shall be given an opportunity to be heard for or against any item in the proposed Annual Operating Budget. A copy of the proposed Annual Operating Budget shall be on file and available to the public for inspection during office hours in the office of the City Treasurer for a period of not fewer than ten (10) days prior to this hearing.

Section 7.9 Review of Annual Operating Budget

The Council shall review the proposed Annual Operating Budget and shall make modifications as it deems advisable. Not later than March 15th the Council shall adopt by ordinance the Annual Operating Budget for the next fiscal year and shall provide in such ordinance for a levy, if necessary, to be raised by a tax upon real and personal property.

Section 7.10 Transfer of Appropriations

a. If the City Manager certifies during the fiscal year that there are available revenues in excess of those estimated in the budget, the Council by ordinance may make supplemental appropriations up to the amount of such excess revenues.

b. If it appears probable to the City Manager during the fiscal year that the revenues available will be insufficient to meet the amounts appropriated, the City Manager shall report to the Council without delay, indicating the estimated amount of the deficit, any remedial action taken, and recommendations as to other possible steps. The Council shall then take such further action as it may deem necessary to prevent any deficit, and for that purpose it may reduce by ordinance one or more appropriations.

c. At any time during the fiscal year, the City Manager may transfer part or all of any unencumbered appropriation balance among programs within a department, office or agency. Upon written request by the City Manager, the Council may transfer by ordinance part or all of any unencumbered appropriations balance from one department, office or agency to another.

d. No appropriation for debt service may be reduced or transferred, and no appropriation may be reduced below any amount required by law to be appropriated or by more than the amount of the unencumbered balance thereof. The supplemental and emergency appropriations, and the reduction or transfer of appropriations authorized by this section, may be made effective immediately upon adoption.

Section 7.11 Remaining Fund Balances

Except as provided by law, the balance in any General Fund appropriation which has not been encumbered at the end of the fiscal year, other than that of or pertaining to any municipal utility, shall revert to the General Fund.

Section 7.12 Emergency Appropriations

To meet a public emergency affecting life, health or property, the Council may make emergency appropriations. Such appropriations may be made by emergency ordinance in accordance with the provisions of Article V. To the extent that there are no available unappropriated revenues to meet such appropriations, the Council may authorize by such emergency ordinance the issuance of emergency notes in accordance with Article X.

Section 7.13 Expenditure of Funds

The Council shall provide by resolution appropriate methods and safeguards for the expenditure of funds and the payment of obligations so as to insure that no payment shall be made or obligation incurred without an appropriation having first been approved by the Council, without a sufficient unencumbered balance in the appropriation, or without insuring that sufficient funds are or will be available to cover the claim or meet the obligation when it becomes due and payable. However, except where prohibited by law, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed to prevent the making or authorizing of payments or the making of contracts for capital improvements to be financed wholly or partly by the issuance of bonds, or to prevent the making of any contract or lease providing for payments beyond the end of the fiscal year. Any such action must be approved by ordinance.

Section 7.14 Deposits

The Council shall designate the depository or depositories for the City funds, and shall provide for the regular deposit of all City monies. The Council shall provide for such security for City deposits as is authorized by law, except that personal surety bonds shall not be deemed proper security.

Section 7.15 Audits

An independent audit of all accounts and financial records of the City shall be made annually. Such audit shall be made by a certified public accountant experienced in municipal accounting, within one hundred twenty (120) days after the close of the fiscal year. The Council may secure additional audits at any time. Each audit, in its entirety, shall be made available for public inspection at the office of the City Clerk and at the Public Library.

Section 7.16 System of Accounts

The accounting system of the City shall conform to any uniform system of municipal accounting that may be provided by the laws of the State.

Section 7.17 Contracts and Bids

The Council shall prescribe by resolution a general framework of necessary procedures governing financial and contractual dealings with the City. Such resolution shall include a maximum consideration below which purchases may be made by the City officials and employees either without specific authorization from the Council, or without the necessity of competitive bidding, or both. In addition, such resolution shall include a requirement that in all cases of contract by competitive bidding, the Council shall reserve the right to reject any and all bids submitted, and provisions for such rejection and notices for such right of rejection shall be incorporated in all requests for bids.

ARTICLE VIII

Taxation

Section 8.1 Taxation - Limit - Collection

In order to carry out the purposes, powers and duties of the City Government established by this Charter, the City shall have the power to assess taxes and to lay and collect rents, tolls and excises. The annual general ad valorem tax levy for municipal purposes shall not exceed one-and-one-half (1½) percent (15 mills) of the State Equalized Valuation of all real and personal property in the City. The City taxes shall be levied and collected in the manner provided by the general tax laws of the State or by this Charter.

Section 8.2 Taxation - Subjects - Rights

The subjects of taxation for municipal purposes shall be the same as for State, County and school purposes under the general tax laws of the State, and the City shall have the rights, liens, powers and remedies accorded by law to any political subdivision of the State in connection with the collection of taxes.

Section 8.3 Taxation - Power and Exemptions

The power of taxation shall never be surrendered nor suspended by any grant or contract to which the City shall be a party. No exemptions from taxation shall be allowed, except as are expressly required or permitted by law.

Section 8.4 Tax Assessment

The City Assessor shall make and complete an assessment roll in the manner and form provided in the general tax laws of the State and at the time required by the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.5 Board of Review

A Board of Review is hereby created. It shall be composed of five (5) members, appointed by the Council. Three or more members shall constitute a quorum.

a. Two (2) members shall be Council members, appointed by the Council in January of each year.

b. Three (3) members shall be registered electors of the City, not otherwise holding an elected or appointed position with the City or any other political subdivision.

c. The three (3) non-Council members shall be appointed in January after this Charter takes effect. One (1) shall be appointed for three (3) years, one (1) for two (2) years, and one (1) for one (1) year. Thereafter, each non-Council member shall be appointed for three (3) years.

d. The City Clerk shall act as Clerk of the Board of Review. The City Assessor shall be presented at all meetings of the Board of Review.

e. The City Council shall provide by resolution for the compensation of the members of the Board of Review.

Section 8.6 Board of Review - Powers and Duties

Except as otherwise provided in this Charter, the Board of Review shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as are conferred by law upon and required of the Boards of Review in townships.

Section 8.7 Board of Review - Notice of Meetings

The City Clerk shall give notice to the public of the time and place of the first meeting of the Board of Review by publication as required by law, and in any event at least seven (7) days before the first day of this Board of Review meeting. Failure to give such notice shall not invalidate the tax roll.

Section 8.8 Assessment - Notice of Change to Owners

In each case where the assessed value is increased or property is added to the rolls, the City Assessor shall give notice thereof to the respective property owners. This notice shall be mailed by first class mail to the addresses of such owners as shown on the last assessment roll, and shall be mailed not later than ten (10) days before the first meeting of the Board of Review. The failure of the property owner to receive notice shall not invalidate an assessment roll or an assessment on property.

Section 8.9 Board of Review - Meetings

The Board of Review shall hold at least two (2) meetings each year at such places as shall be designated by the Council. The first meeting shall commence on the Tuesday next following the first Monday in March of each year and shall continue as long as may be necessary to consider and correct the assessment roll, and shall be for the purpose of hearing the complaints of all persons considering themselves aggrieved by the assessment. The first meeting of the Board of Review shall continue in session not fewer than three (3) days, and may continue longer if necessary. Sessions of the Board of Review shall convene from 9:00 A.M. to 12:00 noon and from 1:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. During the second meeting of the Board of Review at least one (1) evening session shall be held from 7:00 P.M. until 10:00 P.M. and longer if necessary.

Section 8.10 Board of Review – Appeals

In each case where there is an appeal by a property owner heard at the first meeting of the Board of Review, the Board shall give notice to each such property owner of its decision. This notice shall be given in such a manner as will insure the property owner the opportunity to attend the second meeting of the Board.

Section 8.11 Board of Review – Second Meeting

The second meeting of the Board of Review shall be held at such times as provided by statute for the purpose of hearing any further complaints by persons considering themselves aggrieved by the assessments. The assessment review shall be considered completed by the first Monday in April.

MAR

Section 8.12 Board of Review – Endorsement of Roll

After the Board of Review completes its review of the assessment roll, the majority of its members shall immediately endorse thereon and sign a statement to the effect that the same is the assessment roll of the City for the year in which it has been prepared. The omission of this endorsement shall not affect the validity of this roll. Upon completion, the roll shall be the assessment roll of the City for County, School and City taxes and for any other taxes on real or personal property that may be authorized by law. The assessment roll shall be conclusively presumed by all Courts and tribunals to be valid and shall not be set aside except for causes set forth in the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.13 Certification to Assessor

After the Council has adopted the budget for the ensuing year, the City Clerk shall certify to the City Assessor the total amount which the Council determines shall be raised by general taxes, all amounts of special assessments which the Council requires to be assessed or reassessed upon any property or against any person, and all other amounts which the Council may determine shall be charged, assessed or reassessed against any person or property.

Section 8.14 Spreading of the Taxes

After the confirmation of the tax roll, the City Assessor shall certify a copy of the tax roll to the City Treasurer. The tax roll shall be delivered to the Treasurer before June 1st of each year. This shall constitute the City tax roll for the current year. To avoid fractions and computations on any tax roll, the City Assessor may add to the amount of the several taxes to be raised an amount prescribed by statute. This added amount, when collected, shall belong to the City.

Section 8.15 Taxes – Collection of

After the spreading of the taxes, the City Treasurer shall collect from the persons named in the tax roll the various sums stated. The City Treasurer is granted, for the purpose of collecting the taxes, assessments and charges on the roll, all the powers and immunities possessed by township treasurers for the collection of taxes under the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.16 Taxes – Due – Liens

The City taxes assessed shall become due on July 1st of each year, and the amounts assessed on any interest in real property shall become a lien upon such property at the time provided by the general tax laws of the State, and the lien for these amounts and for all interest and other charges shall continue until these sums are paid. All personal property taxes shall be a first lien, prior, superior and paramount, upon all personal property of the persons assessed at the time provided by the general tax laws of the State and shall remain so until paid. These tax liens shall have precedence over all other claims, encumbrances and liens upon the property, whether created by a security agreement, levy, judgement, or otherwise, and whether arising before or after the assessment of the personal property taxes. No transfer of personal property assessed for taxes shall operate to divest or destroy this lien except when such personal property is actually sold in the regular course of retail or wholesale trade.

Section 8.17 Taxes – Power of Treasurer

The City Treasurer shall have the same power and authority as conferred by law upon township treasurers for collecting taxes by suit, by distraint, or by the sale of goods and chattels. All proceedings for the return and collection of unpaid taxes, the sale of lands for payment of taxes, and all other proceedings necessary in the enforcement of these taxes, shall be in all respects, so far as applicable, the same as are set by the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.18 Taxes – Penalties

City taxes shall be due on July 1st of the year when levied. All taxes paid on or before September 1st shall be collected by the City Treasurer without penalty. An additional charge of one (1) percent shall be added to all unpaid City taxes on September 1st and an additional charge of one (1) percent shall be added to all delinquent unpaid taxes on the first day of each month thereafter until the taxes are paid. This added penalty shall belong to the City and shall constitute a charge and shall be a lien against the property to which the taxes themselves apply, collectable in the same manner as the taxes to which they are added. If September 1st falls on a Sunday or legal holiday, taxes shall be collected without penalty on the next business day.

Section 8.19 Taxes – Payment of

The City Treasurer shall give notice to the taxpayers of the City not later than July 1st of each year by publication in a local newspaper of general circulation in the City, of the time when the City taxes will be due and when they can be paid without penalty, and that one (1) percent penalty per month will be charged upon all taxes remaining unpaid after September 1st. As soon as practical after completion of the tax roll, and in no event later than July 1st, the City Treasurer shall forward a statement of the taxes due, by first class mail addressed to the owners of the property upon which taxes are assessed, as indicated by the tax roll. Failure on the part of the City Treasurer to mail this statement shall not invalidate the taxes on this roll or relieve the property assessed from the penalties by this Article or by the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.20 Tax Roll – Return to County Treasurer

Any taxes on the City tax roll which remain unpaid on March 1st following the date when the roll was received by the City Treasurer shall be returned to the County Treasurer in the same manner and with like effect as returns by township treasurers of township, school and county taxes. These returns shall be made upon a delinquent tax roll to be prepared by the City Treasurer and shall include all the additional charges and fees hereinbefore provided. These charges and fees shall, in these returns, be added to the amount assessed on the tax roll against each description. The taxes so returned shall be collected in the same manner as other taxes returned to the County Treasurer, and shall remain a lien upon the assessed lands until paid.

Section 8.21 Protection of Tax Lien

The City shall have the power to purchase any property within the City at any tax or other public sale, or to purchase the property directly from the State or the fee owner, when such purchase is necessary to protect the lien of the City for taxes or special assessments. The City may hold, lease or sell this property. Any such procedure exercised by the City in the protection of its lien shall be deemed to be for the public purpose.

Section 8.22 Tax Collection – County, School and State

For the purpose of assessing and collecting taxes in the City for State, County and School purposes, the City shall be considered the same as a township and shall collect and account for these taxes, penalties and interest in the same manner provided by the general tax laws of the State.

Section 8.23 Changes – Additions

In all matters where this Charter does not fully or adequately provide for the levy and collection of City, County, State, School or other taxes, the City Council shall have the power and authority to adopt additional ordinances necessary to carry out and enforce the general tax laws of the State.

ARTICLE IX
Special Assessments

Section 9.1 Determination

The Council shall have the power to determine the necessity of any local or public improvement, including public parking facilities and boulevard lighting systems, and to determine that the whole or any part of the costs thereof shall be defrayed by special assessment upon the property especially benefited, and shall so declare by resolution, provided that all special assessments levied shall be based upon or be in proportion to the benefits derived or to be derived. Such resolution shall state the estimated cost of the improvement, what proportion of the cost shall be paid by special assessment, what part, if any, shall be a general obligation of the City, the number of installments in which the assessments may be paid, the interest rate on any unpaid assessments, if any, the date on which any such interest shall commence, and shall designate the districts or land and property on which special assessments shall be levied.

Section 9.2 Procedure

The Council shall prescribe by general ordinance the complete special assessment procedure concerning the initiation of projects, plans and specifications, estimates of cost, notice of hearings, making and confirming assessment rolls for the improvement, the correction of errors in the assessment rolls, collections of special assessments, the assessment of single lots or parcels, and any other matters concerning the making of improvements by the special assessment method, subject to the provisions of this Charter and the laws of the State. The ordinance shall authorize additional assessments, if the prior assessment proves insufficient to pay for the improvement or is determined to be invalid, in whole or in part.

Section 9.3 Confirmation

Confirmation of any special assessment must be made by a majority vote of the entire Council. This section shall not apply to sidewalk improvement.

Section 9.4 Refund

The excess by which any special assessment proves larger than the actual cost of the improvement and expenses incidental thereto shall be refunded on a pro rata basis to the owners of the property assessed. This refund shall be made by credit against unpaid future installments to the extend that installments are still owing, and the balance of the refund shall be in cash. No refunds may be made which contravene the provisions of any outstanding evidence of indebtedness secured in whole or in part by the special assessment. Minimum refund shall be of five dollars ($5.00).

Section 9.5 Liens

From the date of confirmation of any roll levying any special assessment, the full amount of any special assessment and any interest thereon shall be a lien upon the property subject thereto and shall be a debt of the person to whom assessed until paid. This lien shall be of the same character and effect as the lien created by this Charter for City taxes. The assessment shall be levied upon the respective lots and premises to which they are specially assessed, and against the persons chargeable therewith, as a tax in the next City tax roll in a column for special assessments. The amount so levied shall be enforced and collected in the same manner as other taxes and, when collected shall be paid into the City treasury.

Section 9.6 Changes – Additions

In any case where the provisions of this Charter, either expressed or incorporated herein, may prove to be insufficient to carry into full effect the making of any special assessment, the Council shall provide by general ordinance any additional steps or procedures required to effect the improvement by special assessment.

ARTICLE X
Borrowing Power

Section 10.1 Scope of Power

Subject to this Charter and the laws of the State, the Council, by ordinance, may authorize the borrowing of money for any purpose within the scope of the powers of the City, including parking facilities, street lighting, and the City's share of the cost of any local improvement, and may issue bonds of the City or other evidence of indebtedness, and may pledge the full faith, credit and resources of the City for payment of the obligation created thereby.

Section 10.2 Bonds – Special Assessments

Subject to the laws of the State, the Council shall have authorization to borrow money in anticipation of the payment of special assessments made for the purpose of defraying the cost of any local improvements, or in anticipation of the payment of any combination of such special assessments, and to issue bonds therefor. Such special assessment bonds may be an obligation of the special assessment district or may be both an obligation of the special assessment district or districts and a general obligation of the City. All collections of each special assessment roll or combination of rolls shall be set apart in a separate fund for the payment of the principal and interest of the bond issued in anticipation of such special assessment and shall be used for no other purpose.

Section 10.3 Bonds – Issuance of

The issuance of any bonds not requiring the approval of the electors shall be subject to applicable requirements of the laws of the State, and with regard to public notice in advance of the authorization of these bonds, filing of petitions for a referendum on these bonds, holding of a referendum, and other applicable procedures.

Section 10.4 Indebtedness Limits

The net bonded indebtedness incurred for all public purposes shall not at any time exceed the limit permitted by the Constitution and laws of the State, provided that in computing such net bonded indebtedness there shall be excluded those bonds permitted to be so excluded by the Constitution and laws of the State.

Section 10.5 Use of Bonds - Statement

Each bond or other evidence of indebtedness shall contain on its face a statement specifying the purpose for which it is issued, and it shall be unlawful for any official of the City to use the proceeds of the bond for any other purpose. All bonds and other evidences of indebtedness issued by the City shall be signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the City Clerk under the seal of the City. Interest coupons may be executed with the facsimile signatures of the Mayor and City Clerk. A complete and detailed record of all bonds and other evidences of indebtedness issued by the City shall be kept by the City Clerk. Upon the payment of any bond or other evidence of indebtedness, the same shall be marked "Cancelled".

Section 10.6 Unissued Bonds

No unissued bonds of the City shall be issued or sold to secure funds for any purpose other than that for which they were specifically authorized, and if such bonds are not sold within three (3) years after authorization, such authorization shall be null and void.

ARTICLE XI
Franchises

Section 11.1 Franchises - Granting of

The City Council may grant a franchise or license by ordinance for a period not to exceed five (5) years.

ARTICLE XII
Utility Franchises and Municipal Ownership

Section 12.1 General Powers

The City shall possess and hereby reserves to itself all the powers granted to cities by law to acquire, construct, own, operate, improve, enlarge, extend, repair and maintain, either within or without its cooperate limits, including, but not by way of limitation, public utilities for supplying water, light, heat, power, gas, sewage treatment, and garbage disposal facilities, or any of them, to the municipality and the inhabitants thereof; and also to sell and deliver water, light, heat, power, gas and other public utility services without its cooperate limits as authorized by law.

Section 12.2 Management

All municipally owned or operated utilities shall be administered as regular departments of the City government, under the management and supervision of the City Manager. The City Manager shall appoint department supervisors solely on the basis of merit.

Section 12.3 Rates

a. The Council shall have the power to fix, from time to time, such just and reasonable rates and other charges as may be deemed advisable for supplying the inhabitants of the City and others with such public utility services as the City may provide. There shall be no discrimination in such rates within any classification of users, nor shall free service be permitted. Higher rates may be charged for service outside the corporate limits of the City.

b. The rates and charges of any municipal utility for the furnishing of services shall be no higher than necessary to cover the costs of such utility, including depreciation, capital improvements, and the creating and maintaining of an emergency fund.

c. Transactions pertaining to the ownership and operation by the City of each public utility shall be recorded in a separate group of accounts under an appropriate fund caption, which accounts shall be classified in accordance with generally accepted utility accounting practice. Charges for all service furnished to, or rendered by, other City departments or agencies shall be recorded. An annual report shall be prepared to show fairly the financial position of each utility and the results of its operation, which report shall be available at the office of the City Clerk.

d. The City Council shall create emergency funds for the Electric, Sewage and Water utilities to meet contingencies. Each fund shall be not less than Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars ($75,000.00) and each fund is to be so administered as to reach that intended minimum level in a period of five (5) years. Any withdrawal for emergency use must be replaced within five (5) years.

Section 12.4 Disposal of Utility Plants and Property

Unless approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the registered electors at a regular or special election, the City shall not sell, exchange, lease or in any way dispose of any property, easements, equipment, privilege, or asset belonging to and appertaining to any municipally owned public utility which is needed to continue operating such utility. All contracts, negotiations, licenses, grants, leases, or other forms of transfer in violation of this section shall be void and of no affect as against the City. The restrictions of this section shall not apply to the sale or exchange of any articles of machinery or equipment of any City owned utility which are worn out or useless, or which have been, or could with advantage to the service be, replaced by new and improved machinery or equipment, to the leasing of property not necessary for the operation, or to the exchange of property or easements for other property or easements. The provisions of this section shall not extend to the vacation or abandonment of streets, as provided by law.

Section 12.5 Granting of Public Utility Franchises

a. Public utility franchises and all renewals and extensions thereof and amendments thereto shall be granted only by ordinance. No franchise shall be granted for a period of longer than five (5) years.

b. No franchise ordinance which is not subject to revocation at the will of the Council shall be enacted or become operative until the same shall have first been referred to the people at a regular or special election and received the affirmative vote of three-fifths (3/5ths) of the electors voting thereon. No such franchise ordinance shall be approved by the Council for referral to the electorate before thirty (30) days after application therefor has been filed with the Council, nor until a public hearing has been held thereon, nor until the grantee named therein has filed with the City Clerk his unconditional acceptance of all terms of the franchise. No special election for such purpose shall be ordered unless the expense of holding such election, as determined by the Council, shall have first been paid to the City Treasurer by the grantee.

c. A franchise ordinance, or renewal or extension thereof or amendment thereto, which is subject to revocation at the will of the Council may be enacted by the Council without referral to the voters, but shall not be enacted unless it shall have been complete in the form in which it is finally enacted and shall have so been on file in the office of the Clerk for public inspection for at least four (4) weeks after publication of a notice that such ordinance is so on file.

Section 12.6 Conditions of Public Utility Franchises

All public utility franchises granted after adoption of this Charter, whether it be so provided in the granting ordinance or not, shall be subject to the following rights of the City, but this enumeration shall not be exclusive or impair the right of the Council to insert in such franchises any provision within the power of the City to impose or require:—

a. To repeal the same for misuse, non-use, or failure to comply with the provisions thereof;

b. To require proper and adequate extension of plant and service and maintenance thereof at the highest practicable standard of efficiency;

c. To establish reasonable standards of service and quality of products and prevent unjust discrimination in service or rates;

d. To require continuous and uninterrupted service to the public in accordance with the terms of the franchise throughout the entire period thereof;

e. To use, control and regulate the use of its streets, alleys, bridges and other public places and the space above and beneath them;

f. To impose such other regulations as may be determined by the Council to be conducive to the safety, welfare and accommodation of the public.

Section 12.7 Regulation of Rates

All public utility franchises shall make provision for fixing rates, fares and charges, and may provide for readjustments thereof at periodic intervals. The value of the property of the utility used as a basis for fixing such rates, fares and charges shall, in no event, include a value predicated upon the franchise, good-will or prospective profits.

Section 12.8 Use of Public Places by Utilities

Every public utility, whether it has a franchise or not, shall pay such part of the cost of improvement, or maintenance of streets, alleys, bridges and other public places as shall arise from its use thereof and shall protect and save the City harmless from all damages arising from said use. Every such public utility may be required by the City to permit joint use of its property and appurtenances located in the streets, alleys and other public places of the City by the City and by other public utilities, insofar as such joint use may be reasonably practicable and upon payment of reasonable rental therefor. In the absence of agreement and upon application by any public utility, the Council shall provide for arbitration of the terms and conditions of such joint use and the compensation to be paid therefor, and the arbitration award shall be final.

Section 12.9 Sale and Assignment of Franchises

The grantee of a franchise may not sell, assign, sublet, or allow another to use the same, unless the Council consents. Nothing in this section shall limit the right of the grantee of any public utility franchise to mortgage its property or franchise, nor restrict the right of the purchaser, upon foreclosure sale, to operate the same, except that such mortgagee or purchaser shall be subject to the terms of the franchise and the provisions of this Charter.

ARTICLE XIII
Planning and Zoning

Section 13.1 Planning Commission

The City council shall create a Planning Commission in accordance with statute.

Section 13.2 Zoning

The City Council shall prescribe by ordinance the zoning laws for the City.

Section 13.3 Zoning Variances

All applications for zoning variances shall be submitted to the City Manager in writing. The City Manager shall review the applications and refer said applications to the Planning Commission. The Planning Commission shall weigh the merits of each application and make a recommendation to the Zoning Board of Appeals in writing.

ARTICLE XIV Transition

Section 14.1 Purpose

The purpose of this Article is to assist in the transition from the existing Charter to this Charter and it shall constitute a part of this Charter only to the extent and for the time required to accomplish that end.

Section 14.2 Effective Date

Except as otherwise provided herein, this Charter shall take effect and become law on the first (1st) Monday in June, 1978, at 12:01 A.M.

Section 14.3 Initial Election and Terms of Office

a. The first election of City Council members under this Charter shall take place on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1978. Three (3) Council members shall be elected on that occasion, being one (1) Council member from each of the wards of the City, each of whom shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1980. The nomination and election of such Council members shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Charter. The first meeting of the Council under this Charter shall be held on the first (1st) Monday of July, 1978.

b. The Mayor elected in November, 1978, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1979.

c. The City Clerk elected in November, 1978, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1979.

d. The City Council members elected in November, 1979, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1980, and serve through December 31, 1981.

e. The office of Treasurer under the Fourth Class Cities Act shall be abolished and terminated upon the appointment of the Treasurer as hereinbefore provided, such Treasurer to be appointed on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979.

Section 14.4 Vacancies

Should a vacancy occur in any office of the City after adoption of this Charter and prior to April 1, 1979, such vacancy shall be filled in the manner provided in the existing charter of the City and the person so appointed or elected shall serve until the time that the term of office to which that person was appointed or elected expires under the provisions of the existing charter, except as modified by this Charter.

Section 14.5 Terms of Public Officials

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Charter, the existing term of any public official shall not be shortened or extended beyond the period for which he is elected or appointed, unless he resign or be removed for cause, where such office is held for a fixed term. Otherwise public officials and employees shall continue in their offices at the pleasure of the appointing or hiring official or body.

Section 14.6 Continuation of Rights - Claims - Contracts, etc.

All rights, claims, actions, orders, contracts, and legal or administrative proceedings of the City shall continue except as modified pursuant to the provisions of this Charter, and in each case shall be maintained, carried on, or dealt with by the City department, office, or agency appropriate under this Charter.

Section 14.7 Continuation of Ordinances, Resolutions and Rules

All laws, ordinances, resolutions, orders, rules, or regulations in force in the City at the time this Charter takes effect, to the extent they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Charter, shall continue in full force until repealed or amended.

Section 14.8 Continuation of Boards, Committees and Commissions

All boards, committees, agencies, or commissions of the City in existence at the time this Charter takes effect, to the extent they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Charter, shall continue to function until abolished or modified by the Council in accordance with the provisions of this Charter.

Section 14.9 Status of Taxes and Assessments

All taxes and assessments levied or assessed and all charges thereon and all fines and penalties imposed, which are uncollected at the time this Charter takes effect, shall be collected as if such change had not been made. If a remedy is provided by this Charter, or by any ordinance or resolution, the remedy shall be deemed cumulative to the remedies under the existing charter.

Section 14.10 Transition Authority

In all cases not covered by this Charter, the Council shall supply necessary details and procedures for the transition from government of the City under the existing charter to that under this Charter, and may adopt such rules, resolutions and ordinances as may be required therefor.

Section 14.11 Submission to Voters; Form of Ballot

This Charter shall be submitted to a vote of the registered electors of the City of Charlevoix at the General election to be held on April 3, 1978. All provisions for the submission of the question of adoption of this Charter at such election and the counting and certifying of the vote thereon shall be made by the City Clerk in the manner provided by law. This Charter shall be adopted if a majority of the ballots cast thereon are in favor of the adoption.

The form of the ballot for the submission of this Charter to the electors shall be as follows:

Shall the Charter proposed for the City of Charlevoix by the Charter Commission elected on April 7, 1975, be adopted?

Yes ☐

No ☐

A "Yes" vote will be a vote in favor of adoption of the proposed Charter.

A "No" vote will be a vote against adoption.

City of Charlevoix Zoning Ordinance Inside this Issue

WITH ALL THE WARM WEATHER Charlevoix has been enjoying lately, residents' thoughts have been turning to spring. This sign presented how most people felt last week, but it couldn't get Mother Nature to cooperate. She sprinkled the ground with snow just in time for the first day of spring.

School board cancels vote, appoints Bob Cook to seat

By FRAN MARTIN

The upcoming election on a bond issue for an expansion program at the Charlevoix High School was canceled Monday night by board of education.

The school board decided to cancel the vote on a $3.2 million bond issue election scheduled April 24 due to the recent increase in assessments and property taxes.

"We would like to give the taypayers of our school district additional time to investigate and better understand their property tax situation before asking them to approve the bonding proposal for the Charlevoix High School," the board's resolution said in part.

The board tentatively rescheduled the election for Oct. 2.

The board members felt this additional time would enable residents of the school district to better understand the necessity of the proposed building program and what it will cost each taxpayer.

"During the next few months we would like to encourage anyone with questions regarding their school taxes to call our business office.

The upcoming election on a bond issue for expanding the high school was canceled Monday night by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

In a resolution

The board decided to cancel the vote on a $3.2 million bond issue election scheduled April 24 and rescheduled it for Oct. 2.

Inadequate facilities and the possible loss of accreditation were the reasons for initiating the expansion program.

In other action, Robert J. Cook, a former member of the Charlevoix Board of Education, was named to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Claire C. Martin whose term in office would have expired June 30, 1978. He was serving as treasurer at the time of his death. Mrs. Ardeth Wieland was named to fill this office until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1978.

Dennis Guilder, who served as assistant girls' track coach under Mrs. Marie Osterberg last spring, was named to fill the vacancy created by her resignation. The position of assistant coach will be posted and filled at a later date.

Approval was given the affiliation of the Charlevoix Public Library with the Alpena District in order to receive full funding at the rate of $1.50 per capita throughout the school district. A redistricting of the state has placed the Charlevoix library in the Alpena District.

Approval was also given to a request for the use of the high school gymnasium April 17 by the "Echoes from Calvary" TV ministry. The organization agreed to pay the set rate for use of the facility.

Council discusses new plan for Belvedere apartments

Charlevoix Common Council held a second site plan review on a proposed development on Belvedere Avenue Monday night.

Variance requests for the development were denied two weeks ago during a board of appeals meeting.

Under the new proposal, C.D. Matthews, owner of the property, said the height of the eight-unit condominium had been lowered to 35 feet, the maximum allowable under the current zoning ordinance.

The second proposal for the construction of Belvedere Apartments also needs side yard and front yard setback variances as well as density variances. The council decided to consider the variance requests at a board of appeals meeting April 3.

In other action, common council amended its sign ordinance to allow the Ben Franklin store in the Captain's Corner shopping center to put up a large sign.

Following adoption of the amendment to the sign ordinance, common council granted the new Ben Franklin store a special use permit for its proposed sign that will be flush to the building.

Council also approved a resolution to increase the salaries of nonunion city employees by 8 percent to meet the cost of living. A total of 17 employees in the city including the city clerk and city treasurer are affected by the wage increase.

School board petition deadline set April 10 for June election

The deadline for filing nominating petitions for seats on the Charlevoix Board of Education is 4 p.m. April 10.

Two seats will be up for election during the general school vote June 12. The terms of Ardeth Wieland and the late Claire Martin will expire June 30. Both terms are for four years.

Mrs. Wieland will seek re-election to her seat. The Charlevoix Board of Education has appointed Robert J. Cook, former member, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Martin, who was completing a four-year term and was serving as treasurer of the board. The appointment will be until the term expires June 30.

Other members of the school board are: Max Novak, presently serving as president; Charles Elzinga, vice president; Kenneth Boss, secretary; and Don Brown and Connie Pointner, trustees.

There will be no election for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Board of Education. Elections in the intermediate School District Board of Education. Elections in the intermediate school district are held bi-annually for six year terms.

The last day that people can register to vote in the school election is May 15.

City Council, Help Taxpayers

I would like to know who put that man in as Charlevoix tax assessor. I don't see why those taxes can be raised so high when we have a city surplus. Is this guy trying to look good at our expense, while he cuts our throats? We're going to have taxes we can't even pay and lose our homes. I beg the new city officers to look into this unfairness. I understand that the farmers in his township where he has assessed their farms can hardly pay their taxes and have to work off the farm and can't even stay on their own land. Please city council help the taxpayers in Charlevoix. Thank you.

High School Bathroom Problems

I'm calling about the bathrooms at the Charlevoix High School. They have the doors off in Building A so that anyone that uses them feels like they're being watched all the time. It's very embarrassing to the girls. In Building B the doors are all locked so we can't use them. I think that something should be done. Thank you.

Comments on Taxes, Dogs

I have just read the editor's note about the program for the academically talented children in this week's Courier. She stated that the program's teacher is currently applying for federal and state funds available for these programs so that it can be expanded, again at no additional expense to the taxpayers. What occurred to me was that where does the editor think that the federal and state funds come from? It was just an interesting statement. I would also like to add to the first comment on the Hotline about dogs plaguing Hurlbut. We also have the same problem on Upright St. and after 3 calls to the Sheriff's Dept. have received no satisfaction. Maybe we need B-B guns. Thank you.

SOME QUESTIONS THAT SHOULD BE ANSWERED BY THE ALLOCATION BOARD:

Why Should the County and City be reevaluated when the valuation of Charlevoix County is one of the highest in the State?

Is this assessment just a sneaky way to get more taxes without consulting the taxpayer?

Why not levy so many mills, if needed, so that property owners can accept or reject the levy?

Why isn't the public informed ahead of time of the reassessment so he can be prepared to have his or her say in the matter?

Why don't the powers that be explain the need for reevaluation?

Why was a different percentage factor used in different parts of the City and County?

Teamsters, city told to return to bargaining

City officials were expected to meet with members of the Teamsters Local representing the Charlevoix City police and fire departments Tuesday.

City attorney Donald Berlage told Charlevoix Common Council Monday night that the arbitrator had told the city and union officials to meet and iron out all issues in the contract other than wages.

"The arbitrator wants to get as many issues resolved as possible," Berlage explained. "He doesn't want to have to write the whole contract himself."

The city and the Teamsters have been negotiating a contract for more than a year without coming to an agreement. The two units are unable to agree on wages and fringe benefits.

County stray dog policy changed

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is embarking on a new "get tough" policy in dealing with dogs running at large in the county.

Sheriff George Lasater explained that the department has resorted to the get tough policy after trying a system of warnings with dog owners.

"In the past we have had a policy of warning people who have dogs running loose, but it hasn't worked," Sheriff Lasater explained, "We're getting even more complaints."

Lasater said there had been some cases of dog bites reported in the county, too, but the number is not any greater than usual.

"Having the dogs run at large is a nuisance and we've been getting a lot of complaints about it," the sheriff said. "We're trying to work with the people in clearing up the problem."

Under the new "get tough" policy, the animal control officer will be issuing more citations and picking up more dogs as he spots them running at large, the sheriff said.

The citations will be issued instead of warnings because the warning system has not worked, Lasater said. The citations carry a $25 fine.

The animal control officer's patrol will also be staggered.

A WHOOP AND A CHEER came out of these Cub Scouts as they watched their cars turn into winners during the first heat of the Pinewood Derby Saturday. More than 40 Cubs participated in the annual race. For more pictures see page 10.

Church of God to host service on Good Friday

The Community Church of God will host the annual Union Good Friday Service sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association the Rev. Austin Regier, president of the spunsoring organization, has announced.

"The Seven Last Words" will be the theme of the service which will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 2:50 p.m. the Rev. Mr. Regier said. Seven pastors in the community will speak briefly during the period which will be presented in segments for the convenience of worshippers who cannot attend the entire service.

The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational church, Rev. Walter Hastings of the host church, Rev. Roger Ames of Church Episcopal Church, Rev. Daniel Abner of the First Baptist church, Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church, Rev. Ernest Knight of the Church of the Nazarene and Rev. Donald Schorsch of the Assembly of God church will speak during the service. The Rev. Mr. Regier of the United Methodist church will officially open the service.

Special music will be provided with Mrs. Robert Tollas, Mrs. Lee Moerland and Mrs. Glenna Lenardson as soloists; Mrs. Robert Gill as organist; Mrs. James Jensen as pianist and by a quartet composed of local ministers. Steven Stargard will lead the congregation in song.

Worshipers of all denominations are invited to attend the Union Good Friday service from 1 until 2:50 p.m.

Business places will close during this period to permit attendance at the service.

Two special services set at Nazarene Church

Two special services will be held at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene on Easter Sunday.

At the 11 a.m. service, a special offering will be taken to support missionary work which is carried on in many countries for world evangelism.

At the second service, the film "The Gospel Road," will be shown at 7 p.m. The film is distributed by World Wide Pictures and was produced and written by Johnny Cash and his wife, June Carter Cash.

The Cashes wanted to make the movie to tell the story of Jesus Christ in a realistic and meaningful way including the influence the gospel has had on their lives, Rev. Earnest Knight explained.

The movie is a unique blend of Scripture-based narrative with the songs and background music of Johnny Cash and other outstanding musicians and a series of indepth character portrayals.

The public is invited to both services.

Many services top Easter week schedule at First Congregational

Many services will highlight Easter week at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The week will open with a Maundy Thursday service of tenebrae and communion at 8 p.m. in the fellowship hall. In addition to communion, the service will consist of hymns, scripture and meditation.

On Good Friday, members of the church will participate in the community Good Friday service at 1 p.m. at the Assembly of God Church. The service is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

On Easter Sunday there will be an informal worship service at 7:30 a.m. to celebrate the resurrection followed by breakfast at the Congregational church. Reservations for breakfast should be made by Friday. The second worship service will be held at 11 a.m. There will be no Sunday school.

The public is invited to participate in all of the special services.

Cantata presented at Church of God

A special Easter cantata will be presented at the Charlevoix Community Church of God next week.

The Sanctuary Choir will present the musical cantata "Now Is Christ Risen!" at 7 p.m. Easter Sunday in the church.

The musical traces the final days of Jesus' life from the triumphal entry into Jerusalem to the crucifixion scene and includes the victorious news of Christ's resurrection.

Ken Boss will direct the choir with Mrs. Robert Gill accompanying on the organ and Mrs. James Jensen accompanying on the piano.

Featured soloists from the 20-voice choir will be Mrs. William Lenardson, soprano, Daniel Mort, baritone, Elmer Engelhart, tenor, and Pastor Walt Hastings, bass. James Jensen will be the narrator.

Community members are invited to attend the service.

Local residents join taxpayers' revolt

Charlevoix County residents have joined taxpayers across the state and nation in revolting against their property taxes.

A petition drive seeking to place a tax limitation proposal on the November ballot in Michigan is going at a furious pace in Charlevoix County and across the state. In fact, petition distributors are having trouble keeping enough petitions on hand to meet the requests for them.

"The response to this drive has been phenomenal," Linda St. Louis, who works at the Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation Southfield headquarters, said. "Right now we have 500 requests for petitions to fill from all over the state. And we get more requests every day."

Taxpayers United is a citizens group staging the campaign to get the tax limitation proposal on the ballot. The proposal also has the backing of Tax Efficiency Association of Michigan.

The tax limitation proposal, which is very similar to the Proposal C that was narrowly defeated in the 1978 election, seeks to prohibit the state from increasing taxes above a certain limit, which is tied to personal income of the taxpayers, without voter approval. Taxes would not increase beyond the rate of inflation unless the voters approved it.

The Constitutional amendment would also prohibit the state from requiring local governmental units to institute new programs unless the state pays the cost. And local governments would have to get voter approval before they could levy any new taxes.

As it stands now, local governments can issue bonds and then levy taxes to pay them off without voter approval.

Bill Carey, one of the petition distributors in Charlevoix, said he became involved with the tax limitation proposal when it first appeared as Proposal C.

"We are continually faced with inflation and one of the primary causes of inflation is government spending," Carey explained. "If they continue to spend unchecked, things will really get out of hand.

"I'm convinced that the state should have to live within a budget. As an individual I certainly have to live within a budget and the county and the schools also have to, so why shouldn't the state."

Carey said the Michigan Association of Realtors supported Proposal C and he believes it will support the tax limitation proposal, too.

"We try to represent the interest of property owners and we feel this will help control property taxes," Carey said.

Ms. St. Louis is confident that her group will be able to collect the 266,000 signatures needed to place the issue on the ballot by the middle of May.

"The petitions aren't due until June, but we want to have some time to get them tabulated," she explained. "I'm very, very confident that we will make it. We have more than 100,000 petitions in circulation right now. If everyone turns them in we should hvae the signatures we need."

Ms. St. Louis said the group had 20,000 signatures right now. From Charlevoix County she has received petitions containing 114 signatures while Emmet County residents have turned in 132 signatures. Antrim County has turned in 75 signatures and Grand Traverse has turned in 162. Otsego County residents have turned in petitions containing 15 signatures.

"I don't think the number of petitions we have had turned in really reflects the enthusiasm there is for the proposal," Ms. St. Louis said. "We're urging everyone to turn their petitions in as soon as possible so that we can get an accurate estimate of how many more signatures we need."

Carl Hewitt, regional director of the petition drive for the 14 northern counties, also believes the area will come through with the required number of signatures needed to place the tax limitation issue on the ballot.

"The enthusiasm that has been generated by this tax drive leads me to believe that we're much further ahead on this proposal than we were with Proposal C and that it will pass," Hewitt said.

Cheaper metals in coins save federal government money

Performing his magic act, Uncle Sam was able to pocket an extra $66,500 or so in the past year at the expense of Charlevoix County residents.

It was accomplished by means of a coin trick that only the Government is at liberty to perform.

Involved was the distribution of coins bearing such markings as 50 cents, 25 cents, 10 cents, etc., with intrinsic metallic values that were far less than these amounts.

The difference between the face value of the coins minted in the fiscal year and their real, intrinsic value came to no less than $66,850 locally and $750 million nationally. The profit, which is called seigniorage, went directly into the general fund of the Treasury.

At one time, such coins had a content of about 90 percent silver and had actual values that were close to their designations. Now, however, they are made of copper, nickel and zinc, which are cheaper metals. About 84 percent of face value is saved through the switchover.

The facts and figures on the production of new coins and the cost of the metals used in making them are revealed in the latest annual report of the Director of the Mint.

It shows that the Mint has had to operate under high pressure lately to keep up with the growing demand for coins, especially pennies. It is turning them out at the rate of 13 billion per year.

Charlevoix County's share of this output, based upon proportional distribution, was about 1,146,000. The seigniorage on them was equivalent to $3.50 per capital.

Why is it necessary to produce so many new coins each year? The Treasury Department has found that large quantities of coins are steadily disappearing or going into hiding, causing problems for retail merchants and for business in general.

Some people have been hoarding pennies because of their content – 95 percent copper. They hope to sell them at a profit some day. As a result, the Mint had to turn out 9 billion pennies in the year. There were 4 billion of other denominations produced.

The coins going to Charlevoix County, as its share of this distribution, have a face value equal to $4.16 per local resident.

Artists North group to address Charlevoix Womens Club Tuesday

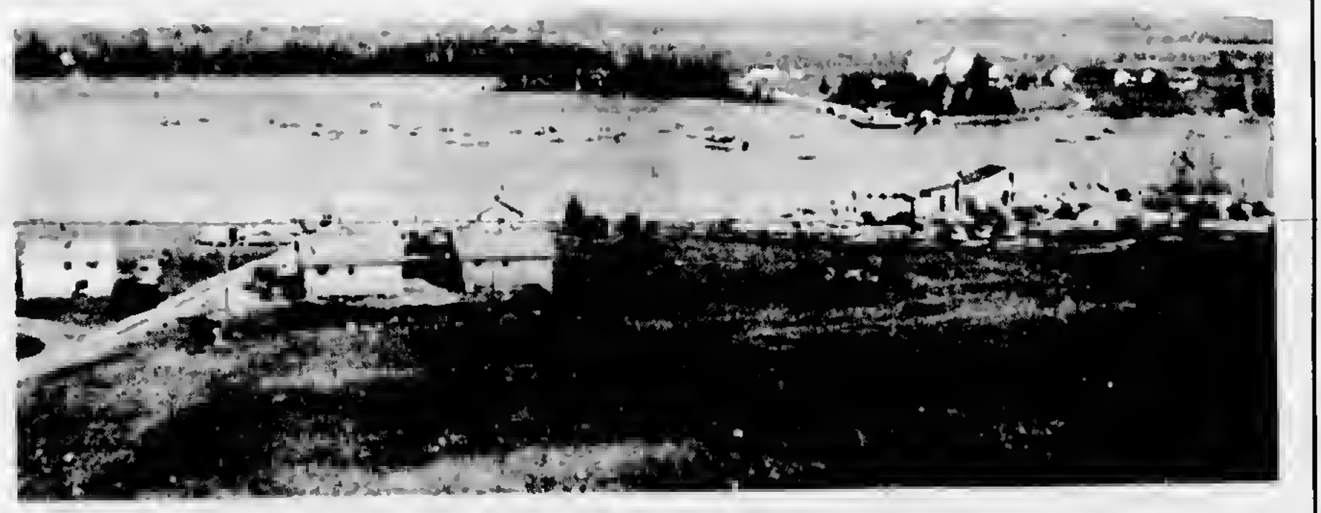
The Charlevoix Women's Club will be treated to an evening with local artists Tuesday (March 21) at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Artists from throughout the Charlevoix area will be on hand to display some of their works and to explain the procedures with women's club members, guest and interested members of the public.

In addition to showing their works, the artists will present a slide show about Artists North, the cooperative operated by local artists. The slide presentation will begin at 8 p.m.

Artists who will be displaying their work and their medium are: S. Marcie Brown, fiber; Linda Beers-Aydlott, jewlery; Jerry Aydlott, jewelry, photography; Richard Cunningham, pottery; Chuck Koucky, pottery Laurie Leaser-Murray, pottery; William Murray, pottery and Nancy Riggs-Koucky, weaving.

Others include: Pat Greybiel, weaving; Steven Kendall, paintings; Jim Kuhn, stained glass; Misty Morning Trading Company, stained glass; and Jim and Diane Belcher, soft fiber sculptures.



Charlevoix Yesterday

FOR MANY YEARS IRONTON was noted for its perch and smolt fishing near and around the Ironton Ferry. Hundreds of anglers like those pictured here waited for the word that the perch run was on and then gathered here for the catch. Fishermen came from near and far during the month of April. Sometimes 100 boats would be on the lake. There were several boat liveries and a guide service was also available. This picture was taken in the 1930s. (Photo courtesy of Mrs. Ross Alexander).

Michiganders pay less overall tax

Michigan taxpayers may think their taxes are high, but the bills are actually lower than many other states in the union.

According to David Verway, Michigan State University economist, Michigan residents have less to grumble about in terms of taxes than do residents of 11 other states.

New Yorkers paid the largest percentage of their 1976 income to federal, state and local governments. Michiganders ranked 11th in the amount of taxes paid to the three units.

Michigan, with a figure of 6.9 percent, ranked 25th in the percentage of personal income paid to state governments. Alaska headed the list with a rate of 18.7 percent of the income going to state government and New Hampshire residents only paid 3.6 percent to the state.

District of Columbia residents paid the largest percentage of personal income to local guveroments with 11.5 percent going to the city while New Mexico residents paid the lowest percentage, 2. Michigan tied with Maryland for 15th place with 5 percent.

Federal taxes per $1,000 of personal income amounted to $210.12 for Michigan placing the state 10th and slightly above the national average of $202.71 of federal taxes per $1,000 of personal income.

Charlevoix needs community spirit

Spark. What is it that puts spark into a community and gives a town's residents a sense of price and enthusiasm.

Whatever it is that makes up community spirit and sparks it into action, it is a hard thing to put a finger on, officials from various communities say.

The officials agree it's a combination of factors that makes a town's residents feel a sense of community. And it's a combination of things that sparks that sense of community and moves the people to work together improving the town.

Bob Anderson, city manager of All American City, Harbor Springs, called that sense of community and that spark the most important asset Harbor Springs has next to its environment.

But Anderson couldn't define exactly what went into making up that spark and that spirit. And he had no ideas as to why some communities seemed to have that spark while other, very similar communities don't.

Size, roots and a sense of community all go into making up community spirit and there's a certain magnetism that draws them all together and sparks activity that improves the community.

Charlevoix has all these things. This town is still small enough and friendly enough that many of the people know and like each other and can work together.

The town also has roots. Many, many people have lived and loved Charlevoix for their lifetimes. Even newcomers become very attracted to the city the longer they live and work here. There's just something about Charlevoix that makes people fall in love with it.

And there is a sense of community. There are special interest groups supporting all sorts of causes. The Charlevix County unit of the American Cancer Society always makes it goal. The Band Boosters, Sports Boosters and Wrestling Club are all strong as are the men's and women's service clubs.

But somehow all of this talent just can't get together to work on improving the entire community. They can do it in parts, but not as a whole.

"You know," one area official said. "I think Charlevoix has more potential than any other community in Northern Michigan. But there always seems to be a rift in the community, there always seems to be a struggle going on. And so they can't get together to get anything done."

Charlevoix is embroiled in controversy and in power struggles, real and imagined. One ward is always trying to get power from the other ward and residents within the wards fight with each other over who will be the leaders. It's time that the various factions in the community got together and decided to work together. After all, we all live in the same town.

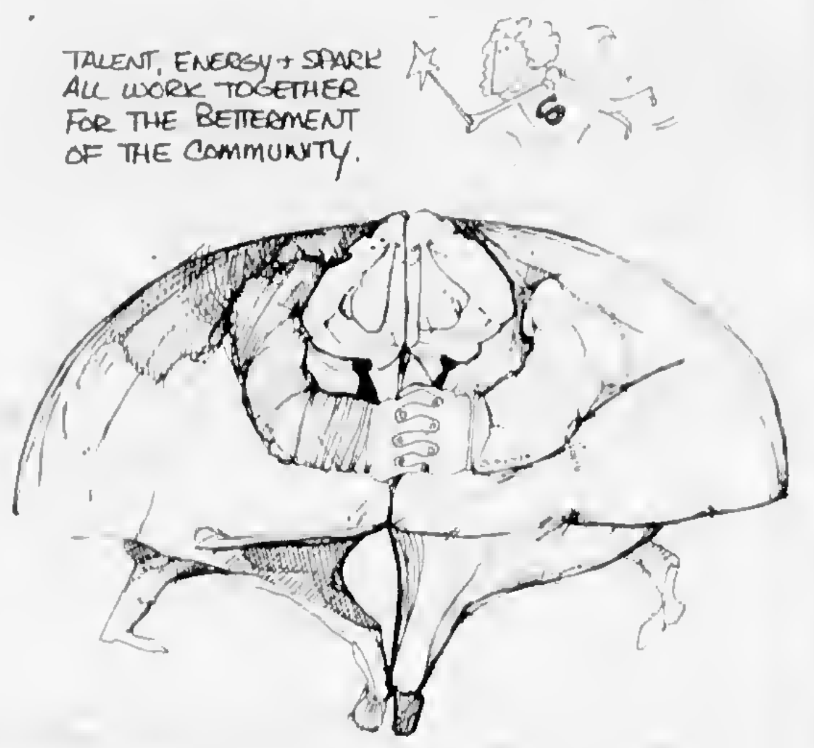
There are many things that need to be done. Parking is still a problem downtown, our recreation facilities such as Mt. McSnnba need improvements and the bandshell in East Park needs to be completed. There are numerous other things that could be done to improve the city, too.

How can these things be accomplished? One official suggested the community adopt the new charter because it offered a more workable form of government.

Another official suggested a citizen's committee could get together and set up some realistic goals, and deadlines for achieving them in the city. Having some specific goals for the entire community to work together would help get the city's residents working together toward a common goal of improving Charlevoix for everyone instead of fighting with each other over whose clique gets to say what is accomplished in the city.

The talent and energy is here in Charlevoix, all that is needed is spark and who knows how many things could be accomplished.

Together we can do it.



TALENT, ENERGY + SPARK ALL WORK TOGETHER FOR THE BETTERMENT OF THE COMMUNITY.

Paula Holmes... ...Speaking Her Mind

Saturday I had one of those heart warming experiences that newspaper columns are sometimes made of. In fact, I had two such experiences.

I spent part of the afternoon taking pictures at the first Charlevoix Middle School Invitational wrestling meet and at the annual Pinewood Derby race. Both events had winners and losers as all such competitive events do, but I think once they thought about it, most of the participants and spectators at both events felt they had come out on the winning side.

And the reason everyone turned out to be a winner was that they had the opportunity to participate in the events. And the reason they had the opportunity to participate in the events, which aren't offered in every community in Northern Michigan, was because of the hard work and dedication of a few individuals.

All through high school varsity wrestling season, I watched as Norm Probert sparked up his team and the fans. Probert didn't just use words to get the spirit up, he used actions, too.

The coach spent many long hours and his own money getting information out about the two invitational meets the high school was sponsoring and also about the dual meets. When the season came to a close, however, he didn't stop. He went right into a wrestling unit with the middle school boys.

Probert works hard not because of the glory, but because he loves the sport and he wants to give young men in Charlevoix the chance to participate in it. But even with all of his enthusiasm, the coach could not pull off all of the things he does without the dedicated support of members of the Charlevoix Wrestling Club.

These men and women, parents, sisters and brothers have also put in many long hours organizing events so that Charlevoix young people will have the opportunity to participate in the sport.

And the same goes for the Pinewood Derby. The scoutmaster and den mothers, such as Terry Salmonson and Barb Fortin, have put in long hours setting up a fun event for the elementory age Cub Scouts, but they couldn't have done it without the help of a dedicated few.

It was heartwarming to watch the tears and the cheers with the knowledge that within each tear and cheer was a lesson for the young man participating in the event.

But the blue ribbons really belonged to the few who give of themselves so that many benefit. I offer them a special thanks and I'm sure the rest of Charlevoix joins me.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

St. Patricks Day has come and gone and once again the Michigan press corps has had a field day dredging up skeins of fact and fancy about America's own Emerald Isle – Beaver Island.

This year, the prestigious Detroit News even joined the fun, offering readers six full columns of text and pictures on the Beaver Island Irish and how they celebrate St. Patricks Day in the middle of Lake Michigan.

Earlier this winter, the Traverse City Record Eagle gave the Island a full page of photos and copy, featuring some excellent Island vistas obliterated by snow squalls.

All of which is fine for the island, which depends to a large part on publicity to fulfill its modern-day economic role as a tourist mecca. In the old days, when the lake trout was king and the island bristled with virgin hardwoods, Beaver Islanders could thumb their noses at anyone carrying a suitcase. But not any longer. The suitcase may be filled with money.

So the island depends on good publicity and it has received more than its share so far in 1978, including a proper playing up of the Island's Irish heritage.

Fortunately, the stories were all well written and loaded with facts, figures and anecdotes about past and present-day life on Beaver Island.

Unfortunately, about half of the facts and figures are wrong, as any Beaver Islander will tell you.

In fact, as a newspaperman who has lived for the better part of two decades off the coast of Beaver Island, I know full well the futility of trying to pin down anything about Beaver Island. You might as well try to catch a sturgeon with a minnow net. Concrete information about the island is as elusive as the mist that hangs over Paradise Bay at 6 o'clock in the morning.

I think this is due in part to the mystical character of the Island's Irish who do not examine life with the same cold scrutiny as the rest of us. If it suits their fancy to exaggerate, so be it. Everyone will understand.

This cavalier attitude toward the truth extends not only to situations subject to a certain amount of individual interpretation but also to hard realities which should be subject to some kind of standard measurement.

Even the size of the island is subject to debate. I have always accepted the figures six miles wide and 14 miles long. More recently I have read that the Island is five miles wide and 13 miles long. Either someone is lying, or the Island is rapidly eroding into Lake Michigan.

Mileage figures to off-island locations also apparently are matters of opinion. For 13 years, 32 miles has been the portal to portal distance between Charlevoix and St. James. Now suddenly, the press claims it is 33 miles to the island, without specifying between which points.

Measuring distances between the Island and the mainland is particularly difficult since we don't make the trip in automobiles equipped with carefully calibrated odometers. Furthermore, the Island is different distances from various landfalls to the east. It is approximately 19 miles from Charlevoix to Beaver Head light. It is about 18 miles from Whiskey Point to Cross Village.

In both instances, "approximately" and "about" are the key words, since the island has a way of drifting in and out with the tide.

One of the recent writers of Beaver Island fables quoted a resident as saying there is only one tombstone in the Island's Protestant cemetery. This, of course, is not the truth. There are fully a dozen or more. But saying there is only one makes far better reading.

Another reporter claims the Irish came into prominence on the island after the Civil War. This is another fabrication. The Irish were in control two weeks after the assassination of King Strang – well before the Civil War.

You're in even deeper water if you ever try to establish who burned whose barn, since there are a dozen different versions of every Beaver Island tale.

Although the truth about Beaver Island is almost impossible to pin down, Beaver Islanders and their friends on the mainland would have it no other way.

They live to shop

The middle-aged mother and 21-year-old daughter – call them Pat and Ferd – were shopping when they both got headaches. So they bought some aspirin.

This particular shopping excursion began at 10 a.m. on a Saturday and ended near midnight when the mall closed and Pat and Ferd were thrown out into the parking lot, screaming for just 15 minutes more in a shoe store.

This mother and daughter were shopping for the daughter's wedding. They have been doing this for several years now. So far, the only thing they've purchased is the aspirin.

Pat and Ferd don't believe in making snap decisions. When shopping for a dress, for instance, they search for weeks until they find one they absolutely love. But they don't buy it.

Instead, they return home and stay up all night asking each other why they didn't buy that dress they both loved so much. The next day they hurry back to the store, but the dress has been sold to someone else. They say they will never shop there again.

In view of this shopping procedure, it is not surprising that Ferd and her fiance are having a long engagement. He has already bought a home for them to live in, but they can't be married until Ferd decides what kind of a pillow the ring bearer should bear the ring on.

It has been a stortling experience for an unsophisticated father to learn how many varied items must be purchased to make a wedding successful. Clothes and cake and such are expected expenditures. But the other day, just to give you an idea, Ferd was overheard asking Pat what kind of matches they should buy for the reception.

"I can get all the matches you need free from the Alibi Bar," the economical father said.

"We must have match covers with a personal message on them," Pat explained. "The guests will take them home for souvenirs."

"Just don't buy the kind that say 'Thanks, Come Again,' " the father said, sobbing.

The wedding is now less than 3 months away and the shopping pace has quickened. Evidence of this is the fact that Pat and Ferd bought the aspirin on the same day they got the headaches. Unfortunately, the aspirin purchase had unhappy consequences.

The unhappiness occurred because Pat and Ferd, once they owned the aspirin, couldn't wait to get home before using it. They gobbled a few in a Sears store, washing the aspirin down at a drinking fountain.

Except some people don't have the talent required for chasing aspirin with water that gushes up into their faces while they are leaning forward. They must tilt their heads backward and drink the water from a glass. Pat is one of these untalented people.

Her aspirin stuck half way down her throat and wouldn't budge. She wanted to bend her head backward while drinking but this was impossible at a hip-high fountain, even when she sat on the floor. So Pat choked, making horrible hawking noises reminiscent of a duck in the final stages of strangulation.

"It was really embarrassing," Ferd reported later. "There was a line of people waiting to use the fountain but they couldn't get by Mother and she couldn't get out of their way until she swallowed the aspirin."

Pat finally became innovative. She took a piece of paper from her pocket and fashioned it into a Dixie cup which she filled from the fountain. As she brought it toward her face, the cup collapsed and the water fell on the head of a little boy who had crowded close to see the lady making the funny noises.
